It's official, Cliff Hagan resigns from AD post; new man in command is Joe Burch

Last Tuesday, Nov. 15, Cliff Hagan, through a release to UK spokesman Bernie Vonderheide, resigned from his athletics director position, effective immediately. Hagan will remain with the university and work with interim athletics director Joesph T. Burch at least through the end of June of 1989. In October the university's men's basketball program was charged, by the NCAA, with 17 additional allegations of wrongdoings. Already, the NCAA had released its allegation in regard to the Dwane Casey-Claud Mills-Emery Air Freight case And as of Nov. 15, the university was put ting the finishing touches on its defense which is due to the NCAA office by Dec. 12

The announcement of Hagan's resignation took place on the 18th floor at the Patterson Office Building. For 13 years Hagan was in charge of the athletics department at the university. He took over for the late Harry UK president David Roselle was in California at the time of the announcement. Vonderheide read from releases written by Hagan and Roselle concerning the matter. Here are those releases.

Statement from Cliff Hagan: "I resigned today from the position of athletics director at the University of Kentucky. I have taken this action with a sense of regret over the circumstances which created for me and my institution a very difficult problem. But I have always tried to do what was right and best for the University, and I believe that what I have done today was the right thing to do. It was o the right thing for me and my family.

'I have had the good fortune to be a part of the life of this university since 1949 when I came here as a student. It has been a privilege and pleasure to serve as athletics director for the last 13 years and I will always feel a sense of gratitude for the chance to have served in that role. I have very deep and sincere feelings of affection for the University of Kentucky. And I want my friends and the fans of Kentucky athletics to know that I leave the athletics department with those feelings of affection firmly intact. I love the University of Kentucky and always will.

'I regret very much the unfortunate shadow that has fallen over our program. I regret even more that there is concealed by that shadow a solid record of achievement by an athletics department staff that has served me and the university with dignity and dedication. I am proud of them and what they have helped me accomplish over the last few years. And once the shadow passes I am sure that others will see the things that make us feel good about what we have done—an academic support program for our athletes that is second to program for our americs that is second to none, lasting contributions to the recreational needs of the campus, major progress in women's athletics and minor sports, an athletics operation that is sound enough financially to have made significant contributions to the academic programs of the university, and many others.

"I am extremely pleased to say that I will not be leaving the university. I have been offered an opportunity by president Roselle to contribute to the institution in new and dif-ferent ways and I am grateful. I am looking forward to whatever new challenges might lie

"I should end with an expression of thanks for the great support offered and given by friends, especially in recent times. Their words of encouragement and offers of help meant a great deal to me. It is my hope that they will offer equal support and help to the president, the Athletics Board, and the Board of Trustees, as they work toward a proper resolution of the difficult problem confronting the athletics program

"I am looking forward to more tranquility than I have been able to enjoy recently. I have expressed myself honestly and fully in this on the subject. If any further statement should become necessary it will be released through the university.

Statement from Dr. David Roselle: "Cliff Hagan has made lasting contributions to the athletics program of the University of Kentucky, first as a student-athlete and later as athletics director. He has always conducted himself with honor and dignity actions has brought credit to the

'It is important for everyone to know and understand that no person inside or outside the university believes, or has any reason to believe, that Cliff Hagan has engaged in any way in improper activities. In every respect, and at all times past and present, he has conducted himself with honesty and integrity, a fact that needs and deserves to be broadcast far and wide is unfortunate that circumstances sometimes create a need for change that is regretful for all. In this case, the cir-cumstances dictate the need for a different management style and philosophy. Because such difference impact the effective operation of the university's athletics program, it is extremely helpful to have someone who can put personal interests aside in favor of institu-

'Cliff has been an important part of institution for a long time. Therefore, I am pleased to announce that he has agreed to remain as an employee of the university. His initial assignment will extend to at least June 30, 1989, during which time he will assist in the transition, and help in bringing to a conclusion the current NCAA investigation.'

regarding the UK athletics program: "Currently, the university's athletics program is administered through an organizational structure which has the coaches repor-ting to the athletics director, the athletics director reporting to the chancellor for the Lexington campus, and the chancellor repor-

Lexington campus, and the chance to repor-ting to the president.

"Effective immediately, the overall operating responsibility and accountability for the athletics program has been delegated by the president to the vice president for administration—Edward A. Carter.

"The athletics director will report to Mr. Carter, rather than to the chancellor of the Lexington campus on all matters relating to the athletics department. The athletics director will have the basic responsibility for the planning, policies, development, and operations of the athletic department.

"A screening committee will be appointed soon to conduct the search for a new athletics director. This committee will provide the vice president for administration with a recommendation. The director of athletics will be appointed by the university Board of Trustees upon recommendation of the vice president and approval of the president.

Joesph T. Burch has been at the Universi ty of Kentucky since 1964 in a variety of administrative roles. He also has spent a considerable portion of his career in dealing with

He began his career at UK as director of men's residence halls after graduation from the university with a degree in economics. He earned his law degree from UK in 1966.

Long-time UK employee Joe Burch agreed to succeed Hagan on an interim basis until a fulltime replacement can be found.

Burch, a native of Covington, Ky., served in a number of capacities involving student affairs—as Assistant Dean of Men, Assistant to the Vice President for Student Affairs, and finally Dean of Students from 1975-1986. He also has been acting vice chancellor for student affairs.

In 1987, he was named Deputy General Counsel in the university's legal office and has served in that capacity until his appoint-ment as acting director of athletics on Nov.

He has performed a number of special assignments for the president of the university, including acting associate director for administration of the UK Tobacco and Health Research Institute, and as university repre tative in the investigation of alleged NCAA Burch was born on Oct. 2, 1938 and is married to the former Susan Lammi of St. Louis. He has two children.

The following day Burch met with the media at the Patterson Office Tower (18th floor) to introduce himself and answer questions. When asked if he was a candidate for the job on a full-time basis, Burch said he had not thought about that possibility.

Here's the prepared statement he read to

"I have accepted the position of acting athletics director at the University of Kentucky. I have been asked to accept this important responsibility and I do so with a deep sense of commitment as a member of the university community.

"As many of you know I am a graduate of UK and a long time administrator at this university. I might add that I have followed the university's athletics programs since my student days

"As acting athletics director I plan to aggressively administer all of the athletics programs with the goal of having successful, competitive programs with a commitment to integrity, and programs that offer our studentathletes a sound education and an opportunity for personal growth.

"I want the athletic programs of this university to be a close partner of the larger university. It is my belief that each has important contributions to make to the other.

"The athletics program has a strong and capable staff, most of whom are very familar to me. I look forward to working with them and will certainly need their support and assistance

Alaska trip could be just what young 'Cats need

It's off to the Great Alaska Shootout for the Kentucky Wildcats this week and the good doctor, perhaps, could not have ordered a better prescription for such a young team, as Eddie Sutton hopes to build more confidence into this which gave Duke more than the Blue Devils had anticipated.

Oh, sure it was an 80-55 blowout. And sure, it was the worst season-opening defeat for a Kentucky team in 62 years But you have to admit no one expected the Wildcats to stay with the nation's No. 1 team for some 24 minutes

And who knows what would have hap-And who knows what would have had pened had sophomore LeRon Ellis had not picked up his fourth personal foul early in the second half? And for the matter, what would have happened had UK had point guard Sean Sutton, who is still being sidelined from an earlier smi being steemed from an earlier injury?

Well, UK probably would still have lost the game, but it most likely would have been much closer.

The good coming out of this contest can be packaged into a limited amount of confidence for a young team which now the good the good that the package of the good to the good team that the good t knows that even the great teams lace up their sneakers just like the 'Cats do.

To the man, the Wildcats talked of confidence after the game, the amount of experience they had gained from such competition so early in the season.

So now it's on to the great Northwest where the 'Cats will be returning for the first time since 1979.

If this is beginning to sound like a rerun of that season, perhaps it is. That is the year UK opened with Duke in the same Hall of Fame Tipoff Classic before falling in overtime. A week later UK was in Alaska where the 'Cats won it all by defeating an Iona team which was led by All-American Jeff Ruland.

Friday at 5 p.m. (EDT), the 'Cats will meet Iona again. If the 'Cats can survive the first round, Kentucky will take on the winner of Seton Hall and Utah. Kentucky will be playing three games in the Shootout, regardless of the first game's WTVQ-TV, Channel 36 will be beaming the game back to central Kentucky, as will ESPN, which will televise all the first-round games nationally. ESPN will stay on to televise the remainder of the winners' bracket. WTVQ-TV will televise all three Kentucky games. Former UK All-American Larry Conley will be part of the ESPN announcing team.

Just as in 1979, Kentucky is not the favorite, but if the 'Cats can improve their ballhandling just a bit and build on their confidence from Springfield, coach Sutton and his Wildcats could be the surprise of the field.

Most observers believe Florida should be the class of the tourney, but the uncertainity of center Dwayne Schintzius (who is on indefinite suspension) could play major role in the Gators' drive to the title is also in the Shootout. But the Jayhawks are short-handed after being hit hard by graduation. Also in the four-day event are California and host Alaska-Anchorage.

The defending national champ, Kansas,

Most coaches who enjoy taking in the Shootout like the event for especially teams with lots of young, inexperienced players. Kentucky certainly fits the bill.

It gives a team the opportunity to get some much-needed experience outside the normal arena of pressure while the three games do not count against the regular 27-game schedule.

If the Wildcats could return home with a pair of wins in Alaska and a 2-2 mark it would be a good beginning for a team which has been hit so hard by so much bad luck over the past six months.

Look for sophomore Sean Sutton to make his starting debut as the team's point guard against Iona.

After the Duke game, Sutton said he is looking forward to the Shootout and he's itchy to see action. In fact, there was a possibility Sean might have seen action against Duke had the situation dictated in the second half.

Sean suited up for the game, took warm-ups with the team and was the team's unofficial cheerleader on the bench as the 'Cats fought back from an 11-point deficit the first half.

Returning from the locker room after intermission, UK trainer Walt McCombs was spotted with a plastic eye-piece specially constructed for protection to Sutton's face where he underwent surgery a couple weeks ago.

Asked if Sutton might play in the second half, McCombs said he's (as trainer) always prepared.

And was Sutton anxious sitting on the

"Yeah, it was really tough," said Sutton of the early minutes of the second half when Kentucky played the Blue Devils stride for stride. Had the game been close, it would have been a tough deci-sion for Sutton, the father. There's no question what Sean's response would have been, knowing the competitiveness he

Sean has been working out on his own for some time and shot some last week. He's also been riding a bicycle to keep in

Given the fact that Kentucky committed 29 turnovers against Duke, the Wildcats no doubt will welcome the younger Sutton back, as well as opponents not hardly as tough as the Blue Devils.

One of the challenges facing Eddie Sutton and his staff this week will be making the Wildcats understand they cannot take their opposition in the Great Alaska Shootout very lightly.

The Shootout has very little glitter outside Florida, but the 'Cats must also remember what happened to Duke when the Blue Devils failed to take Kentucky

It takes no great speeches to prepare a team for the Dukes of the world, but Sut ton no doubt will leave no stone unturned in warning the 'Cats that the Ionas of the world still live for the day to beat a team which has the name "KENTUCKY" across the front of a jersey

This weekend will give Sutton the op-portunity to conduct more teaching sessions, although I'm sure he would have preferred to have Eric Manuel in the neup with this team.

Manuel, who remains on the sidelines after removing himself voluntarily pen-ding the outcome of a question over his ACT score from his high school days, could have made the game almost a tossup in Springfield.

In Anchorage, Manuel's presence probably would have UK the favorite. But he isn't there so the 'Cats will have to make

And that means Kentucky will do its level best to keep sophomore star LeRon Ellis out of foul trouble.

Last Saturday, Kentucky was in the thick of the fight before Ellis picked up his fourth personal foul early in the se-cond half. During his absence, Duke reel ed off 16 unanswered points. He returned with about 12 minutes left, but fouled out at 9:11 without scoring a second half point and the game was history.

Despite the 25-point loss, Sutton said he was proud of the team and his man-to man defense which contained Duke until Kentucky was forced to play zone in the second half.

There were times Kentucky played like a young, inexperienced team is expected to play, but the 'Cats gave a 10-minute ex-hibition in the final portion of the first half which certainly had UK fans thinking positively for the new season.

If the 'Cats can cut down on turnovers (and they surely will or you'll see the coaches out there themselves), Kentucky is going to become a much better team than many people thought, perhaps better than the coaches themselves thought.

First, it has truly amazed us how much Kentucky fans really care about Kentucky basketball. I'm not talking about winning and losing but the depth of personal com-mittment to the UK program.

It's obvious to us at TCP that most of you who have replied have done so with complete sincerity. Most of you obviously spent a great deal of time putting together your opinions and answers. It is reflected in your comments and lengthy letters.

Because of the time you've taken to participate in this project, we feel it's our job to share as many of your thoughts as possible with other subscribers and readers of TCP.

reading this special section.

Obviously, not every person agrees on a particular issue, but it is evident from this survey that the typical TCP subscriber is not a fanatic who believes in winning at Kentucky fans have a unique and faithful loyalty to the Big Blue program, its officials and coaches. But they also subscribe to a strong belief that Kentucky basketball can succeed without the "win at any cost" theory. Missing from this survey, for the most part, is that segment some refer to as those of "blind loyalty." You'll understand what I mean when you receive the Dec. 10th TCP.

What appeared so promising three weeks ago developed into another tease for the Kentucky football fans as the Wildcats lost another heartbreaker to Tennessee in bringing down the curtain on the 1988 season.

It was just a matter of too little too late in the 'Cats' 28-24 loss in Knoxville that prevented UK once again from enjoying a winning record, closing out the year with five victories for the fourth season in a

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — It was supposed to be a mismatch and the final score indicates it was, but don't tell that to those folks who only watched the first 24 minutes of action Saturday.

But those who failed to see the final 10 minutes of the opening half did miss just about the only competitive action in this 10th annual Hall of Fame Tipoff Classic which saw Duke turn back Kentucky 80-55 before seal our expend of $2.908, fams.

a sell-out crowd of 8,908 fans.

The result also added a few new marks to the record book, ones Kentucky fans had just as soon forget. For instance, Duke now holds the record for most victories (two) in the classic just as Kentucky had the distinction for most losses (two). They are the only two teams who have played in the classic more than once. The two ushered in the Hall of Fame Tipoff Classic back in 1979.

When the officials began thinking about a 10th event a couple seasons ago, they were reminded of the first one, the most exciting one in the history of the classic.

The game featured such greats as Mike Gminski of Duke and a young star-studded lineup of freshmen like Sam Bowie, Dirk Minniefield, Charles Hurt and Derrick Hord of Kentucky. It was a classic in its truest form as the game went into overtime.

Fittingly, Duke got revenge from the NCAA championship game of two years before when UK whipped the Blue Devils

WHAT'S MORE everyone knew Duke would be great in 1988-89 with senior All-American Danny Ferry and the Blue Devils a sure thing for a Top 5 preseason ranking.

a sure thing for a Top 5 preseason ranking. And Kentucky would fit right in. There would be boy wonder Rex Chapman, now a junior, to go along with the likes of LeRon Ellis. When it was announced last year, the game took on even more glitter. UK would have stars like Eric Manuel, Chris Mills, and one of the nation's top center recruits in Shawn Kemp.

So when the Hall of Fame officials announced a rematch, it was a dream for basketball heaven.

But a couple things went wrong along the way. You know the rest of the Kentucky story. No Rex Chapman. No Shawn Kemp. No Eric Manuel. Not much of a Kentucky team of any sort, according to some folks around Springfield. But a deal is a deal.

Both clubs left the gate with the rust and tightness expected of an opening game. But when Duke rushed out to a 17-6 lead, it had all the makings of an early blowout. It would be, but not before Kentucky's overachievers made a statement or two of their own.

Employing to precision what Sutton had been preaching to his troops since Oct. 15, the Wildcats found patience and shot selection to their advantage as the 'Cats closed the gap to 25-24 at 7:38 on a three-point bomb from Deron Feldhaus, Suddendly, the Duke section of 2,000 or so fans sat stunned. There was supposed to be a runaway.

was supposed to be a runaway.
With sophomore LeRon Ellis playing with the grace and confidence of a senior, the Wildcats refused to wilt on the offensive end of the court. They played with the ultimate confidence, and attacked the basket with deadly 60.9 percent accuracy.

Ellis, who viewed the game as a new beginning minutes after the contest, said the Wildeats can only look back at the game as a learning experience and great expectactions for the future.

"I REALLY FEEL GOOD about this team. We're going to get better and better." said the sophomore. "We showed we can played with the best of them. We had some turnovers and we have to correct and of course I got in foul trouble.

"I've got a lot of confidence in our players and we're going to get better. We got beat bad, but we also showed some good points.

We're looking forward to the future."

Did he ever feel Kentucky had a shot at the upset after the opening minutes?

"When it was 43-43, we had already stayed with them for a half and we had confidence." he added. "I felt if we could run the spread offense we could do it, but then I got my fourth foul."

Despite 15 first half turnovers, the 'Cats trailed only 39-37 and that was because Duke could do nothing but watch as Ellis poured in 13 first-half points.

Meanwhile, Duke found equally frustrating the Wildeat man-to-man defense, fighting, scratching and clawing at everything in sight. Ferry's 12 first half points were the difference

There was to be more in the second period, but only before Ellis picked up his fourth

Sutton had to make a decision to gamble, one he gambled with in the first half and won. Near the end of the half, Sutton found himself with three players on the floor and all three had three fouls each.

With so little depth, he had no choice but to go for it all.

In the second half, it was a different situation. Trailing 46-43 with 16 minutes left. Ellis was whistled for his fourth. Sutton sided with the odds and replaced him.

And the roof caved in. Without Ellis, UK was forced to stay in the zone on the defensive end as it had since Ellis, Mills and Hanson had picked up three fouls each in the first half. Duke's outside shooters had a field day. Even the 6-10 Ferry popped a couple three-point bombs.

By the time Sutton realized there was no substitute for Ellis, Duke had forged ahead by 59-43. In came Ellis, but less than three minutes later (9:11) he picked up his fifth.

Another rampage.

By the 3:38 mark, the game was a runaway with Duke holding on to a 72-46 score.

"I felt we got taught a pretty good lesson by a great Duke team." said Sutton after the contest. "Duke deserves to be No. 1. Duke plays a great defense, the way I like to play still, Sutton thought the 'Cats had a shot of a major upset at the midway point.

"It was encouraging," said Sutton. "Our

UK has history of excellent athletics directors

First installment of a TCP series

During the 78 years since old Kentucky State University hired E.R. Sweetland as it first director of athletics, the Wildcat ship-of-state for the most part has been run by men who were outstanding in academics as well as athletics, with each having a background in the coaching profession. This is the first of a series of TCP articles recapping the careers and accomplishments of those

The post of director of athletics at the University of Kentucky was created in December, 1910, under the guise of adding prestige and distinction to the athletics program, but the real reason apparently was to entice program, but the real reason apparently was to entice Sweetland to remain as football coach after he had posted a 9-1 record during his first year at the what was then known as Kentucky State University. The State gridders that season had recorded important victories over Tennessee and archrival Centre, but they had also given the school its biggest win up to that time by defeating powerful Illinois 6-2 at Champaign-Urbana.

Commandant Phillip Corbusier, speaking at KSU Chapel the following day, gave the school's athletics teams a new nickname when he said the State boys, then known by such cognomes as Cadets, Colonels, Corn-Crackers and Thoroughbreds, had "fought like Wildcats."

rackers and Thoroughbreds, had "fought like Wildcats."

A BIG, SQUARE-BUILT MAN with a fine reputation among his peers, Sweetland was a graduate of both Cornell and Syracuse universities. His coaching portfolio included a total of eight successful years at such places as Hamilton College, Colgate and The Ohio State Universi-ty. Among other things at KSU, he was credited with in-augurating spring football practice, a training table for athletes and class teams from which he could develop varsity material.

Sweetland became ill shortly after the KSU-Centre football game on Thanksgiving Day 1909, and was hospitalized until late January, when he accepted the postion of athletic director, with the understanding that he would be in charge of all schedules, financial arrangements, etc. He also assumed the position of basketball coach, but arrived late on the scene as the Wildcat cagers finished 4-8.

After coaching the 1910 football team to a 7-2 record, the eccentric Sweetland left KSU to coach Miami of Ohio one year before returning to KSU in time to lead the 1912 basketball Wildcats to the school's first undefeated cage season (9-0) and the football team to a 7-2 slate.

When Sweetland left for Miami, Dr. John J. Tigert, who had arrived at KSU that fall to fill the Chair of Philosophy and to coach the girls' basketball team, was named AD on a temporary basis. He coached the basket-ball team to a 5-3 record that season.

ball team to a 5-3 record that season.

When Sweetland left KSU for the second and final time, the Athletic Committee obtained Alpha Brumage as Director and as head coach of football, basketball and baseball, while also retaining Tigert as his assistant and as head coach of the girls' basketball team.

A graduate of Kansas, Brumage had five years experience as director of athletics and football coach.

Nevada State Normal School and two years of experience in the same capacity at Virginia Military Institute. After and 19-7 in basketball, Brumage left KSU to return to school and was succeeded in 1915 by Tigert, who was chosen athletic director in charge of all sports.

TIGERT WAS ONE OF THE MOST unique persons ever to serve the university. Born on the Vanderbilt University campus, he was the son of a bishop and the grandson of a bishop. He entered VU at a time when he took the entrance prize of $50 for standing highest in examinations in Latin and Greek. He was all-Southern halfback and captain of the 1902 championship football nanizack and captain of the 1902 Championship bootonit team and captain and center on Commodore basketball teams that lost only once in three successive years. At Oxford, on a Rhodes Scholarship, he earned a silver cup with the rowing crew and was a sensational first baseman on the championship baseball team of Great Britain. He spent two years in the chair of philosophy and as head football coach at Central Missouri College; two years as president of Kentucky Wesleyan College; and later would serve as the U.S. Commissioner of Education and president of the University of Florida

Tigert coached the State football teams to records of 6-1-1 in 1915 and 4-1-2 in 1916. Although he was in charge of the basketball team, he left the coaching chores to former Wildcat all-sports stars Jim Park in 1916 and William Tuttle in 1917.

One of the many highlights of Dr. Tigert's distinguish-One of the many nignights of Dr. Tiger's distinguished career was the dedication of Stoll Field during the 1916 Homecoming game with Vanderbilt. Dedicated in honor of its donor, Richard C. Stoll, who was a fullback and end on KSC teams of 1891-92-93-94, the field first was called Stoll Field in 1898, but there had been no formal dedication until 1916.

SUCCEEDING TIGERT ON ALL FRONTS prior to the 1917-18 school year was Stanley A. "Daddy" Boles, who had arrived at KSC from Texas Christian University the preceding year as an instructor in physical education and an assistant to Tigert.

A native of Williamstown in Grant County, Boles graduated from Kentucky Wesleyan College in 1910 after starring three years on Panther football teams. After studying for his master's degree at Vanderbilt, he spent a summer at the University of Tennessee, where he decided to take up coaching, starting his career as head coach at Locust Grove High School in Georgia.

During his one year (1917) as head coach of the basketball team, the Wildcats won nine games, lost two games and played a game that ended in a 21-21 tie with Kentucky Wesleyan at Winchester when a scorer's error was not discovered until after the teams had left the gymnasium. The Wildcat football team was less such cessful during his one-year stint as head coach, finishing cessful during his one-year stint as head coach, finishing 3-5-1 in 1917.

Boles was destined to serve as athletics director a total of 17 years, stepping down in 1934. He then served two years as graduate manager of athletics, holding the title of professor of physical education since 1931; was named manager of ticket sales in 1938 and served as manager of the Veterans Housing Project from 1948 until 1955, when he received a change-of-work status. Highlights of Boles' long and distinguished career at UK included the expansion and installation of lights at Stoll Field, the basket-ball team winning the first championship of the South in 1921 and the hiring of Adolph Rupp as basketball coach in 1930. Boles died of a heart attack at his home in Lexington in December 1961.

In dedicating the 1962 UK Football Facts Book to Boles, sports information director Ken Kuhn noted, "Without the diligent, labor of love record keeping of this distinguished man, this booklet of football facts would be sorely incomplete."

Once, during one of their frequent run-ins, Wildcat athletics director and head football coach Chet Wynne told Adolph Rupp that the campus was not big enough

"Then you'd better start packing your bags," Rupp replied.

Yeah, I know it's a little early, but...Ho! Ho! Ho!

Christmas wishes for some UK people

It's a little early, but here's my Christmas wish list for some University of Kentucky people:

President David Roselle - Continued courage

Earl Cox

to complete the job. And better advice, especially on which people to fire and on how to handle dismissals; the removal of Cliff Hagan was unnecessary, botched and tacky. The big guy deserved better.

Some Courier-Journal editorial writer, uninformed as usual, said that Hagan's managerial style and philosophy evidently weren't working very well. Hagan's style and philosophy were working excellently. Out of 20 or so varsity sports, there was one problem with one sport and one coach.

Joe Burch, acting director of athletics – A big broom, and the willpower to use it. And the ability to keep from getting too comfortable in his new job. No offense, but he isn't what the university needs in the athletic directorship.

Trustee A.B. "Happy" Chandler – Keep telling the truth, Governor, even when those around you lie like dogs.

Gov. Wallace Wilkinson – The ability to stay out of the UK mess. Roselle has enough problems without the intervention of the state's chief executive.

The next UK director of athletics – The ability to build a women's basketball program good enough to attract the Lisa Harrisons of Kentucky (she signed with Tennessee).

Cliff Hagan — The ability to continue to hold his head up high as long as he's at the university and then, when he leaves, the courage to write a book that will set the record straight and tell it like it is.

Coach Eddie Sutton — More intelligence, or at least the ability not to insult ours. He did that when he said that Richie Farmer doesn't have the experience to bring the ball upcourt against pressure.

Here's a youngster who has played in more pressureful games and situations than any other player in the history of Kentucky high school basketball. And what does he do best? Shoot and dribble against pressure. Over a half million Kentuckians have watched him bring the ball upcourt against pressure during the past five years. He holds the record for having played in the most State Tournaments, five. So, Coach Sutton, tell us that Richie is slow or

So, Coach Sutton, tell us that Richie is slow or short, but please don't tell us he can't bring the ball uppourt against pressure.

upcourt against pressure.
Farmer's Clay County teammate, Russ Chadwell, is being redshirted by Lake Kelly at Austin Peay.

STADIUM UPDATE – With the basketball mess and the disappointment of the football season, there hasn't been much talk about the expansion of Commonwealth Stadium. But then those sparse crowds really have made it unnecessary, haven't they?

BIG CHANGE – Kentucky, as we all know, is a basketball state, right? We produce many more basketball players than we do football, right?

Wrong, wrong.

This year we probably have fewer top-drawer basketball prospects than ever. And we have more – far more – top football prosects.

There are so many good football players that neither UK nor U of L can take all it wants. The limit that Colleges can take in any one year is down from 30 to 25. UK's Jerry Claiborne and U of L's Howard Schnellenberger drool when they look at the pickings.

The top two are quarterback Jeff Brohm of Trinity and running back Eric Carter of Male. But there are many, many others, including Aaron Payne of Holy Cross, the swiftest runner in Kentucky.

Remember the name Jermaine Brown. He's just a sophomore at Fairdale, but he may be the most talented athlete in all of Kentucky right now. He's a tight end and defensive back.

MR. NICE GUY – Maybe the best sports book ever written was John Feinstein's "Season on the Brink," about a year spent with Indiana University beskethell mads Bok Knight basketball coach Bob Knight.

Now another book has been written about Knight.
Tve heard enough about it that I decided not to spend my money. And besides, I am biased toward Knight, so I thought you would like to read a review by a Sports Illustrated writer, Rick Telander, that was in The New York Times Book Review.

Here it is:

Joan Mellen finds IU coach, Bob Knight, "democratic to a fault, open to a fault," a man who, "had he ever gone to war...would have been one of those officers set apart because they carry about themselves an unmistakable aura that seals them from mortatity."

Bobby Knight

Got a halo handy? "Bob Knight" is no "Season on the Brink, Feinstein's surprise best seller about the controversial coach. Ms. Mellen, a professor of English at Temple University, is so clearly under the influence of this-person-is-wonderful-because-he-letme-hang-around-with-him trap that the reader can only pity her efforts to get at "the man as he is rather than as he's been presented in the media."

than as he's been presented in the media."

According to Ms. Mellen, he didn't throw a chair across the basketball floor during a game against Purdue, he "lifted the chair and with a flick of the wrist sent it lightly across the court." He didn't stuff a fan into a garbage can, he "grabbed the man by the shirt front, pushed him against the wall, and then...the empty garbage can fell on top of him." This is biased reporting.

As for her sportswriting experience, Ms. Mellen says, "I was no reader of the sports pages," adding that until recently had never heard of Larry Bird.

that until recently had never heard of Larry Bird.

Even Mr. Knight should be embarrassed by this attempt to deify him. A complex, intelligent, honest, vulgar, troubling man, he both fascinated and repels many fans, mostly because they believe he could be so much better than he is, a hero rather than just an intimidating winner.

□Editor's note: Last Sunday, The Times said that because Telander is mentioned disapprovingly in the book that he should not have been chosen to review the book

REDS UPDATE – There's good news for Cincinnati Reds fans; the world champion Dodgers will provide Opening Day competition on Monday, April 3. My favorite baseball attraction, the doubleheader.

My favorite baseball attraction, the doubleheade is a thing of the past. The Reds don't have a single one scheduled at home.

Remember these names: First baseman Reggie Jefferson, catchers Joe Oliver and Eddie Taubensee, and pitchers Chris Hammond, Keith Kaiser, Mike Moscrey, Mike Roesler and Scott Scudder. They are the top young prospects the Reds promoted to their 40-man winter roster. Hammond, for instance, had a 16-5 record and a 1.72 ERA for AA Chattanooga.

His Kentucky friends are happy for Larry Doughty, the Bowling Green product who used to coach basketball. The former Reds scout is leaped over bigger names to land the general managership of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

GOLF CHANGE – Don't be surprised if Kentucky's high schools vote to switch from spring to fall golf.

Ernie Denham, forusa executive director of the Kentucky State Golf Association and the State PGA, hopes there is a switch.

Now the golf coach at U of L, Denham says that a fall tournament will mean more scholarship opportunities for Kentucky boys and girls. "They are at the top of their game coming off the summer," he said. "Also, the courses are in better shape, and the courses are less crowded land we can get more good courses. I'd like to see it."

Denham says the signing date for golfers is April 12. The tournaments for boys and girls are now held in late May or early June.

"By that time, most of the scholarships are gone," said Denham.

Billy Wise, executive assistant commissioner of the Kentucky High School Athletic Association, said that the move, if approved, would take two or three years. The only bad thing about it would be that so many golf coaches are also assistant football coaches. They couldn't do both.

We feel that news about the sports programs at the University of Kentucky should be required reading for all of the state's high school students.

So, the staff of The Cats' Pause is starting a program

we call "Big Blue Penetration."

Below, we have listed all the high schools in the state of Kentucky, and it is our aim to give every high school student in the commonwealth the opportunity to read The Cats' Pause by making the paper available to every high school library in the state.

In order to accomplish this, it will be up to our subscribers to carry out "Big Blue Penetration" during the coming months.

If you would like to see The Cats' Pause in one or more high schools in your area, fill out the subscription blank provided to the right and return it with the appropriate pa	yment.

	We will begin sending it to the	scho	ol(s) and we'll notify the	e school librarian about your	gift.

It won't be THAT bad for UK, SEC coaches say

Claiborne's still a winner in my book

Southeastern Conference coaches are not convinced Kentucky will be as bad as UK fans think this season. "Their down is not like down for the rest of us," said Alabama Coach Wimp Sanderson during the annual are still a very good team. Kentucky is still Kentucky "We have had as much success as any team in our league at Lexington and we have not won many

"Kentucky did lose a lot of talent but I still think Kentucky will be good," said Mississippi State Coach Richard Williams.

Vanderbilt tried to recruit both John Pelphrey and Deron Feldhaus. Each was redshirted at UK last season but Vandy Coach C.M. Newton expects the two to play well this year.

"Kentucky won't be that bad," said Newton. "They have two guys we about killed ourselves trying to get. I would still love to have Feldhaus and Pelphrey. If we are any judge of talent at all they are going to be good players.

"Kentucky will be down but I don't know if it will be as down as everybody thinks. I think Kentucky could be pretty good."

• Mississippi State Coach Richard Williams knows Kentucky lost a talented player when 6-11 Shawn Kemp, who could not play this year because he didn't Kemp, who could not play this year because he didn't meet NCAA academic requirements, transferred to a Texas junior college.

"Losing a player like Kemp will hurt any team in America," said Williams. "He was so good in some all-star games that it was scary. He was as good at his position as any player I have seen."

Winning on the road is becoming more and more difficult in the SEC and Alabama Coach Wimp Sanderson doesn't expect the trend to change.

"Last year SEC teams played 90 road games and the road teams went 26-64," said Sanderson. "Two years ago we won eight of nine conference games on the road and 19 of 21 overall. That was a heck of a feat.

"You (the media) used to criticize a coach for not having a tremendous winning record in the conference. Now you finally realize not a lot of us will be 14-4, 13-5 or even 12-6 in the league because we chew each other up because it is so difficult to win on the oroad."

LSU Coach Dale Brown thinks this could be his most challenging season in 17 years. He has only one senior on his 11-man roster and is picked to finish near the bottom of the league race.

"The first year I was here and said I would win everybody thought I was crazy," said Brown. "I didn't have any pressure then.

"This year will be harder because we have a reputation."

tion. We've been good at handling tragedy before but never anything like this at the beginning of the year

"We've been to 10 straight post-season tournaments and want to go back to an 11th. I don't know how we will with so many new faces but I just know in my guts we will win."

● One of the new stars in the SEC this year should be 6-7 Gerald Glass of Mississippi. Glass, who earned Division II All-American honors at Delta State before

Wimp Sanderson says UK's 'down' is entirely different than the rest of the league's 'down transferring, has already been named to the preseason

All-SEC team without ever facing a SEC foe.
"That's an incredible thing," said former UK Coach

Joe Hall. "I don't ever remember a player making All-SEC before he played a game." Glass played for Ole Miss Coach Ed Murphy at Delta State before Murphy left to guide the Rebels. Glass played one more season at Delta before transferring because Murphy wouldn't let him join the

"I made a mistake and did something I had no right to do," said Murphy. "I made him stay. He wanted to come to Mississippi and as I look back I don't know if I had a right to make him stay.

"If I could do it over, I'd tell him to do what he wanted. I just hope I didn't cost him anything. But I do think the year he sat out last season really helped

• Florida foes may see a different Dwayne Schintzius this season. Gator Coach Norm Sloan says his 7-2 junior pivotman is enjoying basketball for the first

'Basketball has been an embarrassment for him in the past," said Sloan. "You (the media), me and fans have made fun of him. That's not a good experience.

"Now he's starting to enjoy the game for the first time in his life. Until he did enjoy it he couldn't make a lot of progress."

Sloan recently had to suspend Schintzius because of his involvement in an early morning fight when he reportedly hit someone with a tennis racket.

I just didn't like where he was at the time he was." said Sloan. "That's why I took the action I did. It's no time to be practicing tennis at 3 a.m.

"He realizes he made a mistake and I'm sorry he's embarrassed by all of this."

NO ONE could blame Jerry Claiborne even if he thought of retiring.

After all, most 60-year-old men get tired of banging their head against a brick wall. And that's just what Claiborne seems to be doing as he tries to make the University of Kentucky a winner in the Southeastern Still, Claiborne isn't ready to quit. Not even after a series of disappointing losses this year cost Kentucky series of disappointing iosses this year cost Remuck a bowl bid it should have had.

"I don't know how much longer I'll coach but I'm not ready to retire now," said Claiborne.

He is frustrated, though, and he should be. UK should have had a better season. The Cats should have beat LSU but lost 15-12 because of breakdowns in the kicking game. UK should have beat Alabama but the Tide rallied to win 31-27. The Wildcats should have beat Florida but came unglued after a controversial holding call nullified a Florida fumble and let the Gators score the go-ahead touchdown.

The penalty took all the emotion out of the Wildcats. Florida ripped off 17 more points before the Cats knew what happened.

"We had a letdown but you can't let that happen," said Claiborne. "They got 17 more points before we scratched.

"We've got to learn not to let that happen. If something like that happens you have to reach down for something extra and make something good happen. We didn't do that.

"The penalty was a big disappointment but in life you have to come back when that happens."

Claiborne, unlike some college coaches, teaches more than wins and losses. He wants his players prepared for successful careers after football. That's why he was so disappointed in the collapse because of a controversial call.

"In certain games or situations you have to rise to the occasion," said the UK coach. "That's what competition is. You've got to meet that pressure. You learn that from collegiate athletics.

"There will be a time in life when you've got to rise up and make a big play. That's what you have to

He still believes UK can win. No matter how many times teams like Florida, LSU and Alabama knock him down, he comes back for more because he knows that is a lesson his players must learn.

That's why he won't retire and why he's a much bigger winner off the field than his teams are on the (Continued from page 3) for a great season but started off by los-ing its first six. It has salvaged a washout by winning four straight, but they've come at the hands of such teams as Boston College, Memphis State, Ole Miss and UK.

Vanderbilt closed out 1987 on a bang vanderbit closed out 199. Of a bail and proclaimed itself a prime candidate for an upper division finish in 1988. The Commodores were an embarrassment, now at 3-7 after losing to Memphis State which lost to Louisville. Fittingly, Vandy or Tennessee will embarrass one or the other next Saturday.

LSU looked good in the season opener against Texas A&M, but lost games to Ohio State and Florida. After bouncing back briefly, the Tigers were mauled 44-3 by Miami. Not a very good team, LSU

Florida was supposed to be good and reeled off five straight, but played no one other than LSU. What followed that win other than LSU. What followed that win were four straight losses and UK had the opportunity to make it five in a row, but fumbled the opportunity. The SEC would like to point to Alabama's victory over Penn State in Tuscaloosa as a bright spot. But guess what? The Nittany Lions experienced their first losing season ever under Joe Paterno and the school's first in 50 years. Not a very bright win, was it? And Bama Not a very bright win, was it? And Bama fans haven't forgotten the upset at the hands of Ole Miss.

Georgia was lucky several times, as usual, but Kentucky finally grabbed lady luck and strangled her in Lexington back in October and upset the Dawgs 16-10. End of the Bulldogs' greatness.

That leaves Auburn as the lone surviv with a chance at the Top Ten final rank ings. But the Tigers have two more games they must win to have a shot. Auburn has to beat archrival Alabama and then whip up on Florida State in the Sugar Bowl. Remember the ol' cliche, don't bet the baby's milk money on an Auburn victory. So one might say Kentucky should have accomplished more than a 5-6 record. accomplished more than a 5-6 record. Well, I'll go on record and say the 'Cats should have. With a break or two here and there, UK could have gone 8-3, but breaks are part of the game, just like a break could have turned the victory over Vanderbilt into a loss.

The bad news is that Kentucky should the bad news is that Kentucky should be the loss.

have been good enough to play in a bowl during a season when the SEC has slipped. The other bad news is that it'll be some time before UK can catch the SEC in a slump like it was this fall in a slump like it was this fall.

Now, the good news.

Kentucky will have perhaps the most experienced squad of the Jerry Claiborne era returning next fall. The Wildcats will have something like 18 returning lettermen in the starting lineup next fall and that means the coaches won't have to reand as much time. spend as much time on fundamentals and can devote more time to fine-tuning the offenses and defenses offenses and defenses.

Another plus is that you can count on Claiborne remodeling the UK kicking game, which was the real bummer all season. Speciality teams have always been one of Claiborne's strong points and the lack of a consistent, quality kicking game gnawed at the coaches' patience all fall. That phase of the game cost UK at least two victories.

Now if the Wildcats can hit the weight room in the off season and the coaches can groom a replacement for quarterback Glenn Fohr, the Big Blue just might give it a real run next fall.

Vitale infuriated UK coaches when he said they should resign jokes and snide remarks about the Wildcats were plentiful at the Hall of Fame Tipoff Classic. Media types from the big cities converged on the opportuni-ty to detail every problem and allegation of the UK program. Writers of the daily newspapers around Boston were vicious.

The growing sentiment now is that Kentucky has been judged guilty by the nation. And ESPN's Dick Vitale said he's heard the line so much that it's now time heard the line so much that it's now time for Eddie Sutton and his staff to step aside, regardless of their innocence or guilt. Vitale told reporters both the night before and the day of the game that he planned to say so during the network's live telecast. And just minutes before the cameras were turned on, Vitale reportedly went to Sutton on the sidelines, told him of his opinion and said he was going to open the telecast by saying that Sutton should resign. Vitale said he went to Sut-ton because he felt he owed Sutton the courtesy to tell him first-hand before it appeared on television. To say the response from UK was less than joyful would be an understatement. Several would be an understatement. Several members of the UK group were extremely bitter with Vitale's comments. They recalled a time when they had written Vitale after he was injured in an automobile wreck and wished him a speedy recovery. "That's the gratitude you get, I guess," responded one UK staffer. The night before, Vitale told a group of reporters at a local hotel that UK's situation was an embarrassment to everyone, the state of Kennucky the university and tion was an embarrassment to everyone, the state of Kentucky, the university and its great basketball reputation and tradition . . . While most UK officials were in Knoxville for the football season finale, new acting athletics director Joe Burch and his wife accompanied the U8 official party to Springfield for the Hall of Fame Tipoff Classic. The UK party visited the Hall of Fame on Thursday vacation. evening . . . Kentucky's recent problems off the court certainly had a big effect on the Classic this year. Unlike 1979 when a couple thousand UK fans converged upon Springfield, there appeared to be fewer than a couple hundred this time. While Duke fans were visible all over town and Duke fans were visible all over town and a gigantic reception at the civic center prior to and after the game, UK fans could hardly be spotted and there was no reception of any kind . . . However, one fan who did make it and is still keeping his record intact was 74-year-old Steve Rardin, who attended his 600th consecutive LIV game and will be going for secutive UK game and will be going for 601 Friday in Anchorage. The last time he missed a UK game was on New Year's Eve in 1968 . . . There were several bright spots for the 'Cats from Saturday. Chris Mills showed why he just might become the top frosh in the SEC while both Deron Feldhaus and John Pelphrey played well, considering it was the first game of their collegiate careers.

'Cats learned some things against Swedish 'team'

Brian Denham deserved a scholarship

BY THE TIME this hits the street, the University of Kentucky Wildcats should be through licking the wounds they suffered against Duke in the Tipoff Classic and preparing to head north into the wilderness for the Great Alaskan Shootout.

What a way to start the season.
After a handful of Blue-White scrimmages, the Cats finally faced a "team" in Ostersund, Sweden, for their final exhibition game before opening the regular season.

First, the Swedes were so outmatched from the start that it wasn't even funny. Then, the Cats had to face the nation's No. 1 team in the Tipoff Classic, following by a trip to the Alaskan tournament

Talk about your ups and downs. Eddie Sutton's Kittens — they're too young to be Cats — won't even know where they are until January and then it's time for Southeastern Conference play.

After having witnessed one of the team's Blue-White games, which Sutton said was the worst of the team's fort they are a placeant agreement.

the team's first three, it was a pleasant surprise to see the Cats working so well as one unit.

BUT, AS THE game wore on, it became very evident that Sweden was not a true test of the Cats' skills. I could name you a handful of high school teams that would have given the Swedes a ostrior teams that would have given the Swedes a run for their money.

Ostersund was too slow, couldn't pass well enough to generate any type of offense and couldn't shoot well enough to take advantage of any openings. Add in non-existent rebounding, and UK was off to the races.

The final margin was 66-30 and could have been much worse. The Kentucky defense held the Swedes to just 10 points in the second half and totally dominated the game.

Against Duke, I'm sure the Cats ran into a few more problems.

But, a few good things did come out of the scrimmage with Sweden.

Reggie Hanson continued his brilliant play and has nailed down a starting role. The Pulaski County sophomore will apparently be one of the Cats' big offensive threats and has been working very hard on defense

He even split open his chin while diving on the floor for a loose ball, which brought out a roar from the meek crowd. His time to shine has come. Look for him to sneak up on some people this season while they're trying to watch out for LeRon

THE MOST PLEASANT surprise was the play of Mike Scott, who hit his first five shots from the field and led Kentucky with 15 points. Scott was coming off an effort in one of the Blue-White games in which he "held" Ellis to 39 points while scoring 4 himself scoring 4 himself.

What we hadn't gotten to see before the game with Sweden was Ellis and Scott playing at the same time as the pair was split up during the intersquad scrimmages.

Not having to guard Ellis — or be guarded by him, for that matter — may have allowed Scott's offensive game to finally emerge.

He displayed a very soft touch as he would flash through the paint, take a pass from the outside and put up a 10-foot turnaround jumper that usu-and put up a 10-100t turnaround jumper that usually found only net.

I was surprised when Sutton started redshirt freshman John Pelphrey at guard (along with Ellis, Scott, Hanson and Derrick Miller), but Chris Ellis, Scott, Hanson and Derrick Miller), but Chris Mills didn't have to warm the bench too long before taking Miller's place as the first substitute. Mills played 16 minutes in the first half to Pelphrey's 10 and also started the second half in place of Pelphrey.

Deron Feldhaus and Richie Farmer also made early appearances in the first half, leaving just Johnathon Davis and two walk-ons on the bench. Walk-on Anthony Mathis missed the game with academic difficulties, which apparently have since been corrected.

HANSON WAS HOT early, hitting for 8 points in the first 12 minutes, but he also picked up three fouls in that span.

UK's man-to-man defense was surprisingly good, considering the team's youth, and several zones also caused the much slower Swedes some

However, I don't believe Kentucky ever did get a nice, simple, easy basket off the fast break which means the transition game needs some fine tun-ing. Defensively, the biggest problem seemed to be knowing when to stick with their man or switch to guard another. Probably just a lack of communica-tion that should be resolved quickly.

Hanson was brilliant against Swedes

After completing dominating the Swedes and then being hopelessly undermatched — at least c paper — against Duke, UK may finally see some competition on its level in Alaska.

I have not yet resigned myself to the fact that Kentucky is in danger of its first losing season in umpteen years. Even with graduation, Rex Chapman leaving, Proposition 48 and the Eric Manuel deal, the UK bench is still peppered with high school All-Americans.

Possibly for the first time in many years, certain teams will come to Rupp Arena favored to beat Kentucky this season but some of them will go home crying after overlooking the limping Cats.

Remember, I also predicted a 6-5 record for Jerry Claiborne's football Wildcats and, with any luck, UK made that prognostication come true by bringing home the Beer Barrel from Knoxville last weekend.

AND WITH THE contest in Knoxville, Brian Denham of Winchester finished the final chapter of his career at UK. I hope he was in on every play because there isn't a player on the team that deserved it more than he did.

Coming off a 10-2 district championship season at George Rogers Clark High School, Denham walked on at Kentucky and got himself a redshirt in his initial season. As a redshirt freshman, he didn't get in on a single play, but he saw his first action in two games as a sophomore. He doubled that total as a junior, but never participated in more than nine plays in a single game.

At the start of this year, as a fifth-year senior, the offensive guard still had no scholarship. Even though he topped the depth chart for part of spring practice. Even though he was listed as second-string on at both guard positions at times this season. Even though he started at least four games this year, including the big upset of Georgia.

FOR FIVE YEARS he paid his own way — and at UK, that ain't cheap — plus made the huge committment to playing football. He also had a hand in the fresh paint that you see at Commonwealth Stadium, where he spent the last two sum-Mers working.

UK Coach Jerry Claiborne drew some cheers when he made the team's six fifth-year walk-on seniors captains for the Vanderbilt game. He got no applause from here. He should have had only five in that group. One of them — the only one that had ever started a game as a Wildcat — deserved better. deserved better.

After his first four years produced no scholarship, Denham had almost gotten to the point where he didn't care if he got one or not. Not blessed with tremendous size or talent, a pro career was not in his future. He just wanted to play for UK.

Scholarships should go to walk-ons who persevere and made the grade. Denham had all "A's" in this book. Claiborne is the one that failed.

DON'T BET THE house and car on it, but it appears that Eddie Sutton will miss out on signing Kentucky's Mr. Basketball this season for the first time in the last four years.

Allen Houston of Louisville Ballard, the defending state champion, is a shoo-in for the honor barring injury or illness. He might have won it last season if juniors had been eligible.

But Houston, a prep All-American rated by most as one of the country's top five players, has a father, Wade, who is an assistant coach at the University of Louisville. And now Denny Crum another All-American to add to his lineup.

Should Houston falter, the second-favorite seems to be Mike Allen of Lexington Bryan Station. But Sutton and the Cats won't get him

Allen will be playing down I-75 for Hugh Dur-ham and the Georgia Bulldogs, whom he picked over Alabama, UNC-Charlotte, Tennessee and Vestern Kentucky.

GEORGIA'S ASSISTANT COACH Larry Gay GEORGIA'S ASSISTANT COACH Larry Gay is from Clark County, Ky., where former UK player Guy Strong now coaches. When Strong coached at Eastern Kentucky, one of his star players was Bobby Washington. And guess who is now Allen's coach at Bryan Station? That's right. Washington. The No. 3 pick for Mr. Basketball is probably Travis Ford of Madisonville. But, again, Kentucky is retrempt to get him either. Ford signed with isn't going to get him, either. Ford signed with Missouri after considering Virginia, Florida State and Georgia Tech.

Sutton's also going to have a difficult time, it appears right now, inking the 1990 Mr. Basketball because of the possible NCAA sanctions and the fact that the best two juniors in the state both play in Louisville: Andy Penick of Pleasure Ridge Park and Dwayne Morton of Central.

After signing Rex Chapman, John Pelphrey and Richie Farmer, the well has run dry for Kentucky.

It's tradition: the beer barrel, a border war, former players and now coaches of their respective schools Johnny Majors and Jerry Claiborne, "Rocky Top" and all that bit, Said Majors afterward: "This was a mighty hard fought game, typical of the Tennessee-Kentucky rivalry."

You now can add Wildcat dispair to the list, too. Tennessee's 28-24 aquatic victory over Jerry Claiborne's 'Cats meant that for the fourth straight year UK fell one game shy of a winning record.
"Our football (team), we're proud of 'em," said Claiborne who finished his seventh season at UK on a sour note. "We didn't have a winning season, and we really wanted that winning season and this ballgame. We lost two tough ones in the last two ballgames, explicit Epida and Tennessee. against Florida and Tennessee

"It hurts a whole lot. I'd be lying if I didn't say it hurt a lot. But it's what life is all about."

that's what life is all about."

AND TO UNINTENTIONALLY paraphrase the title from a Rolling Stone hit song, the 60-year-old coach added, "Like I told our players, 'You don't always get what you want."

So, Kentucky finishes 5-6, the same as last season. Two years ago UK ended with a 5-5-1 slate and the year before 5-6.

This time around Tennessee quarterback Jeff Francis was the one who spoiled Kentucky's chances of a winning campaign. He tied the processes in one game four seasons.

who spotied Kelmicky's chained so a warming tanguage and a school record for most touchdown passes in one game, four, and finished the game completing 27 of 37 passes for 282 yards despite a constant downpour at Neyland Stadium.

While Francis was throwing rain-proof bullets, UT split end. Thomas Woods was on the receiving end of II passes, two of which "I can't say for the whole year, but from one game's standpoint he (Francis) was an All-American," said Wildcat defensive back David Johnson. "I mean, he knew when to throw a short pass, a long pass, when to run and when not to. He executed the game long pass, when to thi and when hot to. The execute the game plan perfectly."

Francis' fourth touchdown pass, a 19-yard third-down scoring strike to Harper, enabled the Volunteers to stretch their to lead 28-14 with one minute left in the third quarter. But.

"They never quit all season long," complimented Claiborne on

They never quit an season long, complimented crasson on his troops' effort. And with a little more than 15 minutes remaining Jerry's pupils kept pluggin' away.

Opportunity bounced on the doorstep when Johnson caused tailback Greg Amsler to lose the football, following a six-yard gain to the Vols' 23. Backup quarterback Chuck Broughton, who replaced to the Vols' 23. Backup quarterback Chuck Broughton, who replaced senior Glenn Fohr on UK's fourth offensive series of the game, guided Kentucky to an early fourth-quarter touchdown.

The key play came when Broughton spotted and hit tight end Charlie Darrington for an 18-yard gain. On the day Darrington caught three passes for 47 yards.

After the Broughton-Darrington connection moved the ball to the Tennessee two, running back Al Baker, needing two plays, hurdled in for a one-yard score. Ken Willis' successful PAT with 11:04 left pulled UK within seven, 28-21. The seven-point UT margin was dwindled to four when Willis booted a 42-yarder field goal at the 7-41 mark KENTUCKY'S DEFENSE gave up only one first down before forcing UT to punt from the vistors' 40-yard line. "I felt we had the momentum," said Broughton, who hit on 10 of 24 passes for 164 yards. "We just couldn't get anything going on offense. We just couldn't get it in the endzone."

Two misfires set up a third-and-10 situation. And on third down

Broughton slip-slided back in the pocket only to be dropped on the Neyland turf by tackle Marion Hobby.

Tennessee regained possession at the Kentucky 47 with 4:25 to play. UT was able to control the line of scrimmage, thus forcing the Wildcats to use their allotment of timeouts. Two key plays demoralized any shot for Broughton and his offensive teammates to get one last crack at a winning season.

□First, a Francis keeper on fourth-and-one from the UK 37 was

a risk that paid off.

Second, on the next play a Kentucky penalty gave UT a firstand-five situation instead of first-and-l0. Donnie Gardner was the guilty party as he and a UT player, away from the play, hooked up in a push-and-shove contest. Gardner, however, didn't play by the rules as he grabbed the Volunteer by the face mask. . .in front

One more first down was an analysis improved 40 can faceder for its fourth straight win of the season and over Kentucky.

MAJORS, IN HIS POSTGAME press conference, praised the Volunteers' leader on the field. "Jeff Francis in the first half never performed better, especially considering the weather. I haven't seen Francis came out, and to be expected of a Big Orange star surgeon, peeled the defensive secondary into shreds. And to keep Kentucky's defense off-balance, when Francis wasn't through the ball he was handing off to Amsler. Filling in for All-SEC tailback Reggie Cobb, Amsler put in a full-day's effort, carring the ball 30 times for 121 yards.

"He ran real hard," confirmed Holleran, "but still, . .we weren't wrapping up, making tackles like we should have."

Holleran and Chris Chenault were credited with a team-high 18

In Tennessee's first two possessions its strategy was to keep the ball on the ground. Amsler carried the ball 10 times for 42 yards in that span but no points were on the board. But the next time Francis got his hands on the ball (with 4:03 to play in the first stanza) things would be vastly different.

From the UK 42, the senior quarterback found Harper wide open From the US 42, the senior dynamics are visited to end without a score when on the next play Gardner sacked Francis for a 10-yard loss. But a nifty 21-yard grab by Woods, who was well covered by defensive back Ron Mack, set the stage for UT's initial score. Following a one-yard gain and a fumble recovery by Vince Moore, Francis was forced to operate with a third-and-goal situation from Where 10 UK opponents had failed, Tennessee was able to score touchdown in the first quarter when Harper slipped past Craig enzinger to easily haul in the scoring pass.

EVEN THOUGH MOTHER NATURE had more than just a say in the playing conditions, the two teams combined for 28 points say in the playing conditions, the two ceans conditions of 25 periods in the second quarter.

The UT advantage was increased to 14-0 in the second quarter, thanks to a 53-yard, seven-play drive. A Francis-to-Harper 22-yard pass on third down from the UK 36 set up a 14-yard scoring strike to Woods.

Down 14-0, Claiborne substituted Broughton for Fohr in hopes that the Ashland junior would light a little fire into UK's sputtering offense. Claiborne's decision proved to be a timely one.

Starting from his 31, Broughton handed off four straight times, three times to Al Baker who sprung loose for a 14-yard gainer. Next, was a 28-yard completion to junior college transfer Alfred Jones. A significant third-down keeper by Broughton netted UK a first down at the UT 16, followed by an Il-yard gallop by Ivy Joe Hunter.

Baker's number was then called. He slipped past linebacker Ernest Fields and bulled over safety Cedric Kline for UK's first score.

"We knew it would be a dogfight and that Kentucky had the capability of coming back," said Woods afterward.

Realizing it needed more points, Tennessee took UK's kickoff and marched 80 yards on 16 plays to widen its lead back to 14, 21-7.

Electrifying this drive was a miraculous one-hand snag by tight end

Electrifying this drive was a miraculous one-hand snag by tight end Nate Middlebrooks. The third-down catch gave UT its initial first down of the drive at its 35-yard line. "It was high and if I wasn't going to get it, nobody was," said Middlebrooks, who was covered like a blanket by Chris Chenault.

Tennessee foiled UK's bid for a three-pointer on the next series when Vando Davis knocked down a 54-yard attempt by Willis. However, UK would return the favor a few moments later.

FORCED TO PUN'T with 1:03 left until intermission, Tenessee's punter Kent Elmore couldn't boot his kick past the arms nessee's punter Kent Elmore couldn't boot his kick past the arms of UK's Jeff Brady. Brady's rejection sent the ball bouncing (really splashing) towards the Volunteers' end zone. Defensive back Albert Burks picked up the ball at the UT 24 and stumbled Il yards before finally falling down at the I3.

Broughton cashed in on the break when he rifled a pass to Darrington at the one. Although the pass was high, Darrington pulled it down and was able to drag the ball and a couple of UT defenders across the goal line.

Willis' point after attempt pulled the 'Cats to within seven, 21-14 with 50 seconds left. (Continued on page 25)

I had higher hopes, but hats off to Jerry and the boys

QB situation, fans top list of '89 concerns

In several respects, it was deja-vu for the University of Kentucky football team last Saturday against Tennessee (some of which was the weather). The 'Cats started the season against Central Michigan in the rain and ended the season in the rain. Tennessee ended UK's chances of a winning season for the fourth year in a row with a 28-24 victory.

Unknown Fan from Section 213 Cats' Pause Columnist

Five wins again. Unstable quarterbacking at the end rather than a more productive situation caused UK's of fense to sputter. But all and all, this season has been the ost rewarding since 1984.

THIS TEAM SHOWED remarkable resiliency. The Wildcats fought through adversity after adversity and

Among the setbacks was the loss of Mike Pfeifer, the team's best offensive tackle on an offensive line which was suspect all year long. Having been burdened by a weak kicking game as well as being victimized by several controversial calls didn't help matters, either.

I believe the coaching staff should be congratulated for a job well done, which brings to mind Jerry Claiborne's contract. He has one year left on his contract. So, what does the university plan to do about that?

WHEN THE DEFENSE could not get to UT's quarterback Jeff Francis early in the game, I knew that the 'Cats were in trouble. He is too good to be allowed to sit back in the pocket as long as he did. With his set of receivers, always a Tennessee strength, Francis can pick a defensive secondary apart. Francis also ran more than ever (13 carries).

Is it the weakness up the middle of the wide-tackle-six that caused this? Overall, Francis played a magnificent

Remember Brian Williams, a former defensive end for the Wildcats? He had some problems in Lexington and you always like to see a youngster get his act together but not at the expense of the 'Cats. You see, Williams i on the Vols' coaching staff. With his knowledge of the wide-tackle-six and UK's defensive tendencies, I'm sure his assistants to UT's game plan hurt the 'Cats

Kentucky's defense seemed to be back on their heels l day, instead of being in an attack posture.

AN ONGOING NOTE OF CONCERN is student participation. I noticed that there was a section of seats in Neyland Stadium that was completely empty. This was the student section. I have several theories as to why this is a problem for several programs

The universities are going to have to open their eyes and ears and do an open-minded study of the situation. At Kentucky, I think the athletics department will find that a big segment of those students are not going to

Next, they will have to take a close look at the student allotment in Commonwealth Stadium.

And the team shows an incessant inability to win on the road in the SEC. An alteration of this problem would surely be welcome for the "Road Fan."

THIS FIVE-WIN SEASON is one that you can feel much better about. There was only one game that the 'Cats were soundly beaten on the scoreboard—at Indiana. The five conference losses were by a total of 26 points. With the number of veterans returning next season you have to feel good about the future of this

On the other hand, sobering thoughts are in order. Being good enough, strong enough or deep enough to line up and knock people off the ball offensively against the SEC's "big dogs" is a concern. More of a Watson Brown approach may be worth thinking about.

It is hard to be critical of coach Claiborne's approach, because he will point out many situations: missed connections to open receivers, dropped passes, penalties and missed assignments. However, there are some significant reasons for the annual late-season downers, in regard to reasons for the annual late-season downers, in regard to offensive production.

Could it be that our opponents, through scouting, have created a mind set on the things that we are going to do offensively? Is there a solution to UK's quarterbacking woes? I believe there is, based on what I've seen and

After years of observing, it is apparent that Jerry has a strong sense of loyalty to seniors and believes greatly in experience, especially in his quarterbacks.

Basketball Top Twenty lists four SEC coaches

Of the "Top Twenty basketball coaches" entering the 1989 season, the Southeastern Conference furnishes four—Norm Sloan at Florida, C.M. Newton at Vanderbilt, Eddie Sutton at Kentucky and Hugh Durham at These four tutors represent 20 percent of the honor group, a total more than offered by any other conference.

The Big 10 furnishes three—Lou Henson of Illinois,

Bobby Knight of Indiana and Bill Foster of

The Sun Belt has two, Gene Bartow at Alabama Birmingham and Tom Young at Old Dominion, but not other conference has more than one. Also, there is just one Independent school making the list, Dayton Univierwith Don Donoher

THE ATLANTIC COAST, the Pacific 10 and the Big East conferences of proven basketball acumen, have just one member each in the Top 20. But they are excellent—Dean Smith of North Carolina, Ralph Miller of Oregon and Lou Carnesecca of St. John's.

Smith has won more games than anyone now coaching, 638, and rates No. 2 in winning percentage with a 77.8 figure. Miller is second in total victories with a 635.

And Carnesecca is No. 4 in percentage, at 73.7.

No. 1 coach of the Top Twenty, for the fourth straight year, is Jerry Tarkanian of Nevada-Las Vegas. He has compiled, at Long Beach State and UNLV an amazing record of 501 wins and only 106 losses for a 82.6 winn-

THERE ARE THREE NEW members of the Top 20 for 1989. Charles (Lefty) Driesell was listed No. 4 when coaching at Maryland in 1986, but resigned in the wake of the drug-related death of player Len Bias. He returns as coach at James Madison, with his record of 524-224 for a 70.1 rating-No. 6.

The other new coaches are both at SEC schools, Eddie Sutton of Kentucky, with a record of 419-146 for 74.2 percent and No. 3, and Hugh Durham of Georgia, with a 413-218 won-loss record for No. 11. Sloan is 606-382 for 61.3 percent, No. 16 and Newton is 490-361 for a 57.6

on 50 percent, No. 10 and Newton is 490-301 for a 37.0 percentage, ranking him No. 19.

The Top 20 in basketball is a more select group than in football, due to the fact that only 105 colleges are classified, Division I of the NCAA for football, while 290 schools are so classified for the roundball game.

The honored football coaches are the upper 19 percent of their class, while the select basketball coaches are the

Will the No. 1 QB in the SEC please stand up

Looks like Eric Jones is first-team selection

The glamour position in college football is, was and always will be quarterback.

In the days of the single wing and the double wing the spotlight was on the tailback

Stan Torgerson

Cats' Pause Columnist

Then the game changed and the offense began to revolve around the quarterback.

Unless someone comes up with a new idea about how to move the football, the quarterback will remain King

In a year without a dominant performer at the position ho gets 1988 all-conference honors?
Taking them alphabetically the nominees look like this.

Alabama: No one. David Smith was first string at the start of the season. Then he was hurt and missed several games. Now he's back at the throttle and playing reasonably well but not well enough to compete for postseason honors. Smith is only an average passer and runner. The big thing he's got going for him is brains and leadership. He's been nominated for academic All-American, thanks to a 3.3 grade point average in the AUBURN: REGGIE SLACK. I might be out on a limb by myself but I think the team makes Slack rather than the other way around. His stats are impressive, a 62 percent completion average, third in the league in total offense, leader of the SEC's most productive offense. But Slack also is playing with the league's best collection of talent and we think that makes his tools look better than they really are.

Florida: No one. As a matter of fact, in our book

Florida: No one. As a matter of tact, in our book quarterbacking has been one of the Gators' weak spots all year long. Kyle Morris is a freshman, he looks like a freshman and he plays like a freshman. He may be a big talent someday, but not in 1988.

Georgia: No one. This is Tim Worley's ballclub and he's a running back. Let's put it this way. If I said "Wayne Johnson" you'd say, "who's he?" "He' is the starting quarterback for the Bulldogs and "He" is a senior. Give the ball to Worley, Wayne, and stay out of the way.

Kentucky: No one. Glenn Fohr is the starter and he Kentucky: No one. Grein Fohr is the statiet and the has logged more than 1,000 yards this season. He doesn't impress many people, however, including Kentucky fans. This kid gives an honest effort every game and averages about 119 yards total offense but he's not a candidate for anyone's postseason all-star team. We admire what he's done with what he has, but frankly, he's limited.

LSU: Tom Hodson. Will the real Tom Hodson stand up! We've seen him three times live plus on TV and we never know which Tom Hodson is likely to show up that day. Sometimes he's brilliant. Against Tennessee he was All-American timber. Sometimes he's awful. The first half against Alabama he was a liability rather than an asset. LSU hyped him for the Heisman Trophy at the start of the year but he hasn't earned that kind of start of the year but he hasn't earned markful or respect. We think he's got second-team All-Conference locked up but that's the best he can hope for.

Mississippi: No one. Despite pretty good career statistics and fair 1988 credentials, Mark Young is only average. He can't run a lick and his passing ranges from OK to ho-hum. Perhaps a better offensive line would help a let but Mark despr't have a better offensive line.

help a lot but Mark doesn't have a better offensive line.

MISSISSIPPI STATE: NO ONE. No one. Tony Shell has ability but he's still growing into the job. He's only a sophomore and he didn't get his break until the third game of the season. But anyone who can throw for 322 yards and four touchdowns as Shell did against Alabama Tennessee: Jeff Francis. Whatever glory befalls Francis this year will be as a result of previous seasons, not this one. Oh, he's technically had a good year, second in the league in passing efficiency, all-time leading UT passer, all-time UT total offense leader, but he's playing with a bad ballclub and there's no way to answer the age old question, "If he's so good why isn't his team winning?

VANDERBILT: ERIC JONES. You could ask the same question about Jones but his stats are so good everyone gets the blame for Vandy's lackluster won-loss record except Jones. He leads the conference and is 10th in the nation in total offense, has run or passed for at least one touchdown in each of his 12 games prior to the Commodores' meeting with Army. Despite a great effort by the Vanderbilt sports information departiment, a Heisman is not in Jones' future but first-team All-

NOT FOR BROADCAST: Florida entered the Kentucky game not having scored a touchdown in its last nine quarters. In fact, the Gators hadn't registered a passing touchdown in their last six games.

☐ I listened to a tape of my 1969 Ole Miss-Tennessee broadcast recently and was struck by the weights of the offensive line as I called them out. Guard 220, tackle 230, guard 220, other tackle 235 and so on. A few days later I picked up the Auburn-Georgia pregame stats for this year and saw "average weight offensive line, Georgia 259, Auburn 260." The fact is that the stars of 1969 ould have a tough time even making the team today They're simply too little.

David Browndyke of LSU is probably a lock for All-Conference kicker. He has never missed a try for an extra point, is 13 of 15 in field goals this season including 10 for 10 from 39 yards out or less.

□Florida defensive tackle Trace Armstrong has registered 16 tackles for lost yardage this fall, a total that ranks as the best for a defensive lineman in the school's

☐The Auburn-Georgia game was played at Columbus, Georgia for 43 years. Columbus is right on the line bet-ween Georgia and Alabama. In 1959 the game outgrew Columbus and became home and home. Officials credit that game with being impetus for both Auburn and Georgia to enlarge their stadiums down through the

Jones should get the nod over Hodson

□Speaking of that game, the gate this year was approximately $1.2 million and the television payment was $600,000. Times have changed, haven't they?

☐The last time Tennessee played Ole Miss in Oxford prior to this year was 1951. There were few motels in Oxford so Vol fans had to stay in Memphis and drive 85 miles game day morning, hangovers and all, to get to the game. Further, the road was built like an arthritic snake's back. To top it off, Tennessee was wacked 46-21. A member of the Tennessee board of regents was so incensed with the problems of the journey he told the Tennessee athletic department that if they ever played Ole Miss in Oxford again they could expect a maximum amount of trouble from him. From that point on, whenever it was the Rebels' home game it was always played in Memphis. Finally, in 1969 Ole Miss confinced Tennessee to cross the state line and come to Jackson. The Vols did that only twice and went back to the Memphis-Knoxville game sites. Finally now, in 1988, some 37 years later, the Rebs confinced the Volunteers to return to the Ole Miss campus.

☐The most played football series in America is Minnesota-Wisconsin. They have played 96 times with a start date of 1891. Others include Nebraska-Kansas, 94 (1892); Texas Christian-Baylor, 94 (1899); Texas-Texas A&M, 94 (1894); North Carolina-Virginia, 92 (1892); Miami (Ohio)-Cincinnati, 92 (1888); Auburn-Georgia, 91 (1892) and Oregon-Oregon State 91, (1894).

Mississippi State coach Rocky Felker was picked by the Philadelphia Eagles when he graduated in 1974 but chose a coaching career instead.

☐It was fun recently to see former members of the Alabama band form an alumni band to play before the The Rebels did somewhat the same ming before their game with Tennessee. They presented "50 Years of Spirit" by having former Rebel cheerleaders return to the mpus to perform a pregame cheer with the 1988

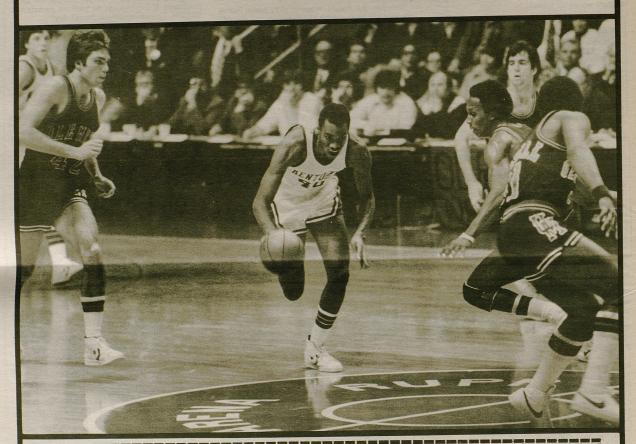

THE LAST WORD: Los Angeles Rams head coach John Robinson:

"Offensive linemen are the real thinkers of the team. The receivers say, 'throw me the ball.' The runners say, 'Hand me the ball.' But offensive linemen stop and say, Why are we doing that?

Fohr gave an honest effort in every game

SEC provides its fair share of players to NBA

Dawgs, 'Cats, Tigers have three each in pros

According to the NBA's season-opening rosters, 20 players have come from the Southeastern Conference

Auburn, Georgia and Kentucky each have produced

Jamie Vaught Cats' Pause Columnist

three representatives playing in the rugged NBA, the most of any SEC squads.

The former students of Auburn mentor Sonny Smith currently in the NBA are Chuck Person (Indiana Pacers), Charles Barkley (Philadelphia 76ers) and Chris Morris

(New Jersey Nets).

The ex-standouts from Georgia coach Hugh Durham-program include Dominique Wilkins (Atlanta Hawks), Vern Fleming (Pacers) and Willie Anderson (San Anonio Spurs).

THE FORMER WILDCATS in the NBA are, of course, Rex Chapman (Charlotte Hornets), Kenny Walker (New York Knicks) and Sam Bowie (injured, but still an official member of the Portland Trail Blazers).

So, that leaves us will 11 more NBA players from the Vanderbilt has two on the Chicago Bulls' roster in Will Perdue, the SEC's Player of the Year last season, and Charles Davis.

Derrick McKey (Seattle SuperSonics) and Buck Johnson (Houston Rockets) hail from coach Wimp Sanderson's program at Alabama. As you will recall, McKey was the SEC Player of the Year for the 1986-87 campaign as a junior before he was ruled ineligible for his senior year, having signed a document with agent.

LSU has John Williams playing for the Washington Bullets and Jerry "Ice" Reynolds for the SuperSonics.

From Tennessee, the representatives are Dale Ellis (SuperSonics) and Bernard King (Bullets).

FLORIDA'S EX-STANDOUT! Vernon Maxwell plays with the San Antonio Spurs, while Mississippi's Elston Turner is with the Denver Nuggets and Mississippi State's Jeff Malone is with the Bullets. Turner, however, reportedly may be cut from the roster when former Notre Dame star Bill Hanzlick recovers from his recurring ing back problems.

Just before the NBA season began, several ex-NBA standouts failed to make the 12-man squad. They include Kentucky's Ed Davender, Alabama's Ennis Whatley and Jim Farmer, Tennessee's Tony White and LSU's Darryl

At Washington's camp, Davender was passed over by coach Wes Unseld in favor of Dominic Pressley, a guard from Boston College. Farmer, on the other hand, became the first No. 1 choice ever cut by the Dallas Mavericks, despite the fact that he was one of the team's eight players protected from the NBA expansion draft. Coach John MacLeod chose guards Morlon Wiley, Dallas' second-round draft selection from Long Beach State, and Steve Alford, a second-year performer from Indiana, over the 6-4 Farmer.

Speaking of the current crop of seniors from the SEC that project as first-round picks in the NBA draft next spring, it appears there are only a couple of them. They are 6-7 forward Michael Ansley of Alabama and 6-7 forward Dyron Nix of Tennessee. Neither Ansley nor Nix is expected to go high in the first round, however, unlike the last draft which saw four SEC players picked among the first Il selections—Morris (No. 4), Chapman (No. 8). Anderson (No. 10) and Perdue (No. 11). 8), Anderson (No. 10) and Perdue (No. 11).

OLE MISS FOOTBALL MENTOR Billy Brewer

seems to think Lexington is a tough place to play.

"There are a number of tough places to play in the Southeastern Conference, but playing at Kentucky has been difficult for us in recent years." Brewer, whose Rebels were destroyed by Kentucky by a score of 35-6 last year in Lexington, said. "The fans at Componerable Steakings and the Seekings are seeken to the Seekings and the Seekings are seeken to the Seekings and the Seekings are seeken to the Seeken monwealth Stadium are right on top of you. They are very vocal and really have the ability to excite the Wildcats and motivate them. They can take you out of a Brewer's comments were reported in the November edition of Sidelines, a monthly publication of the College Football Association.

No. 1 Duke 'runs' by Kentucky 80-55 in Hall of Fame Tipoff Classic.

(Continued from page 4) spread offense got us back into the game, bu I think we got fatigued in the second half and their great bench just wore us down."

Hanson was a pleasant sight for Kentucky fans as he pumped home 13 points. The sophomore from Pulaski County hit five of eight from the field in 38 minutes of action

Surprisingly, Kentucky won the battle of the boards 31-27 but a second-half scoring drought brought an end to any upset hopes.

Duke rattled off unanswered streaks of 16 and 13 points, sandwiched around a three-point play by Hanson, and that was the end. Kentucky's field goal percentage went from torrid (14-23, 60.9 percent) in the first half to horrid in the second (8-22, 36.4 percent).

Duke was more consistent, 51.7 percent in the opening period and 55.2 percent the last 20 minutes for a game average of 53.4 percent.

Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski attributed

Duke's slow start to nervousness, but credited Kentucky with being ready.

"We played great in the second half," said the Duke mentor. "We were a little nervous starting out. Kentucky used the court and the very well.

Nevertheless, Duke had several opp tunites to put the game away in the first half, but the Blue Devils seemed anxious to build up an early margin.

"We had our chances to build on our lead in the first half, but we didn't," said Krzyzewski. "We missed several free throws and open shots. We were fortunate to be ahead at the half. Then we played almost flawlessly in the second half."

Even with the lopsided victory, the Duke coach praised Kentucky's effort.

"Kentucky will get better. They showed a lot of poise. They never got down on themselves," said Krzyzewski. "They are a themselves," said Krzyzewski. "They are a together group and will continue and develop into a good squad."

Ferry led Duke in scoring with 23 points and six rebounds while Phil Henderson added 13 points. Robert Brickey and Quin Snyder scored 10 points each for Duke.

GAME TIDBITS. .. Kentucky used only seven players in the first half, eight total for the game. Coming off the bench were

John Pelphrey, Deron Feldhaus and Richie cholarship player no Davis . . . Just how Farmer. play was Johnathan Davis play was Johnathan Davis . . . Just how important is Chris Mills' inside game for UK? Well, looking at the final statistics, Mills was the leading rebounder for UK with II

although he played guard much of the game . . . Making the trip over to Springfield for the game was Converse executive Al Harden and his wife, parents of former UK guard Roger Harden. The Hardens remain strong UK fans even after Roger's departure. Another longtime Wildcat booster at the game and seated behind the team was Lexington developer Don Webb who helped engineer the building of Wildcat Lodge back is 1070.

Rightly so, but like anything else there is no set way to do anything. Having said that, my vote for next year's quarterback to Freddie Maggard, Maggard, who will be a sophomore next season, has remarkable poise for a youngster. He has the size (listed at 6-foot-2, 220 pounds), has a very strong arm, is tough and has good speed (4.7 in the 40).

LET'S ANALYZE Johnny Majors coach of the Tennessee Vols for a minute It has always puzzled me as to why Tennessee isn't consistently better than it actually is. Everyone knows that UT puts more into its sports prorgram than almost ny school in the nation.

Facilities and tradition allow Tennessee to recruit from coast to coast. The Volunteers' outstanding track program helps the football team obtain outstanding overall team speed.

Tennessee consistently puts people in the professional ranks. The Vols are always one of the biggest teams in the league. And Majors came to Tennessee having won a national championship at Despite all the above positive in-fluences, Majors has just won 63 percent of his games as a Tennessee coach. I believe that if coach Claiborne was given all of these recruiting advantages he would fair much better.

So given the two situations, I feel that by comparison, Jerry Claiborne stacks up ich better than Johnny Majors

FROM MY VERY DIVERSE associations, I know that a sizable amount of fans have been lost from the UK football program. Something is going to have to be done to recapture those fans. For sure they will not be won back through coach

Claiborne's charisma or any public relations gimmicks.

He cannot be expected to change his personality and he will quickly tell you that he is a football coach and that's where he concentrates all his effort.

So when charisma off the field is not there then charisma can be shown on the field. Can you imagine Oliver Barnett be ing used on offense, the same way that former UK defensive end Art Still was used on offense, or being used the same way Mike Ditka used William "The Fridge" Perry for the Chicago Bears?

The Bears are not necessarily the best team in the pros but statistics note they re the most watched team on television.

Ditka himself is one of the reasons, I'm sure. There are not many coaches that would have considered using the Fridge in that manner. Also, Jim McMahon is fun

What about the Indianapolis Colts who use the option offense? What about Buddy Ryan and the Philadelphia Eagles and the way they use Randal Cunningham at quarterback? He's not your typical pro quarterback in style.

My point is that it's going to take some imagination on the field to win back e fans

NOW WITH THE SEASON complete, recruiting becomes the important issue at hand. A 6-5 record would have made that Team speed must be improved and talented, big linemen are of the utmost importance. And improvement of the campus facilities must continue.

Coach Claiborne has plenty of big and eager bodies to work with. Players such as Dan Lee and Shawn Evans come to mind. You can probably count on some spring practice shuffling in April next

WELL, AT SEASON'S end, I must say that I have enjoyed my incognito writing as the "Fan From Section 213." I trust that you have enjoyed along and agreed with most of what I have written. And like any columnist there may be somthings that you have not agreed with, but I did my homework, believing very strongly in what I wrote.

Who knows, perhaps we might meet again. Thanks for your patronage and may next season be a better one, because as most sportswriters say: "It's much easier writing about a winner.'

Claiborne used his last three timeouts to get the ball back one more time before halftime. From the Tennessee 46 with nine seconds left, Broughton rolled to his right and lofted a Hail Mary which Phil Logan caught at the six. But the play took all nine ticks on the stadium clock as UK was out of timeouts. QUOTABLE QUOTES ☐Kentucky coach Jerry Claiborne (about if he will coach the Wildcats next year): "Good Lord willing.

☐Kentucky tight end Charlie Darrington (about his senior season)

"I got a late start (broken bone in foot); I didn't play but eight games. I feel that towards the end I started contributing more, better than I did when I first came back. better than I did when I first came back.

I wish I could have had at least three (years at UK). I had a very good year last year, but I think it would have helped me more if I would have got redshirted and learned the ton (about next season):

"We played well this year. I think the young guys have come up and played real well. Our offensive line has made great strides. I think offers the method of the right in and have a lot of experience, a lot of sophomores and juniors that played this year."

□Tennessee quarterback Jeff Francis:

(about Tennessee's fourth straight win):

"It was great to win in my last home game.
A lot of things can happen when it rains. I thought they (Kentucky) were the best defensive team we had played since Alabama."

Kentucky defensive end Jay Dortch (about the future of Kentucky football):

"I don't think there's any limit to this team. We're only losing three starters on defense (himself, David Johnson and Chris Chenault). I'm not sure how many on offense, but they've got a really young offense. A lot of them got experience this year and next year people had better watch out because I think there's going to be a bire's going to be a big explosion from the UK team. I think they'll prove that we should be in the upper echelon of the SEC and not in the cellar.

Dortch (about if the university should give an extension to Claiborne's contract):

"I think so. I think he's a really good coach. He knows what he's doing and he's been around, I think he's done a great job."

□Kentucky defensive back David Johnson

(about if the university should give an extension to Claiborne's contract):

"Yeah, I don't see why not. The team plays hard, what more can you expect from a team. The team plays hard from start to finish in every game. We got a taste of the winning feeling this year. . .believe me, Kentucky will do it next year.

of the athletic directors from major schools in NCAA Division I-A have recently voted to support a proposal that would add a 12th regular-season football game to the schedule. The proposal now will be presented at the NCAA convention in San Francisco in January.

"We already have 14 playing weeks during the football season," Frank Broyles, Arkansas AD and chairman of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics (NACDA), said. Broyles added that the additional contest would generate revenue to support many of tional contest would generate revenue to support many of the non-revenue and Olympic sports, and allow flexible

But many coaches have expressed reservations about the new proposal.

"My first reaction is that I'm not extremely excited," Tennessee's Johnny Majors said. "But if that's what they we'll have to learn to live with it. I'm just glad they didn't schedule us to play 12 conference games."

Said Nebraska's Tom Osborne in The Sporting News:"The season is plenty long enough right now. I would hope that if something is done, some compensation could be given to the players, whether it's some kind of stipend or provision where a student's trip home at Christmas is paid for

'We're progressively asking more and more of the players and giving them less in return. Twenty-five years ago, a season was nine games. Then it went to 10. Then it went to 11. Now 12? And scholarships are being progressively reduced."

In the past, the 12th-game proposal had failed to pass.

Boykin, MSU's second-leading scorer (97 ppg.) a year ago, finished last season in strong fashion averaging 18 points and five rebounds per outing over the last four contests, including a career-high 24 against Georgia in the SEC tournament

One of the SEC's most interesting roundball matchups on national TV this winter is the Memphis State-Tennessee contest in Knoxville. The Dec. 29 game will be shown live by USA. The Vols and the Tigers will be meeting for the first time in 19 years. Tennessee defeated Memphis State 72-51 in 1969, in the only other meeting between the two schools

Only two schools give full scholarships to the entire cheerleading squad. They are Memphis State and Kansas. Said Memphis State athletic director Charles Cavagnaro. "Scholarships are the least we can do (to help the cheerleaders). Those kids put in a lot of time and work and they should be rewarded." However, there are an increasing number of schools which distribute partial scholarships to the cheerleaders. . .

Auburn football mentor Pat Dye has recently been chosen one of the "Ten College Coaches America Loves to Hate" in a poll of national sportswriters conducted by the Jacksonville (Fla.) Times Union. Dye ranked fifth. behind No. 1 Barry Switzer of Oklahoma, No. 2 Jimmy Johnson of Miami, and Jackie Sherill of Texas A&M and Bo Schembechler of Michigan, who tied for third.

Drumsticks and gizzards go out to many

Thumbs down: officials. Thumbs up: LSU

With Thanksgiving feast approaching, it's time to give players and even officials around the Southeastern Conference. Because it's Thanksgiving we will call them the drumstick (in favor) and gizzard (obviously, not in favor) awards. Now on with the feast.

A drumstick to Jerry Claiborne and his staff for their efforts in molding what was a mostly green inexperienced team facing the toughest schedule in the nation.

Before the season began hardly anyone gave the Wildcats much chance of even thinking of a bowl game when entering the month of November.

But through sheer hard work and perservence UK has gained tremendous respect among its peers in the SE Take away a blown call here and a break there and UK would have been a bona fide bowl contenders this

With a host of returning lettermen along with what some UK insiders are calling Claiborne's best crop of redshirt freshmen, the Wildcats will be in the hunt for the SEC tile next season. Now all UK president David Roselle has to do is give the veteran coach an extension to be controlled to the contr

A gizzard must go out to the officiating crew of the Kentucky-Florida game. Some people have even said that the defensive holding call on Albert Burks is the WORST call in the history of Commonwealth Stadium by an SEC official. That's right, the mysterious defensive holding call made against Burks late in the third quarter deep in UK territory still has many Wildcats left in an works of ALL is the fact that it wasn't the type of call that was a difficult to make. It wasn't an iffy pass interference call nor a questionable ruling on a fumble nor a reception, but a clear case of completely botching a correctable situation.

Game films revealed that the Florida receiver ran over the UK defensive back who simply got tangled up in the endzone. Furthermore, it had absolutely nothing to do with the play because the ball was immediately fumbled to the ground

Coach Claiborne said it best during one of his weekly news conferences that coaches and players mistakes are printed every day, why no the officials?

Because of SEC regulations, Claiborne cannot publicly blister officials, but his point was that the men in stripes are regarded as sacred cows. It wasn't the first time that UK has experienced some horrible officiating at home. If you'll recall, Alabama was in illegal motion during its last two plays when the Tide pulled out a last-second

Later in the season, there was the Vanderbilt game when a UK player was called for a head slap during a made field goal attempt which brought the 'Dores within

What it boils down to is that somebody in the conference office needs to get on the ball and get some more supervision over the league's officials.

UK IS NOT THE ONLY team to feel the wrath of bad judgment by the officials as there were several other poorly officiated games which occured throughout the season. In fact, some Georgia fans were upset on some calls that went against them during the 'Dogs' 20-l0 loss

It's a shame that such a conference like the SEC can't get some competent officials to live up to the league's outstanding reputation. It's not fair to the fans, coaches and most importantly the players, who put forth a tremendous effort for every Saturday in the fall.

To the legue's credit, the SEC does have some good officials in basketball. Now, can the conference get some

AFTERALL, IT MUST BE extremely tough on any coach who works just about 365 days a year for 11 games then watches the fate of a ballgame turn just because an officiating crew can't make a reasonable

A drunstick goes to the UK football program who has one of the highest graduation rates of college football players in the nation. According to a recent publication, UK was second to Notre Dame in graduating senior classes over the last couple of years. It's too bad the UK was second to Notre Dame in graduating senior classes over the last couple of years. It's too bad these accomplishments sometimes get pushed back to the back pages of a newspaper.

A gizzard goes to the University of Kentucky administration for the way it handled the Cliff Hagan situa-tion. From this perspective it looks like UK wanted the tion. From this perspective it looks like UK wanted the media to do its dirty work for them by leaking out stories that Hagan's job was in jeopardy. It certainly wasn't a classy move especially when it concerned a fellow employee who has given so much to the university, both athletically and in an admistrative role. I'm sure there are some things that may never be revealed about this situation, but Hagan deserved a much better fate than be use given Especially with the way his job was. than he was given. Especially with the way his job was rumored throughout both the print and television

A drunstick goes out to LSU coach Mike Archer for leading his team to another SEC championship. Although the Tigers might tie for the league crown (Auburn still has a chance to tie with a win over Alabama) Archer showed why he is one of the better coaches in the nation by having his team accomplish a huge feat despite a

ARCHER'S DEFENSE WAS outstanding during all of its conference games as he had to work with a patch offensive unit that lost some key members from last offensive unit that lost some key members from last year's squad. Also, his team's have developed a closeness to coming up with the big wins in tight games.

Just ask Kentucky, Auburn and Alabama. LSU won those games by less than a field goal.

A gizzard goes to Auburn and Florida for their respective schedules this season. Yes, I know some teams need a break from the conference grind, but scheduling teams such as Montana State, Indiana State, Akron and Kansas is questionable. Fans at both schools deserve to see quality opnonents.

quality opponents.

A drumstick goes out to Alabama coach Bill Curry.

Yes, I know some people in Alabama may not agree with me, but I like the way Curry is running his program in Tuscaloosa. His team this season lost a lot of talent because of injuries (Bobby Humphrey, Gene Jelks and Kermit Kendrick just to name a few). His teams seem to keep their composure and exude class both in victory and in defeat. Losing the way it did to LSU had to be extremely tough to take for Bama fans, but Curry has become an expectation and defeat the control of the control his program going in the right direction and doing it the

Cliff Hagan deserved better

A gizzard goes out to the fans disguised as empty seats in Commonwealth Stadium. For those fans who didn't attend some of the Wildcats home games (especially UK students!) what you missed was an exciting 1988

NO FAN COULD HAVE better games than the Alabama and Georgia games. . . in addition to nearly pulling off a miracle against Florida. Maybe UK can somewhat gets those fans back for next season.

somewhat gets those tans back for next season.

A drumstick goes out to Tennessee for permitting a Nashville radio talk show host, Duncan Stewart, enjoy this great holiday. If you recall, this radio personality vowed to perch itself on a billboard till the Vols finally win a football game starting back in September. But thanks to the Vols' 38-25 victory over Memphis State on Oct. 22 this radio announcer won't go hungry this Thanksgiving

A gizzard goes out to the UK athletics department for getting a Louisville television station tocarry the taped delayed and live broadcasts of the football games this season. UK has a solid base of fan support in the state's biggest city. But it's a shame those same fans in Louisville were unable to watch the 'Cats on the tube. I know there are economics involved and selling spots for the game could be problem but UK needs as much television coverage as possible. Especially in a TV market the size of Louisville.

A drumstick goes out however to Lexington TV Station WKYT for televising the full length edition of the games this season. The last two years of edited 90-minute games was a disaster for football viewers. Also, plaudits go out as well to the station for televising both the Indiana and LSU games live to its television audience. Hopefully, this road game trend will continue next Another gizzard goes out to the athletic department for switching the UK-Vandy game from a day to night game because of the Breeders Cup. If you surveyed most of the fans throughout the stadium that night I believe most of them would have responded to not attending both Churchill Downs and Commonwealth Stadium. Any night game during the month of November is tough for any UK fans to endure.

Finally, a drumstick to our readers. To you the TCP gives thanks and wishes you a happy holiday season.

Claiborne got the most out of his troops
