in their twenty-seventh annual toot-ball game, to decide the supremacy of State Saturday afternoon on Stoll Field. The Colonels have suffered only one defeat this year, and that to Harvard, while the Wildcats have an unbroken string of victories.

Saturday will be Home Coming Day for the Alumni and one of the largest crowds ever assembled on Stoll Field is expected to be present for the classic. The stands have been enlarged during the past two weeks and fully 11,000 people can be comfortably stated Saturday.

The Cats have not scored on Centre since 1916, when the Blue and White gridders handed the Colonels a terrifice beating. Kentucky has probably the best team that has represented the Blue and White in many a year and will give the Danville team a hard battle.

with the exception of "Chuck" Rice the Wildcats will be in excellent condition. Rice suffered an injured knee in the Sewanee tilt and will probably be out of the lineup tomorrow. The Colonels, despite the absence of the far-famed "Bo" have one of the strongest teams ever seen on a Kentucky gridiron. In Herb Covington, Coach Moran has one of the best quarters in the country, and in Hudgins, Tanner and Roberts, a backfield of no mean ability.

MUSICAL PROGRAM IS GIVEN BY PROF. LAMPERT

Freshman Chapel Has Full Attendance at Promise of Concert

Tuesday morning. The promise of a concert by Professor Carl Lampert, accompanied by Mrs. Lampert and the Misses Lampert, was enough to bring them all. Dean Boyd took charge of the meeting and after a Scripture reading followed by the Lord's prayer in which the students joined, he introduced Mr. James Mc-Farland, president of the Freshman class, who had some important announcements to make concerning the Tug-of-War.

Tug-of-War.

The concert was opened with the Barcarolle by Offenbach, a swaying, soothing melody that instantly won attention. The second piece was from Grieg's Peer Gynt Suite. Peer Gynt was a great adventurer who journeyed to Arabia and fell in love with Anitra, the daughter of a chieftain of the Bedouins. Anitra seeing that she fascinates him uses her wiles to attract him and get his money, so she dances for him. The music tells the story, and was so effectively rendered by the musicians that one need not have had a very vivid imagination to understand and appreciate "Anitra's Dance." The third number was a Scotch dance, very unique and typical of the people of Scotland. This number has a "catchy" swing which appealed to the students who applauded until it was encored.

"catchy" swing which appealed to the students who applauded until it was encored.

Professor Lampert played, accompanied by Mrs. Lampert, a Spanish dance. Spain is the land of the dance and the people seek an outlet for their expression in dancing. It is interesting to know that some churches in Spain have as a part of their service an elaborate and stately minuet performed by the choir boys.

The concert was closed with "Ava Maria," by Bach and Guonod. To appreciate Bach one has to know this superb work. Guonod is noted for having been the inspiration of almost every great composer.

In closing Professor Lampert reminded the Freshmen of their duty to back the Wildcats in their encounter with Centre next Saturday afternoon and to show their spirit with songs and yells for victory.

The Student Loan Fund, inaugurated and maintained by alumni alone a decade ago, has become a great institution on the campus.

It is a means whereby women's clubs throughout the State, Kiwanis, Rotary and other civic organizations, private individuals of Kentucky and, of course, alumni can have an important share in undergraduate life. The fund is now a little less than $10,000 but a prominent Kentuckian has written into his will a provision that will double the sum. ## ribution's to Fund for "Gr Old Man" Are Increasing Contributions to the fund for the memorial statue to President Emeritus James K. Patterson have been coming regularly to the Alumni Association. Among the recent subscribers are Wade H. Perkins, banker and capitalist of Denver, Col., and James A. Yates, educator of Pittsburg, Kansas.

Kansas.
"I wish that through the columns of The Kernel a constant appeal could be kept up until the balance of this fund has been raised," says Charles R. Brock, of Denver, chairman of the fund.
"He faced and overcame what seemed to be insurmountable difficulties. His eloquence, his rare courage and his character of love and devotion have left an indelible stamp that will stand as long as the institution itself," writes H. Lee Moore, secretary of the Pittsburg alumni club.

ond to subscribe more than its quota fixed in President Rodman Wiley's message to the alumni. Many individuals not belonging to clubs have sent in contributions direct to the Alumni secretary.

Plans are being considered for an annual football dinner in the first week of December to be open to alumni generally. The great improvement in the general situation has aroused such enthusiasm among the Blue and White followers that the Athletic Council favors making the annual dinner something more than an informal party for the "K" men.

Bound to Secrecy

There is some information about the football game to be played on Stoll field Saturday which the editor would like to impart to alumni who are coming back and even to those who can't. There is a censorship on betting, however, in Kentucky growing tighter every day. The editor hopes to be bound by fewer restrictions next time. tions next time.

Candidates for state offices in Ken-tucky to be elected in 1923 are plan-ning their races now. Reports indi-cate that there will be an increasing cate that there will be an increasing number running on a progressive platform, to include greater appropriations for education and for public roads. These will probably include two-score alumni.

Drives corcluded in the last twelve months or now in progress will net more than $4,000,000 for private education in Kentucky, all obtained by popular subscription. The election in November, 1923, will be for Governor, half the members of the General Assembly and various county and district officers.

The melancholy days have come, and with their advent the first furlong and with their advent the first furlong post is passed in the great race of the various organizations for such stakes as the school year may offer. The preliminary fuss of the college year will be over when the tug-of-war is decided today. The laughter incident to the late pop contest has nearly subsided, and the first test-buds have appeared.

The most important day of the first semester is nearly at hand: Home coming day. The Centre-Kentucky game on Saturday is the occasion. Many alumni will be in Lexington on that alumni will be in Lexington on that day for the annual visit to the old school. Kentucky is going to be the greatest school in the south, one of these days. As in other organizations, the alumni is the most important and helpful part of the whole. The reunion will become bigger each year; the spirit will mount higher. Stronger teams will uphold the colors, and old 'Kaintuck' will have a school worthy of her noble history and gay deeds.

Too many college men, who may be quite impossible in any recognized profession, there remains one vocation to which they may bend their languid and graceful energies: Society. The term is used in its narrower sense and pertains particularly to the society which is dominated by women. The only condition required of the young collegian to practice this profession is enough money to see him safely thru life. It is of little moment whether or not he is established in society. He can have his fun just the same. Almost a complete living may be had from the various teas and dinners one attends, provided one is not too sharply clever, and too reminiscently witty. Rather useless it is, to state that American Society is a joke; a feeble mitation of British and continental formalities. We have, of course, no stable aristocracy; but we have enough pushers, parvenus, and money hogs to give exterior semblance an unmistakable glitter. Despite a strenuous striving after culture, and the resultant surface glibness in matters pertaining to art and manners, the creaking of the block and tackle is, nevertheless, plainly to be heard.

Yet, it is this preying upon the susceptibility of American aristic arrives, tound almost wholly in society, the stound almost wholly in society, the stound almost wholly in society, the moonlight. Americans will not toler-ate a pun. Even literature has to avoid it. The best writing, of course, does not contain puns. The author may think a pun very tunny, but his readers do not; they consider it merly punny.

No more sweet, lengthy, blissful, "conges" on those wonderful benches that have served as an haven and an outlet for the sympathies of us poor homesicks and lovesick Freshmen. For the past month the benches are gone. They will not be placed on the campus again until spring. Laments the poor Frosh. At this point of his lamentations he is interrupted by an all wise Sophomore, Cheer up Freshman! You will soon learn that the winter is short. That Patt Hall campus has plenty of stones just big enough for two And last but not least that a Frosh has little chance using one any way when I am around. Thus endeth the dolorous tragedy.

"Physical culture, father, is perfectly lovely!" exclaimed an enthusiastic young miss just home from college. "Look! To develop the arms I grasp this rod in both hands and move it slowly from right to left." "Well, well," replied dad admiringly, "what won't science discover next? Why, if that rod had straw on the other end, you'd be sweeping."—American Legion Weekly.

IPSE DIXIT and GALILEO

There was much learning but little real knowledge in Galileo's time (1564-1642). Aristotle was swallowed in bad Latin transla-tions. Ipse dixit. No one checked him by what seemed vulgar, Galileo fought against the dead hand of tradition. He did not argue about Aristotle, but put him to the test. Aristotle led his readers to believe that of two bodies the heavier will fall the faster. Galileo simply climbed to the top of the Leaning Tower of Pisa and dropped two unequal weights. The "best people" were horrified; they even refused to believe the result—that the weights reached the ground in equal times.

"Look at the world, and ex-

Hardly an experiment is made in modern science, which does not apply Galileo's results. When, for instance, the physic-ists in the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company study the motions of electrons in rarified atmospheres, or exper-iment to heighten the efficiency of generators and motors, they follow Galileo's example and substitute facts for beliefs.
