THE DREAM AND THE CHALLENGE

Trustees approve budget, faculty and staff raises

Bonuses: Board passes Wethington $200,000 salary unopposed, Todd receives $100,000

By Jeff Wagner
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Despite recent state reductions in university budget allocations, the UK Board of Trustees, Tuesday, was able to ensure increased spending for the new budget in key areas such as faculty and staff salaries, employee health insurance, and financial aid endowments.

The approval of the 2003-2004 operating budget highlighted a lengthy meeting. Members met to accept the university's new strategic plan, to approve recent high-level administrative appointments and to divulge the results of the Board's performance evaluation of President Lee Todd.

The acceptance of the 2003-2004 university budget of $1.392 billion — an increase of $19.9 million (or 1.5%) from the previous fiscal year — marked the culmination of numerous efforts by the university president and the Board to adapt to reductions in state government spending for universities.

Facing a $5 million cut in state appropriations from the previous year (and $14.5 million less than 2001-2002), the Board had revised the budget to incorporate a number of changes.

A tuition fee increase, the reorganization of university administration under the Provost model, the corresponding departmental and personnel cuts, and a temporary freeze on faculty hiring in many academic departments were all figured into the new budget.

Despite the revenue problems, the Board was able to ensure a $9.6 million (3 percent) merit-based raise for faculty and staff. A $2.6 million increase in health insurance spending for university employees was included to offset rate increases.

Covering the 2003-2006 period, the strategic plan outlines six key goal areas in which the university hopes to initiate substantive qualitative and quantitative improvements in academic and administrative

Programs eliminated or moved for provost model approach

Several departments on campus will be eliminated, restructured or moved to meet the recommendations of the Implementation Committee for Transition to the Provost Model, according to a report issued by a committee this March and approved by the Board of Trustees on Tuesday.

President Lee Todd charged the Committee this January to produce this report, in order to examine how to restructure the University of Kentucky to the "One University" model.

"The Provost is the chief academic officer of the institution, and is responsible for the oversight of the faculty's roles related to teaching, research and service," the report said. "To this end, all teaching and research facilities fall exclusively under the purview of the Provost."

The committee then recommended certain departments and services that did not fit into the new model for reorganization or elimination.

Women's Health Center

The Women's Health Center was one department. It will be eliminated June 30.

"Well, I think the committee looked at a variety of different programs and tried to make some decisions," said David Watt, a member of the Implementation Committee and Associate Provost of Academic Affairs. The committee weighed the cost of the programs, the people involved and whether they were achieving their mission. "This particular program wasn't meeting those needs," he said.

Rape suspect sought by police

Awareness: Police, UK officials seeking to educate students about campus safety, day or night

By Derek Poore
SUMMER EDITOR IN CHIEF

While UK and Lexington police continue following several leads involving last week's rape on South Campus, authorities are urging students to exercise caution.

The rape, which occurred around 3 a.m. on June 18 near Kirwan Tower, has prompted increased pa-trois, UK police said Tuesday. The victim — a UK student — was dragged from a parking lot near the Kirwan and Blanding dorm complex into a wooded area and was raped, police said.

Police have posted flyers with an artist's depiction of the suspect along with campus safety guidelines.

In light of the week's incoming freshmen advising conferences, UK police spokesman Travis Manley said every chance was being taken to communicate safety tips to the new students.

"We're making sure that we discuss those safety tips to the advising conferences," Manley said. He said new students need to understand safety when they arrive on campus this fall.

Manley also said that many officers were working overtime to make the campus safer, including increased bike patrols.

Dean of Students Victor Hazard believes common sense and awareness of surroundings are keys to safety.

If something is telling them not to go into a certain area then they

A Dog's Night Out!

Todd Scheler of Berea, his daughter Raine, 8, and son Reid, 10, pose with the Charleston, S.C. Riverdogs mascot.

By Jeff Patterson
MANAGING EDITOR

It's official. Lexington is in love with baseball. Whether it is the kids with American flags painted on their faces or a family enjoying the game, baseball is bringing people together in Lexington.

SPORTS ANALYSIS

At Tuesday night's South Atlantic League — single A — All-Star Game, 8,122 fans came out to see a ballgame. Some 916 miles and three levels of play away, only 5,872 went to the ballpark in Montreal to see the Pittsburgh Pirates lose to the Expos 6-4.

Why the difference? A) French-Canadians don't like baseball.

B) Applebee's Park is a cheaper and friendlier setting than Montreal's enclosed baseball prison.

Todd Scheler of Berea chose the second option. "I am not a great baseball fan and I don't even follow the majors," Scheler said. "But nothing equates to the experience of coming to a live game."

Scheler and his two kids, Raine, 8, and Reid, 10, experienced the game right beside the South All-Star bullpen and less than 15 feet away from future big leaguers.

Reid and Raine came to their first game of the year to enjoy the simple pleasures of the ballpark such as cotton candy.

The difference from their experience to being at a big league park is a mere $65. Three lawn seats cost $10 for a Legends game. Three similar seats for a Cincinnati Reds game costs $75.

"It is a beautiful park and it brings the game up close to you," Scheler said. "Where as a major league park, you are paying a lot more to sit a lot further away from the game."

Lexington went nearly 50 years in between minor league baseball franchises until the Legends came to play in 2001.

Unlike some other minor league ventures, baseball works for Lexington. Lexington's latest hockey venture, the Lexington Men O' War, sadly ended after only one season. The Men O' War only averaged 2,368 fans per game, ranking them 24 out of 27 East Coast Hockey League Teams.

Through 37 home dates this season, the Lexington Legends are averaging 5,200 fans per game, ranking them second in SAL attendance.

For Scheler and many fans in the Bluegrass "it's great having a live ballpark so close."

By the look of things, don't expect this love affair to end anytime soon.

Former Wildcat Vince Harrison helped pace the South All-Stars over the North in their 3-2 South Atlantic League All-Star Game victory Tuesday night at Applebee's Park. Harrison hitted 1 for 3 with a double in the sixth inning. Harrison, 23, played football and baseball at UK.

Harry Potter book sets new sales record

ASSOCIATED PRESS

More than 8 million may not be enough. J.K. Rowling's fifth book in the Harry Potter series is being snapped up at stores across the country and has the possibility of, poof!, making publishing records disappear.

"We expected to sell 1 million copies in the first week and we sold that many within the first 48 hours," Barnes & Noble CEO Steve Riggio said Sunday as 'Harry Potter and the Order of the Phoenix' set records around the world in its first weekend.

Nobody in the industry had seen anything like it, at least since 'Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire,' which came out three years ago. Scholastic, the book's U.S. publisher, estimated 5 million copies were sold the first day alone, well ahead of the pace of 'Goblet of Fire.'

Borders Group reported worldwide sales of 750,000 the first day. Amazon.com shipped out more than a million copies of the new book, making Saturday the largest distribution day of a single item in e-commerce history.

Some retailers had worried that even an enormous first printing — 8.5 million just in the United States — wouldn't last long enough to keep up with demand. A lot of latecomers found themselves settling for a mere pre-order in place of a book.

Riggio said many Barnes & Noble stores had run out of copies, but that more would arrive "over the next few days." The Book House in Albany, N.Y., sold out its 1,050 copies of the book, even though it limited purchases to two per person.

A Borders bookstore in Columbus, Ohio, had just enough Potter books for the people who reserved them this weekend, and another shipment was expected by Monday or Tuesday.

Borders store manager Mathew Kowalski said many customers who could not get the new book bought copies of the other Potter novels.

"We sold some other books, but it was mainly Harry Potter sales this weekend," Kowalski said.

In London, the supermarket chain Tesco said it sold 317,400 copies of the fifth in J.K. Rowling's fantasy series in the first 24 hours, seven times the number sold in the first week of Potter IV.

"The book has now broken all our sales records and there is no doubt that this will be the best selling book we have ever stocked," said Tesco book buyer Caroline Riding.

There were flaws in the Potter master plan. Some stores put the book on sale before its June 21 publication date and a seller in Lynchburg, Va., Givens Books, discovered that more than 40 of its copies were missing 33 pages. Scholastic said the books would be replaced.

Rowling's first four Potter books have sold an estimated 192 million copies worldwide and have been published in at least 55 languages and distributed in more than 200 countries. Movies were made of the first two books and a third will be released next year.

Lights burned all through the weekend as Potter fans didn't let anything as silly as sleep keep them from working through the 870-page book.

Eleven-year-old Geronimo "G" Gisleson, of New Orleans, received his copy Saturday and was up to page 560 by midday Sunday.

When his mother, Susan, went into his room Sunday morning, she realized he'd been reading all night, using the light from a bathroom across the hall that had been left on as a night light for his younger brother.

"He was sprawled on the floor with the book next to him," she said.

Deftones

Deftones

By Ryan Ebelhar
CONTRIBUTING CRITIC

The first thing that came to mind when I heard the Deftones' self-titled album was, "What are they doing on Summer Sanitarium?"

The band that helped create nu-metal is now touring with Linkin Park and Limp Bizkit, two bands that sum up everything that is wrong with rock music these days.

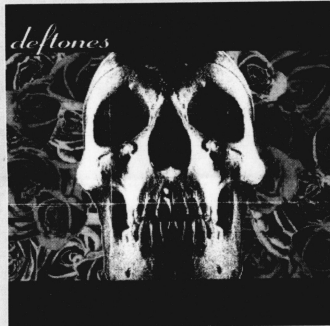

Lead singer and guitarist Chino Moreno's vocals range from the whispers of a frightened man to screams that sound as if his vocal chords are diced through a blender.

Moreno's combination sounds more emotional than an emo singer does and more hardcore than most singers. This happens to be a perfect combination with Stephen Carpenter's roaring-tuned-down power chords that puts them beyond any band out there.

"Lucky You" gives Frank Delgado a chance to show his chops on the keys and turntables. He does it without relying on samples of other songs. The keys on this track make it sound almost like an ambient jazz metal fusion that no other band could attempt to pull off.

Burton gives UK double vision

By Jeff Patterson
MANAGING EDITOR

With the UK football program enduring the loss of several scholarship players, they could use a 2-for-1 deal. Limited to only 18 scholarships for the 2003 recruiting class due to NCAA sanctions, Keenan Burton may be the deal head coach Rich Brooks is seeking. Burton proved to be the bargain of UK's 2003 recruiting class with his MVP performance in last Friday's Kentucky-Tennessee All-Star game. Not only did Burton shine as wide receiver, he also excelled at defensive back.

Burton caught four passes for 66 yards and one touchdown in Kentucky's 28-14 win over Tennessee. His 3-yard TD grab in heavy traffic was the catalyst in starting the romp.

Filling the 2-for-1 role, Burton played a little defense. He picked off an Austen Everson pass and returned it for 48 yards, setting up Kentucky's second TD. Burton had two tackles and a team-high three pass deflections.

The question is what position does he want to play?

"Receiver." Burton emphatically said. "Cornerback is too hard. But if need be, I would play defensive back."

With a loaded receiving corps, featuring the likes of Derek Abney, Tommy Cook, Glenn Holt and incoming freshman John Logan, Burton may need to play in the secondary as well.

"If they want me to play both, I'm all ears," he said.

Bat Cats replace Madison, hire Cohen as head coach

John Cohen, whose career includes success as a player and assistant coach in the Southeastern Conference, and as a head coach at Northwestern (La.) State, is the new head baseball coach at Kentucky. Cohen, who played at Mississippi State and has been an assistant coach at Florida and Missouri, is excited about his new role.

Cohen

"This is a tremendous honor and opportunity," Cohen said. "The University of Kentucky has one of the premier athletics departments in the nation. Everything I hear about the UK administration is the big 'C' word - commitment. Under Mitch Barnhart's leadership, we'll work to make UK baseball a consistent winner."

"I have high expectations for our program. It's a privilege to follow Keith Madison, one of the classiest people I know, one of the real gentlemen of our game, a coach who has tremendous respect throughout college baseball. I know Coach Madison's players are a first-class group of young men who know how to work and give everything they have." Cohen comes to UK from Florida, where he served a record-setting term the last two years as hitting coach for the Gators.

'Bear's Boys' reunion in Lexington this week

Outland Trophy winner Bob Gain, All-America quarterback Babe Parilli, and NFL legend George Blanda are among the "Bear's Boys" group of Kentucky football alumni who are having a reunion this week, June 26-28, in Lexington.

The "Bear's Boys" are the Wildcats who played for Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant from 1946-53. The "Bear's Boys" have been having a reunion since the 1960s, currently meeting every two years.

The primary events of the reunion are a cookout at the K-House, next to Commonwealth Stadium, Friday at 6:15 p.m. and a reception/dinner Saturday at 6:15

UK swimmer Manley breaks three records

Kentucky swimmer Steven Manley rewrote the record books of his native Ireland when he broke three freestyle records in long course and short-course meets.

Earlier this month in Abbottstown, Dublin, Ireland, Manley broke an 11-year old Irish National Record when he swam the 400 meter short-course freestyle in a time of 3:53.08. The previous record was 3:53.89.

Then on June 20 and 21, Manley set two more records, in the 200 and 400-meter long-course freestyle events.

On Friday he swam the 200 in a time of 1:52.58 breaking the eight-year old record of 1:52.84 and on Saturday he swam the 400 in 4:01.88. The previous 400-meter record of 4:02.12 stood for 15 years.

IN OUR OPINION

President Todd deserving of bonus

President Todd may end up turning down the annual $100,000 bonus offered to him by the UK Board of Trustees Tuesday – but he shouldn't.

Last year, Todd turned down the bonus only to later accept and donate half to UK.

Board chairman Steve Reed mentioned many lines of praise for Todd, including one that is extremely important in an environment of college students vying for successful careers in an age of angst toward college administrators. He has shown "unprecedented access."

Todd has exemplified a hard work ethic and true love for the university and has never been one to shy away his beliefs about what's best for UK.

As Reed pointed out, Todd has shown a special skill to the handling of dire budget constraints. He has also consistently given the bottom line in a time of economic hardship.

This year he pushed for a 3 percent salary increase for faculty and staff but reiterates it's still not enough.

UK will absorb $2.6 million in health care hikes. This allows faculty and staff not to have their raise put in one pocket and health insurance increases pull it out the other, as Todd put it this week.

Todd has also asked the UK Athletics Association to give $1 million to the university for merit-based scholarships, which they will do for at least ten years.

Last year he hired Athletics Director Mitch Barnhart, whom has continued to bring prominent coaching staffs to college athletics at UK.

College athletics generate a large revenue each year and are often criticized for large salaries given to coaches. Any funds diverted from athletics to the academic side of campus must be praised.

A more diverse faculty including the hiring of more women for faculty and administrative positions has been a priority of Todd's. As has been moving the university to the provost model: the "One University" system.

Todd has been a very visible and available president to students and for that he is to be commended.

If Todd donates his bonus to the university, then he is to be applauded for his gesture.

However, with all the hard work and character he has instilled in the presidency of UK, Todd can willfully accept his bonus under the auspices that he does deserve it.

Low fireman salary is inexcusable

Wanted: highly skilled men and women willing to work under stressful, very hazardous conditions for low pay, long hours, and no upward mobility for at least six years. Seem like a job you'd consider?

After September 11th, America lionized the heroic efforts of New York's firefighters, many of whom lost their lives trying to save others. Less than three years later, however, many cities and towns are struggling to provide decent pay and benefits for their own fire services, and firemen are getting laid off in one-third of American cities.

Lexington's fire department who, in addition to responding to fires and other disasters, operates our city's EMS service. It has seen the post-September 11th goodwill evaporate, and today our firemen and women are making just barely enough to get by. The result has been difficulty in recruiting and an overworked department, with many EMS units making twice as many runs as the national average.

In 1994, Lexington hired an eminent, international human resources firm to address the pay and benefits structure of our fire department. The subsequent recommendation, known as the Mercer system, gave merit-based pay raises and made many in the department feel that this was the best job they'd ever had.

Unfortunately, budget constraints have intervened, and this year's budget includes only a 1% raise for city employees, firefighters included. When taking into consideration the rising cost of health insurance, as well as the cost of living in Lexington, it is easy to see that this "raise" is really no boon at all.

Last week, I had the opportunity to see the hazards entailed in serving in the fire department. Assisting our staff at UK hospital with a combative family member, one officer was injured badly enough to be treated as a patient himself. There were no headlines the next day, the officer thankfully sustained only minor injuries, and for the EMS crew it was just another day at the office.

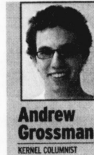

With politically-charged items like the Carnegie Center, the PDR program, and others sapping Lexington's budget, it is easy to forget about the security infrastructure upon which our city relies. As the baby boomer generation comes of age, there will be an ever-increasing need for ambulance services. Lexington's fire department does not have the money to meet this need.

In order to re-enact the Mercer system, our city would have to absorb a one-time cost of roughly four million dollars. This is just over one percent of our city's budget.

Firefighters usually only make headlines when disaster strikes. This does not mean that our city does not rely on them each day to respond when we need them. Having a well-staffed, professionally paid fire department can help stymie disaster when and if it strikes in Lexington.

Today, I make more money per hour as a clerk in the emergency room than a firefighter who has been on the job for five years. This unfortunate inequity should be one of Mayor Isaac's first – not last – priorities.

Sex and the single girl: Finding what you want

A friend of mine, who shall remain nameless, seems to only date losers. They aren't necessarily bad guys (though some of them have been) nor are they entirely free of ambition (though most of them had none). They just weren't her type; not what she wants.

Yet still, somehow, there they are. They were like casualties of a dating war, lined up toe-to-toe, failed relationship to failed relationship. And my poor friend can't seem to grasp why she never ends up with what she wants in a boyfriend. My suggestion, both to her and to you – figure it out.

You see, once upon a time there were these things called standards. People, primarily the dating type, would create these things by which to measure their prospective partners. Somewhere along the line, however, these simple guidelines have disappeared. Now, people with high standards are considered picky, high maintenance and even snobby. You're encouraged to be flexible and open-minded. Not surprisingly, this attitude has created both positive and negative effects.

Let's say Billie Sue has a crush on Bobby Ray. Bobby Ray smokes. Billie Sue doesn't particularly like smokers, but in the spirit of open-mindedness she decides to let it slide... until they start dating. She wants Bobby Ray to quit. If he loved her, he would. Secondhand smoke can kill, surely he has to know that. Does he want her to die? He must not really love her. And so it begins.

The devil behind dating without standards is this: you're never really doing it. Everyone has at least a few, immovable standards they use to measure the people they date. The question is whether or not you know the difference between the steadfast and the flexible. Ultimately, you are the only one who can decide what factors are open for compromise and those that are set in stone.

For example, I may want a guy with an appreciation for art, music and theater. However I could just as easily go for a guy who likes none of those things, but is willing to sit through three hours of Aida and a Da Vinci exhibit just because it's something I enjoy. True, shared interests are important, but how do you ever expect to expand your own if you only date people who like all the things you like and do all the things you do? It's important to remember one of the cardinal sins of dating: don't try too hard to change your mate. After all, you can't expect to play Dr. Frankenstein and not wind up with similar results. If you find yourself unable to deal with some aspect of your Mr./Mrs. Right, either let the issue go or let the person go.

A wise man once said, "You can't always get what you want." While there is some truth in that, my little grasshoppers, let's not forget another piece of sage advice from our good friends Mick Jagger and Keith Richards. "You can't always get what you want / no you can't always get what you want / you can't always get what you want / but if you try sometimes, you might find, you get what you need."

SAFETY

should stay attuned to their feelings and thoughts," Hazard said. "Park in well lit areas at night and always be aware of your surroundings. But that's not to say things can't happen in the day as well."

Cell phones and emergency call boxes are an excellent line of safety, Hazard said.

"Knowing where the emergency call boxes are located is vital," Hazard said. "Many times the thing that really helps one's safety is the advent of the age of cell phones," which Hazard said are better than the emergency call boxes because most students have them.

Hazard also mentioned traveling with others and planning routes ahead of time.

"You have to think of a path to take," Hazard said. "These are things that maybe sometimes we don't give much consideration to, like falling back on our own good judgment and common sense."

The suspect sought by police is described as a 25- to 35-year-old male, possibly of Hispanic descent, weighing 180 pounds, and is around 5 foot 10 to 5 foot 11 inches tall. He has short, dark brown hair and possible puncture-like wounds on his face.

Todd placed special emphasis on objective six: improving the life of Kentuckians.

"Helping the Commonwealth is the key to the goal," Todd said, "not just national prominence. We will not make the progress we had hoped for, but we won't stand still."

In other agenda items, the Board approved several important administrative appointments, including the Executive Vice President for Finance and Administration, the Dean of the Graduate School, and the Associate Provost for Academic Affairs.

The Board concluded Tuesday's meeting with an evaluation of President Todd. Chairman Steve Reed offered high praise for Todd, noting his strengths, which included unprecedented accessibility and skillful handling of the budget crisis.

Reed did note that the recent addition of a chief of staff to the president's staff should assist Todd from juggling many tasks at once.

"When you care for someone as much as he does, you want to do it all yourself to make sure it's perfect," Reed said. "I've asked him to not spread himself so thin."

The Board offered a $100,000 bonus for the President. Todd, who donated half of last year's bonus to UK, accepted but said he was not sure what he would do with this year's bonus. He did mention that he would consider giving part of this year's bonus back to the university as well.

The board also approved former President Charles Wethington's $200,000 salary to assume an associate professorship at Lexington Community College. Wethington began his career in the community college system and eventually became UK president in 1991.

President Todd said Tuesday that Wethington's "distribution of effort" will be later decided and approved by Provost Mike Nietzel.

MODEL

However, one position is now open in the area of women's health: the Gloria Singletary Endowed Chair in Women's Health.

Janet Larson Braun, the Associate Director of the WHC, pointed out the consequences of the decision. "The domino effect is that the emphasis on women's health will likely be lacking," she said.

The WHC is modeled after U.S. Health Services Office of Women's Health, Braun said.

Braun has worked at UK for eight and a half years, a majority of those being with the WHC. She has no retirement plan.

"I'm considered one of those displaced employees," she said. Braun said several other departments would also be affected by this decision.

"We worked with people in each of the five colleges in the Medical Center, so all of the colleges will be impacted," she said.

Medical Arts and Photography

Medical Arts and Photography is another department affected by the committee's recommendations. It will be phased out on June 30.

"This center would be supporting specific projects and services that have a direct impact on this university's academic mission," said Kathryn Wong Rutledge, the director of Medical Arts and Photography, in reference to the new goal of the department after reorganization.

"This is probably not an anomaly, a lot of corporations are looking at their budgets and going through and looking at their services," Rutledge said.

Medical Arts and Photography was located as part of the Chandler Medical Center as a full service multimedia and photography studio. It provided graphic and web design as well as medical illustrations, clinical and studio photo processing and printing.

As of now, only two positions from Medical Arts and Photography have been transferred to the new Academic Teaching Support Center — another change brought on by the move to the Provost Model. Those positions are that of Medical Illustrator and a position in graphic design and multimedia, Rutledge said.

"I'm not quite sure how this will impact the clinical and research enterprise," Rutledge said.

The next step in the move to the Provost Model was the Provost's Committee of the design of an Academic Support and Technology Center. This was created on the recommendation of the Implementation Committee, according to a report. The purpose of the center is to bring instructional support to the colleges in a blending of digital and tradition instruction.

UKTV

The Committee recommended UKTV be phased out on August 18 after deciding it did not fit the model for the new Center, said Britt Davis, director of UKTV. He said he felt the Center was a "worthwhile endeavor" but did point out some flaws in the recommendation.

"I don't think they understood the consequences of eliminating positions that support the entire university," he said.

UKTV will not be entirely eliminated, Davis said, but only one position will be left. He expressed doubts at whether all of the programs that the department currently has could be maintained with only one staff member.

UKTV had several plans, including programs in the fall for advising and helping students with Financial Aid, Olympic Profiles that featured UK Athletes, and it had recently obtained a license to rebroadcast live performances.

"We've got a pretty successful track record for over 20 years here," he said.

Carol Spence, an employee of UKTV who has worked at the university for 23 years, will lose her job when UKTV is eliminated. She does not qualify for retirement and will also lose all her health coverage, she said.

"I think our mission is big enough to belong somewhere on campus," Spence said.
