ABOUT THE LIBRARIES

Library Associates Journal

The following letter was recently mailed to the individuals listed in the next to last paragraph below. Library staff members with suggestions for the proposed journal or interested in assisting with it should speak to David Farrell or Paul Willis.

"I am writing to tell you about a Library project for the coming year and to ask for your assistance with it. The project is the publication of a journal by the University of Kentucky Library Associates. I would like to invite you to serve as a member of the editorial board.

The University of Kentucky Library Associates is a 'friends of the library' organization which was reactivated last year. The executive committee of the Associates has agreed to assist the Library with the sponsorship of a journal. John Clubbe, who is the current president of the Library Associates, has encouraged this undertaking. It is hoped that the journal will assume bibliographic importance and earn a reputation as a high quality humanities journal on the Lexington campus.

One of the first responsibilities of the editorial board will be the approval of an editorial policy. During initial deliberations with the executive committee members of the Associates, several purposes of a journal have been discussed. These include the dissemination of information to Associates and others interested in the University of Kentucky Libraries. The scope of the journal might include all aspects of the University of Kentucky Libraries and their collections with possible special attention being given to authors and subjects represented in the Library collections and in the region. Notable acquisitions, Associates news, catalogs of current exhibits, lectures sponsored by the Associates, and scholarly articles are examples of material to consider for inclusion in the publication. During the coming year it is hoped that perhaps one issue could appear by the spring of 1979. In future years, two issues a year might be developed.

A number of examples of similar publications sponsored by other libraries are available. I would be pleased to show some of them to you or to answer any questions which you might have about what is proposed.

I am hopeful that you will be willing to serve on the editorial board. The board will have the customary authority of journal editorial boards. The Library staff will assume all clerical and other routine responsibilities so that your time will not be requested in these areas.

The faculty members being asked to serve are: Steven Channing, History; John Clubbe, English; Guy Davenport, English; Joseph Engelberg, Medicine; and Joseph Jones, Spanish. Paul Willis and David Farrell of the Library staff will serve as ex-officio members.

I will look forward to hearing from you."

The Library System is working with the Department of Anthropology to establish a special library collection in applied anthropology. Any staff member interested in serving on an advisory committee to pursue this should express this intent to Bill Marshall, Dennis Dickinson, or Paul Willis in the near future.

Lost Books

Professor Marino, a new faculty member in the College of Business and Economics, shipped three cartons of personal books from Massachusetts to campus. The boxes did arrive in the Business and Economics building but later disappeared. If the books got to any part of the Library System, please let Professor Marino know. Many of the volumes have his name in them --Kenneth E. Marino.

Academic Library Reserves

The July 14, 1978 issue of the ALA Washington Newsletter has been placed on reserve in my name. It contains a useful article on academic library reserves. Administrative Council members have been given a copy of the text of the article.
