If Ya Think 'Bout It. . . 'Cats Could Be 2-2

Undefeated, yet so close to what could have been an unsettling 2-2 beginning in a season of much promise

That phrase is for the losers of the world, those who prescribe "wait 'til next year

In fact, Kentucky is 4-0, ranked No. 1 in the country and is headed toward a 7-0 start out of the gates before it collides with SEC rival Vanderbilt to ring out the old year later

Oh, there are some games ahead, but none of the next three opponents has the firepower to beat the Wildcats, even on the worst of Kentucky should successfully defend its UKIT title this weekend against the likes of Miami of Ohio, Middle Tennessee and North Carolina-Charlotte. Miami has no chance of upsetting the 'Cats. In the championship game, UK should be a big favorite. Either MTSU or UNCC could upset the 'Cats, perhaps on their homecourts, but not in Rupp

And when Alaska comes to town. Well, the Seawolves have about as much chance of Seawoives have about as much chance of beating the Big Blue as a snow has a chance of staying cold you know where.

I mean, if UK can survive all that Denny Crum's Cardinals threw at it Saturday and still win, then the Big Blue should be all right at Rupp this winter.

There were some so-called experts around these parts who predicted a big blowout last Saturday. Some reporters were even suggesting it could challenge last year's 34-point blowout at Freedom Hall.

Either they didn't know much about the game, it was wishful thinking or they were trying to help con Sutton and his Wildcats into thinking they didn't have to be prepared.

I tend to believe that reporters where hard-pressed for story angles of this event tagged the "Dream Game" several years ago.

Throughout the week's buildup, none of these reporters who suggested a blowout was in the offing took time to report what the real experts in Vegas were saying about the game. Although the big dailies report odds on games these days, it wasn't until Saturday morning that reporters got around to mentioning that the official line had UK an eight- (not 80-, not 50-, not 35-, not even a 10-) point

My friends, that isn't a very high margin for a No. 1-ranked team playing an unranked team on the No. 1-ranked team's home

It's safe to assume then Kentucky was about to be set up for the ambush.

The Wildcats themselves helped along the notion after scrambling ahead by as many as 16 points in the first half before Crum's Cardinals came roaring back.

Some people claim this Louisville team isn't very talented. C'mon sports fans, let's have a little honesty. What I'd like to know is if the Cards were looking past Notre Dame a week ago and really had their eyes on Kentucky?

Back to the Cards' talent. You gonna tell me Pervis Ellison, Herb Crook, Kenny Payne and Keith Williams can't play basketball?
Why don't you ask to see their championship rings of two years ago? They didn't come out of Chacker ands.

And they're well-coached. Crum is one of the nation's best and he doesn't have to pro is credentials either.

Still, there were some out there to kept yak-king about a blowout. If this series is played 20 years, you'll not have a blowout more than once every six or eight. And you'll never see the same team get blown out two years in a row. Traditional rivalries among powerhouses aren't played that way.

Fortunately for Kentucky, the Wildcats played to win down the stretch, not to keep from losing. Sure, there were three vital tur-novers by veterans, but when the chips were on the line, the 'Cats found a way to win, and

When next December rolls around and the two clubs meet in Louisville, it'll be in-teresting to see if the media expects a Louisville rout since the Cards almost upset the 'Cats at Rupp Arena when UK was rank-

I gotta hunch it'll be another close one

In the first game, Lexington Catholic meets Lexington Tates Creek followed by Scott County and Chattanooga High. The third game has Lexington Lafayette taking on Cathedral. The final contest pits Macomber-Whitney against Lexington Bryan Station.

room after Kentucky's 76-75 win over isville Saturday was retired UK president Dr. Otis Singletary, who congratulated the Wildcats on their fifth victory in six tries since that historic decision to reinstate the series back in the spring of 1983. Dr. Singletary said he had no idea the series would turn into the one-sided affair it has, but jokingly added that he'd be happy to take credit if anyone wanted to pass it along to him were former Kentucky governor Happy Chandler and Gov. Wallace Wilkinson, who was just inaugurated last week. Neither denied their strong loyalty to the University of Kentucky . . . Don't be surprised if WHAS Radio rejoins the Kentucky football and basketball radio networks next season. There have been several moves and meetings about their return and it now appears a deal is nearing. But don't expect any leaks of the details until a pact is signed, sealed and delivered. What this means as far as UK's other 50,000-watt, clear channel station-WLW in Cincinnati—is unknown. And what it means to the current Louisville outlet—WAVG Radio—isn't known other than the fact that WAVG Radio will have UK sports again next year, at least on a simulcast basis . . . One of the big hangups in recent years has been WHAS' use of UK's self-proclaimed critic, Jock Sutherland. There are some around Jock Sutherland. There are some around UK who seem to think that WHAS will never retain sole rights to UK games as long as Sutherland is permitted to have an open throt-tle against UK. Of course, WHAS' ultimate goal is to have the 'Cats exclusively. That con-troversy was stirred again last week when both the Louisville Courier-Journal and the Lexington Herald-Leader each published features on Sutherland and his dislike for UK For those rabid UK fans who didn't get the opportunity to purchase a Big Four Classic game program, which was produced by Host Communications, you can still obtain one by mailing $6 (which includes postage and handling) to:

Big Four Program P.O. Box 1988-A Lexington, Ky. 40593-1988

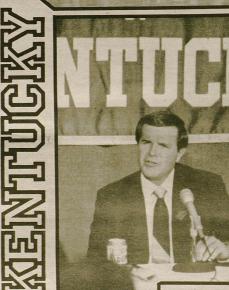

If you're a collector, you won't want to miss this one. It ranks right up there with the Final Four programs which are also produced by Host Communications. . . Speaking of programs, Host Communications has just made the Lexington Civic Center (which operates Rupp Arena Arena) $325,000 richer. the right fee the Center will received from Host over the next five years to produce and sell game programs for UK basketball games. Host paid $43,000 for rights to the programs this season. Next season, Host proposed to pay over $60,000 with the fee going as high as $70,000 in the last year of the five-year deal. Unfortunately, none of those dollars go to the University of Kentucky. As part of UK's agreement with the Center for use of Rupp Arena, all profits and rights of game programs go to the Lexington Center We'd like to invite you to catch a one television special this Saturday on WLEX-TV, Channel 18 in Lexington at 7 p.m., just before the championship of the UKIT. anybody."

Eddie Sutton agreed. "It's a healthy rivalry here in the state, and I hope it stays that way. I think it's an important game for the fans, one that should be played in December. Then we go and try to win our conference and they go and try to win theirs."

The key word here, I believe, is fans. College basketball fans in Kentucky wanted a UK-U of L series for the right reasons. It is one more sports happening to get very excited about. And, from conversations I heard last week, the series is indeed healthy—a good rivalry with virtually no negative factors of any real significance.

When Kentucky and Louisville fans stand back a little and view the series with a little less passion and a bit more perspective, they will see that the annual contest is an excellent two-hour television commercial for the state.

Big brother/Little brother'
About his "Big brother-Little Brother" remark before the UK-UoLL game in 1986, Kentucky coach Eddie Sutton said before last Saturday's game that, "in no way did I mean it (the Little Brother remark) to be derogatory to the University of Louisville. I just meant that Kentucky has been at it longer and has won more games than UofL. But UofL is an outstanding basketball program.

"I didn't mean to nut coach Crum down in any way." he basketball program.

"I didn't mean to put coach Crum down in any way," he added. "If it was taken that way then I would apologize." Crum's reaction? "The comment didn't help anything, but we all say things that we don't mean. I wasn't upset by it before and I'm not now. It's like my dad told me once 'don't major in minors.' In other words don't worry about the things you can't control."

The game? Sutton predicted it would be a "great game, very close. I don't know what the wizards in Vegas are picking, but I think it's going to be a close game." Now you know the rest of that story

Statistically speaking
Sutton analyzed very well last week why his team was No. 1

"I look at the points we're scoring — 75 to 80 a game — and if our defense is good and sound — we're holding our opponents to say, 60 to 67 points, then we're going to have a great chance to win a game.

to say, so to sty points, then we're going to have a great chance to win a game.

Kentucky is averaging 13 turnovers per game. "That's very good for this time of year," Sutton said. "Defense, I've been very pleased with it."

UK has committed 40 turnovers in three games while forcing its opponents into 67. Steals: The Wildcats have 36, their foes

When the Associated Press college basketball rankings came out last week the Kentucky Wildcats were no longer just No. 1 in the hearts of UK fans. The nation's sports writers thought so

What does it mean, being No. 1 in the polls'

What does it mean, being No. 1 in the polls?

The pluses outweigh the minuses, it seems to me.

Prestige. Polls may be for fans, but coaches and players are not being honest if they say "being rated No. 1 doesn't mean anything to us." Being recognized as the best, no matter what time of the season, is the goal for every competitive athlete. And certainly no college team in America ought to be able to handle the pressure that goes with it better than Kentucky.

Exposure. Being No. 1 means more attention from television and national media as well as day to day coverage at the regional and local levels. Everytime the letters "UK" appear in print or on a TV screen school officials relish it as much or more than fans do.

Recruiting. "Selling the program" is made immensely easier when a recruiter can walk into the living room of a high school prospect and tell his mom and dad that Kentucky is or has been No. 1 in the polls this season.

NCAA seedings. It is only December, but staying close to the top through the season, then solidifying a spot in the top four at the end, translates into being one of the top regional seeds, playing closer to home when the NCAA selection committee seeds its 64-team tournament field.

On the downside, coaches are accustomed to saying "being No. 1 this time of year just means everybody shoots at you that much harder." But Eddie Sutton said only last week, "everybody shoots at Kentucky's great tradition anyway."

Are there any downside items I missed?

Next, does Kentucky deserve to be rated No. 1?

Absolutely. For example, in Indiana, UK won a game one veteran Hoosier reporter said, "IU always expects to win. When they play here or in Bloomington, somehow, some way, by Divine Providence, it's supposed to happen. It's a given."

And, the ways UK beat the Hoosiers were impressive. Leather hide defense is what I call the formula. While the Wildcats' offense was barely adequate, 43.9 percent shooting Saturday, their defense was superb. Indiana had 11 more shots, 68 to 57, but made only 42.6.

"Kentucky is an aggressive man-to-man (defensive) team

"Kentucky is an aggressive man-to-man (defensive) team against whom you have to work hard to get good shots," It Coach Bob Knight said, adding, "I thought our guard play cost us the game. We just got badly whipped at the guard positions." How long at No. 1?

With the "Christmas Turkey" UKIT just ahead, there isn't much reason (Alaska?) to believe UK won't keep the top spot at least until New Year's Eve when Vanderbilt travels to Rupp

Mr. Hardnose, Ed Davender

Arena.

But the first real threat, it says here, will be Jan. 2 when UK plays Georgia in Atlanta.

UK's Mr. Hardnose is starting to receive the accoaldes he deserves.

Knight: "He's one of the best in the country at both ends of the floor. I told our team that before the game. Chapman we were able to contain. In fact, he was more a negative factor for them. But Davender, in one stretch kind of took over the game."

Sutton: 'I think he's an All-American, one of the top four or five in college basketball today," Sutton said. "Ask (Dick) Vitale or any sports writer who's better than Ed?"
So, why hasn't UK's senior gotten more national acclaim? "He's lived in the shadow of (Kenny) Walker and (Winston) Bennett, and then (Rex) Chapman came in like a whirlwind," Sutton said. "But you can't imagine what he does for our team at both ends of the floor.
"He's got to be the most underrated grand in college.

"He's got to be the most underrated guard in college basketball," the coach added.

Dwane Casey on Derrick Miller

During a brief conversation at the Hoosier Dome before the UK-IU game, UK assistant coach Dwane Casey chided the media for ''making a big thing'' out of Derrick Miller not playing in the Cincinnati game.

"Here we had just beaten Cincinnati and the big headlines next day were all about how Derrick didn't play," Casey said.

Louisville Cardinals

It is fair to say that the consensus opinion Saturday was that coach Denny Crum's team was awful in virtually every phase of

COACHES' CORNER

Following are coach Eddie Sutton's postgame comments after UK's 76-75 victory over Louisville last Saturday at Rupp Arena:

Question: During the week leading up to the game you said it would be a close con-test. Did you really expect it to be a one-test. Did you really expect it to be a one-point game?

Sutton: I thought it would be a tough game because Louisville is a good basketball team.

I've had them in my elite group since we started practicing on the he 15th of October. They've got excellent athletes and they are well coached. I knew if we did not play as well as we're capable of playing then it would be ex-tremely close. That's what happened. We played very well in the first half and went into intermission with a sizeable lead. We had the ball to begin the second stanza and yet we the ball to begin the second stanza and yet we went out and did not use good shot selection. The first two possessions: Rex (Chapman) took a shot off the second or third pass; the next time down Winston (Bennett) took a shot. . .that's what I keep preaching—one must be patient, especially when you have a sizeable lead like we did. You can't take anything away from Luisville, they seized that operations. lead like we did. You can't take anything away from Louisville; they seized that opportunity and made a good run during the beginning of the second half. They had an extremely hot hand; they hit some great shots. Our defense at times was good, but they just hit some outstanding shots. Finally, we did become patient, offensively. ... we did do a good job of running our offense. They were running a triangle-and-two, a gimmick defense. We put Derrick (Miller) in there; we put Eric (Manuel) in there. They (UK guards) got good shots but they just didn't complete it. Then they (U of L) made a run and finally tied the they (U of L) made a run and finally tied the ballgame up. Then we spurted out. I thought we had the ballgame won again, and should have. I don't think it was as much as their press because we really had attacked their press well throughout the game, but we made three silly turnovers. I want to credit their press because they really played hard, but we made some mistakes there. With three minutes to go we have a five-point lead and the basketball. And what we teach them, that shouldn't happen .But our team did display a lot of character We always believe we're going to win; something good is going to happen. It just so happens that Cedric (Jenkins) made a great lay this afternoon. But he also played very rell, even if he didn't score (but two) he had Il rebounds. That's very, very important. It was a good college game as far as intensity level. Both teams played hard. The one thing we've got to do if we hope to have a great ballclub is to eliminate some of our mistakes at the offensive end of the court.

Question: Winston still seems to be hav-ing problems staying out of foul trouble.

What can be done to correct this?
Sutton: Well, he's going to foul because he is so aggressive. He's picking up a couple of fouls each game just on nickle-and-dime fouls—gets himself out of position or he reaches in and grabs or sticks a knee out when a guy starts to drive. Those are careless fouls that you've got to eliminate. He's just going to have to work on that—look at film, listen to coaches, and be aware of it.

Question: When Louisville picked up the technical in the first half for having six players on the court it seemed to change the pace of the game in UK's favor. Do you

Sutton: That was an unfortunate thing on their part. I don't know how much it changed the game but it was a big play. Those things happen. It's never happened to me, but I always fear that it could happen. We try to be carful and I'm sure they do, ometimes young people in the heat of battle forget to tell who they are going in for, or there is a timeout like there was then and (the player says) "I've been in the game and I go back out." All of a sudden you have six players out there. I've seen it happen, but not that often.

Sutton Says Lock Has Improved More Than Any Other Player He's Coached; Likes Davender-Chapman Duo As College Basketball's Best Backcourt

By Nick Nicholas

By defeating In-diana, coupled with Vanderbilt's upset of No. 1 North Carolina, Eddie Sutton's ballclub was left in sole posses-sion of the No. 1 spot, college basketball's version of King Of The Mountain. For at least a week anyway Prior to the No. 1-ranked Wildcats' showdown with Denny Crum's Louisville Cardinals, Sutton talked about his upcoming opponent, possibly the best backcourt in the nation, an improved center and other topics of interest. As you may be wondering, yes, here are some leftover tidbits from Sutton's Dec. 8 press conference which will fill your hunger for the roundball sport.

Vandy's At It Again: C. M Newton's Vanderbilt Commodores may not be giant killers in the SEC, but for the second time since last season the boys down in Nashville have knocked off the nation's No. 1 squad, Just last week, North Carolina put its No. 1 ranking on the line when it met the 'Dores in Nashville's Memorial Gym. Vandy turned in perhaps the biggest upset of this brief campaign with a 78-76 conquest over Dean Smith's team.

To refresh your memory, it was last season when the Commodores shocked No. 1 and ventual national champion Indiana in Music

City.

"As I mentioned at the Southeastern Conference Media Days in Atlanta, I believe it (SEC) from top-to-bottom is the best conference in college basketball," said Sutton. "It is this year. I thought last year, that perhaps it was the best. The only other leagues that can challenge the SEC would be the Bist True the Pist Test and the ACC.

the Big Ten, the Big East and the ACC.
"Last year Vanderbilt certainly represented the SEC well and probably had the most prestigious wins in the league—outside of conference play."

Besides beating Indiana, other noteworthy non-SEC opponents which fell victim to Vandy last season were: Notre Dame, Kansas State, New Mexico and Missouri, along with NIT wins over Florida State and Jacksonville. "Anytime we beat an Indiana or Vanderbilt beats a North Carolina, it does nothing but bring prestige to our league," Sutton went on to add. "That's why I always root for everybody in our league when they're playing anyone other than someone within our conference.

"I called C.M. to congratulate him. He told a caned C.M. to congratulate him. He told me before the season began that he felt like he was going to have a very good ballelub. (Will) Perdue is the best center in the league. They've probably got the best perimeter. shooters in the conference. So, we know Vanderbilt is one of the 30 elite teams in college basketball.

"I believe there are five or six teams in our league that are in that group of 30."

'Locked' Into The Center Spot: Prior to the season, many people around the Kentucky program felt freshman LeRon Ellis would take over the center spot from senior Rob Lock. After three games, however, Lock has nailed down the starting post position.

With his first three performances, Lock, the free-sprited Californian who resembles Opie Taylor from the neck up, has turned nonbelievers into believers. Well-known didn't even know Lock was out on the floor last season, whereas this year he's become one of the most improved players in the land.

In the first three games UK's starting center averaged 16.7 points per game and a team-leading 9.7 rebounds. The biggest eyebrowraiser so far in Lock's statistics is his improvment from the line-16 of 17 for 94.1 percent He was 35 of 71 for a 49.3 percent from the charity stripe as a junior.

His praiseworthy performances have been a pleasant surprise to one Eddie Sutton.

"I started not to say that Perdue's the best center in the league because I'm not sure that, right now, Rob wouldn't be challenging Perdue. I haven't seen Perdue play but I do believe Rob Lock is playing like an all-

"We all knew from last year that at times he was an excellent defensive center. He's become much more consistent

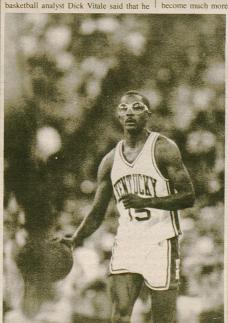

Having a strong performance against Hawaii or Cincinnati is one thing, but against felt Rob Lock outplayed him in that ballgam Garrett took 24 shots and ended with 2 points, Rob took eight shots and got 14. He (Lock) had one less rebound (II to 10) and battled defensively as well as Garrett did.

"So, Rob Lock has improved as much in one year to the next as any player I've ever had. I've made the comment that Ed Davender is the heart of the ballclub, maybe Rob is the guts of the ballclub.

Chapman already are off to fantastic starts

Chapman already are off to tantastic starts.

Offensively, Chapman is the 'Cats' leading scorer (18.3 ppg), including six of 11 from three-point range. Davender's on Rex's heels (16.7 ppg) and has 13 assists to his credit.
Defensively, the Brooklyn senior continues to curtail offensive bombers into innocent pistols. Roger McClendon, the Metro Conference's leading scorer last season, only could muster seven points past Davender's could muster seven points past Davender's way. And Indiana's Keith Smart fared worse, scoring just five points.

You could say Davender "out-Smarted" last year's NCAA hero.

"Ed Davender is the most underrated guard in college basketball," said Sutton. "If he continues to play like he's playing he certainly would be a strong candidate for (All-America status). I think he's an All-America player. status). I think he's an Alf-America played. When you stop and realize what Ed Davender does defensively, what he did to Smart the other day, what he's done to other guards, you just ean't measure the importance and the value of Ed Davender to our basketball team.

Along with that he's a great offensive player.

As for Chapman's defense, the Owensborn sophomore is showing that he can apply the skills needed in Sutton's man-to-man philosophy. Chapman and Winston Bennett are second only to Davender on the team in the theft category, each with nine.

"I wouldn't trade them (Chapman and Davender) for any combination in college basketball," Sutton proudly voiced. "If you're asking me then I would say yes, they are the best backcourt combination that we'll see in the college game.

Later, Sutton would add: "Chapman and Davender create problems for you (opposing coach), once you start assigning people to them. They are very good, as we all know."

Sign Here, Uncle Eddie Wants YOU: Time and time again Sutton thanks former Wildcat coaches Adolph Rupp and Joe B. Hall for the strong tradition of UK basketball. It's that tradition which is the main attraction to blue-chippers, not only in the Bluegrass but from the East Coast to the West Coast as well

"It's certainly a different situation than I had at Arkansas," he said. "Here you can pick up the telephone and call anyone in the country and at least they'll say hello before they say goodbye. That was not always the case at Arkansas."

Sutton summed it up by saving: "I don't think we're unique. I think there are some other programs that are a close second to us."

One For The Fans: As Louisville and Kentucky were gearing up for their seventh meeting on the hardwood within a five-season span, Sutton concurred that the in-state clash is mostly for the fans.

"It should be a series where you go out and ay. . .a one-time shot," said Sutton. "It is an important game because it's important for the fans. Once you got into conference play it would be a neat thing if we rooted for Louisville to win the Metro and they rooted for us. I know that's never going to happen, as far as 100 percent is concerned.

"It's a game that should be played in December. Then after it's over, we go back and try to win the SEC and they try to win their conference.

More On Davender: Coach, why isn't Ed Davender's play, in regard to the media, not appreciated any more than it has? "I don't know, I do everything possible I can," Sutton answered. "I think Brad (Davis, sports information director) and his staff do. He's lived in the shadow of Kenny Walker, Winston Bennett. Rex came on the scene like a tornado. I think you all (local media) fully appreciate him, but probably on the national scene he isn't recognized. . you an answer (why).

'I truly believe that he is one of the top five or six guards in college basketball.

Hold On! Basketball Season In Full Throttle

Rex Chapman-He's Out Of This World

Obviously, Bobby Knight is the coach at Indiana who gets all the media attention, but there's another great story on the Hoosier sench this year, former Clemson coach Tates Locke. He'd been but of the game for several years after being fired at Jacksonville.

or a time he worked for Mizuno, but then disappeared from the porting community entirely. But an urge to coach remained. Knight, who broke in as an assistant to Locke at Army, called and asked his old friend to come for a visit and discuss the job the oportunity opened. Locke agreed to come and talk about the posi on for a couple of days. He never left Bloomington. And, for one m glad to see him back in the coaching business.

There are only two words I can give you in asking some restraint ver the excitement created by all the schoolboy signings this fall—

My vote for "December's Team" goes to Arizona. The Wildcats seem to have the whole package, quickness, tremendous shooting ability and more physical toughness than their size would be able to indicate. But will they be able to sustain the level of their play through the season and into the tournament? Well, coach Lute Olson says the team can get better, but after watching them run through the Great Alaska Shootout with ease, I'm not so sure about that

Garrett-Now You See Him, Now You Don't

The first coaching casualty of the season was Detroit's Don Sicko, who was in his sixth year. A quality coach, Sicko just never could put the package together for a program which has fallen badly since the glory days of Dick Vitale. His departure not only gives UD administrators a chance to search for a new coach, but also an opportunity to think about where they really want this to be in the scheme of college athletics. . .I look at schools like Detroit, Duquesne and even my old school, Bowling Green, and wonder where they fell out of basketball's fast lane. Look back in the late 1940s, the 1950s and even into the 1960s. These programs were nationally prominent, but now, as college basketball has become such an attraction, they are nowhere to be seen. Like the dinosaurs I guess schools just couldn't adjust.

Well, the NCAA is at it again. Recently I noted a story which indicated the governing body of college athletics was investigating the basketball program at LSU. This story also mentioned the fact that LSU had recently come off probation for past sins. In other words, the convict got sprung and went right back to his life of crime. As it turns out, however, the investigation centres around the fact that during a visit to LSU two prospective basketball players were photographed by Tiger Rag, a weekly magazine which cover athletics at the school. Had a basketball coach or any LSU official. athletics at the school. Had a basketball coach of any LSO official arranged the photo session or had Tiger Rag been a university owned publication these would have been violations of NCAA legislation. Perhaps, as publisher Steve Myers pointed out, the NCAA mistakenly thought LSU owned Tiger Rag or, "maybe they were just on a witch hunt." In either case the NCAA should have looked before it acted. And, as a newspaperman, what really bothers me before It acted. And, as a newspaperman, what really bothers me is the role played by the media here. I mean if LSU were being investigated because its coaches were suspected of buying a car or giving a briefcase full of money to some kid, that's one thing. But the fact a prospective player's photo appeared in a newspaper is quite another. The NCAA needs to find a way to make sure the readily in the proof of the proof media is aware of the nature of these investigations. There are degrees.

You knew it would happen: A book about Dick Vitale is being written this winter by Sports Illustrated's Curry Kirkpatrick. It will be in your neighborhood book stores next spring. Marquette's blowout loss at Tennessee served as a reminder of this program has fallen and how desperately the War-just how far this program has fallen and how desperately the War-riors need to get into a league. I suggest administrators there do a case history study on the schools like Duquesne and Detroit which I mentioned earlier.

Sorry, I still think the real Missouri basketball team is close to the one which lost to Xavier in the first round of NCAA play than it is to the one which won last year's Big Eight. To wit, the Tigers needed two overtimes to beat Eastern Michigan in the final of their own invitation. Indiana Pacer coach Jack Ramsay told me a long time ago to remember this about basketall players: "Leopards never lose their spots." He's right.

Moses Scurry, a powerful 6-foot-9 forward playing at San Jacinto Junior College, has decided to play at Nevada-Las Vegas next year. He reached that decision after watching the Rebels beat the Sovie team in November. Was it the style of play at UNLV which made him choose them? Nope. Moses liked the gaudy light display and fireworks show which went on before the game. Honest.

So Vanderbilt slays another giant, beating North Carolina in Nashville. For omen lovers this is perfect. Last year the Com-modores handed Indiana its first loss of the year. The Hoosiers

More incidental information: They're going to make a movie about Pete Maravich's life. True, he was a great player, one worthy of the Hall of Fame, but what do they do when they get to the part about having won something?

Normally I stay out of political discussions, but it is almost criminal that the NAIA Hall of Fame hasn't inducted Bevo Francis. Here's a man who twice scored more than 100 points in a game and averaged 50 points for a season. Sure, some still doubt the circumstances under which it happened, but as Abe Lemons onc said, it can't be that easy to do or more people would have done it What does a continuing presence in television's spotlight mean Well, Michigan's Gary Grant, Syracuse's Sherm Douglas, Indiana's Keith Smart and Notre Dame's David Rivers are general ly regarded as the best backcourt players in the nation. Let me assure you, however, none of this foursome compares with Arizona's Steve Kerr in terms of value to his team. And, even including Kerr, no guard in collge basketball is in the same world as Kentucky's Rex Chapman, a young man who will, though it's hard to believe, get I'm also eager to see San Jose State's Ricky Berry. Something tells me he'll be closer to the Kerr-Chapman level than the over rated status of those other four players.

Tated status of those other four players.

Up front it looks like Danny Manning and a bunch of other players, Arizona's Sean Elliot has probably moved into the class of Fennis Dembo (Wyoming) and Derrick Chievous (Missouri) at small forward. In the middle, Syracuse's Rony Seikaly looks better, but still is inconsistent. North Carolina's J.R. Reid hasn't fac ed a big test yet and Indiana's Dean Garrett, though quick, stil disappears for long stretches. No real patterns can yet be seen here. Looking for a 1989 NBA draft sleeper (isn't everyone)? Torgeir Brvn, Southwest Texas State. Remember the name

Once Again, SEC B-ball Flexing Its Muscles

Here's A Look At How League Shapes Up

If early-December non-conference play is a true indicator, then the Southeastern Conference already has displayed signs of having its best college basketball season ever. Of course, preseason favorites Kentucky and Florida have made national headlines with the possibly seven teams into postseason action this season. Only Mississippi State, Ole Miss and a rebuilding Alabama appear to be clubs which will struggle this season. But that's not to say any of those three are unqualified for spoiler status, uncapable of knocking off any team in the conference.

Todd Hallum

Cats' Pause Columnist

Let's take a look at the goings-on around the league

KENTUCKY: It's obvious that the Wildcats' added bench strength and the return of Winston Bennett have made Kentucky a much-improved team this season. But what this added depth also provides is the ability for Eddie Sutton to substitute more frequently to give starters Rex Chapman and Ed Davender a chance to catch a breather or two on the bench. Last year that simply was not the

With UK simply smothering opponents with tremendous defensive pressure, this allows Sutton to use the type of defensive play he always cherishes—having fresh players applying consistent man-to-man pressure for 40 minutes a ballgame. This year's club is playing defense like two years ago when Kenny Walker & Co. finished with a remarkable 32-4 record.

Furthermore, Rob Lock's performances in the pivot have been a pleasant surprise for Sutton and UK fans alike. The only questo remains is whether it will continue when the conference play begins. If Kentucky continues to play as tenaciously as it did against Indiana, there's no telling how good this team can be. UK fans hope it reaches its peak in March when it really counts.

FLORIDA: Norm Sloan's Gators immediately made their presence known by winning the Big Apple NIT with the last two games played in New York City.

Seven-foot-two sophomore center Dwayne Schintzius appears much more mature in the middle and is becoming a leader on the Gators' squad. Vernon Maxwell certainly has shown why he is considered to be one of the better guards in the nation. At times Maxwell is unstoppable for opposing guards. Now, if he and Sloan can get along for a full season then the Gators will continue to be a force to be reckoned with.

Last but not least let's not forget freshman forward Livingston Chatman who has emerged on the scene as one of the better rookie performers in the country

VANDERBILT: Just who are these so-called super stu-ent/athletes wearing the Black and Gold? For the last two years Vandy has upset two of the nation's elite teams. Last year it was top-ranked Indiana, the eventual national champion. This year's unned victim was No. 1 ranked North Carolina in Nashville. If professional basketball scouts want to find a center prospec then they have to look no further than Vandy's Will Perdue. The bigfooted 7-0 Commodore aircraft carrier already has made giganic strides for All-America honors by scoring a combined 55 points gainst Carolina and defending national champion Indiana.

But these 'Dores are not led by Purdue and his "Perdunks" alone Freshman Charles Mayes supplies some instant offense up front and fellow rookie Steve Grant has given the Commodores enough depth for a high-ranking in the conference. Nobody in the league has more quality depth in the backcourt than Vanderbilt. Barry Booker and Barry Goheen are proven SEC guards and Derrick Wilcox and Scott Draud have received significant playing time and are good enough to start whenever for C.M. Newton.

Following Vandy's tough 63-61 loss to Indiana in Bloomington, Newton huddled with his good friend Bob Knight to get a insightful scouting report on his club. And from all indications Newton believes his 'Dores are for real this season.

GEORGIA: So far, Hugh Durham has had to play without a full leck of player

First, freshman center Elmore Spencer was redshirted, and se-cond, starting guard Patrick Hamilton has been out of the lineup because of academic problems. Despite early losses to Southwestern Louisiana and Georgia Tech, the Bulldogs have shown signs of be

For all he does for his team, Willie Anderson is the best guard in the SEC. The lanky, 6-7 Atlanta native is a superb guard and it's easy to see why he was a member of this year's U.S. Pan American team. In the Buildogs' heart-breaking one-point loss to rival Georgia Tech, Anderson was incredible. He nearly won the game by himself as he hit on 14 of 20 from the field. No team in the league this year has anybody to match up with him.

Along with Anderson, Durham least having Tong, Mock beak.

Along with Anderson, Durham loves having Toney Mack back this year after the talented performer missed most of last season with academic difficulties. Mack might just be the best athlete in the conference this year and his scoring and rebounding this season will put the 'Dogs in the fight for a league title.

Now, if only freshman guards Rod Cole and Jody Patton develop and give Durham the quality bench strength he's looking for. Both were thrown into the fire early this year in the game against Georgia

LSU: Don't ever count out a Dale Brown-coached team

This year LSU is somewhat of a mystery squad with the return of a healthy Ricky Blanton. Blanton will be counted on this year to account for much of the scoring load. The Tigers already hav gotten off to an impressive start this season winning their own in vitational tournament over Southern University. Guards Fess Irvin and Daryl Joe are underrated and last year center Jose Vargas was and Daryl joe are underrated and last year center Jose Vargas was just starting to reach his true potential.

If recent history tells us anything, expect LSU to finish in the middle of the pack of the conference race but becoming a significant force when tourney time rolls around in March. Brown's clubs have followed this script for the last two seasons. What makes us believe that anything should be different this year?

TENNESSEE: If the opening of the UT's 25,000-plus sea on-Boling arena is an indicator then the Volu destined to be the sleeper team aching to wake up at any giver

Before a crowd of more than 25,000 fans, Don DeVoe's club emolished Marquette 82-56. For DeVoe's sake the Vols had better make a strong run in conference play this season. The rumor out of Knoxville has DeVoe in a produce-or-else situation. It's either

Breathitt Co's McCune Becomes UK's First Football Commitment

Last Tuesday the Kentucky Wildcat football program received its first verbal co when Breathitt County's Rich McCune an-nounced his intentions to play for the Wildcats. McCune played offensive tackle and nose guard for the Bobcats and was selected to the

"I wanted to be the first to commit to UK," McCune noted. "I wanted to do it early so maybe some other Kentucky high school players would do the same so we can all go to Lexington and help win some champion-

McCune is listed at 6-foot-3, 250 pounds. According to his coach, McCune's ACT test score was above Proposition 48 requirements.

"He's a good one," said Breathitt County coach Mike Holcomb. "He's not only a good football player, he's a good citizen and a good student. He's got a 3.6 grade-point average and he's already scored a 22 on his ACT. Best of all, he's a hard worker."

High school seniors can officially sign with the college of their choice on Feb. 10. "My birthday is Feb. 13," McCune said, "and I think it'd be kind of nice to sign with Reportedly, Clemson, Auburn and Alabama kept in touch with the Bobcat star. But. kept in louen with the Boocat star. But. . "I've always been a big fan of UK," said McCune. The Kentucky staff has kept its eye on McCune since his sophomore days. "When we needed some yardage, we knew we could get it behind Rich," Holcomb said.

"Besides having overpowering strength, he's real technique-conscious on his blocks

"But he could play either side of the line in college. He's got that potential."

Offensive line is where Jerry Claiborne's program will be the most inexperienced in 1988. Heading into next season, the Wildcats return only one starting offensive lineman, junior-to-be Mike Pfeifer.

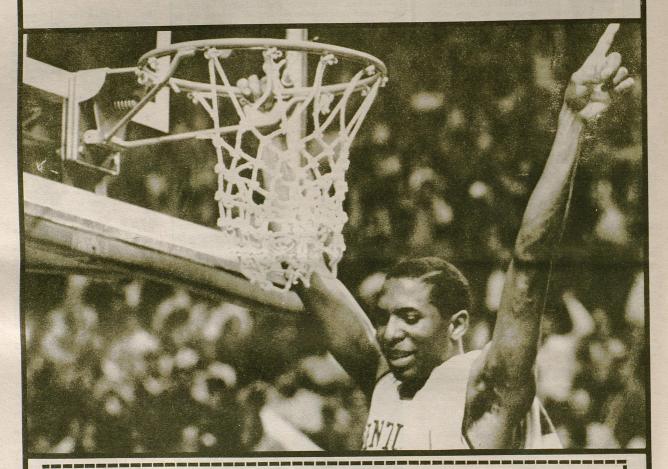

Need New Assistants

Please renew my subscription to The Cats' Pause. I have inadvertently let my subscription expire. Down here in Big Orange Country, it is hard to find news on the Wildcats

I'm somewhat disappointed in the football team. It seems they hang tough for awhile but eventually get pretty-well blown out in the second half. I guess depth has a lot to do with that, but mistakes have also taken them out of a number of games. I feel that this has to lie with the coaching. I love coach (Jerry) Claiborne (I lived in Owensboro when his brother coached at Daviess County). But I'm disappointed in some of his assistants. I realize he has had most of them a number of years and is dedicated to them.

However, I feel that some of their short-comings are going to pull coach Claiborne down with them. I'm like a lot of other fans who are tired of the Wildcats being the door-mat for the rest of the so-called powerhouses of the SEC. Since I live in Chattanooga area and work in Alabama, I hear a lot of bragging about the War Eagles, the Tide, them Dawgs, as well as the Vols! So you can see why a Kentucky fan in this area becomes frustrated during the football season. But I'm a diehard fan and will continue to wear my Big Blue jacket and bumper sticker with pride and I guess I'll continue to tell 'em, "Wait'll next year!" because I too am taken in by coach Claiborne's ever-present optimism and his promises of better things to come. I do

We feel that news about the sports programs at the University of Kentucky should be required reading for all of the state's high school students. So, the staff of The Cats' Pause is starting a program we call "Big Blue Penetration."

Below, we have listed all the high schools in the state of Kentucky, and it is our aim to give every high school student in the commonwealth the opportunity to read The Cats' Pause by making the paper available to every high school library in the state. In order to accomplish this, it will be up to our subscribers to carry out "Big Blue Penetration" during the coming months.

If you would like to see The Cats' Pause in one or more high schools in your area, fill out the subscription blank provided to the right and return it with the appropriate payment. We will begin sending it to the school(s) and we'll notify the school librarian about your gift.

Each time we receive a gift subscription, we'll fill in the boxes next to the schools listed until "Big Blue Penetration" is a complete success.

VIEWPOINT

Wildcat History 101

Dear Sir:

I am sending you my check with the amount included enough to cover two renewal subscriptions (my brother's in Princeton, Ky., and mine). It is a little early for my renewal subscription but I thought I would send it in so I would be sure not to miss an issue of The

I especially enjoy the crossword puzzle in each edition. I have no complaints about your publications and I think that you are providing the many fans of the Wildcats who live out the many fans of the Wildcats who live out of the great state of Kentucky an enjoyment and entertainment in Wildcat sports that we cannot get anywhere else. About the only time I call my own is the time I spend reading The Carls Pause and listening to the Wildcats on the radio. However, I do have one thing that I am critical of and that is the irregular postal service. Sometimes I get TCP on Thursday and most of the time I receive it on Monday or Tuesday of the next week (I can't understand such irregularity).

I have been a University of Kentucky Wildcat fan for many years now. Back in 1947 my father bought an AM/FM radio so we could listen to all Kentucky's games over an FM station. Since that time I haven't missed a Wildcat basketball game (and many, many football games). The last few years since TV I haven't missed the 'Cats play on TV. I have been privileged to attend two games—one in Owensboro, Ky., when the Fabulous Five were playing. They were playing Bradley on this given night and Cliff Barker made a set shot behind the half-court line just before the buzzer sounded to end the half. During the half someone drove a nail in the floor where Cliff had made the shot; and then four years ago I drove down from my home in Huntsville, Ala., to see the Wildcats play the University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa.

Just two more things I would like to relate to you. My oldest son, Tim, came in home the other night from his work and announced that he had received enough tickets for the UKIT, Dec. 18-19 and Tim, Kyle (my youngest son), Gordon Bastin (one of my parishoners in the church I pastor), David Shepherd (a friend to my oldest son, he is an Alabamian who we have converted to a Wildcat fan and is a high school coach) and myself are planning on attending the UKIT for the first time and being there at Rupp Arena for the first time. This is my (early) Christmas present from my oldest son.

And the last point of interest: My father, Jesse Hunter, died Feb. 25 of this past year. He was listening to Kentucky play the University of Georgia and his demise came just as the game was ending. The reason I tell this story is that there are many people who are suffering with cancer or other sickness and are unable to enjoy the entertainments of life but can turn on the radio or TV and always enjoy the efforts that are put forth by the fine young men in the Blue & White of the University of Kentucky. For 10 years Dad fought cancer and his pain was made lighter when he was listening or watching the Wildcats play basketball (especially when they were winning). Being a minister for 36 years it has helped me to see the good that people do and apply the Bible to everyday life, and to help bear someone's burdens is a part of the Biblical teachings; therefore, I hope that in your publishing of The Cats Pause and all those responsible for broad casting on radio and TV the University of Kentucky ballgames and the coaches and players alike will not overlook the fact that your efforts are more than sports, but they are making this world a better place to live and helping someone bear their burdens. God bless you all in your endeavors of giving,

Yes, Sports Fans, There Is A Santa Claus

Columnist Takes Christmas List To North Pole

This time every year I take a couple of days off to visit a good friend of the family's, Mr. S. Claus, better known to you and me as jolly ole Santa. Believe me, the requests given to me to take on my journey filled a big portion of my suitcase. But, I'm alway obliged to lend a helping hand to my friends in the sporting world.

Talk about winter wonderland. Brrrrrr.
The weather there, of course, is not ideal (unless you're part seal, part polar bear and part Bobby Knight), but the frost and chilly climate of this adventure are always melted by the warm hospitali-ty of Mr. and Mrs. Claus, and all their helpers.

YOU GOTTA WATCH SANTA'S ELVES, though. Remember last year I mentioned the pickup game which involved mys-elf (all 5-foot-8) and those enterprising, but non-basketball playing munchkins? Well, before I could say "Hello" to the Clauses those little

So much for season's greetings.

Anyway, these guys have improved. . .and how. They must have spent the offseason at a Spud Webb or a Tyrone Bogues camp. After aking my share of abuse on the hardwood, I suggested to my little friends that they get a team up and compete in the newly-developed International Basketball Association, which is for players 6-4 or

1987 Football Season—Good, But Not Great

As Usual, The Same Old "Haves, "Havenots"

Never was the gulf between the Southeastern Conference "have" and "havenots" more plainly demonstrated than during this recently-finished 1987 football season.

Kentucky, Vanderbilt, Ole Miss and Mississippi State finished

Stan Torgerson

Cats' Pause Columnist

a four-way deadlock for the conference cellar. Each went 1-5 in

Perhaps more telling than any other statistic is the fact that the nly SEC teams these four could beat were each other Petnaps more terning man any other statistic is the fact that the only SEC teams these four could beat were each other.

Kentucky whipped Ole Miss, Ole Miss defeated Vanderbilt, the Bulldogs won over Ole Miss and Vandy dropped Kentucky. The other 20 league games for this group were all losses. None of the top six—Auburn, LSU, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama or Florida—finished below .500 in conference play. In fact, only Florida was at .500. The others all were better than that.

Further, all of the ton six were above the break-even point in Further, all of the top six were above the break-even point in overall play. None of the bottom four won more than they lost. Ken-tucky went 5-6. Vanderbilt and Mississippi State were each 4-7 and the Rebels were the league's worst team at 3-8.

NONE OF THIS SHOULD COME AS A SURPRISE. These four were picked preseason to hold up the rest of the col and they did just that.

As a matter of fact, the preseason forecasting was remarkably curate. Auburn and LSU were expected to be powerhouses, and they were. Tennessee and Georgia were supposed to be a step

Ole Miss Coach Ed Murphy Also A Novelist

Alabama and Ole Miss were the only teams to surprise.

Bama was chosen sixth preseason and the Crimson Tide did better than that. It tied for fourth with Georgia and was in contention for championship honors right to the last game of the year

Ole Miss surprised the other way. The Rebels were a solid choice for at least third place by the preseason experts. Instead, Billy Brewer's kids were the Bust of the Year, finishing in a tie for last.

This was a season with almost no upsets. As a matter of fact, only one true upset comes to mind. That would be Alabama's 22-10 win over LSU, in in the Tigers' own ballpark, no less.

Other than that, everything ran pretty much to form, with the possible exception of the thumping Auburn took from Florida State It was also a year in which the players who were expected to star

Bobby Humphrey was not up to the preseason hype as a Heisman Trophy candidate, but he did play very well and led the league in

Tom Hodson at LSU and Jeff Burger of Auburn starred at quarterback as expected, but Vanderbilt's Eric Jones emergence as a talent comparable to those two was a surprise.

Wide receiver Wendell Davis of LSU was as good as advertised, but while J.R. Ambrose from Ole Miss had a very good year, he did not have a great one.

THERE WERE A NUMBER OF GREAT, YOUNG freshmer on display in 1987. Three of the best young running backs in years were chief among them.

Emmitt Smith of Florida may have Herschel Walker-type talent This could be one of the greatest since Walker left the scene. But Reggie Cobb from Tennessee and Rodney Hampton of Georgia are only a step behind. Both of these kids can play the game.

On the defensive side of the ball, young Todd Sandroni of Ole Miss showed definite star qualities. He's always around the ball as his seven interceptions this year showed.

What's in the future? Perhaps more of the same. This year's SEC

What's in the future? Perhaps more of the same. This year's SEC All-Freshman tam was led by Alabama with six members. Tennessee had five and Florida had four.

That obviously puts even more pressure on the bottom four. If the Wildcats, the Commodores, the Bulldogs and the Rebels can't add some outstanding talent to their present rosters, next year could be a greated of this one. be a repeat of this one rall, 1987 was a good season. Not a great one, but a good one SEC teams won almost 70 percent of their games against non-conference opponents. No other league in the country did better than 60 percent. The Big Eight and the Southwest tied for that figure. Once again, our toughest competition was ourselves

Not For Broadcast

So you think competition in the SEC is limited to the playing fields? Ha! That just shows what you know. Here's a quote fron the new Florida tennis media guide: "Compared with most of th South's other state schools, the University of Florida is like fresh ezed orange juice alongside the stuff that comes in a can. that Georgia, Kentucky, Tennessee, et al. . The Reaching Out For An Angle Award is hereby bestowed on the Vanderbilt sports information department! From a recent Vandy press release: "If if were possible to buy stock in a football team, Vanderbilt would have been an excellent investment this year. In fact, an investor would be the property of the present of the pr been an excellent investment this year. In fact, an investor would have realized 300 percent profit as coach Watson Brown's Commodores improved from one win in 1986 to four this year." Sounds like a "Bull Market" to me. After all, Vandy did lose seven. ... Sometime this month, LSU will probably win the 1,000th game in its 80-year basketball history. When the season opened the Tigers needed only five wins to achieve that record. Coach Dale Brown has a chance to reach one of his plateaus this year—300 victories at Tigertown. He started the season with 281. ... Right now, during recruiting season, it might be wise to remember a remark once made by former Texas coach Darrell Royal. He said the toughest part recruiting season, it might be wise to remember a remark once made by former Texas coach Darrell Royal. He said the toughest part by former lexas coach Darreit Roya. He said the toughest par of recruiting was to make a determination that a player everyone else considered a blue-chipper was not as good as everyone else though him to be, or to make a judgement that a player not highly rated by others would turn out to be a star. Ole Miss and Missterina State and the star of the many control of the star of Mississippi State are considering moving their annual game from Jackson back to the schools' respective campuses. The crowds the last two years would have filled the stadiums in Oxford and Starkville. In Jackson's bigger stadium, there were 20,000 empty seats. The sentiment seems to be the schools can make more money challenge to be provided by the seather than the second of the seather than th playing at home. In Jackson, the schools pay a 50c-per-ticket sur-charge, plus 10 percent of the gate, plus $10,000 to $12,000 to transport, house and feed there teams. That totals about $100,000 they'd keep if they played on campus. In addition, at Jackson the schools do not get any of the concession money. At home they would. Part of the dues of a coach's wife must pay to see her husband become head coach is being prepared to move. Rockey Felker, who is only 34, was an assistant at Mississippi State, Texas Tech, Memphis State and Alabama before returning to Starkville as the Bulldogs' top man. . .LSU has beaten Tulane more times than any other opponent in Tigers' football history. This year's for LSU was number 56, against 22 defeats and seven ties. . . fans think defensive linemen generally run bigger than offensive linemen. Not true. Tennessee's offensive front averaged 271 pounds linemen. Not true. Tennessee's offensive front averaged 271 pounds per man this year. The defense averaged "only" 258 pounds each. At Ole Miss, the offensive line averaged 267 pounds while the defensive linemen averaged 243. ... More and more basketball teams are recruiting from the junior college ranks. An eight-team junior college jamboree in Missouri two years ago attracted between 30 and 40 coaches. A 12-team jamboree this fall was witnessed by more than 150 coaches from four-year schools. . More Imagination

Dear Sir

I have been a long-time supporter of coach (Jerry) Claiborne. I think he runs a class operation that appears to be clean and academically oriented. I am totally in agreement in continuing to run the program the way coach Claiborne has run it, with one ex-ception. Do it without coach Claiborne!

I have supported the coach through the good games and the bad games. I see 4-5 games a year in Lexington and always take at least one road trip. This year it was Vandy.

So, I'm a paying fan that thinks the coach should step aside to make room for a coach with more imagination. With first and goal at the five-yard line late in the Tennessee game, surely the 'Cats could run something other than four plays up the middle with (Mark) Higgs. I realize Higgs is a great run-ner, but Tennessee keyed on him in the seond half even more so than the first half. That was obvious. Also, no one uses the wide-tackle-six anymore. There must be a reason for that. With four non-winning seasons out of six, it may be time for a new coach with fresh ideas

Also, I think it's time for the university to sell off a section or two of the students' side. I can't understand why more students don't support the team. If they aren't going to fill up their allotment of seats, then sell them to people who will fill it up.

Tom McClure Louisville, Kentucky

(Editor's note: Tom, we're going to stay out of the debate about Claiborne, but we will say this: Georgia coach Vince Dooley still runs the wide-tackle-six, and hasn't done too badly with it. And that defense got Virginia Tech into a bowl game last

As for your suggestion about student As for your suggestion about student tickets, according to sports information director Brad Davis, UK is already planning to reduce the student allotment for next season. Also on the agenda for the near future, according to Davis, are a covered practice field and stadium expansion, in that order.)

Upset Not In Cards; Tip At

UK's Jenkins Had Only One Bucket Against Louisville, But Boy Oh Boy Was It A Big One

By TCP Staff Writer Jim Easterwood

The annual Kentucky-Louisville courting match had been advertised as a probable "Big Blue Blowout" by one newspaper headline.
But, if anyone really "blew" it, it was those media experts who predicted a rout. By the end of the game those experts were blushing

A bad bounce—depending on your point of view—was all that kept the Cards from knocking the 'Cats off their top perch.

But Cedric Jenkins was there to tip the 'Cats to a 76-75 win.

The unranked Cardinals, kissed off as Crum-bums the week before in a hideous defeat by Notre Dame, could have used the link in this one.

of the Irish in this one

But, fortunately for No. 1-ranked Kentucky, the roll of the basketball came up with the number 55 on it.

And No. 55, senior forward Jenkins, was there to tip in teammate Ed Davender's missed shot to enable Eddie Sutton's 'Cats to Kentucky was favored to win by as much as 18 points by some experts. Las Vegas was kinder with an eight-point spread. But the tip in time kept the 'Cats unbeaten (4-0) and No. 1.

Second Half Exposed Some Of UK's Weaknesses

But, in defeat, Denny Crum's Cards may have done a favor for future Wildcat foes who match up in similar fashion. Like, for example, Vanderbilt

The 'Cats get the Commodores Dec. 31 after encountering much softer opposition Friday and Saturday in the 35th annual UKIT at Rupp Arena. And the following Monday UK should mush past Alaska-Anchorage, which should be a laugher in the same mold of a Hawaii But, if the Commodores were watching Saturday—and good sense dictates they were—they may have picked up on some things the Cards did in the second half to turn a runaway into a nail-biter.

Which is, to wit: play a good, tight zone, put a lot of prester on outside shooters Rex Chapman and Davender and make Rob Lock, Winston Bennett and Jenkins shoot the ball.

How effective was the zone

Well, for one thing it kept the Wildcats from going to the foul line. Chapman and Davender had 21 and 20 points respectively, out Bennett, who fouled out, Lock and Jenkins had only 22 between them.

Well, when you play Kentucky in Rupp Arena they average "Well, when you play Kentucky in Rupp Arena they average something like 40 free throws," said Crum in explaining his defensive strategy. "Or maybe its 50... or 60. Whatever, you can't beat a good team when you put them on the line that often." For the record, the Wildcats hit on 18 of 24, a far cry from their

35 of 41 against Cincinnati in their previous Rupp appearance "In the first eight to 10 minutes they hardly got to the line," sa

Crum. "That helped. We don't have Kentucky's depth. When you are going man, Kentucky has four seniors in there and they are going to get the ball to the right places. Then the crowd yells and the whistle blows. Its automatic. We couldn't let them get to the line and expect to beat them.'

Snorer Turned Into 'Dream Game' In 2nd Half

The plan wasn't too "Crum-my," either. But Davender had too uch bounce to his off-balance jumper.

The little guy, Mo Mentum, had played a hot hand for the Cards n the last half of a game that turned in the last three minutes of play.

The Cards had wiped out a 45-32 halftime lead to finally tie the game at 65-65 on guard LeBradford Smith's jumper with 4:06 left Kentucky spurted again to lead 75-70 on a pair of foul shots by Chapman, one by Lock and a jump shot by Bennett.

But the Cards refused to fold their hand.

Instead, three quick turnovers and a Payne—first name of Kenny—put a real hurt on the Wildcats.

Louisville's Herbert Crook, who led all scorers with 24 points.

Payne and Mike Abram then trapped Davender with Payne get Payne and Wike Abram then trapped Davender win Taylic getting the pass and scoring again. Payne then hit a three-point shot after Bennett's long pass was short. It was 72-70 Louisville. "I don't think it was so much their press but we made three silly turnovers." said Kentucky coach Eddie Sutton.

But, fortunately, once a hero, always a hero for Jenkins, After the two teams swapped the lead three more times, Pervis Ellison, the ralented Card forward-center, hit a baseline jument to Ellison, the talented Card forward-center, hit a baseline jumper to put Louisville ahead 75-74 with 40 seconds left.

Kentucky calls a timeout. The strategy called for a Chapman shot.

It was a simple play that sounded complex. Called "three box."

Lock and Jenkins simply double screen for Chapman near the circle. But Chapman never got the ball.

They Didn't Draw It Up That Way, But It Worked

Davender, trapped in the corner by Abrams and Keith Williams, put up what he called a "good shot" from the baseline. The ball bounced off the rim with Lock, Crook and Jenkins, who had slipped in through a crack, going for it. Jenkins batted it once, as did Lock, and then Jenkins found the sweet spot the second time around with one second remaining on the clock.
"I just found an open lane," said Jenkins, the hero of last Saturday's overtime win over Indiana." It hit it once, somebody else

Sutton glanced over at Saturday's hero in the post-game media

Kentucky, led by Davender, was seemingly on its way to an easy to tell Payne he was replacing him.

Davender made the tech, then converted a three-point play, and UK was rolling. Davender had 15 of his 21 points by halftime. "It was a four-point swing right there," said Crum of the unusual technical, "It's a mistake young people make. We had to overcome a lot in this ga

UK, U of L Put UK-Louisville Play-By-Play Dream Back In 'Dream Game'

By TCP Columnist Mike Estep

There were those who said it was time to end The Series. Said it was time to mercifully pull the plug on the annual blood-letting that had become so anemic in the four-plus years since that magnificent Dream Game I, that even Marcus Welby himself couldn't revive it.
Little brother. . .er, uh, Louisville coach

Denny Crum, had even suggested his team would be fortunate to stay within 50, maybe even 55 points, of the top-ranked 'Cats. That anything less would be a moral victory.

anything less would be a moral victory.

Several locals placed the point-spread at a more-sympathetic 15-18 points, but still, the general prognosis was the same: Kentucky versus Louisville had one sneakered foot in the grave and the other planted firmly across one baseline.

One reason for the premature postmortem was this: In the four years since CBS-TV brought UK and U of L together in that 1983 shotgun marriage in Knoxville, the two clubs had met five times, four in the regular season, once in the 1984 Mideast Regionals at Rupp Arena. And four times, including blowouts of 21 and 34 points, Kentucky had come out on top. Louisville's only win in what many were calling a one-sided feud was a 71-64 win at Freedom Hall in 1984, the season Kentucky dropped four of its first five games and struggled to a 18-13 finish.

And although Kentucky's Cedric Jenkins shuffled the Cards once again last Saturday with a last-second tip-in to send U of L down to its fifth loss in six tries since the renewal of The Series, what unfolded in front of 23,489 at Rupp Arena, and countless others watching across the nation via CBS, was far from one sided.

Although at halftime, UK's 45-32 lead may have induced many to think otherwise.

UK's Winston Bennett, the Louisville native who loves nothing better than to beat his hometown club, and Rex Chapman, who came just a medium-range jumper away from signing with the Cards out of high school, saw to that.

saw to that.

Bennett came out of the gate like a man on a mission, looking for and sticking the 15-17 footer for the first time this season, scoring nine of Kentucky's first 12 points and almost single-handedly helping the Wildcats solve U of L's matchup zone. Chapman had a spectacular two-hand dunk following a steal and then seconds later came back with a driving, twisting. 10-foot jumper to put the finishing twisting, 10-foot jumper to put the finishing touches on a 28-10 UK run that ended just before the half.

In between it was Ed Davender, whose 15 first-half points had Kentucky on top 45-29 with just under a minute to go until intermission, and CBS scanning the house for a Dream Game, Schmeam Game. Give the last rites and let's get on with "Hee Haw." But something funny happened on the way to blowout No. 3. Kenny Payne, who had led the Free World and parts of Russia in airballs and bricks for the last 12 months—a 3-14 field-goal performance a week earlier against Notre Dame, including 0-6 from three-point range, capped off a season-plus stretch where the once-deadly bomber made just 35 percent of his shots from the floor-provided a glimpse of things to come

Mixed Opinions

Regarding the viewpoint that UK should withdraw from the SEC, I have mixed opinions. South Carolina's basketball program has never attained the heights it knew while a member of the ACC; and I remember the 10- to 12-year SEC unbeaten string the UK basketball team enjoyed in the 1940s and

It is an interesting proposition, which would most probably cost UK bowl receipts that might be recouped by virtue of not shar ing basketball revenues.

One thing is for sure—I would like to receive The Cats' Pause on Saturday rather than the following Tuesday or Wednesday.

Very truly yours.

George R. Herron Danville, Virginia

(Editors' note: George, there's no reason that we can come up with why you shouldn't be getting TCP by Saturday, if not earlier. If you haven't already, you need to drop a letter of complaint to the post of-fice, in care of: Postmaster, Lexington, Ky. 40511. And we'd also appreciate it if you'd send us a carbon of the letter for our records.)

Standing Tall

Please renew my subcription. Also, I'd just like to say that the 'Cats had 'em all down here in Big Orange Country crying the Blues They had them scared to death and flat earned some respect. If these kids keep their nose to the grindstone and if they can just realize what football means down here (Tennessee hates our guts), we should kick a litle tail next

The folks down here have no respect at all for the UK football program. You've got to beat 'em to shut them up. If any of the foot-ball players get to read this I want them to reflect on that word again—Respect.

You have to earn it. Well, I just want you all to know, that you have some loyal troops down here in east Tennessee. to stand up more than a few times to defend to stand up more than a rew times to defend my team (being 6-3, 250). Can someone please try to pressure WHAS to resume broadcasting UK ballgames? There has to be some way to convince someone to do something!

I don't care what the price, just get them back

Louisville battle since the two renewed their rivalry with a meeting in the 1983 NCAA Tournament.

Packer, who teamed with Brent Musburger to do Saturday's game in Rupp Arena when CBS-TV started in 1987-88 college coverage, thinks the Cardinals and Wildcats have one of the top regional rivalries in the country. But he doesn't think any one college game captures the imagination doesn't think any one conlege game captures the imagination of the entire country.

"You find very few national rivalries," said Packer. "I know people in Kentucky will disagree but Kentucky-Louisville is not a national rivalry even though it is a special game to them and me."

Packer, though, knows Kentucky-Louisville is a special game and ranks it as one of the best regional rivalries in the

"For regional impact this game probably ranks with, if not at the top, of any regional rivalry today," said Packer. "The two teams are not in the same conference like North Carolina and North Carolina State or Michigan and Indiana.

"Kentucky and Louisville meet head on once a year and then you have to wait another year for the game. They don't play three or four times a year like some conference teams

'Both these programs have a high profile. This game is a happening, more like an Oklahoma-Nebraska football game. Both these teams have so much history and tradition that there is no reason to think this game will ever quit making such a big impact regionally

Here are Packer's thoughts on other college basketball

• UK sophomore guard Rex Chapman.

"He has the potential to be as good as there has ever been," said Packer. "He's a great passer, can rebound, has great shooting range and can play spectacular defense at times.

"He's a great, great kid and has all the physical skills and athletic ability. The range he has on his jump shot is superior to most players and few players have his leaping or passing

"Not many guys have ever done the things he can do but the thing I admire the most is the way he kept his head on straight last year despite being under tremendous pressure.

• Three-point shot.
"I think the shot made the game more exciting but 15 years from now it will be an even bigger boom," said Packer. "It will help develop part of the game that has gone down the drain.

"NBA coaches today will tell you their biggest problem is finding shooters because colleges all push the ball inside. The three-point shot will develop shooters and also bring more kids into the picture that weren't as valuable before. In the long run more kids will play the game and that will help

"The college game is much more healthy now than when UCLA was supreme," said Packer. "Every region of the country thinks it has teams with a chance to win the NCAA. Teams like Wyoming, Florida and Pittsburgh have their fans excited.

fans excited.
"This year maybe 20 or 25 teams have a real chance to win it all depending on who puts the pieces together at the right time. That keeps a lot of people excited."
He also feels the return of some key players that missed last year with injuries, transfers, Proposition 48 and players not going to the NBA early have helped college basketball this year.

"Having guys like Winston Bennett of Kentucky and Steve Kerr of Arizona back from injuries makes everybody on these teams better," said Packer. "It's like getting a sensa-tional freshman recruit with experience.

"We also have two freshmen classes because of Proposi-tion 48. It hurt last year's quality but now those guys are playing plus this year's freshmen. Then you have key transfers like Ken Battle of Illinois and Barry Sumpter and Andre Harris at Austin Peay.

"Last year a lot of players went pro early. This year players like Dennis Fembo, Rex Chapman, Pervis Ellison and Danny Manning all stayed in school. That has to help."

own players. Then you can see where he has the program going. But I'm not surprised by his success and think he will have even more.

THREE ALL-state players were among the first football recruits UK Coach Jerry Claiborne had in Lexington Dec.

Anthony Carter, a 5-11, 197-pound running back from North Hardin, ran for over 1,200 yards this year. Chris Reedy of Elizabethtown, a 6-5, 220-pound lineman, was also an All-State selection as was versatile 6-0, 175-pound Marcus Wilson of Louisville Butler.

Also visiting last weekend were talented quarterback Ryan Hockman of Harrison, Ohio, and junior college defensive lineman Scott Booth, a 6-3, 256-pound Florida native. Others making official visits were Todd Perry, North Har-din, 6-5, 240, offensive lineman; David Stallworth, Summerdale, Ala., 6-3, 225, linebacker; and Shon Walker, College Park, Ga., 6-1, 205, linebacker.

One player who didn't visit, Rich McCune of Breathitt County, became the first player to publicly commit to UK. The 6-3, 250-pound All-State lineman picked Kentucky because of its location close to his home and academic record. He picked the Wildcats over Auburn, Alabama and Now another group of SEC student/athletes emerges as best in the nation at their team sport—women's basketball.

Tennessee's Lady Vols are the defending national champions, winners of the 1987 NCAA tournament. And although they were upset last week 97-78 by No. 2 Texas, before 24,563 at the new Thompson-Boling Assembly Center in Knoxville (an NCAA record for a women's basketball game), Pat Head Summit's club had been siting atop the polls.

Four other SEC teams were listed in USA Today's final 1986-87 poll—Auburn sixth, Georgia ninth, Ole Miss 1lth and LSU 19th. In the last available USA Today poll, prior to the Tennessee-Texas game, the Lady Vols were No. 1, the Lady Longhorns No. 2, then five other SEC teams were rated in the Top 25. Auburn was third, Ole Miss was seventh, Georgia 12th, Vanderbilt 17th and LSU 24th.

NO OTHER CONFERENCE HAD MORE than three teams sted in that poll, just half the SEC total. The leagues with three teams were the Big Ten with Iowa (No. 5), Ohio State (No. 10) and Illinois (No. 12); the Pac-10 with Stanford (No. 15), Washington (No. 16) and USC (No. 19) and the ACC with Virginia (No. 6), Duke (No. 13) and Maryland (No. 23). In the Southwest Conference, Texas, which will now probably move up to the top spot, was the only team listed.

Last year Auburn won the SEC tournament by defeating Alabama Last year Auburn won the SEC tournament by deteating Alabama, Tennessee and Georgia. Then in the NCAAs in Austin, Texas, with the Lady Longhorns rated No. 1, Tennessee ripped through Tennessee Tech, Virginia, Auburn, Long Beach State and Louisiana Tech (the team that upset Texas) to take the championship. At the SEC Women's Basketball Media Day, the writers and broadcasters picked this season's race to finish like this: 1) Auburn, 2) Tennessee, 3) Vanderbilt, 4) Ole Miss, 5) Georgia, 6) LSU, 7) Alabama, 9) Kentukley, 00 Missignini State, 100 Televided.

2) Iennessee, 3) Vanderbilt, 4) Ole Miss, 3) Georgia, 6) LSU, 7) Alabama, 8) Kentucky, 9) Mississippi State, 10) Florida. They also chose an All-SEC team: Mae Ola Bolton and Vicki Carr of Auburn, Tonya Edwards and Bridgette Gordon of Tennessee and Carolyn Peck of Vanderbilt.

THESE TALENTED YOUNG FEMALE student/athletes are only five of 31 returning starters to the SEC Basketball Scramble. One may prove to be the super athlete and rank with those all-time greats mentioned earlier.

They play every other SEC team in January and February, then in March the SEC tournament, and hopefully, the NCAA tournament. But in November and December, they meet teams from all over the world, coast to coast plus Hawaii, Mexico to Canada, Russia to Australia.

Women's basketball in the SEC is composed of neat, wholesome young ladies, attractive and skilled. They are excellent ambassadors Whether they acquire fame as super athletes or not, they are wel on their way to acquiring a solid education and becoming highly capable citizens.

P.S.—This may or may not be worthy of publishing in The Cats' Pause.
One question: Didn't the University of Kentucky have a sports announcer by the name of J.B. Faulkner (I am not sure about the last name) but he was before Claude Sullivan? I was thinking he was the announcer in the 40s and early 50s. If you could help me on this thought I would appreciate it.

(Editor's note: Rev. Hill, thanks for your letter, we hope you enjoy the UKIT.

Where's Milo?

I really enjoy The Cats' Pause. I would like to know more about how our former 'Cats are doing in the NBA. Also, what happened to Milo Hamilton? He did get into the games and I hate to see him go. I would much rather have him than Marty (Brennaman). You all do a great job you probably know, Sam Bowie is recover-ing from a broken leg once again, and it is doubtful whether he will ever be able to return to the Portland Trailblazers. Kenny Walker continues to start and play solid, though not spectacular, ball with the New York Knicks. Melvin Turpin is still with the Utah Jazz, although he is spending much more time on the end of the bench (and apparently the training table) than on the court. Dirk Minniefield was recently cut from the Golden State Warriors, although it has been rumored that he is close to signing with another club, perhaps the Boston Celtics.

In the meantime, Minniefield and five other former 'Cats—James Blackmon, LeRoy Byrd, Dicky Beal, Kyle Macy and Dwight Anderson—have been drafted by the fledgling International Basketball Association (for more details on that, see

Association (in more details of that, see.)
As for Milo "Holy Toledo" Hamilton, he is still doing his thing with the Houston Astros and other clubs. Apparently, many other listeners—including Jim Host, whose opinion carries the most weight—didn't share your opinion of Hamilton, which led to his being replaced by Brennaman. Hamilton was so busy with other projects that he had a hard time devoting himself fully to his UK duties. Brennaman, living just an hour away in Cincinnati, was a more logical choice.)

Six Former 'Cats Taken In Inaugural IBA Draft

Six players with ties to the University of Kentucky were selected in the first annual Inin New York Dec. 9. The fledgling league is made up of 10 teams from the United States and Canada. Players taller than 6-foot-4 were excluded from the draft. Each team selected

Ex-UK guard Dirk Minniefield, recently released from the NBA's Golden State War-riors after stints with the Cleveland Cavaliers and the Houston Rockets, was the 13th pick Kyle Macy, another former UK player with NBA experience, having played for the Phoenix Suns and the Indiana Pacers, was the Phoenix Suns and the Indiana Pacers, was the 21st player taken by Las Vegas. Las Vegas also selected Dwight Anderson, who played two years at Kentucky before transferring to Southern California, as its No. 6 pick. The Vancouver entry in the IBA took three Kentucky players—James Blackmon (No.7), LeRoy Byrd (No. 16) and Dicky Beal (No. 19).

Non-UK players with ties to the state included Western's Brian Asbury (Calgary), Louisville's Milt Wagner (Chicago) and Lancaster Gordon (Las Vegas), Kentucky State's Billy Ray Bates (New York) and Kentucky Wesleyan's Sam Smith (Ohio).

And how about these three eyecatching selections

selections:
Cheryl Miller, the former USC All-American currently working for ABC-TV, was the only woman picked, taken 22nd by New York. Incidently, Miller was drafted higher than Gerald Henderson, the 6-2 guard who helped the Boston Celtics win the NBA championship two years ago.

Bo Jackson of Auburn, who is already playing professionally with Kansac City in baseball and Los Angeles in football, will get the chance to add a second "hobby." Jackson was

"I don't know how to play, but if they want to talk money, I'll listen," Jackson said. "That's why I got these new sneakers."

And if the Chicago team isn't a success on the court, maybe it hopes to win all the "basketbrawls." Chicago used its final pick on boxer Thomas "Hit Man" Hearns.

Too Old Fashioned

Dear Sir

Well, Jerry Claiborne doesn't read the Well, Jerry Claiborne doesn't read the papers and I don't blame him, for good comments are rare, that is. About his style of coaching, his offensive line was, that's right, offensive. They stunk.

In about five games they just laid down and quit. It is good that most of them are graduating this year but they should applogize to the fire before they are Dischery Claib.

to the fans before they go. But Jerry Claiborne and Co., are the leaders and coaches and they deserve all the credit, for such a poor season.

Somebody should tell Jerry about those other running backs that are on the bench. Mark Higgs ran the ball 30 out of 31 running plays in the Tennessee game. That was playing the game just like Tennessee wanted him to. They knew what every play was going to be. As bad as I hate to say it, Jerry Claiborne deserved to lose.

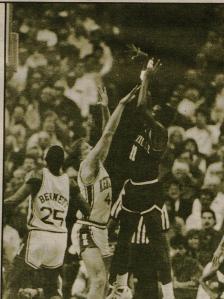

Until Jerry Claiborne quits being so stub-born and changes his whole style of coaching and recruiting, we the fans are going to see losing seasons at UK. Next year—4-7.

Loyal And Realistic

Dear Sir

Being a 'Cat fan for 40 years-enduring the blizzard of Knoxville, seeing us lose 7-0 and go on to win the Sugar Bowl 13-7, and agonizing most of the time since, seeing many games and at least a dozen road games all the way from Baylor to Penn State to Auburn and many in between—I believe my dues have been paid as a fan. Someone asked, Why so much agony to follow a team? I guess you have to be loyal and a little stubborn

When a city has an epidemic they don't annex more land to bury the people, they try to work on the causes and stop the carnage. What is Kentucky's No. 1 problem?

How do Kentucky high schools rate with states to our south, both in quanity and quality of high school talent? A little study would probably show we are last or near last. But a high school's purpose is not to produce football players but to prepare our young people for higher learning which will give them an edge in their choosen vocation or profession. We can not expect to recruit top talent from Ohio, Pennsylvania or Florida.

(Mark Wiedmer of the Chattanooga Free Press) paid Jerry's program the greatest com-pliment when he wrote we had passed Vandy in the academic field the last two years. To me that is better news than beating anyone in football or anything else. I think we should maybe re-examine our priorites and there is no one, repeat, no one that likes to win and hates to lose more than me. Let's remember these young people will be producing for themselves and others long after an athletic event has been forgotten

What is the answer considering these things? I don't know but I don't think it is firing the coach. How many times have we went down the path? Some have suggested dropping from the SEC and bringing the schedule more on a par with our level of talent. That is certainly an option but not a very attrac

We find ourselves too far north to attract attractive to prospects in the Midwest, North and East. If Howard's (Schnellenber of Louisville) program turns the corner and gets the local talent in our only city, we will be in even deeper the dilemma than at present.

Keep up your good work and let's enjoy the roundball for a season.

Groundwork for that first tournament of national scope ever held in Lexington was laid two years earlier when discussions of long standing culminated in a proposal for a Christmas-holidays cage eet in Lexington to replace the season-ending Southeastern Con-

Pairings for the double-headers to be played each night of that first two-night tournament slated Kentucky to meet Duke and LaSalle to meet UCLA. The two losers would play for the con-solation title on the second night while the duo of first-round winers would clash for the tournament championship.
The Blue Devils of coach Hal Bradley had closed strong the preceding season and finished with a 19-7 record. Lacking only the good big man in their lineup—a "weakness" also plaguing the Wildcats—Duke was expected to be one of the classiest outfits on LASALLE WAS RECOGNIZED AS ONE of the East's major independent cage powers and had captured the fancy of the nation the preceding season by climbing to No. 1 in national polls at one stage of the campaign. As defending NIT champions, the Philadelphia crew was favored to repeat in 1953, but lost a heartbreaker to St. John's—the team that a year previously had upended UK in the NCAA tourney. Although league officials turned down the original suggestion for an SEC tourney in UK's spacious (12,500) Memorial Coliseum, which was dedicated in December 1950, new impetus was given plans for a holiday meet by abandonment of the SEC tourney after the 1952 meet and UK's public statement a few months later of an athletic policy prohibiting cage play by Wildcat teams in privately controlled, off-campus arenas.

That statement came after the Wildcats were barred from SEC nd NCAA competition during the 1952-53 season because of rules tolations that were uncovered after some UK players were involved in the scandals.

After surveying other holiday tournaments to which the Wildcats had been invited, UK athletic director Bernie Shively and coach Adolph Rupp decided to have a tournament of their own.

"I GOT TIRED OF TRAVELING to other arenas during the holidays," Rupp said later. "I saw no reason to go to the West Coast and get beat when you could get beat at home, and for more money."

That was a typical Rupp overstatement; since the Wildcats had not traveled to the West Coast up to that time, and had won 110 straight games on their home floor.

The two UK officials decided to schedule the tournament on Friday and Saturday before Christmas, when seats of students-on-holiday could be sold to the general public. They also agreed to invite the nation's best teams, beginning with NCAA and NIT champing of the previous control of the second o pions of the previous season. The selection was based on considera-tions of national reputation in cage circles, potential caliber of play expected that season and a desire to give the tournament an interseconal flavor with a top team representing various parts of the

The Wildcats trailed LaSalle by nine points in the first half, but broke the championship game open at the start of the final quarter, handing the Explorers their second loss in eight starts. The keys for DeVoe rest with the improved play from Roth and consistent contributions from role players such as Elvin Brown. Anthony Richardson, Mark Griffin and Ian Lockhart. Last year the Vols were snake bit, losing four contests in overtime and also six defeats by three points or less. DeVoe hopes to reverse those close calls this season

OLE MISS: Another puzzling team to figure this season is Ole Miss. Coming off an NIT appearance in his initial campaign at Ole Miss, coach Ed Murphy has to replace six regulars from last year's Roderick Barnes and Charles Prater are his only proven players returning. However, he will rely heavily on his son Sean this season in the pivot. JC transfers Johnny Payton and Mike Paul are two players Murphy hopes will progress as the team prepares for nonconference games against Tulsa and New Orleans and Temple in the Sugar Bowl Classic. Because Murphy's teams play with so much intensity every game, the Rebels can't be taken lightly by any conference foe, especially in Oxford.

MISSISSIPPI STATE: You have to shed a tear for coach Richard Williams, who began the season without his two top scorers and rebounders from last year's team.

Both Hubert Henderson, the Rebels' leader in rebounds and An-thony Blakley, who averaged 11.7 points per game in 1986-87 have left the team. This year Williams hopes guards Reginald Boykin and Robert Woodard can take up some of the missing slack. Already MSU has a feather in its cap, doing something it hasn't accomplished for the last 20 road outings—win! A recent 72-68 road win at Rice broke a 20-game losing streak on the road. However, the Bulldogs once again appear to be cellar-bound this season.

AUBURN: SEC funny man Sonny Smith arguably has the bes ont line in the conference. Seriously.

Heaven forbid such a thing.

Recently, Sanderson unknowingly cursed rival UAB when asked why Bama had to play a game in the Birmingham Civic Center during the day instead of at night.

The early-season sensation for the Crimson Tide so far has been the exciting play of freshman guard Alvin Lee. During the Tide's 78-69 victory over USC in Birmingham, Lee tied a school record with eight three-pointers while scoring a game-high 33 points.

Forward Michael Ansley is one the most underrated forwards in the league, but. . . . he has to contribute underneath if the Tide expects to roll on. Also, center William DeVaughn has added to Alabama's attack with his overall improvement from a year ago

Though the Tide will be competitive, Sanderson will be watching well as hoping that his youthful squad will develop the needed hemistry to compete this season in the SEC

If Coach Denny Crum can find other ways to blend Felton spencer into the team, perhaps not as a starter, then the Cardinals can become a Top 20 team again. Even though the team Crum has this season is, save one, the same one that finished 18-14 last year, given Crum's track record, most of us expect UofL will mature, and earn its way back to the Top 20 and the NCAA Tournament.

One of Kentucky's premier high school football coaching positions may be vacant before next spring. North Hardin High's coach of eight seasons Charlie Lynch is ready to move into administration if a job becomes available. "Football has been my life," Lynch, who is 40, said last week. "But you have to think about the future."

No decision will be made until the spring hiring period

In terms of population, North Hardin, a Class 4-A school, is in one of Kentucky's fastest growing areas.

Rich McCune, a 6-3½, 250-pound tackle from Breathitt County High became the first in-state prospect to commit to the University of Kentucky last week. But McCune, who has a 3.6 grade point average, didn't just commit, he made a commercial through his coach Mike Holcomb.

mercial through his coach Mike Holcomb.

"Rich hopes some of the other top prospects in the state will make the decision to go with him to UK," Holcomb said. "Whatever, I think UK got an outstand football player and a good citizen in Rich McCune."

If McCune is anything like the last southeastern Kentucky youngster to sign with UK, then coach Jerry Claiborne has done well. Junior to be Vic Adams from Middlesboro should project as an All-SEC player next year.

Business reporter Jane Bryant Quinn: "The rule of staying alive as a forecaster (sports predicter?) is to give 'em a number or give 'em a date, but never give 'em both at once."

Unfortunately, Notre Dame's Tim Brown (for whom I voted) was negative in his initial remarks after winning won the 53rd Heisman Trophy. Brown said he took it personally when some media types suggested he might not be the most deserving winner "because I didn't think I'm a bad person," he exid

Did anyone hear or read that Brown was a "bad person?" Anyway, Brown finished far ahead of Syracuse quarterback Don McPherson in the nationwide balloting of sports writers and broadcasters. He had 1,442 points (320 first place votes) to

"I just wanted to cry because I was so relieved," he said when his name was announced. "Everything was behind me and I didn't have to worry anymore

McPherson: "I felt mostly relief for Tim Brown. He wen

a great deal of pressure."

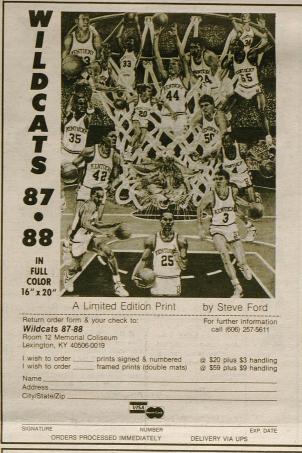

Did I miss something here? What higher honor in college football is there than being mentioned as the leading candidate for a Heisman Trophy?

One had to relish Gordon Lockbaum's reaction to the balloting. The Holy Cross wide receiver and defensive back finished third in the voting with 657 points.

"I'm happy with the finish," Lockbaum said. "To finish third is a great experience."

And so it goes.

Is UK-U of L 'Dream Game' Really Special?

Big Four Classic, To Me, Is Better

Just a few short hours after this column was finished, the Wildcats and the Cardinals tipped off 'Dream Game V in Rupp Arena amid weeks of hoopla and anticipation.

I use the term 'Dream Game' loosely because much of the

Dan Brandenburg

Cats' Pause Columnist

glimmer has worn off since that first tremendouly-heralded showdown on Nov. 26, 1983, that Kentucky won 65-44 to avenge an 80-68 overtime loss exactly eight months to the day earlier in the Mideast Regionals.

The Cats won in a rout last year 85-51, handing Coach Denny Crum his biggest defeat ever and the Cardinals their worst loss ever in Freedom Hall.

This season's match looked to be very similar, at least on paper, as UK brought a No. 1 national ranking into the game while U of L languished among the unranked following a drubbing by Notre Dame in its season opener the previous weekend. vious weekend

Not having the luxury of knowing the game's outcome at the time of this writing, I figured Kentucky would win by about 20. I was a little more optimistic than Eddie Sutton who predicted a 14-point-or-less margin, but not quite as old as Crum who said it may be 50 or 55 points in Kentuck ye favor.

We all knew Crum was blowing a lot of hot air when he made that remark. But Sutton was, perhaps, more down to earth and closer to the mark. Sure, Louisville was mangled by David Rivers and Company. Sure, the Cards couldn't throw one in the ocean. But, this was not going to be the Cards' opener. And, chances are U of L's shooting percentage was going to increase to near normal.

But this was Kentucky-Louisville, a game where rankings and statistics could be tossed out the window. The battle lines were drawn weeks ago.

Yes, Kentucky was a definite favorite going in and the Cats have the better team, I believe. UK is blessed with a better backcourt than the Cards, more balance across the fourth line, more expressions and more deaths. And not the front line, more experience and more depth. And, not to forget another important factor, the game was to be played in Rupp Arena where Kentucky has won more than 90 percent of its games. It's like, "Yeah, this is our homecourt and we don't lose here, so just come in, take your lumps and get

Kentucky led the renewed series 3-1, having won two of the games in a big way. In the two NCAA tournament games played since 1983, Kentucky is 1-1 with the lone loss oming in overtime. Louisville was 0-3 in Rupp Arena and 1-8 in the all-time series against UK in Lexington. In addition, Crum was 1-6 against Sutton and 2-4 against Kentucky.

The Wildcats have dominated the series more so than the overall success rates of both teams when you compare the entire seasons and this year should offer nothing different as far as the series is concerned.

But by now, this may all be hot air, also, if Eddie's Boys fashioned another rout or Denny's Kids pulled off the upset of the season

Notes and stuff: The UK-U of L match also paired up a couple of former high school teammates — Reggie Hanson of Kentucky and Shannon Fraley of Louisville who combined to lead Pulaski County to the 1986 Sweet Sixteen championship.

Hanson, a redshirt freshman, was the Maroons' big gun all season, but it was Fraley, a walk-on true freshman, who hit the winning shot in the closing seconds of the title —Through the Wildcats' first three games, UK has had a different leading scorer and rebounder each time. Ed Davender (the most underrated player in the nation), Rex Chapman and Rob Lock had each led in scoring, while Lock, Winston Bennett and Cedric Jenkins had each grabbed the rebounding honor.

You can call the Louisville match a 'Dream Game' if you want, but the real 'Dream Game' to me now is the Big Four Kentucky's 82-76 overtime win over Indiana would have to rank as one of the best games in UK history. Neither team led by more than six points and there were 20 lead changes — how much closer can you get?

The event finally took place years after it should have and it was big enough to pack the 40,000 seats of the Hosierdome and draw in a live national television broadcast. Sure, the Notre Dame-Louisville contest was a laugher, but I don't think anyone wanted a refund after the UK-IU but I don't think anyone wanted a refund after the UK-IU match rounded out the day.

So why go and fix something that ain't broke. Says Indiana coach Bobby Knight: Let's change it into a two-day tournament just after Christmas and it will be the biggest college basketball event in the nation, short of the Final Four. Says Sutton: No way.

I agree with Sutton. I think it is already the biggest event short of the Final Four. Plus, neither team really needs two losses that early in the season, which is guaranteed to happen to one of the teams under the tourney format.

But even more important, Kentucky does not need to against Indiana, Louisville and Notre

Sutton: Keep Big Four The Way It Is

Dame, traditionally three of the most revered matches on

The Hoosierdome is practically a homecourt advantage for Knight and UK surely does not need that, either. Also, none of the teams need to play any of the other three twice during one regular season and that would more than likely happen if there are games between the teams scheduled outside of the Big Four.

Next season, Kentucky will play Notre Dame in the Big Four, Louisville in Freedom Hall and Indiana in Rupp. That gives Kentucky one home, one away and one semi neutral game with the other three. It is a dream lineup and shouldn't be changed.

Stick to your guns, Eddie.

Should the Cats have survived the Louisville game with their undefeated record intact, their No. 1 ranking should also have persevered. But is it deserved?

Kentucky is most assuredly in the nation's top five, but maybe not No. 1. Not yet, anyhow. The Cats took the backdoor into the top slot on the heels of the No. 1 Heels' loss to

Had North Carolina won that game, even by one point, I don't think the win over Indiana would have vaulted UK into No. 1. Right now, Pittsburgh and North Carolina are the top two teams in the country in my book, with UK a close third.

But the Cats should enjoy the ranking while they can because it is extremely unlikely that it will last all season. An 18-game Southeastern Conference schedule, plus defending national runnerup Syracuse, lie ahead and it will take a little more consistency, balance and leadership for the Cats to still carry the No. 1 banner come March.

Dream Game.

Payne, who was two of five on bonus-baby attempts for the day, popped a 24 footer with :31 left in the half to trim the lead to 45-32. By the time he nailed his second three-pointer of the day—a 20 footer with 2:21 remaining to be played to give Louisville (huh?) a 72-70 strange as it may have seemed, it was a ballgame

The meat of this sandwich, and U of L's attack all day long, was a spectacular effort from Herb Crook and Pervis Ellison. Crook, the Metro Conference Player of the Year last season, returned from the vacation he took the week before against Notre Dame and lived up to his "Superb Herb" billing. Crook was 10 of 16 from the field, most of them coming with a hand in his face, and four them coming with a hand in his face, and four of six from the line for a game-high 24 points.

And Pervis, well he was Pervis. "Never Nervous" grabbed a game-high 13 boards and added 20 points, the last two coming on a 10-footer from the left baseline to give the Cards a 75-74 lead with only 40 ticks showing on the clock.

It was only fitting then that the dramatic, second-chance tip-in from Jenkins—who has earned the nickname "Television Man" from teammate Derrick Miller because of his newfound propensity to come up with the big play in national TV games—should have provid-ed the climax for this, perhaps the best of the five regular-season matchups.

So, The Series, even if it only produces a Dream Game once every four and a half years

I'm surprised it doesn't. That certainly got us off and running

Question: Would you describe the last play of the game?

Sutton: We drew up a play we call "three-box." We let the shooter (Chapman) screen across away from the ball. Then you have a double screen coming down. Rex Chapman screens away and Eric Manuel broke to the block. Then we had Rob (Lock) and Cedric double-screen down for Rex. Ed (Davender) took the ball over to the one wing and we were hoping to hit Rex coming off the double screen at the top of the circle. He was open but Ed was under such heat on the baseline that he couldn't see him. He took a good shot, you couldn't ask for a better shot than he took. I'm like Ed-I thought it was going in the hole But it didn't. I want to emphasis that when you watch basketball as much as coaches do, it isn't the initial shot that so often heats the other team, but it's the second and third shots that

Four Years Ago

*Kentucky rolled to a convincing 72-50 win over Kansas in Lawrence, as Melvin Turpin and Jim Master combined for 48 points and Kenny Walker hauled down a game-high eight rebounds. Kentucky, with Master red hot on 10-of-13 shooting from the field, and Turpin scoring at will inside, raced out to a 35-20

*Kentucky punter Paul Calhoun was selected second-team All-American by The Sporting News, thus becoming UK's first All-American since Art Still back in 1977.

*Sophomore kicking specialist Chris Caudell was suspended from the UK football team for disciplinary reasons and was not permitted to play in the Hall of Fame Bowl game. Caudell later withdrew from school.

*Kentucky placed three players on the Academic All-SEC football team. Selected for the honors were Ron Bojalad, Keith Martin and Scott Schroeder.

Five Years Ago

*The Kentucky Wildcats captured their 22nd University of Kentucky Invitational Tournament by defeating Duquesne 55-42, then coming back to beat Tulane 80-61 for the title. In the first game, UK played rather routinely, and the crowd of 23,964 never really got excited as Kentucky was not the sharp, crisp team it had been earlier. The Wildcats did shoot 59.5 percent from the field, but committed II turnovers to Duquesne's two. The 'Cats never trailed in the game and held a 29-17 led at the half. UK scored the first six points of the second half, and the lead stayed in the 13-18 point range the rest of the game. Derrick Hord and Jim Master led the 'Cats with 14 points each. In the title game, UK loked much more like the team of old as the 'Cats crushed the Green Wave of Tulane half. Guard Dicky Beal came off of the bench and ignited the crowd and the team with three incredible plays, including a windmill-type pass to freshman Kenny Walker for a stuff. The 'Cats continued their hot shooting with a 60.3 percentage from the field. Derrick Hord and Dirk Minniefield paced the attack with 17 points. Hord also was named as the tournament's Most Valuable Player.

*Results from testing have put All-America center Sam Bowie's leg back in a cast for another six weeks, and it looks as though he will have to sit out all year. "As far as determing whether or not I will be back this season, it looks doubtful now," said Bowie.

*Kentucky freshman Todd May left the squad after citing unhappiness about the amount of playing time he was getting. He did not play in UK's victory over Notre Dame, the second game of the season and saw only limited action against Butler and Detroit. It had been said that May cons leaving earlier, but wanted to finish the fall emester exams before going. He is transfering to Wake Forest.

Six Years Ago

*The University of Kentucky Athletics Board voted unanimously to appoint 53-year-old Jerry Claiborne head football coach beginning with the 1982 season.

*In the first round of the annual UKIT, the 'Cats used a different lineup, inserting Charles Hurt for defensive purposes in place of Chuck Verderber. The move worked as UK defeated Jacksonville 107-91. Kentucky never trailed and broke open a close 8-8 tie to take a 23-14 lead. The Wildcats built that lead to 13 points by the half and led by 20 less than nine minutes into the second half. Kentucky's biggest lead was 25 points. The Wildcats showed a balanced scoring attack with seven players hitting double figures. Derrick Hord had 17 to lead the way.

*Kentucky won its 21st UKIT title by playing a spectacular first half and jumping out to a 31-point advantage at halftime en route to a 98-74 victory over Seton Hall. Five players—Derrick Hord, Charles Hurt, Melvin Turpin, Dirk Minniefield and Jim Master—scored in double digits. Minniefield, Master and Hord were named to the all-

Seven Years Ago

*In a real laugher, UK jumped out to a 19-2 lead and went on to stomp Alaska-Anchorage 91-56 in the first round of the UKIT. Alaska made only three field goals in the entire first half, after being shut out from the field until 6:50 remained until intermission. UK led 35-12 at the break. Nine UK players logged between 14 and 27 minutes of action. Eight of those scored between seven and 16 points. Charles Hurt, starting for the first time in place of injured Fred Cowan, led UK with 16 points. Dirk Minniefield added 15. Freshmen Melvin Turpin and Bret Bearup were impressive off the bench, with 13 and 12 points, respectively.

*Alabama-Birmingham earned everybody's respect as the Blazers took Kentucky down to the wire but lost 61-53 in the champion-ship game of the UKIT. UAB led at the half and had UK on the hot seat for much of the game. Kentucky's final eight-point margin was its largest of the game. Sam Bowie led the 'Cats with 25 points and 12 rebounds, causing UAB coach Gen Bartow to label Bowie the best big man in the country. Bowie was the only Wildcat in double figures. Chuck Verderber added nine points

Charles Hurt seven, while Oliver Robinson led UAB with 12. Dicky Beal scored only two points but sparked UK off the bench with his electrifying play. Beal was named to the all-tournament team, along with Hurt and Bowie, who was named the MVP.

Eight Years Ago

*The good news continued for the Kentucky basketball program, at least in the recruiting wars. Seven-foot Melvin Turpin an-nounced from his home in Lexington that will attend Kentucky next week. Turpin at-tended Lexington Bryan Station and is presently playing basketball and attending Fork Union Military Academy. Turpin said one reason he chose UK was because his parents have been ill and he wished to stay close to home. Several weeks before Turpin's nnouncement, All-American Bret Bearup of New York announced he would attend UK

*What coach Joe Hall labeled the "Firehouse Five" sparked Kentucky as the homestanding 'Cats downed No. 1-ranked Indiana 69-58. The Hoosier had the 'Cats baffled in the first half and the UK offense couldn't get going. Hall then inserted a lineup of Dirk Minniefield, Dwight Anderson, Derrick Hord, Jay Shidler and Charles Hurt. UK trailed by 13 at one point in the first half but a midcourt steal and dunk by Hurt rallied the Cats and they were behind just 39-36 at halftime. Then trailing 53-51 with 9:05 left to play, UK reeled off 15 unanswered points and held on for the win. Kyle Macy led UK with 12 points. Fellow senior LaVon Williams had II points and eight rebounds, while the team's other senior, Shidler, hit some key long-range bombs among his 11 points. Ray Tolbert and Mike Woodson scored 16 each

*A final-second steal by Jay Shidler helped UK preserve a 57-56 win before 15,800 screaming Jayhawk fans in Lawrence, Kan. UK's Dwight Anderson had missed a free throw with :04 left, but when Kansas got the rebound, Shidler made the steal and ran the ball down for UK's sixth straight win. The 'Cats did not play well, hitting only 41.8 percent from the field and committing 20 turnovers. UK led 57-52 with less than two minutes to go, but costly errors allowed Kansas back in the game. Freshman Sam Bowie led UK with 17 points and 14 rebounds while Kyle Macy was the only other Wildcat in double figures with 10 points. Darnell Valentine led Kansas with 17 points.

Nine Years Ago

*Freshman Dwight Anderson scored 17 points in the final 10 minutes in unbelievable performance, leading the Kentucky Wildcats to a comeback win over previously unbeaten Notre Dame. The Wildcats defeated the Irish 81-76. "This may which as defeated the Fish 61-0. This may be the greatest win we've ever had at Kentucky," said coach Joe Hall after his team raised its record to 5-2. Trailing 61-49 with Il minutes to go, Anderson then used his amazing quickness to get inside the Irish triangle zone. After he missed his first four shots, Anderson turned the corner, which earned him Most Valuable Player honors. Notre Dame's Kelly Tripucka led all scorers with 21 points.
