BE IT RESOLVED:

2. That we express our appreciation for the interest taken by the heads of the sectional groups and the tendency shown toward a higher ground leading along the line of professionalism, in stabilizing our association by following the highest standards of dignity and poise and in reflecting such attitudes of action and thought as would appeal to the reflection of thoughtful citizens and would be worth examples for the junior citizens among us.

BE IT RESOLVED:

3. That while we appreciate the emphasis that has made the manual arts take an important place in programs by awarding of prizes in all the branches of these departments—yet the fact that there exists a need of more interest in the field of science, language and art.

BE IT RESOLVED:

That the range of prizes and awards be made larger so as to encourage science, thrift and other worthwhile activities.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED,

Report of Legislative Committee

To the members of the Fifty-third Annual Session of the K. N. E. A.:

Your committee on legislation for the 1929 session submits the following as its 1929 report:

At no time in the history of education in Kentucky and especially Negro education, has there been a greater demand that Kentucky leadership take an inventory of our educational assets and measure them by standards by which all progressive systems are being measured. The time has come when Kentucky leadership must cease to view our educational system through the rose-colored glasses of misguided pride and view our conditions as they are. The time is here when to resolve must be to act and to act must be the expressed will of every teacher from every quarter of this great Commonwealth.

To meet here year after year and to listen to well rendered oratories and to hear beautifully worded orations falling from the lips of the nation's best, is far short of the ultimate purpose which must be ours if the youth of our state is to have its rightful heritage of an equal opportunity to grow in mind, body and soul to the same degree of growth offered any youth in this great Commonwealth.

This ultimate purpose must be one of service to the children of the Commonwealth, fostering professional zeal and creating educational standards commensurable with the best standards. Long since have we recognized that the program of the K. N. E. A. must include a program of legislation based upon a sincere and scientific research into the educational conditions in both rural and urban communities.

We are rapidly sensing our utter helplessness in securing the fulfillment of our fondest hopes for our children, separate and apart from any aid coming from the K. N. E. A. We are rapidly learning that there is an ever increasing singleness in the destinies of each of these bodies—the one does not create an educational standard for Kentucky aside from an increasing share of opportunity for the other to occupy a similarly favorable condition.

Our friends are repeatedly joining us in deploring the lack of standardization of our two splendid schools for higher training, and we have, ourselves, sensed what is expressed in the following letter from Dr. Ezra L. Gills, registrar of the University of Kentucky.

"There is not a fully accredited college in the state to which colored students may attend with the exception of Simmons University for the first two years' work. The colored teachers in order to attend a first-class institution must go north of the Ohio River. One of the most outstanding needs for Kentucky today, is the provision for adequate college training for the colored people of the state. (Signed) Ezra L. Gills, registrar University of Kentucky."

We believe that our friends are ready to join forces with us in correcting this evident inequality of opportunity. On every side they urge us to sane concerted action. Our friends from the other side have hinted the desirability of this body going on record as making proper overtures to the K. E. A. for a closer co-operative relationship to the end that our program before the Commonwealth and the state legislature might be made a part of their own.

Inequalities in salary schedule is not a question of lack of the proper statutes. It is a question of execution of law. The question of inequality in school terms and administrations of Negro schools is not one resulting from lack of law but one resulting from lack of conscious responsibility for Negro education on the part of local school administrators.

This committee, therefore, suggests, that the following be the legislative objectives of the K. N. E. A.:

1. That the twelve objectives as announced by the K. E. A. have the full endorsement of this body.

(a) The development and inauguration of a sound system of State and local taxation so that financial needs of the public schools may be adequately met without an unreasonable burden on any taxpayer.

(b) A bill creating an appointive State Board of Education of seven members, not more than two of whom, shall be appointed any year, charged with the powers and duties that properly belong to such boards.

(c) An amendment to the Constitution to make possible the appointment of the State superintendent of schools by the State Board of Education.

(d) The removal of the constitutional limitation on salaries so that Kentucky may pay her public servants what they are worth.

KENTUCKY NEGRO EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION AT LOUISVILLE, THURSDAY, APRIL 18, 1929

(Stenographically reported by Commercial students of Central High School).

My dear Mr. President Meyzeek, Fellow-Craftsmen, Ladies and Gentlemen: I count this a distinguished honor; I count this one of the outstanding opportunities of a lifetime to be privileged to be the invited guest, the participant in this marvelous group of educators of this proud state of Kentucky.

First of all, I want to congratulate you upon the outstanding achievements you have made in your state, upon your standard of education. I want to congratulate the man who has been chosen for the past two years as the promoter of ideals among this vast throng of developers of character. The man who develops himself in character, leadership, and in business, and in education, stands at the head of such an organization as you represent. He is to be congratulated for his accomplishments, for his task, I am sure, has not been an easy one. There are still higher heights to climb. I am earnestly praying, in my heart, that those who may follow may not have a vision to stop here, but may look higher and higher and build more firmly on the foundation that has been laid, and leads, in this great office of educators, on to higher ground.

I want to take this opportunity to extend my greetings, my heartfelt greetings, to the American Federation of Negro Women. Thirty-four or thirty-five years ago we were just bound together in a little club, way out in the East. Tonight, we send the signal from every corner of this beautiful country of ours to our sisters in black, saying to them, "There are higher heights to climb," and as we go up the rugged road to the top, one by one, we must lift as we climb. I want to congratulate you and thank you for your sustaining power. I want to thank you for the light and life that has gone out into the darker sections of our country, awakening the sleepy women and children and saying to them, "There is light, there is life."

For four years you have privileged me to be your leader in club life. We have worked together; you here, I there, and others in their little corners, hand in hand with the schools and with the church, and with the other activities that have been ours, for the building up of a stronger and more inspiring life. We have been privileged to accomplish a great task and I want to thank you for such co-operation that you have given, through your efforts, to educational developments. We have not only extended our developments in our own country, but we have been privileged to extend the ideals of the developments of Negro Womanhood in other countries, far beyond the sea. Because of you, because of your inspiration, because of your vision, a more definite interpretation has been put upon the Negro womanhood today than it was years ago in America. Educational training is uplifting.

I do not know why you thought it wise to bring me here tonight, I thought possibly yesterday at this time, that it would not be possible for me to come. I do not know why I was called to bring a message to this group at such a time as this. I had a telegram already written saying I could not be here. I had been in bed five days physically recuperating with the burden of school president resting upon my shoulders, pulling up, as you know, from the midst of the most trying difficulty, and possibly the most trying state of our union. A wonderful, beautiful, glorious, yet unfolding state waiting for workers, waiting for craftsmen like you to come and undertake, in His name, developments of the hearts and minds. Thousands and thousands of sleeping minds are waiting for just this little human touch. But since I am here, since I am privileged to be here, I hope tonight that we may just join together in this one hard battle for a deeper consecration of every teacher to his task. I hope that you may realize with me tonight that the call of a teacher is a marvelous, wonderful, sacred call. A call to teach, to wake up sleeping minds, to unfold and develop the character; and to say to the humblest and to the most ignorant, and yet to the black boy or girl in America, "You are created in His image, and there is only one thing for you to do; that is to awaken the boys and girls living in your land." It is for you to accept the teachings that are yours and come forward and live and serve. We are living my friends, in a wonderful day; we are living in a wonderful age. Sometimes people criticize and say that the times are getting worse, and they wonder what is going to happen to the world. I come tonight, experienced, ripened in years and hard work, to say to you that I believe that this is the most encouraging group of young people to deal with today that we have ever had. Of course, they are different from what we were thirty-five or forty years ago. Girls are not reared now just as they were when I was a little girl. Times are different and the atmosphere is getting better; there are better libraries, more activities of development. We are coming in contact with more people, consequently we are growing wiser.

We have a new youth- try to direct their thoughts into the channels of righteousness and truthfulness so that they may unfold and give to the world, minds that we have not been able to give these past years. This is a day of thoughtful, earnest, inquiring youth. They are asking questions today that we did not know how to ask years ago. The thing that the teacher needs to do, now, is equip himself and so surround himself with these new ideals of mental development, that he may enter into the spirit of the boys and girls of today and give to them the chances of unfolding their minds that are packed up with literature and achievements that come into the minds of the parents who were before them.

This is a day of real service. What can the teacher best do in order to prepare himself or herself for the task of today? I want to beg of you tonight that you, first of all, have confidence and patience in your calling; that you first of all, get a perspective of the thing that you are to do; that after preparing yourself, will throw yourself unreservedly into your job and make it a part of your everyday thinking; that you are consecrating yourself to the thought of development; that you would realize that these thousands and thousands of children registered in the schools, represented by you here tonight, are looking to you for guidance; they look to you for the shaping of their character.

If I look back upon my days in school, I can see the little cabin school, where I started from and on, into the larger schools that I have been privileged to attend and I do not see so much the buildings, the trees and the things surrounding. I would rather hang on to certain sacred memories and to the teachers, who guided my footsteps. The thoughts of them have lingered in my mind during these years—not the buildings but the teachers. Such are the impressions that you are going to make upon the lives of these young people that have been entrusted to you. For that reason it is vastly important that you, my friends who are teachers, be the very best material that we can find in training, in character, in vision.

They are waiting to be awakened; the little Negro boys and girls of the United States would be kept asleep if there were no teachers to wake them up and make them realize that they can be men and women. We should see to it that these little boys and girls of ours hold up their heads and walk around like boys looking toward manhood and girls to womanhood, not particularly like Negro boys and girls but boys and girls. We are the ones to see to it that these young people make real American citizens. They are waiting for you and they are waiting for me to give them their chance in America.

I am thinking in terms of the difficulties through which we have passed during these years, in order that we might do a day's work. I am thinking of the opportunities that have been denied us and when I think of the wonderful strides we have made during these 65 years—I can only say, "What God has wrought." He is working through you and He is working through me, there is a big task for us as teachers to get over to the other people of America. Negro boys and Negro girls need to have the same kind of teaching; they need the same kind of environment and equipment; they need the same preparation on the part of their teachers that other boys and girls need in order that they might round out. It is up to me, it is up to you in the community where you live to make the kind of demonstrations in our schools that men and women may get the idea that youth appreciates doing this (that we can make two blades grow where none grew at all); our task is a sacred task, there is great need for preparation; there is a great need for consecration, and I want to ask that as we go on as leaders, as teachers, and promoters that we may not become discouraged with ourselves. Because the sun is shining higher in our skies today than it was yesterday, tides are turning, times are getting better, we are getting better schools, better prepared teachers; we are sending out more leaders and molders of character today than we did yesterday, and we do not want to become discouraged with ourselves. I think that every Negro teacher in America, all teachers ought to pay tributes of love and reverence to Julius Rosenwald, a man, who has come to us as a Moses in the Southland. Just a few months ago they dedicated some four thousand schools that he has built. When I think of that great army of missionaries, it inspires me. He has come as a Moses to lead us out of the wilderness of ignorance and poverty, and we want to pray that he may live and that others may be raised up to do likewise, that the children that have not had their opportunities may have them, and that educational doors may open wider in the Southland than ever before. God has not forgotten us, we have our treasure and teacher; we have been under paid, we have had short school terms; others have had them. We should have in our hearts a spirit of thanksgiving, let us thank God more and more every day for the wonderful opportunities that we have. You know that I had a trip to Europe, I thought that the Negro had terrible hard times. When I passed through lower Italy, when I saw those thousands and thousands of people rapped up in poverty and ignorance with no chance to come up, I said to myself, "The black man of America is not the only man who might Complain." I am convinced that America with all its segregation is the best place for the Negro people. I want you to teach these boys and girls to be loyal to their American flag.

When I was in France I went through No Man's Land. When I came to the great cemetery where there were thousands and thousands of tombstones, I saw the great American flag waving overhead.—waving over the bodies of white and black men who have given their lives for the democracy of the world. I bowed my head and thanked God deep down in my heart for what the flag is doing for this country. We had someone to go with us to the grave of a fellow from Mississippi, who fell in the front rank. He said when he fell he was shot for something, the captain said, "You have fought a great fight; you are dying the death of a brave man and I want you to go to sleep in peace. I shall see to it that you are properly buried. I shall have the flag of America wrapped around your casket." He said, "Oh, captain, I have given my life for the democracy of the world; do not wrap the flag around my casket, but take it back to Mississippi and wrap it around the body of my old mother and protect her." I said to myself that is what we all want; the protection of this old flag of America; we want it in Mississippi, in Alabama, in Florida, in Georgia, in all the southern states of the union we want to be protected from ignorance, vice, and segregation; from the things that hold us down—we want education. Get these boys and girls trained and prepared.

Do you know that the black people of this country must have had a thrill at ten o'clock last Monday morning when a Negro Congressman was sworn into his seat? The tide is turning, it is rapidly turning. What you want and what I want is to get ready for it. Mr. DePriest may not be the most perfect man in America, he may not be all that we would like for him to be, but he is no more imperfect than the white congressman that was sworn in. What we want to do is to stand together, educate these boys and girls in your schools just as rigidly when they are old enough to handle the vote. The Negro of this country will have to be reckoned with and today we want to get educationally fitted so that we can sometimes open our own minds and think for ourselves. Keep up your courage, keep up your snap, try with all your power to give all our love and interest and have co-operation with the white teachers in the community. There is no way of separating us, the thing that we want to do is to get ready to carry ourselves firmly, for they are not going away and we are not going away. The thing that we want to do is prepare ourselves. I have found my friends that culture and refinement under white skin is just like that under black skin.

I see Mr. Reed, who was at the meeting, which was held at Waldorf Astoria. It was a meeting of the National Confederation of Women of the United States, made up of 36 national organizations. There is one Negro organization in connection with the National Organization. Each organization sends five delegates to these yearly meetings. Last year we met in New York, there was a luncheon served for the 36 presidents by Mrs. Roosevelt, who is the first lady of the state. We found that there were presidents from Florida, Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, all over the union, but we got a realization today that culture was culture. We were used to silver, and table cloths and everything. When the time came it was a surprise to me—the Negro president was given a seat by her. I did not have the time to think at all whether I was a white woman or a black woman. It simply means my friends, that all we have to get out of our minds is this inferiority complex. I know in my heart that I am a woman, a real woman, doing a real job. That is what the world wants, the other people want. Just as long as you have to go around feeling as nobody and coming around at the back door, just so long we feel that inferiority complex we shall not get the things due us. If I see a public library and want to go in

I don't stop and ask whether I am allowed to come in, I simply walk in and give them chance to tell me that I am not wanted. We want to get it over to our children that they should be prepared. That same night they selected twelve presidents as speakers, and out of those twelve presidents, one Negro president was selected, I was that president. Culture is culture under whatever skin it may come.

When I was in Europe I had on my card, Mary McLeod Bethune, Founder and President of the Bethune Cookmen Institute, and President of the Woman's National Federation in America. I took that card and presented and passed it around. It was received by nobles and lords, kings and queens. Lady Astor came from 60 miles to entertain Mrs. Bethune, not because she was black, but because she was president of the National Federation of the Colored Women's Club of America.

My friends if you will simply accomplish something steady, apply yourselves, be somebody, the world will find you. We cannot all be leaders, we cannot be a tree on the top of the hill, but we can be a shrub, but if we are a shrub, be the finest shrub that ever grew. If you cannot be a sun, be a star shining out in the community where you are. Do not be discouraged, there is a great work for you to do. Do not be discouraged, you army of teachers, there is a great deal of work for you to do. You are to lead your people out of darkness, and help them to stand upon the proud state of right citizenship. I want to ask that you concentrate yourselves and don't think of the height to which you have to go, but rather of the distance from which you have been lifted. Push on and on and by and by you will reach your heights. God has called you to do this work. Place yourself in His hands and concentrate your minds to Him wherever you are, whatever you hope to be, make Him a part of your everyday life. And ask Him to let the children see that you are leaning securely upon Him.

Declaration of Principles

Introduction

Our ideals, our standards and even society itself is undergoing a change.

Educational ideals are dependable upon society's demand, which is itself influenced by troublesome nature. Education is an evolutionary process and the weal or woe of posterity is made by today's educational activity. Our state, our old Kentucky home is the pride of all. We are one when stirred by the sentiment, "The sun shines bright in my old Kentucky home." Democracy, like all government, is an experiment. The Ideals of a Democracy are constantly changing, but the foundation, fraternity, equality and justice are pillows on which we erect our educational ideals and build so that, "a government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

Today's Educational Requirement

In keeping with changing conditions, our state offers to every boy and girl at public expense elementary and high school training. This is in keeping with the pace of our environments. The law is ideal on paper but the financial backing, the interpretation and execution of the said law, together with our dual system, make it inconvenient and an unequal struggle for many Kentucky girls and boys to meet said requirements.

Prof. L. N. Taylor, Prof. Mark Goodman, and Prof. J. B. Holloway in their pamphlet, "Tentative Schedule of Kentucky Public High School Needs," make the following statements, (which is a fair and equitable interpretation of the law):

"Every board of education should provide four year high school privileges for its students of high school grade, either by maintaining a four year high school for them or by maintaining a two year high school and sending the students outside their districts for the rest of the course, or by sending them outside the district for the entire course."

"Any county board of education that sends its students outside the county or any city or graded school board that sends its students outside the city or graded school district to attend the high school, should pay their tuition and transportation."

We reaffirm our belief that the state is in keeping with the age by offering elementary and high school educational opportunities to the boys and girls of the Commonwealth, but inequalities caused by our system of local taxation and by unjust interpretation and execution add not to the glory and stability of our state.

Efficient Teacher Training Schools to man such a gigantic undertaking as the education of the young requires efficient teacher training schools. The state should prepare young men and women to carry on the work of maintaining her ideals of citizenship. The changing standards demand that the institutions known as normals and teacher training schools should be in the hands of experienced educators whose character, training and vision meet the highest conception of our educational ideals. This can not be done on meagre appropriations. No Kentuckian with an ambition to enter the profession of teaching should be compelled to leave the state or state institutions of learning in order to be prepared to do any class of work required by the state. Hence we need at least one standard teachers college and one normal and trade school combined and that these schools should function without doing the "goose step" of favoritism and politics.

Inequalities of appropriation to these schools are contrary to democracy's ideals and mean retardation instead of progress.

Consolidation and Transportation

Improved facilities for transportation and the advantages of larger school units with more teachers and better buildings have increased the number of consolidated schools. This is indeed ideal for our group where rural population is few in number.

Health Education

The campaign for health is more important than the conservation of forest and wild animals. The economic success of the nation is largely dependent upon the health of its citizens. The school is an important factor in the formation of correct health habits. The alarming death rate in our group can and should be reduced by the school. Our rural population is fast becoming an urban one and strenuous efforts should be put forward by the educational machinery to adjust rural people to city life. Regular dental and eye examination service should be extended to every school room. The disastrous effect of the social diseases not only upon those who by their own acts contract the same but the baneful influence upon the health and mind of their progeny sounds the tocsin of war and the war must begin in the school room.

Moral Welfare of the Nation

Even man's ideas of virtue are evolutionary but evolution does not destroy our ideals or moral virtues but changes them. As long as man makes laws so long will man's ethical ideals grow and judging from the number of new laws being placed on the statutes annually, man is living in the most luxuriant age of moral growth.

But the cry of the lack of moral restraint has become a huge cry and the nation has become alarmed. Criminality is on the increase, prodigality is rampant and the number of our sons and daughters that are wasting their substances in riotous living, demand that the fundamental virtues of society should be taught.

Work—older than all the preached gospel, needs be stressed for as Ex-President Coolidge says: "America despises a loafer."

Honesty is the best policy.

Truth is still a beacon light and how to know it and how to differentiate between truth and falsehood becomes a school room problem.

'Love your neighbor as yourself,' made democracy possible.

Virtue is the resultant of training and morality should be taught in the school.

Workable Relationship With the Department of Education

In our system of separate education of races a workable relationship should be established with the state department of education. In many of our most progressive Southern states, Negro supervisors are appointed. We hold this advisable even in our state. The leaders in Negro school work and the leaders of white school work should establish a workable relationship for the good of the state. Misunderstandings have been detrimental to the progress of the Commonwealth.

Equal pay for equal service is surely in keeping with our ideals of democracy and inequalities in the pay of teachers is a blot upon our ideals of equity and justice.

The magnanimous contribution to the cause of Negro education by Julius Rosenwald should be honored by our people in a celebration with special exercises.

Respectfully,

E. T. BUFORD, Bowling Green,

R. L. DOWERY, Elizabethtown,

S. L. BARKER, Owensboro.
