

Floyd Circuit-Court

The Commonwealth of Ky. Plaintiff
Against } Affidavit.
Jacob Heff. Defendant.

The affiant James Fralry says that he was one of the jury that tried the defendant Jacob Heff at the September term ¹⁹¹⁶ of the Floyd Circuit Court, and believed that the defendant should have been found not guilty and so expressed himself as did other members of the jury, whereupon Monk Goble one of the jury, become angry and in a violent manner accused, Towler Mowford who expressed himself as favoring a verdict of not guilty, of swearing a lie, and rushed upon the said Mowford with a clenched fist and in a threatening manner - and in this manner ^{way} the verdict was returned decided in a manner other than a fair expression of opinion by the juror -
