

A black and white photograph showing a close-up view of a building's entrance. A long, rectangular mat with a grid of small circular perforations is laid on the ground, extending from the foreground towards the doorway. The mat is supported by a metal frame. To the right of the mat, a stone or concrete block is inscribed with the words "ERECTED" and "1904" in a simple, blocky font. The ground is made of large, light-colored stone tiles with visible expansion joints. In the background, a doorway is visible, and a wooden door is partially open. The overall scene suggests a historical or institutional building.
