

Education Must Meet Challenge

Education in a democracy can and will meet the challenges coming out of American business, teachers gathered last Friday morning at the opening session of the ninth annual Business Education Conference at the University of Kentucky were told.

The speaker was Dr. E. C. McGill, head of the Kansas State Teachers College Department of Business Education and president of the United Business Education Association.

"We have too great a job to fall now," Dr. McGill told his audience. "In order to accomplish such an objective in the most expedient manner possible, education, business and industry must become partners in this great undertaking."

The speaker listed several challenges educational institutions face in their relationship with business. They include:

Encouraging a closer relationship between business education and business; providing specific preparation to meet managerial problems; teaching a better understanding of the American economic system; emphasizing human relations; cultivating desirable personal attributes; developing flexibility, or the ability to adapt to different assignments within an organization; promoting methods of communication; providing an adult education program which is adjusted to the needs and desires of employed people who want to continue to learn, and making available proper placement services.

There are other forceful challenges being directed at education, Dr. McGill noted. "With new developments in science, automation and an acceptance of our expanded citizenship responsibilities, we cannot fail."

Dr. McGill was introduced at the morning session by Virgil Young, vice president of the Nu Chapter of Delta Pi Epsilon, a business education honorary society.

Also on the program were Prof. Elise Davis, University of Tennessee, who offered the teachers some suggestions in developing good work habits in the teaching of shorthand, and Dr. Helen H. Green, Michigan State University, who discussed the problems pertaining to extracurricular activities.

In a luncheon address, Dr. McGill challenged the educators to "think ideas for yourself, and have the fortitude to believe and develop them. I feel that I must help people develop the strength to take a stand on prominent and controversial issues after they have gotten the facts."

Miss Katie Carpenter, president of the Nu Chapter, presided at the luncheon.

The afternoon meeting consisted of a typing demonstration and drill by Alan Lloyd, typewriting editor of the Gregg Publishing Division, McGraw-Hill Book Co., a talk by Dr. Green on "Ideas for Effective Assembly Programs," and a problems clinic directed by Dr. Thomas Hogancamp, head of the Murray State Teachers College Department of Business Education.

The conference, which ended Saturday, was sponsored by the Nu Chapter and the UK Department of Business Education.

Medical School

This block diagram shows the proposed location of the various parts of the new medical college. The building includes a dental school, teaching hospital, ambulant patient quarters, outpatient clinic, clinical sciences, and basic sciences departments. The school is scheduled for completion in 1965 and will be built on the Experiment Station Farm.

Education Team Tells Workshop Of Services

A team of State Department of Education representatives has interpreted some of the department services for about 70 people attending the workshop on supervision at the University of Kentucky.

Representing the Division of Instructional Services were Don Hale, director; Sam Taylor, supervisor of secondary education; Donald Elswick, curriculum supervisor; Mrs. Irene Gullette, library supervisor; C. T. Wood, head of attendance and pupil personnel; Claude Taylor, supervisor of elementary education, and Richard Lee Gentry, head of the health, physical education and safety program. Two members of the Division of Teacher Education and Certification—Frank Vititow and Mrs. Mary Marshall—also participated in the discussions.

The speakers gave an interpretation of the roles of the principal, supervisor, superintendent, librarian and other special services. They also discussed an overall program of evaluation that will have as its purpose the upgrading of educational opportunities.

The workshop is sponsored by the UK College of Education, the State Department of Education and the Kentucky Association of Educational Supervisors.

42 Receive Scholarships

Forty-two students have been awarded agriculture and home economics scholarships at the University of Kentucky, Prof. L. J. Horlacher, associate dean of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, has announced.

The scholarships range from $100 to $400, and are for the year 1956-57. Donors of the awards are the Houston Endowment, Inc., the Sears Roebuck Foundation, the Kroger Co., Lexington Radio Station WLP and the Jessamine and Jefferson County Farm Bureaus.

One of the recipients, Richard D. Featherston III, Lexington, achieved the highest scholastic standing last year among the UK freshmen in agriculture, and was awarded the sophomore Sears Roebuck Agricultural Foundation scholarship.

Institute To Study College Management

The fourth annual College Business Management Institute will be held on the campus from July 23-29, Powers Jones, coordinator for the Institute, said.

About 70 students from 20 states throughout the United States will attend the meeting. The purpose of the Institute is to set up a course of study in which college business officers and business office personnel may receive instruction in the various phases of college business management.

Lloyd Morey, president-emeritus and former comptroller at the University of Illinois, will be the principal speaker. He will speak on "Principles and Guides for Executive Management in Higher Education."

Frank D. Peterson, vice-president in charge of business administration at the University, started the Institute in 1952. In a letter to the prospective students he said "The Institute will not only provide a means to further the education and training of business office personnel but will help to standardize the various functions and procedures in college business management."

The course is set up on a three year basis so that students may continue their studies over the three-year period. Among the students who are to be present for the studies are two officers from the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N. Y.

Extra-curricular activities for the group include a tour of the bluegrass farms and the surrounding area, and a smorgasbord in the Student Union ballroom.

The students will live in Donovan and Jewell Halls, and in local hotels while they are in Lexington, Jones said.

Snow Will Spend Year In Hawaii Studying Polynesia

Dr. Charles E. Snow, professor of anthropology at the University, will leave after this term for Hawaii where he will continue a study of the Polynesian race.

Snow recently received a $7,000 grant from the National Research Foundation of Washington, D. C., which will pay for a year's work in Hawaii.

He became interested in the Polynesian group when he was stationed in the Hawaiian Islands as a member of the American Graves Registration Service. Shortly after he returned to the University he was granted a sabbatical

Grubbs Named PMS&T

A new professor of Military Science and Tactics has been named to succeed Col. Henry H. Rogers who has been in charge of the army ROTC for the past three years.

Col. William E. Grubbs, a native Kentuckian, will head the Military Science Department in September. Col. Grubbs is chief of the West Virginia Military District. He will arrive in Lexington Sept. 15.

Both Col. Rogers and Col. Grubbs will serve in the position until Oct. 15. At that time Col. Rogers will leave for an assignment in Korea.

Three years is considered the "normal tour" for ROTC personnel.

The new department head is a native of Paris and a West Point graduate, class of 1930.

Col. Grubbs is married and has two sons. One son will enroll at UK this fall as a sophomore. The other is in high school.

Two Operas Scheduled By Workshop

By VIRGINIA SNODGRASS

UK's Summer Opera Workshop will present "The Medium" and "The Telephone" at 8:30 p.m. July 25, 26, 27, and 28 in the Guignol Theatre, Fine Arts Building. The director of the Opera Workshop is Aimo Kiviniemi.

"The Telephone" is a one-act comic opera by Gian-Carlo Menotti. It was originally written for production by the Ballet Society and was first presented by them along with "The Medium" in New York City, 1947. The Broadway production, based on the Ballet Society, also appeared in 1947.

"The Medium," also by Menotti is a tragic opera in two acts. It was first produced at Columbia University in 1946 with Mr. Menotti as the stage director. It was then revised and restaged for the Ballet Society. The Broadway production was taken from this revision. The Broadway production of the two operas as an evening's entertainment started the trend of producing them together and now one is seldom seen without the other.

"The Telephone" which features Barbara Watson as Lucy and Charles Sims and Robert Davis alternating in the part of Ben takes place in a modern setting on the patio of Lucy's apartment. Ben has come to ask Lucy to marry him but the telephone keeps interrupting much to Ben's dismay. A surprise ending makes this opera very entertaining.

"The Medium" is essentially the story of a fortune teller, a deaf-mute and a young girl. It stars Phyllis Tilton as Monica, Dudley Saunders as Toby (the deaf-mute), Sally Hoffman Braun as Mme. Flora (Baba), Ebba Jo Haagenon as Mrs. Gobineau, Leonard Wolfe as Mr. Gobineau, and Margaret Dowling Wehle as Mrs. Nolan.

The setting is also modern and the action takes place on the outskirts of a great city.

The accompanists for both operas are John W. Whitaker and J. Harold Nave.

The production director for the workshop is Miss Lolo Robinson. Her assistant is Dudley Saunders. The house manager is Fred Sliter. Publicity is being handled by Boyd Keenon, Jim Barrickman, Norvel Copeland, William Hubbell, and Virginia Snodgrass.

The hostesses, all mothers of cast members are Mrs. Frank A. Wehle, Mrs. I. Haagenon, Mrs. Georgia Mae Wolfe, Mrs. Jones Tilton, Mrs. B. H. Sims, Mrs. Bonnie Watson, Mrs. Gladys Hoffman, and Mrs. Mary Lee Braun.

Reservations may be obtained by calling University extension 2396.

Dr. Donovan To Speak At Western

Dr. Herman L. Donovan, UK's retiring president, will address 174 graduates at the Fiftieth Anniversary Commencement of Western Kentucky State College, Aug. 1.

Dr. Donovan was the first student registered when Western opened as a state supported school in 1906. He received a diploma from the school, then known as the Western Kentucky State Normal School, in 1908. He received his A.B. from UK in 1914 and an M.A. from Columbia in 1920.

He did graduate work at the University of Chicago and got his Ph.D. degree from George Peabody College for Teachers in 1924.

He holds the LL.D. degree from UK, Georgetown College, Berea, University of Louisville, and Transylvania.

The UK president has held prominent positions in various educational systems throughout Kentucky. He was president of Eastern State College for 13 years before coming to the University in 1941. Upon retirement in September, he will be succeeded by Dr. Frank G. Dickey, dean of the College of Education.

"The Medium"

Rehearsing for the Gian-Carlo Menotti opera "The Medium" which will be presented July 25 are (l. to r.) Leonard Wolfe (Mr. Gobineau), Ebba Jo Haagenon (Mrs. Gobineau) and Margaret Wehle (Mrs. Nolan). The second opera will be "The Telephone."

Barnhart Paints Mexico

By JIM MILES

Many interesting paintings have been done by Professor C. Raymond Barnhart of the University Art Department during his sabbatical leave from August 1955 to June 1 of this year.

Prof. Barnhart spent approximately half of his leave in Mexico, depicting on canvas both the rural and city life of the Mexican people. While doing the actual paintings in Mexico City, Mr. Barnhart, accompanied by his wife and daughter, traveled extensively on weekends throughout various Mexican villages gathering ideas for his work.

During these trips, Barnhart was very fortunate in purchasing a collection of popular arts and crafts that are fast becoming extinct due to the inroads of mechanization. This collection includes weaving, pottery, basketry, and toys, handmade by the village inhabitants. This collection may be exhibited sometime within the coming school year.

The paintings have been done in oil, lacquer, and acrylic resin—a special plastic medium developed by a Mexican friend. Acrylic resin is similar to water paint, but has an advantage in that it is unaffected by water after it dries. Prof. Barnhart pointed out the revival of mosaics—a process whereby pieces of colored glass are cemented on a flat surface to form the ideas of the artist. He has just completed a mosaic of a bullfight.

Throughout Mexico, Barnhart added, modern architecture is being given great attention by builders, and sculpture and murals are fast becoming an important part of every structure. There has been, also, a revival of interest of popular art in Mexico among the more cultivated people and three art centers have been established in Mexico City to encourage this art.

"The people of Mexico respect and use the works of the artist; the environment is a creative climate for the artist," Barnhart said.

Leaving Mexico City in January, he settled just outside San Francisco where he completed a series of contemporary landscape paintings, one of which included the famed "Golden Gate" bridge shadowed by fog. Barnhart also studied Japanese handwriting, from a Buddhist priest, in order to learn better control of the brush. Japanese art is becoming a strong influence in California design in architecture, ceramics, and in the development of the garden as an art.

Not all of Barnhart's time was spent painting — much time was spent visiting exhibitions and museums, attending lectures, and in visiting art schools and college art departments. During his leave, he met many professional artists, architects, and craftsmen, and discussed ideas and problems relating art to our contemporary culture.

Some thirty paintings were done by Barnhart during his sabbatical leave; half of these in Mexico and the other half completed in California.

Group To Hear Albright Speak

"Alternate Plans" will be the subject of Dr. E. D. Albright's lecture before the YM-YWCA Forum, July 24, SUB, at 7 p.m. Dr. Albright is a member of the College of Education.

The talk is to be on the various plans concerning religious instruction in the public school, and suggested revisions in the existing methods. It will last for about 45 minutes. Following this will be a discussion period which will be open to the public.

Student chairman for the closing session of the Forum on "Religion and the Public Schools" will be Nell Logan.

Attendance at the meetings during the summer has been "fairly regular—about 30 to 75 people everytime," according to Joy Lease, Executive Director of the YWCA.

Club To Discuss Delegate Choice

Dr. Gladys Kammerer, Political Science Department, will speak on "Choosing Delegates to the National Political Convention" at the July 24 meeting of the Dutch Lunch Club.

Dealing with the theory of such elections, Dr. Kammerer will explain their importance and relation to the individual.

This is the last of a series on political activity and citizen participation which has been sponsored by the club.

20 At Geology Camp

About 20 geology students are presently camped at Crested Butte, Colo., as part of their requirements for a degree in geology.

The summer encampment, held annually, began June 9 when the students left the University, Dr. Lois J. Campbell of the Geology Department said.

The group is under the direction of Dr. Arthur C. McFarlan, head of the department. Dr. McFarlan left the campus June 1 as part of the advance party to set up the camp for the students who followed.

The principle purpose of the trip is to give students practice in mapping. They will be required to write a report of the camp studies when they return.

In addition to students from the

The Guignol Theatre seats approximately 425 persons.

The University of Kentucky Libraries contain over 600,000 volumes.

Memorial Hall seats 1,100 persons and is equipped with a pipe organ and carillon bells.

University, there are several students from schools not in Kentucky, Dr. Campbell said.

The students are living in tents while they are in Colorado. All of the cooking is done by Harry Taylor, head cook at Donovan Hall, Dr. Campbell said.

The group is expected to return to the University shortly after August 4, the day the encampment ends.

Texas Prof Comes To UK

Bernard Fitzgerald, UK's new Director of Music Education and of the concert band, is no stranger to Kentucky. He was last here as a guest professor of music education in 1954.

Mr. Fitzgerald comes to UK from the University of Texas in Austin. With him is his family; his wife, Ina, who he met at Oberlin College; his son, Terry, 16, who will be a senior in high school this fall; and his daughter, Kathleen, 11, who is in junior high.

Mr. Fitzgerald was born in Martinsville, Illinois. He went to secondary schools in Illinois and Indiana. He got his Bachelor of Music degree from Oberlin College in Oberlin, Ohio, where he majored in trumpet and music education. He got his Master of Music degree from Jordan Conservatory of Music where he majored in composition and trumpet.

During college he was president of his class for two years and social chairman for two years. He was also president of the band for a year.

He has taught in Kansas, Arkansas, Idaho, New York, and Texas. He also taught trumpet at the national music camp in Interlochen, Michigan.

He was president of the College Band Directors National Association in 1950. He is a member of the Music Educators National Conference; the American Bandmasters Association; Phi Mu Alpha, national honorary music fraternity; Pi Kappa Lambda, national music honor society; and has been elected as an honorary life member of Kappa Kappa Psi, national college band fraternity.

Hamilton To Speak On Ashland's Past And Present

Dr. Holman Hamilton, assistant professor of history at the University of Kentucky, will be the guest speaker at the annual reception to be given at 4 p.m., July 23, on the lawn at Ashland, home of Henry Clay.

His topic will be "Ashland, Then and Now." The reception is sponsored jointly by the University and the Henry Clay Memorial Foundation, in commemoration of the life and services of the great statesman.

Dr. Hamilton's talk will be preceded by a musical program to be presented by James King, an instructor in the UK Department of Music, and Mrs. King. The couple might be dressed in costumes fitting of the Clay era, and the compositions will include those popular in that period.

Dr. Hamilton completed his undergraduate work at Williams College and the University of Indiana. He joined the staff of the Fort Wayne (Ind.) Journal-Gazette as a reporter, and later became editorial writer. The historian came to Kentucky in 1935 seeking material for a biography of Zachary Taylor. The congenial atmosphere of the Blue Grass and the wealth of Taylor material resulted in the Hamiltons moving to Lexington. He received the Doctor of Philosophy degree at UK in 1954. Because of his record as a student, researcher and writer, Dr. Hamilton was invited to remain at the University as assistant professor of history.

In addition to a two-volume biography of Zachary Taylor, the historian has written numerous articles and reviews for various journals. He currently is writing a book on the "Compromise of 1850."

The speaker will be introduced at the reception by Dr. Hambleton Tapp.
