Schuss!

Skiing past a trio of fallen skiers on Gatlinburg, Tennessee's Mt. Harrison, David M. Workman, a UK civil engineering freshman, is undeterred by the obstructing bodies. This weekend's ski trip was David's first, and his single day of experience enabled him to remain upright for another 40 feet before he also went down.

U Senate votes change in Honors

By DEBBIE MCDANIEL
Copy Editor

Incoming Honors Program students will have to maintain a cumulative grade point average of 3.0 or better to remain in the program, due to a new policy instituted yesterday by the University Senate.

The senate also passed a rule exempting students currently enrolled in the Honors Program from the ruling.

Honors Program Director Raymond Betts told the senate that approximately 60 of the 750 Honors students have a GPA below 3.0 this semester. He said the new average "makes as much sense in its own way as the 2.0 (required for graduation) in the University."

The new rule states that when an Honors student's GPA drops below 3.0 the director will consult with the student and decide if the lower performance is due to extenuating circumstances before dropping the student from the program.

Discussing their performance with him gives students a "court of appeal," Betts said, adding that extenuating circumstances include mental or physical illness and family problems.

The proposal which exempts students currently enrolled in the Honors Program passed by majority vote after a lengthy discussion.

The ruling which exempted present Honors students is in accordance with the "grandfather clause," which says when requirements for an undergraduate or graduate degree program are changed students have the option of fulfilling either the old or new requirements.

If students elect to fulfill the old requirements but find that the courses have been eliminated or substantially revised, they may substitute other courses with the approval of the dean of the college or the graduate school dean.

The senate also approved a new admissions policy for the College of Dentistry, which uses an initial screening process and interviews with three members of the admissions committee. The initial screening will be based on the student's undergraduate record including quality of the institution attended, academic load, grade point average and total credit hours — the Dental Admissions Test scores, letters of reference and information from the student's application form.

In other business, the senate approved a proposal eliminating the two-semester waiting period for students qualifying for a second bachelor's or master's degree.

For a second bachelor's degree in the same college, the college will set the requirements. However, when the second bachelor's degree is in a different college the student is eligible upon completing regular college requirements.

RAYMOND BETTS

This is designed to keep students from counting one course toward two degrees.

Two graduate degrees will not be granted simultaneously, however, and enrollment in two programs is not permitted.

Senate chairman Joe Bryant also announced:

— The senate's library committee is circulating a questionnaire dealing with objections, inconveniences and needs the staff might have concerning M.I. King.

— Senate committee nominations have been submitted to UK Otis President Singletary for action.

UK's Robinson Forest remains unspoiled but fires, strip miners pose threats

By CHRIS BLAIR
Staff Writer

UK's most expensive laboratory is not in the Chemical-Physics Building, but in a secluded area of Eastern Kentucky. It's worth hundreds of millions of dollars.

The lab is the 15,000-acre Robinson Forest, which contains lumber, coal and other minerals. In addition, it is one of the last natural watersheds in Kentucky and the UK Forestry Department's foremost source of environmental research.

Robinson Forest was donated to UK in 1923, a gift from lumber magnate E.O. Robinson, who was co-owner of Robinson and Mobrey Lumber Co. in the early 1900s.

Milton Noble, superintendent of the tract, said Robinson and Mobrey bought the forest from several landowners. After clearing almost all the marketable timber there, the two men abandoned their company and turned the forest over to UK.

Noble has lived in the forest his entire life, except for the few years that he spent in the military and college, and said his position as the forest's supervisor is a family inheritance.

"My father was the first superintendent of the forest. I took up that job in 1953," Noble said. "It's so beautiful there; I've never really thought about living anywhere else.

"The water is so clean you can drink it from the creeks without fear. We're not completely isolated in there, though. We have one of the best cable TV stations in the state."

Noble said small game and a few bobcats find the forest a refuge from surrounding strip mining areas. Because of wildlife preservation and research carried on, the forest is not open to the general public.

Although Robinson Forest is well guarded by University officials and legal barriers, several hazards threaten the life of the forest.

Noble said the top potential dangers are forest fires and companies that wish to strip mine the land.

"Last year there were no fires, but small fires have broken out (in the forest) over the years," Noble said. "In 1952 a big fire burned almost half of the forest. Fires are a potential problem every fall and spring. That's why anyone wanting to go there must get official permission from the University."

George Coltharp, UK forestry professor, said strip mining threats have been the greatest problem in recent years.

"Many small companies have been picking away at the forest's protective legal shield, but so far we've been lucky. If one group gets in it'll open the door for large companies who want to mine there.

"We all forestry faculty and staff realize the worth of the forest," Coltharp continued. "You just can't buy another forest, there aren't anymore that size in the state of Kentucky. Strip mining would negate all the research we've done so far."

Coltharp said UK's forestry research includes examining watersheds under harvesting conditions, checking for the effects which harvesting has on the quantity and quality of area water.

This is done by gauges that measure the water flow in area streams.

Regulations governing the use of Robinson Forest state that the gift was given "for the express purpose of agricultural experimental work and teaching, and for the betterment of the mountain people of Kentucky."

The forest is also used for tree management studies. A modern sawmill has been built there for educational demonstrations and turns out planking and other lumber which is used to build fences and buildings on University farms.

Coltharp said the forest is the most valuable property the University owns. "It's probably worth more than this (the main) campus.

"The land is expensive because of its coal, lumber and mineral resources. Coal underlies the entire forest," he said.

"Our inventory of what is there isn't complete," Coltharp said. "We do know that there is some petroleum in the forest. The water is especially important to our research because it is of such good quality."

Joe Burch, dean of students, said the University could strip mine the forest, but the proceeds would have to directly benefit the people in Eastern Kentucky through medical programs and other University outlets.

"The university does not want to mine that area because the research precludes," Burch said. "Introducing mining would be disastrous to conclusions from the research and will absolutely not let that happen."

Burch said there has been some disagreement over the forest's mineral rights between the University and companies that want to mine because old land deeds in Eastern Kentucky are in poor shape.

"We (the University) believe we own all the forest's mineral and surface rights," he said. "We would be prepared to defend out mineral and surface rights all the way to the Supreme Court."

Anderson's 26 leads Cats past Bulldogs

By JOHN CLAY
Assistant Sports Editor

Pass the word: The Cats are back. Behind freshman Dwight Anderson's 26 points the Kentucky Wildcats turned back the Mississippi State Bulldogs 80-65 last night at Rupp Arena.

The win was the second Southeastern Conference triumph for UK in three days and their seventh in the last nine games.

Anderson set a school record by hitting 18 free throws (eclipsing Cliff Hagan's old mark) in 23 attempts to run up the highest point total for an individual Wildcat this season. The slender swingman also pulled down a game-high 14 rebounds.

In fact it was at the free throw line where the Wildcats won the contest. The hosts hit on 40-of-56 from the charity stripe compared to a mere 17-of-29 for the Bulldogs.

After building a 35-30 lead at the half, UK pulled out to a 10-point advantage early in the second period at 41-31 on a layup and dunk by LaVon Williams and a layup by Anderson.

But the Bulldogs fought back, behind the outside shooting of Greg Grim, who led the losers with 22 points. With 13 minutes left in the contest, the Bulldogs pulled to within a basket at 47-45.

The Cats managed to stretch the lead back to 10 points with seven minutes to go, only to have that advantage cut in half with only 5:09 left on a 25-foot jumper by Grim.

But from then on the Cats connected on 14-of-19 from the foul line, outscoring the Bulldogs 16-6, and thus securing the victory.

Down the stretch, Mississippi State had to feel insecure as they watched six of their players foul out. Plus, the Bulldogs' fine 6-10 forward Ricky Brown played the final 18 minutes saddled with four fouls, which accounted for his four-point performance (11 under his average.)

The Wildcats' Kyle Macy continued to show that he has recovered from his recent slump by tallying 19 points for the Cats. Williams added 14, and Jay Shidler and Chuck Verderber (who was voted the game's Sixth-Man Award) contributed 10 and nine points respectively. Verderber's points all came from free throws. He connected on 9-of-12.

The win pushed Kentucky into fifth place in the SEC with an 8-7 conference record and a 13-9 slate overall. The Bulldogs dropped to 7-7 in the conference and 15-7 overall.

JEFFREY CUMMINS WAS CHARGED yesterday with the murder of a state police trooper in an apparent ambush Sunday night.

Trooper Clinton Eugene Cunningham, 29, of Frankfort was shot in the back with a rifle as he investigated a reported break-in at a grocery six miles north of Frankfort on US 127.

District Judge William Graham set an examining trial for Cummins, 20, of Franklin County, for February 20 and appointed attorney Mike Judy to represent him. Cummins was returned to the Franklin County jail in lieu of $55,000 bond set by Graham.

A state police spokesman at Post 12 at Frankfort, where Cunningham was assigned, said Cummins was arrested around 12:30 a.m. yesterday at his home a short distance from the scene of the fatal shooting.

DEMOCRATIC GUBERNATORIAL CANDIDATE TERRY MCBRAVER filed a group action complaint yesterday with the state Public Service Commission in an attempt to kill the automatic fuel adjustment clause.

McBreyer, who was joined by nine other customers of Kentucky Utilities Co., Lexington, also asked that the PSC return to customers all money collected under the controversial clause.

McBreyer told news conferences in Lexington that the complaint was the first step in challenging the legality of the procedure under which public utilities pass along higher costs to their customers.

"I am absolutely determined to abolish the fuel-adjustment clause," he declared, adding that if the commission rejects the complaint, a Franklin Circuit Court suit will be filed to accomplish the same purpose.

FARM WORKERS MOURNING THE DEATH of a colleague shot to death on a picket line stopped picketing during a valley-wide work stoppage yesterday as both sides tried to defuse the volatile Imperial Valley, Calif., lettuce strike.

Marc Grossman, a spokesman for the United Farm Workers union, said the one-day moratorium was being honored at most of the valley's more than 30 farms yesterday while union and non-union workers prepared to pay respects for the 28-year-old union worker killed Saturday.

An estimated 6,500 to 7,000 workers stayed off their jobs, Grossman said, leaving farms short of replacement help. A total of 10 farms are being struck by 4,100 farm workers.

The strike has already jeopardized about 40 percent of the nation's iceberg lettuce crop and has sent supermarket prices higher each week.

AMERICANS OVERWHELMINGLY FAVOR a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced federal budget because they don't trust politicians to put a lid on government spending, an Associated Press-ABC News poll shows.

The public, weary of continuing inflation which they blame in part on deficit spending, says cutting waste in the federal bureaucracy would save enough money to balance the half-trillion-dollar U.S. budget.

But Americans' distrust of politicians is so deep that they don't believe their elected officials will act. Thus, they are split over whether the deficit actually could be wiped out in the next few years.

The AP-ABC News poll found 70 percent of those interviewed February 5 and 6 favor a budget-balancing amendment. Eighteen percent opposed such a move, and 12 percent were not sure.

U.S. DEFENSE SECRETARY HAROLD BROWN arrives

in Israel today and will find strategic planners there preoccupied with two new threats to Israel's security — the upheaval in Iran and the reconciliation between Iraq and Syria. Brown's swing through Saudi Arabia, Jordan, Israel and Egypt is aimed at demonstrating America's commitment to those countries in the aftermath of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's overthrow by a mass movement seeking to rid Iran of Western influence.

The shah had nurtured important ties with Israel over the years, and these links were yet another target of the Moslem opposition in Iran. For one thing, Israel had imported an estimated 60 percent of its oil from Iran, oil that now will be cut off permanently.

Israeli officials contend they will be able to make up for the loss of Iranian petroleum, but the subject is likely to be raised in meetings with Brown. A long-standing U.S.-Israeli agreement commits Washington to make up for any Israeli oil shortage for five years.

Khomeini in power but Tehran in anarchy

Compiled from Associated Press reports

By GARY LANDERS/Kernell Staff

Puffed out

Jonathan Smith gives it his all last night during UK's Jazz Ensemble's concert in Memorial Hall. The program was directed by Vince DiMartino, a UK music professor.

Backers of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini struggled to keep their revolutionary victory from dissolving into anarchy yesterday. Bands of trigger-happy Iranians rampaged jubilantly through Tehran's streets firing weapons into the air.

Khomeini urged followers to avoid "arson, destruction and cruelty." He proclaimed that those indulging in such acts disobeyed "Allah's orders and are traitors to the Islamic movement."

But many bands of armed civilians, euphoric with their new power, appeared out of control on the first day after the fall of the shah-appointed government.

Khomeini aides asked civilians to turn in unauthorized weapons to local mosques. State radio, quoting hospital spokesmen, said Sunday's fighting in Tehran killed 417 people and wounded 989. At least 200 others died in earlier weekend violence.

It was reported that 150 persons were killed in the northeastern city of Tabriz and 44 in the southern city of Shiraz.

There were no reports of violence against the estimated 7,000 Americans still in Iran.

In Washington, President Carter said at a nationally broadcast news conference that he had been in touch with the government and "we stand ready to work with them."

To offset the net loss of 500,000 barrels of Iranian oil daily because of that country's year of political upheavals, the president urged voluntary conservation measures by Americans, including adherence to the 55-mph speed limit.

"The petroleum situation is not crucial now, it's not a crisis, but it certainly could get worse," Carter said.

Speaking in measured tones from a prepared statement at the start of the news conference, the president said the U.S. embassy in Tehran reported that followers of the new regime "have been very helpful in insuring the safety of Americans, and we have been consulting with them very closely." The developments in Iran could damage the administration's anti-inflation efforts by reducing oil supplies and driving up the domestic price of petroleum products. Carter said the cutoff of Iranian oil underscores U.S. vulnerability.

"A prudent public response early and on a broad-scale basis will make sure that any interruption in our economic system will be minimal in the future," he said.

The president, possibly seeking to maintain some level of U.S. arms sales to Iran, said he wanted to insure that "Iran is militarily capable of protecting her independence and her territorial integrity."

At Tehran's Intercontinental

Hotel, base for the Western news media, Khomeini supporters protecting the hotel fought a gunbattle with insurgents who tried to force their way in. Nobody was reported hurt.

Another armed group entered the Hilton Hotel and ordered some 400 guests, many of them Americans, to bring their luggage to the lobby to be searched. The guests later were allowed to return to their rooms.

Newspapers said 3,500 felons escaped from the country's largest prison, 45 miles west of Tehran, after insurgents opened the gates Sunday.

Two army generals including the former commander of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's Imperial Guard were killed during Sunday's violence. A third general was found shot dead at his home yesterday.

Supporters of Khomeini scaled off Tehran's airport, reportedly to prevent officials of the shah's regime from leaving the country.

There was no firm word on Bakhtiar's fate, but a highly placed source told The Associated Press he was under the protection of his old friend Mehdi Bazargan, prime minister of Khomeini's provisional government. Bakhtiar reportedly handed his resignation to Bazargan Sunday after the military said it would no longer support him.

UK Theatre plans to present a varied schedule

The second half of the UK Theatre season includes four mainstage productions and a number of smaller productions.

The first mainstage performance this semester is Tobacco Road, a chronicle of poverty in Depression-era Georgia that gives a humorous treatment to a tragic theme. It runs Feb. 20-24 and will be directed by Charles Dickens of the Theatre faculty.

Equus, a contemporary psychological drama and a success on Broadway, will be performed April 10-14 under the direction of Dr. James Rodgers, chairman of the Theatre Department.

Gold Dust, a musical loosely adapted from Moliere's The Miser, will be presented April 19 & 20 by the state touring troupe of the Actors Theatre of Louisville. Bananas, an old-style vaudeville show for children, plays March 6 in the Guignol. It is produced by the Southern Educational Theatre of Biloxi, Miss., which sends touring troupes to schools and other institutions in the South.

There is also the "At Random" series of shorter student-directed plays that are announced as scheduled.

The final offering is All-Night Theatre, a selection of plays also directed by students, performed from mid-evening to early morning at the end of the school year.

Tickets for Tobacco Road go on sale tomorrow at noon, $3 for students and $4 for all others. Reservations can be made at the Guignol box office in person or by calling 258-2680 from noon to 4:30.

Rod Stewart imposter checks into hotel

CAVE CITY, Ky. On the evening of Jan. 17, a young man checked into the Ramada Inn in Cave City and registered as Rod Stewart.

The fact that the guest spoke had been taking lessons to get rid of his accent since he had become an American citizen.

The man proceeded to hand out "tour passes" to residents of the town each inscribed "Free

The reporter, who also admitted to not being well

The reporter proceeded to contact Warner Bros. Records' publicity director Bob Merlis. Merlis suggested that the reporter ask the man claiming to be Stewart what was the nickname of the singer's assistant, Tony Toon.

The answer given was "Fritz," while the real Rod would have unhesitatingly answered "Annabelle."

The fraudulent singer immediately checked out of the hotel using travelers checks with the name "Darryl Craiger."

Stewart Craiger explained that he had used an alias to assure his anonymity while traveling. He also said an auto wreck had stranded him in Cave City after a trip to Atlanta to confirm plans for a U.S. tour.

Further research revealed that a man purporting to be Rod Stewart had two days earlier entered a music store in Bowling Green and looked over thousands of dollars worth of equipment with a promise to come back and purchase it. He never returned.

And where was the real Rod Stewart during all this tumult in the Bluegrass State? In Hawaii, vacationing. When reached for comment, Stewart said: "I'm very concerned about this. I certainly don't want anyone running around acting like me except me!"

Larry Niven's 'Magic Goes Away' delivers

The Magic Goes Away
Larry Niven
(Ace Books)

book review

Like the U.S. Post Office, Larry Niven usually manages to deliver. And for die-hard sword-and-sorcery fans, his latest effort is certainly worth the postage.

If science fiction and fantasy is regarded as the basement of literature, then the sword-and-sorcery subgenre has got to be the dark closet behind the rumpus room.

As a genre, it is somewhat limited. Inside the closet is an endless spiral staircase, a barbarian bulging his muscles, and a lady in metal underwear. The eerie laughter of a warlock may be heard in the background. And that's about it.

Nonetheless, while sticking to the limits, Niven has produced a good story. His wizards, warriors and beautiful ladies, while true to their types, have a touch of individuality. His crisp prose is a pleasure to read.

The Magic Goes Away is a bit short for a novel. Over half the thickness of this slickly packaged volume comes from the illustrations. While these illustrations are amusing, their entertainment value would be greater if all those tacky little folklords were out of the picture. The artist should either leave more to the imagination of the reader, or less.

Occasionally, the characters travel into rather cool environments for which the author has quite sensibly provided them with long robes. The artist, on the other hand, who does comic books at his regular office job, sticks to his linen cloths.

In case the reader is too dumb or distracted to catch on to what Niven is saying, the publisher has included an insulting explanation. Read it with your eyes closed.

New film to feature music from the Cars

The Cars have had several of their songs chosen for the soundtrack of the upcoming Orion/Warner Bros. film, On the Edge, due this summer, written by Charlie Haas and Tim Hunter and directed by Jonathan Kaplan. On the Edge has to do with the uprising of bored teens in a wealthy California suburb.

The Cars, by the way, will appear on this week's Midnight Special (1 p.m. Friday night Sat. morning on NBC). The group has been receiving quite a bit of acclaim lately. Not only were they voted Best New Group by Rolling Stone magazine, and nominated for several Grammys, their album is selling very well, thank you—it was recently certified platinum.

Also in the rock news, Jackson Browne and Graham Nash headlined three benefit concerts—one each in Los Angeles, San Diego and Oakland—as a protest against the proposed spring opening of the Diablo Canyon nuclear reactor in California.

At intermission, Dr. Helen Caldwell, author of Nuclear Madness, told the audience of the possible dangers of such a proposal.

Browne commented that he had "put as much preparation into these three concerts as we would into a national tour." He added that everyone involved was working for free. "A certain amount of lightness comes from the fact that we're doing something about it (nuclear energy)," Browne said, "that you are doing all you can do, for that matter. You're not sitting duck; you're not letting somebody roll over you."

Jackson Browne participated in the concert because he believes something must be done about nuclear energy, now. "We must decide whether the earth will remain an inhabitable planet," he said.

ACADEMIC OMBUDSMAN

This notice is to give you the privilege of nominating a professor to be considered for the 1979-80 Academic Ombudsman. The qualification for this person are:

1. Tenured member of the faculty. Beyond this his qualifications should be those which will permit him to perform the functions of his office with fairness, discretion and efficiency. It is important that he be regarded by students as one who is genuinely interested in their welfare and sympathetic to their problems. It is equally important that he be both temperate in his judgments and judicious in his actions. He must be firm and persistent in seeking to achieve prompt and equitable solutions to the problems which are brought to him. Because much of his success will depend upon his ability to utilize informal channels of communication and action, he should be a person able to develop and maintain cordial personal relations with a wide variety of students, faculty and members of the administrative staff. Above all, he must be a person of unquestionable integrity and resolute commitment to justice.

Colorado man builds icy art gallery

CRESTED BUTTE, Colo. (AP) Come spring, Ken Hall's huge ice gallery will melt in the bright Rocky Mountain sun. About $5,000 and hundreds of hours of work will go down the drain.

But the 28-year-old artist says that doesn't matter. He built the 6,000-square-foot "Gallery d'Ice" at the base of a Crested Butte ski lift to fulfill a childhood fantasy.

"I have carried on these childhood characters for 18 years and they appear in my art. They have grown up with me."

With $5,000 from Amax, International Corp., a mining firm, Hall built a palace out of 200-pound blocks of ice to house numerous ice statues, including his favorite, old King Bjubee.

He's been doing the same thing for three winters now. The latest version represents 400 hours of effort by Hall and 1500 hours of work by paid laborers who keep the Gallery d'Ice clear of the snow that has been falling in abundance this winter.

Hall charges a small admission fee and 25 cents for a ride on a 600-foot sled run that descends from the ice gallery roof into a courtyard.

Kansas legislators send 'basketball' bill into overtime

If you think that Kentucky is the only place where there is controversy over whether the state's largest school's basketball team should play other teams in the state, think again.

The same battle that has been brewing over the last several years on whether or not Kentucky should play the University of Louisville, is taking shape in Kansas.

According to the Daily Kansan (Kansas University's student newspaper) a push to force Kansas and Kansas State to play against Wichita State is currently going on in that basketball hotbed. Last week the Kansas House sent a bill to the Legislature. The deadline for classified ads is noon one day prior to the day of publication.

State Rep. Mike Glover, D-Lawrence, whose motion to send the bill back passed 58-50, said that the bill needed revision and that the schools should be given a chance to schedule the games on their own.

The bill would require Kansas and Kansas State's men's and women's basketball teams to play the Shockers one game each year. Under the bill, the home team would keep the profits.

"I think the athletic departments will take the initiative now," said Glover. "If the games aren't scheduled before the next session of the Legislature, we can make the bill state law."

However, State Rep. Mike Meacham, R-Wichita, a sponsor of the bill, said two older state schools, particularly Kansas, would not make a good faith effort to schedule the games.

"The athletic directors from KU and K-State did not appear before our committee hearings on this bill," he said. "We've been blacklisted."

The bill was almost killed when 49 representatives voted to add Barton County Community College to the list of teams that would have to play Wichita State.

However, 51 representatives voted against the amendment.

CRISIS IN MID-AIR

The excitement, tension and drama rampant in the Air Traffic Control Center of a busy airport, where life-or-death decisions are made instantaneously by over-worked members of the Control team, is the background of Crisis in Mid-Air, to premiere on The CBS Tuesday Night Movies, Feb. 13.

Peppard stars as air controller Nick Culver, considered too old for the high-tension, fast-paced world in which he labors and haunted by a recent mid-air collision for which the investigator (Morris) is trying to hold him responsible. Culver's wife (Miss Grassie), unable to compete with the job her husband loves and its accompanying problems, leaves him.

As nerves are stretched to the breaking point, a crazed gunman (Forte) disables an aircraft with his wild shots as it is taking off with Culver's wife and a stewardess (Miss DuBarry) aboard.

campus briefs

The Student Bar Association will sponsor a "Trivia Bowl" today at noon in the Law Building Courtroom. The program, which will appear in a "Family Feud" format, will feature selected members of the law school faculty competing against law students.

A listening skills workshop for adult students (those 25 or over) currently enrolled at UK will be held from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday in 342 Classroom Building.

Conducted by Dr. Robert Bostrom, UK professor of communications, the workshop will emphasize the ability to retain orally presented materials. The Kentucky Comprehensive Listening Test will be administered, scored and the results discussed.

The session also will include how to pick out what is important in a lecture and hints for increasing retention. The free workshop is sponsored by the student division of University Extension.

Interested UK students 25 and over should contact Jane Stephenson in 106 Frazier Hall, or call 257-2881.

A free public lecture entitled "The Administration of Public Welfare Programs" will be presented at 3:30 p.m. Friday in 245 Student Center.

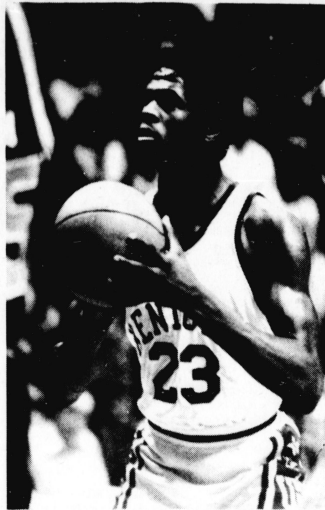

The speaker will be Dr. James R. Dumpson, assistant director for program development and evaluation of New York Community Trust. He is former dean of the graduate school of social services at Fordham University, and also a former commissioner of social services for New York City.

The lecture is sponsored by the UK Master of Public Administration program and will deal with problems of administering large welfare programs and proper management techniques to resolve major problems.

Dr. Grayson Wheatly, a mathematics education professor at Purdue University, will speak on "Recent Implications and Developments of Brain Hemisphere Research" at 4 p.m. Monday, February 19, in the President's Room of the Student Center.

The free public lecture is sponsored by the College of Education's department of curriculum and instruction and the graduate school.

Wheatly is expected to discuss recent research involving the monitoring of brain hemispheric activity and its implications for the types of reasoning involved in a person's thinking and problem-solving processes.

Farmers protest prices

By BRIAN KING
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — About 200 tractors paraded under police escort to the Lincoln Memorial in a blinding snowstorm yesterday as farmers continued their protest for higher farm prices.

The tractors formed a tractorcade that, with the storm, slowed traffic on major streets to a crawl all afternoon and into the evening. The demonstration was scheduled to last five hours, but was cut short because of the weather.

At the monument, about 300 farmers and their families stood on the steps in the bitter cold while Walter E. Fauntroy, the District of Columbia's non-voting representative in the House, thanked them "for opening our eyes" to the plight of the farmer.

An unidentified protester opened the rally by taking note of the birthday of Lincoln, "a true advocate of human rights. That's what the farmers are talking about. That's why we're here, but President Carter doesn't care."

Five days of hearings on the farmers' complaints begin today before the House Agriculture Committee, with nine members of Congress scheduled to give their views.

American Agriculture movement representatives testify tomorrow and Thursday.

Earlier yesterday, an Agriculture Department spokesman said federal security officials had decided to close the department's doors to protesting farmers at night.

The spokesman, Barry Jenkins, said the decision means the department will "go back to normal security" that prevailed before the American Agriculture protesters arrived here Feb. 5.

The farmers had been allowed to roam freely in the department after working hours. Scores of them spent the nights in various offices, sleeping on couches and the floors.

The Advisory Committee on Student Code Revision has tentatively approved the following proposed revision of the Code of Student Conduct. The Committee solicits written comments on this proposal. The comments should be addressed to Chairperson, Advisory Committee on Student Code Revision, c/o Office of Vice President for Student Affairs, 529 Patterson Office Tower, 00273, and must be received no later than Friday, February 23, 1979.

Copies of "Student Rights and Responsibilities," which contains the Code of Student Conduct, may be obtained from the aforementioned office.

Material to be added appears in bold-face type, and material to be deleted appears within parentheses.

ARTICLE V - STATEMENT OF FINANCIAL DELINQUENCY

- |         |   |
|---------|---|
| Section |   |
| 5.1     | Student Responsibility  |
| 5.11    | The University expects the student to be financially responsible and not be delinquent in his/her financial obligations to the University or to any department or division thereof, including room and board payments to sanctioned fraternal student organizations. Such obligations shall not include fines and penalties assessed against the student by other than University officers.               |
| 5.2     | Unmet Financial Obligations   |
| 5.21    | (Financial obligations that are not met within 10 days after the date due shall be reported in writing to the proper office. Obligations to any division or department of the University shall be reported to the office designated by the Vice President for Business Affairs and Treasurer.)  |
|         | Offices or departments of the University, with previous approval of the Vice President for Business Affairs, will notify a student twice of an unmet financial obligation owed to them exceeding $20.00.  |
|         | If not paid within 60 days, the office or department will notify the Registrar's Office that the student is delinquent.  |
| 5.22    | (The appropriate business office shall notify the student of the financial obligation. If the student does not settle the obligation by the date designated on the notice, he/she shall, subject to regulations promulgated by the Vice President for Business Affairs and Treasurer be considered delinquent, and that office shall notify the Registrar.)   |
|         | After the Registrar has been so notified, the Registrar shall not allow the student to register, transfer credits, be readmitted to the University, or receive the graduation diploma which certifies the degree earned until the office or department declaring the delinquency notifies the Registrar that the obligation has been met or until the statute of limitation on collection applies. |
| (5.23)  | After the Registrar has been notified that a student is delinquent, the Registrar shall not allow the student to register, or to transfer credits, or certify the student for graduation, until the Registrar has been notified in writing by the appropriate business office that the obligation has been settled.)  |
| 5.3     | Disputed Liability  |
| 5.31    | If there is a dispute as to whether or not a student is legally liable for a financial obligation asserted by the University, and the student challenges such obligation through either timely administrative or legal means, then the sanctions of Article V with respect to registration shall not apply until final resolution of the dispute.   |
