Jones anxious to start work

Some newly elected senators consider impeaching president

By Brian Bennett
Senior Staff Writer

T.A. Jones had been named 1994-95 Student Government Association president for just a few minutes when the rumors began to fly.

Some newly elected senators, many of whom were miffed at the presidential outcome, began tossing around a political hand grenade — the possibility of immediately impeaching Jones.

But Jones said yesterday that he isn't worried about being rebuked before he even gets comfortable in his new position.

"Everyone was just a little upset because I won. It was such a big shock," Jones said. "I think everyone will cool down. In fact, I'm sure they will."

Recent relationships between the Senate and the president have bordered on the tempestuous, and Jones may face a certain inherent amount of ill will since he is both an SGA outsider and a non-greek. Yet he is confident he can smooth out any differences that come along.

"I have great faith in (the senators), the fifth-year architecture student said. "They wouldn't be doing it if they weren't serious about serving the students. I think that when they see how I'm running the show, they'll see that we have their hand in it as much as I do."

"I want to have a new and improved working relationship with the Senate."

Part of the groundwork will be laid this week as Jones will be sworn in, attend his first Senate meeting on Wednesday and begin to choose his executive cabinet.

That executive cabinet will be a qualified and diverse one, Jones promises. Jones plans to continue his "New Spirit" campaign — which garnered him a broad-based coalition of student support during the election — into the cabinet selection process.

Jones said he will consider people already working in SGA, as well as the other candidates who ran for president and vice president, especially Mark Engstrom and Misty Weaver.

"It's not going to be just a pay-off," Jones said of his cabinet positions. "If someone's qualified, they'll be considered."

The Charleston, S.C., native

wants to implement some of his ideas right away. Through vice president Benny Ray Bailey, whose father is a state senator, the new president will try to set up a meeting with Gov. Breenton Jones and lobby for two more student seats on the Board of Trustees, including a community college student representative.

Jones also plans to establish an SGA phone line that will contain a calendar of student organization events. And in to keep in touch with his constituency, Jones will stage his version of the Fireside Chats with a weekly Sunday call-in show on WRFL from noon to 1 p.m.

The new president will move into the SGA office this week. Make that office/studio, as Jones plans to bring his architectural tools with him.

"I'll be spending a great deal of time down there," he said.

Four students from S. Africa to cast ballots

By Mike McClain
Contributing Writer

Four UK students from South Africa will depart for Atlanta today to take part in history. They plan to cast ballots in their homeland's first-ever multiracial election.

Tomorrow's presidential election did not come about without a struggle. Thousands of black and white South Africans have lost their lives fighting to demolish the racially exclusive political structure there.

The policy of apartheid in South Africa has long been held in contempt on the world stage. The white-led government, despite the divestment and trade sanctions imposed during the Carter and Reagan eras, only recently has shown a commitment to changing the status quo.

This new, conciliatory spirit begs the question, "Why now?"

Martin Bosman, one of the South African students making the trek to Atlanta, says South African President F.W. De Klerk simply bowed to the inevitability of social change.

"He chose to negotiate whites out of power, and in doing this, also negotiated a position of power for whites in the new South African government," Bosman said.

"It was a simple choice. He chose integration over disintegration."

Bosman compared De Klerk to the former president of the now-dismantled Soviet Union, Mikhail Gorbachev. Gorbachev saw that his Communist government was in the preliminary stages of dissolution, Bosman said. So he decided to reign over the chaos rather than watch passively.

De Klerk, a gifted politician, also saw the writing on the wall, Bosman said.

Bosman, a member of the Xhosa tribe, says the people of South Africa have united to defeat a common enemy despite the agendas of various black factions, the largest of which are the African National Congress, led by Nelson Mandela, and the Inkatha Freedom Party. A silent ideological war over the direction of black activism has raged between the two groups for more

Plan could change greek party rules

By Kate Campbell
Contributing Writer

The Interfraternity and Panhellenic councils have developed a new policy to co-sponsor fraternity and sorority parties this fall, greek officials say.

The joint policy includes provisions to distribute alcohol only to partygoers wearing wrist bands after they have been checked off a guest list. Guests younger than 18 would be banned.

But the plan, which is part of the latest revision of the IFC's Risk Management plan, may meet opposition when it reaches the final vote.

"I believe that the sororities will have no problem in passing these, but the fraternities will," said Grant Vorhauer, IFC executive vice president and co-chairman of risk management task force.

Some greek members say a major obstacle to the proposal is an unwillingness of many fraternities and sororities to change.

"I think some of these changes are good, but I don't think most people want change," said Julie Meecham, a member of the Alpha Gamma Delta social sorority in response to the new plan.

In addition to enforcement of guest lists, the plan calls for partygoers 21 and older to wear wristbands.

A policy change regarding the distribution of alcohol also is under consideration. There are two possibilities. The first is a "bring your own bottle" approach, under which individuals would bring their own alcohol.

The alcohol would be turned over to greek officials as the guest enters the party, and then it would be redistributed to that individual over the course of the night, as long as he or she is of legal drinking age.

The second option would be to hire a vendor to set up a bar at the function, serving only those 21 and older.

Fraternity parties that feature a different drink in each room, called "around the world" parties, would be banned.

Enemies say Nixon was flawed, 'great'

By Donald M. Rothberg
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Like many politicians, Richard M. Nixon had enemies. But he kept a list.

Compiled by White House aides, the Nixon Enemies List included people as different in their politics and lifestyles as Alabama Gov. George Wallace and actress Jane Fonda. It also numbered members of Congress, journalists, and leaders from academia, business and labor.

Until John W. Dean IV, Nixon's counsel, told the Senate Watergate Committee about the list, the people on it didn't know it existed.

Many of them now remember the former president, as a flawed man. But as his death Friday placed Nixon in the headlines once again, some others said they believe his achievements will ultimately outweigh his defects.

"Watergate was horrible," said Leonard Woodcock, who made the list when he was president of the United Auto Workers Union. "But the mishandling of it by the White House was what astonished me."

But for all that, said Woodcock, "in the last several years, while he was still living, people were changing their view and forgetting what they looked upon as the bad side and remembering the positive things."

Even before he ran against Nixon in 1972, George McGovern was on the list.

McGovern said he thought it "a little risky" to try to evaluate Nixon's place in history. The Water-

Hansen snags 2nd national title

By Ty Halpin
Sports Editor

So, you're Jenny Hansen, and you've just won your second consecutive gymnastics national title. What do you do now? Go to Disneyworld?

"We're going skiing," Hansen said yesterday in a telephone interview from Salt Lake City. "This has been a long year, and I'm ready to just have some fun."

After winning the all-around competition Thursday night in Salt Lake City, Hansen won two more titles Saturday on the vault and balance beam. She averaged a 9.9375 on two vaults and a 9.975 on the balance beam.

Hansen has had a long, grueling year. After winning the 1993 national title with few expectations placed on her, the sophomore was expected to perform this year with the looseness and perfection she had the year before.

"I had a lot of pressure from different places," Hansen said. "I wasn't going out for the fun of it. I felt like I had to do it. Later in the year, I was not caring about scores as much as I was the fun part of it."

Hansen finished the year with a flurry. She won the NCAA Southeast Regional with near perfection before heading to nationals. Still, Hansen felt the heat before winning her second title.

"I was nervous because I didn't want to let anyone down," she said. "I put so much pressure on myself."

Going into the final two events, Hansen had plenty of pressure on her. She needed to average 9.9 on the balance beam and the floor exercise to win the title.

"I didn't know what I needed to get, and that probably helped me out," Hansen said.

Fellow Gym Cat Robin Ewing placed 39th in the championships. The freshman was hurt by an 8.675 on bars. Ewing, who finished with a 37.650 overall, said she is ready for the season to be over.

"Much more of that, and I'd be in a walker," Ewing said, referring to the yearlong pounding she has put on her body.

At the start of the season, Ewing had a goal of reaching nationals. Now that's she's reached that plateau, she's ready for a new challenge.

"I want to get back here and improve individually," she said. "I would like to finish in the Top 16 next year." The Top 16 all-arounders are classified as All-Americans by the NCAA.

Ewing, a freshman, enjoyed performing in the long shadow cast by Hansen.

"There wasn't any pressure on me this year," Ewing said. "I didn't have to worry about answering many questions like Jenny does. They just bound her."

As for Hansen, next season probably will test her consistency as

Forum for review of Ag college planned for Wednesday

A public forum is scheduled at Seay Auditorium Wednesday at 1 p.m. as part of a review of the University's College of Agriculture.

The forum is intended to give the public a voice in the current and future direction of the college.

Each forum begins with an open session. Then individual groups will meet with each of the four review subcommittees — planning and evaluation, degree program planning and evaluation, future direction of the college and performance of the dean.

Everyone interested in the college and its programs is invited to attend the forum. Students who cannot attend, but who want to discuss any aspect of the college, may contact review committee chairman Lyle Sedler at 257-1299.

Kernel wins KIPA awards

Staff report

The Kentucky Kernel received awards for every section of the newspaper, including first-place honors in six categories, during a statewide awards banquet this weekend.

The Kentucky Kernel won a total of 31 awards at the Kentucky Intercollegiate Press Association convention in Morehead, Ky. The organization is made up of newspapers from nearly every four- and two-year college and university in the state.

Executive Editor Dale Greer won first place in sports column writing and Staff Writer John Abbott captured first place for an album review in the arts section.

Other first place awards went to News Editor Lance Williams for editorial writing and Jeff Bulew, a former Kentucky Kernel photography editor, for photo essay.

The Kentucky Kernel also received two awards for continuing news stories. Greer, Williams, Sports Editor Ty Halpin and Editor in Chief Tyrone Beason won second place for coverage of a campus suicide last spring. Eight staffers combined for third place on a series of Black History Month stories last February.

In the features and diversions section, Arts Editor Nina Davidson and David Lavender, a former Kentucky Kernel arts editor, both won honorable mentions for personality profiles, and Williams won second place for a feature story.

Lavender finished third in the review category with Staff Writer Matthew DeFoor winning an honorable mention. Abbott won second place for a general interest column and Beason finished third.

The Kentucky Kernel sports section won several awards, including a second-place sports game story for Bennett and a second-place sports feature story for Halpin. Halpin also won a third-place award for sports news. John Kelly, a former Kentucky Kernel sports editor, won an honorable mention award. Mark Sonka, a former Kentucky Kernel staff writer, won an honorable mention for a sports column.

Several layout awards went to the Kentucky Kernel, including a third-place finishes for front page design and for a spring 1993 sports page layout, and honorable mentions for layouts of a fall 1993 sports page and a feature page.

Joe Braun, a former Kentucky Kernel editorial editor, won a second-place award for opinion page content.

The 1993-94 basketball preview won a second-place award for best special section and Tyrone Johnson, a former Kentucky Kernel design editor, won a second-place award for informational graphics.

Dennis Bonifer won a second-place award for a Kentucky Kernel house advertisement.

QB situation still in limbo

Curry remains undecided, but Speedy in first

By Doc Purcell
Staff Writer

Entering Saturday's Blue-White scrimmage, the battle for the UK football team's top quarterback spot was wrought with question marks.

And at the conclusion of the action, little had changed, leaving Wildcat head coach Bill Curry all summer to ponder the answers. "The quarterback battle is cloudy in terms of who will be ready come August," he said. "I don't know the answer to that."

With incumbent starter Pookie Jones considering concentrating on a pro baseball career and ultimately ending his run with the UK football program, the Cats signal-caller race has four chief contenders.

But, according to Curry, none made a strong case for the starting job during the weekend's yesterday, a 59-42 defensive victory, scored by way of a complicated system devised by the Wildcat coaching staff.

Here's a brief summary of the candidates and their performances:
•Redshirt sophomore Jeff Speedy, a Franklin Tenn., native, entered Saturday's match-up sitting atop the depth chart at the quarterback slot, and he continues to hold that sought-after position. Before being the victim of a brutal hit by free-safety Melvin Johnson in the second quarter, Speedy completed four of his six pass attempts for a minuscule 31 yards and tossed one interception.

While his passing stats weren't overly impressive, he was a bit more productive on the ground, rushing six times for a total of 40 yards.

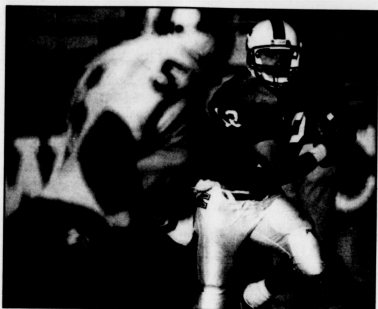

•Redshirt freshman Matt Hobbie, who is currently holding down the back-up role, seemed to make little progress in his bid for the top spot during the scrimmage as he turned in passing and rushing stats that were mediocre at best.

He completed 50 percent of his pass attempts (10 of 20) but only for 33 yards, while rushing nine times for 40 yards.

Those stats, coupled with three interceptions, made for a less-than-desirable outing.

•Redshirt freshman Billy Jack Haskins stands third among the Cats' quarterback hopefuls, but his stats didn't reflect it.

The Paducah native completed

seven of his eight throws for 86 yards and one interception. He made little impact on the ground, however, running just one time for no gain.

•Junior Eric Gray, a City College of San Francisco transfer, showed flashes of brilliance throughout the game.

His stats help solidify the claim that he has a rifle arm, completing four passes for 122 yards, including a 60 yard bomb to receiver Donnie Redd. It was obvious that Gray was unfamiliar with the system, however, as 10 of his pass attempts fell incomplete.

Curry said the winner of the quarterback battle will hinge a great deal upon who works hardest this summer — a season that should provide the answers the coach is waiting for.

Trumbo tricky as Cats win 6-1

By Brett Dawson
Assistant Sports Editor

Troy Trumbo could do without the first few months of the baseball season.

Trumbo, who pitched masterfully down the stretch last season, was back to his old tricks yesterday in pitching a gem to give UK (23-18, 6-7 Southeastern Conference) a 6-1 win over Florida (28-15, 11-3).

It was the Wildcat's second straight win over the Gators after dropping the opening game of the three-game series 15-6 on Friday. The Cats beat UF 11-5 Saturday afternoon. Trumbo pitched his first career complete game, giving up eight hits and striking out seven to move his record to 2-4.

UK and Florida played spectacular defense in yesterday's game. The first two games of the series had been marred by 13 errors between the two teams.

The Gators didn't make an error yesterday, and the only UK miscue, second baseman Chip Rhea's boot of a sharp grounder, turned into an out as Rhea recovered and fired to the plate to nail Florida's Brandon Marsters on his way to home plate.

Though the defense was working, neither team could shift into the high offensive gear each had seen earlier in the series. UK scored first on a first-inning solo home run from catcher Brad Hinderman.

UK leftfielder Chad Green, known more for the speed of his feet than that of his stick prior to this weekend, hit a two-run shot in the fifth, his second home run in as many days.

After Jeff Abbott walked on four pitches, third baseman Chris Gonzalez hit a mammoth two-run dinger to left to cap off a four-run UK inning.

The homer was Gonzalez's third in two games and his 13th of the season.

Florida's Chan Perry led off the top of the seventh with a long home run to left off Trumbo. Perry's seventh homer of the year cut the UK lead to 5-1.

The Cats added insurance in the eighth when Eddie Brooks knocked in Hinderman with a sacrifice fly, the only run of the game that didn't score via the home run on Saturday.

Despite the long ball show, the real story yesterday was Trumbo. The sophomore, who was expected to be among the SEC's finest pitchers this season, entered the game with an ERA of 6.92.

"My curveball was coming along today, and my fastball, velocity wise, was back," Trumbo said. "I just really felt great when I was out there pitching today."

Trumbo was spurred on by the largest and most vocal UK home crowd of the year, including a large group from Danville High School, Trumbo's alma mater.

"I had butterflies at the beginning, seeing everybody from my hometown that I hadn't seen in a while," Trumbo said. "After I got the first inning over, I felt real good."

Trumbo walked only two and worked out of several jams with strikeouts. But perhaps the most impressive statistic of the day was his pitch count — only 102 pitches in nine innings of work.

"This is the way Troy pitched down the stretch last year," UK head coach Keith Madison said. "We've been patient with him and hoping that he'd do the same thing, and he's been gradually doing that over the last two or three weeks."

Notes:
•Abbott grounded out in the first, then walked three straight she drives for a three-peat. Besides such an astounding feat, Hansen also is chasing the record for most career gymnastics championships.

Utah's Missy Marlowe has won five national championships. With this year's three titles, Hansen now totals four. Hansen has two years of eligibility remaining.

"This year was so different, so dynamic," Hansen said. "I'm glad I won. I'm also glad it's over because I'm tired."

Hansen climbed all the mountains put in her way this year. It may be somewhat fitting that she ends it by zooming down one.

Rollins attacks life on 'Weight'

Singer creates a world in which hatred & intelligence can blend

Rollins Band "Weight" Imago Records

By Matt DeFoor Staff Critic

Something can be said about self-deprecating lyrics and blatant hatred. They can be powerful weapons or instruments with which to develop an attitude that allows you to sit on high judging all with a self-righteous smirk.

Unlike others, Henry Rollins has decided to take his hatred, low self-esteem and intelligence and mold them into a jagged weapon that splits the skull with wrenching vocals and teeth-grinding punk angst.

'Weight' leaves behind the dull drone of The End of Silence and plows through to a new musicality for the Rollins Band. Chris Haskett's guitar is less shrill and blisters through the entire album. Rollins' trademark vocals are no less intense, pounding relentlessly into the calmest of seas to create a froth of anger over being used, sold out, taken for granted and simply hated.

Rollins meets out his anger with tortured and shredded vocals. "Fool" and "Divine Object of Hatred" are songs about trying to keep your head above the violence of the swarming masses trying to get a piece of you. On these tracks, there are no redeeming qualities to Rollins' world. There is only pain, hatred, violence, sacrifice and death.

"Tired" pulses along with a meandering, free jazz style. It proves to be an extension of his spoken-word eloquence. Haskett's guitar tinkles eerily as Rollins mutters, "I'm so tired of my lies/I'm tired of the secrets that I keep/I'm so tired of looking inside myself/Trying to find something."

"Civilized" thrashes and flails with bitter words and equally tongue-biting intensity as Rollins rants about gun control. He sings, "A gun in your hand makes a fool out of you/A gun in your hand makes a target out of me."

Rollins and company paint dark pictures of success and pop culture with "Icon." With the recent death of Kurt Cobain, "Icon" appears to be aimed at pop culture heroes for thinking their flames will shine on. A criticism also of old rock'n'rollers who have passed their prime, Rollins chastises them: "It doesn't matter what you say/Because they'll always find some meaning in it anyway."

'Weight' ends its tortured trip through existence with "Shine," a definitive anthem against suicide. Distinctively more upbeat, it plods along with a slow funk groove provided by Haskett and bassist Melvin Gibbs.

Somewhere buried in the onslaught of pulverizing sound and battered vocals, hints of reaffirmation appear.

Life, no matter how desperately wronged, struggles to survive, if only for the few short moments before society takes it into its suffocating embrace.

'Girls' beat 'Gun' in box office race

Associated Press

The new Western "Bad Girls" earned an estimated $5 million over the weekend, corraling the nation's top spot at the box office, industry sources said yesterday.

The romance comedy "Four Weddings and a Funeral" was expected to finish a close second with $4.7 million, according to preliminary weekend estimates. Final box office figures will be released today.

In third was the coming-of-age film "The Inkwell" with $2.5 million, followed by "The Paper" at $2.4 million.

The police comedy "Cops & Robbers" and "D2 The Mighty Ducks" were tied for fifth with $2.3 million each. "Threesome" and "Major League II" were tied for seventh with $1.8 million each.

"Brainscan," a virtual reality tale starring Edward Furlong, and "Schindler's List" each were estimated at $1.7 million to round out the top 10.

"The Paper" placed fourth in the top 10 this week.

"White Fang 2: Myth of the White Wolf" and "Naked Gun 3 1/2 The Final Insult" with $1.6 million apiece.

"Serial Mom" with Kathleen Turner plunged on its second weekend with an estimated $1.4 million. It was No. 11 with $2 million in its first weekend.

gate burglary took place during the 1972 campaign, which Nixon won by one of the great landslides in presidential campaign history.

Nonetheless, McGovern said Nixon "went a great way toward restoring himself as a respected figure, especially on foreign policy."

"All they do is cause problems," Leigh Cunningham, co-chairwoman of the Risk Management Policy task force, said of the alcoholic tours.

The rationale behind the new policy is to protect the fraternities and sororities from undue liability and to protect students from harm, said Jay McCoy, assistant dean of students for fraternity affairs.

"We want to find a way to still let students have fun, but in a safe way," McCoy said. "The students have got to understand that these are not the '70s."

The vote is expected to take place at the first fall meetings of IFC and the Panhellenic Council.

Others on the list remember Nixon on less kindly.

Actor Tony Randall said he assumed his active opposition to the Vietnam War earned him a place among Nixon's enemies.

"It was a moment of extraordinary elation," he said of the discovery that he was on the list. "The phone never stopped all day long. My press agent called and said, 'Tony, how did you get on the list?' ... It was an honor, like winning an Academy Award."

John Brademas was a Democratic congressman from Indiana when he found out he was among the president's enemies.

"I thought he was a highly intelligent man but his problem was character," said Brademas, who served as president of New York University after he was defeated for re-election in 1980. "He did not really respect the Constitution of the United States or the laws of the land."

Asked whether he believes young people will understand this, Brademas said, "For some young people, Nixon, like (John F.) Ken-24 hours, Grundlingh said.

ANC President Nelson Mandela, imprisoned for almost three decades under apartheid rule, is widely expected to be elected president.

Across the United States, representatives of the South African government and the ANC said they have fielded hundreds of phone calls over the past two weeks.

Many say the election holds lessons for Americans.

"The reasons for apathy that exposed, is a fixture of another era."

"One wonders at times to what extent people even read contemporary history."

Sid Davidoff, an aide to then-Mayor John Lindsay of New York, a liberal Republican, was described on the list as a "first-class SOB."

Now a lobbyist in the city, Davidoff characterized Nixon as "dangerous and overreaching."

"Nixon was a scary president," he said. "Though he did some great things in foreign policy, he was still scary in that he devoured government and was almost a despot."

New York public relations executive William Ruder said he probably made the list because he attended a peace group luncheon. He said it was while on the enemies list that he was audited by the IRS.

"The sense of malevolence will always linger—the flaw in his character," he said of Nixon.

ist here do not yet exist in South Africa," said Dennis Brutus, chairman of Africa Network, a clearing house for information about the continent.

"With us, there is a belief that a vote can make a substantial difference."

than three years.

Bosman said many South Africans resent the Inkatha party and its leader, Chief Gatsha Buthelezi.

"He is man of double agendas," Bosman said. "He is portrayed as a man who wants to end racism.

But, instead, he wants a separate homeland for the Zulus in which he wants to be president."

Bosman added that granting the demands of all South African tribes would "recreate racism in black face."

"The Zulus want the land that was originally part of Chaka Zulu's kingdom," Bosman said.

"At one time, all of South Africa belonged to Chaka Zulu."

But in 1994, that "is not perceivable or possible for the common good of all," he said.
