Win stats, lose game Fate follows Wildcats

By BARRY FORBIS
Kernel Staff Writer

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—The atmosphere was perfect for football. The thermometer read 63 degrees, the skies were clear and the rustic Nittany mountains provided a beautiful backdrop for the north end zone.

Despite the picturesque setting, an impending cloud—completely unnoticed by the crowd of 60,225—hovered over the Kentucky bench. Call it a cloud of fate, a cloud of ill-omen or simple a cloud of bad luck.

Whatever you label it, this cloud, which proved disastrous in two previous games at Kentucky's Commonwealth Stadium, followed the Wildcats to Penn State University. And, for the third game in a row, Kentucky outplayed its opponent but failed to register a victory.

Gay coalition seeks status from senate

By DAVID BROWN
Kernel Staff Writer

Several senators will try to block acceptance tonight of a student senate bill to support the efforts of the Gay Student Coalition to gain University recognition. In a telephone survey, 12 senators indicated they would support the bill, four senators were opposed and seven were undecided. The remaining senate members were unavailable for comment.

If the bill passes, the senate would support efforts of the gay coalition to achieve university status as a student organization. The group would also be allowed "adequate use of materials and office machinery."

Similar bills were passed by the senate last year and during the 1975 summer session.

The gay coalition is seeking the senate's support "to pave the way for future action," Naomi French, coalition vice president said.

Hal Haering, representative at large, has vowed to fight the bill. "Homosexuality is morally wrong. I'll fight from every angle; use any excuse," to defeat the bill.

"The bill will be controversial, but a couple of us have gotten together; we'll cut it down fast. I'm not even going in with an open mind, Haering said.

Engineering senator Steve Petrey said "There will be two strong factions. The Greeks are strongly opposed (to the bill) and there are some for it."

Last year, a coalition of Greeks formed to rescind senate sponsorship of a Gay dance.

"It's a question of legality," Petrey said. "If it's not legal (to be a homosexual) then I don't see how I can support the bill."

"I also have to consider the engineering student. I tend to think they would not like me to support the Gay Student Coalition," Petrey said.

Janet Patterson, business and economics representative said she also will not support the bill.

"I don't see gay lib as a political issue," Patterson said. "I oppose the bill on moral grounds. It is against my moral upbringing."

"I am not, however, going to be any part of a Greek coalition to oppose the bill," she said.

Jim Newberry, representative at large, said he will support the bill unless "someone presents an objection that I have not considered." Newberry also questioned what was meant by "adequate use of materials and office machinery."

"I feel everybody ought to be represented," said Sharon Stevens, pharmacy representative.

Rhonda Crowder, home economics representative, agreed. "They (the coalition) should be granted equal opportunity with other groups on campus," she said.

Mike McLaughlin, representative at large, summed up the feelings of those who were undecided, "No comment. I haven't really made up my mind, yet. It's a controversial subject. No comment."

For Athletic Association Blue and White Fund raises money

(Editor's note: This is the first of a series concerning financing of University athletics, particularly the Blue and White Fund.)

By MONTY N. FOLEY
Kernel Staff Writer

Since near capacity crowds are filling Commonwealth Stadium for Wildcat home football games, financial problems in the athletic department might come as a surprise to the average observer.

But Assistant Athletic Director Frank Ham says "it's a struggle" to support athletic departments because of rising costs for scholarships, plant facilities and living expenses.

According to the UK Athletic Association's financial report for fiscal year 1975, varsity athletic teams generated total revenues of $3,887,000—an increase of about $700,000 over fiscal 1974.

However, 1975 fiscal year expenses also rose. The financial report placed 1975 total expenses at $3,448,000—an increase of more than $400,000 over 1974 costs.

Thus, the net Athletic Association income for the past year was approximately $439,000.

The Athletic Association operates as a non-profit University corporation and has investments in government securities and banking certificates of deposit. The Athletic Association report (reports) the market value of these accounts at $1.9 million.

To supplement income, Ham said, the Athletic Association received approximately $350,000 in private contributions to the Blue and White Development Fund—a program designed by Athletic Director Cliff Hagan in 1972.

Under the terms of the Blue and White Fund, contributors may buy season football tickets in sections of the stadium reserved exclusively for them.

While priority sections are located throughout the stadium, donors who give more than $1,000 to the fund, may sit in the cantilevered areas on the stadium's west side if they buy season tickets.

This cantilevered area, according to the Blue and White fund brochure, is located between the upper and lower stands, and has benches with backs.

According to a UK Office of Development gift report and the football program sold at each game, 33 contributors donated at least $1,000 to the fund between April 1 and June 30, 1975.

Among major contributors were Kentucky Central Life Insurance Companies,

The Lexington Herald-Leader Co., Conventrix Food Mart, A.E. Walker General Contractors, Southern StripSteel Inc., and Valhalla Farm.

Along with the $1,000 contributions category, Blue and White Fund gift categories include: $500-$999; $250-$499; $100-$249 and $25-$99.

Ham said 5,500 seats are reserved for Blue and White contributors, with 20 per cent on the east side and 80 per cent on the press box side of the stadium.

After making the tax deductible donations, Ham said contributors must request season tickets at the normal price of $8 per seat per game. Ham said all contributors, except those in the minimal donation category, ($25-$99), have to purchase four priority tickets in the reserved sections.

In addition to priority seating, contributors giving $250 or more are awarded reserved parking at no extra cost. Donors must contribute each year to retain ticket and parking priority, Ham said.

Ham said annual scholarships are $3,400 for out-of-state student athletes and $2,600 for each in-state scholarship grants. "We have about 200 athletes who receive full or partial scholarships," Ham said.

Gay students need total SG backing

Believe it or not, UK gay students have been fighting to gain something as simple as student organizational status for about three years now.

They've tried everything from directly suing the University, only to be turned down by the 6th U.S. District Court of Appeals, to putting the cart before the horse and holding a gay dance on campus — establishing their presence, however unrecognized.

This year's move toward recognition — asking Student Government (SG) Student Senate for support — is in part a repeat of last year's attempt. According to Gay Students' Coalition Vice President Naomi French, the move will "pave the way for future action." But, unfortunately, what was easily attainable in the past may now be a struggle.

Although the Student Senate gave lip service support to gay students' efforts in 1974-75 to gain recognition, it did not agree to sponsor the proposed gay dance. Free University had to do that.

This year gay students might not even be able to obtain that lip service support when the bill comes before the senate tonight.

When contacted Sunday night, two Greek student senators, Janet Patterson and Steve Petrey, mentioned the existence of a Greek coalition opposing passage of the resolution. Memories of another Greek coalition, which successfully blocked SG sponsorship of the gay dance, come floating back from last year. And other memories, of present SG President Jim Harralson and Vice President Glenn Stith — who led the fight against sponsorship of the dance in the Student Senate — also resurface.

What it all boils down to is that there's a good chance the senate will not pass the bill. Of the 24 senators contacted Sunday night, only 12 said they would definitely support the bill. Eight said they "didn't know" — which probably means they're waiting to see how everybody else votes — and four said no. But 26 is only two-thirds of the 36-member senate.

If the senate does not pass the bill it will be in violation of the SG constitution, which states in its preamble SG will "combat and destroy all vestiges of racial and sexual discrimination and inequality within the University community."

What is worse, the action could represent the realization of a reactionary wave which has been slowly taking over UK student politics since 1970 when students burned down an ROTC building during anti-war demonstrations. Perhaps such an action was a little radical for many, but it certainly did not warrant a reversal to the present fascism. And even though the word sounds rhetorical, if the Student Senate denies UK gay students support, it is nothing short of fascist.

Protesters also have freedom of speech

By Linda Cobb

In the Monday, Sept. 29 edition of the Kernel ("Dayan has a right to speak freely"), the editorial page was begun with a paragraph stating that the essence of recent issues concerning Gen. Moshe Dayan's visit was his "right to speak". If then, this is the case, we should be more explicit, precise, and to the point in every possible manner to gain insight into issues. So also, do the "protesters" have a right to speak. And speak they did, although it would seem that they did nothing more the eve of Gen. Dayan's appearance, than hurt insults.

Initially, confusion lies in the lumping together of varied groups of "protesters" and their actions. The demonstration was begun by the Iranian Student Association (ISA) marching down the Avenue of Champions, chanting across the street from Memorial Coliseum. Their posters and chants included nothing to purposely agitate or insult any particular person or group, rather concerned an issue. To further explain their position, the ISA, which demonstrated in the cause of the Palestinian Liberation Organization, distributed leaflets to the public as they entered the lecture. The leaflets were entitled "Questions to Consider". The ISA made every attempt to present their side of the issue at hand in a clear manner, that the general public be more informed and thereby able to view the issue more objectively.

As stated in the Sept. 30 edition of the Kernel ("Demonstrators peacefully protest Dayan lecture"): "The ISA has been working for about a month in preparation for the protest" should include that this group, in attempting to present their side of the cause, organized Palestinian Week, during which films were shown free to the public in the Student Center theater, including question-answer sessions afterward.

The ISA printed and distributed many flyers inviting all interested in the Middle East issue to attend. If this type of "protest" is anything but positive, I should like to know. However, the "protesters" are not presented to the public eye in this manner. For example, observing from my position across the street, the demonstrators were well-behaved, contained in a restricted area, and I noted many conversations of other observers viewing the demonstration. A large group of young people, gathered to see if there would be any excitement, remarked several times, "Let's go get drunk and join them." In addition, several others played football in the street between the observers and demonstrators until police asked them to leave. The protesters themselves were non-provocative, and made every attempt to speak without any violent incidents, as was stated.

"Many of the demonstrators covered their faces with scarves, towels, and floppy hats in order to avoid political repercussions in their home country." This alone, should indicate to the public the general character of the protest. Protesters risk loss of jobs, suspension of visas, and injury to friends and family residing in their homelands in order to speak out, and present their case. Not many maintain this kind of courage and conviction in their beliefs, and attempts to speak peacefully, against a majority who are against them. Certainly they would show as much character as Gen. Dayan, surrounded by devout followers, supporters, police and security agents of every kind.

The fact that "Dayan's current U.S. speaking tour has been plagued by protests at many colleges and universities where he has appeared" would not lead us to believe the worst of the protesters. It would be better stated that there has been pacifist opposition to Gen. Dayan's policies, during his speaking tour.

The inclusive statements concerning an man carrying a pistol to Gen. Dayan's University of Arizona appearance, have no valid connection whatever with the type of organized, pacifistic protests among student group organizations, especially of the type representative of the PLO at the University of Kentucky. Why then, is this included with ISA protest demonstrations, whereby it provides allegations of violent intentions of this group? The citing of the Lexington Communist Collective, the Young Socialist Alliance, with ISA protests gives the impression of socialist tendencies of ISA, confusing the real issue, which is their support of PLO. It was also stated that Gen. Dayan was treated "politely excepting for jeers or boos from protesters." If he has a right to speak, do not they also? I think we should take a closer, more objective look at the situation of protesting and "protesters," not judging, intimidating, or representing one group in favor of another in standards, terms, and manners, favoring either side of an issue.

Linda Cobb is an English senior.

Festival

Editor:

The Second Annual International Bicentennial Festival is set for October 9-12. It will take place in Memorial Coliseum and will feature over 100 exhibits.

The 33-hour celebration will be heightened by demonstrations of early Kentucky crafts such as shoe making, basket weaving and printing on a hand press. The art of making woolen fabric will be portrayed from shearing the sheep to weaving the woolen threads into cloth.

In addition, to the numerous culture books and hourly entertainment, the festival will feature 20 food booths, French quiche and roasted chestnuts in newspaper cones, Greek pastries, East Indian curried rice are only a few of the foods that will be sold.

Free to all who enter are printed handouts listing Kentucky firsts in the U.S. — such as the fact that Mother's Day was first celebrated in Kentucky.

I hope many UK students will take this opportunity to experience a little of the world and learn a lot about their Kentucky heritage.

J-Board Harralson, administrators considering revisions

By DAVID BROWN
Kernel Staff Writer

The present method of selecting the University Judicial Board is unworkable, said Robert Zumwinkle, vice president for student affairs.

"The real bottleneck has been with senators," Zumwinkle said. Since the J-Board selection process was approved three years ago, every Student Government (SG) president has had difficulty getting nominations for the board, he said.

A temporary J-Board was established at the University in early August. "I used the eight or nine nominations I had at the time—attempting to be representative of the colleges," Harralson said.

According to student code rights and responsibilities, the SG president is to choose a 26-member board from nominations by senators. However, only six J-Board members hear a case.

Jim Harralson, SG president, said he has received only 25 of a possible 76 nominations. He said he plans to name a Judicial Board from nominations received by Oct. 15.

"If a college is not represented, it will be because a Senator has not done his job," Harralson said. Each senator is asked to nominate three persons.

T. Lynn Williamson, assistant dean of students, is concerned that due process for students is not available because senators fail to submit nominations.

"If we can not follow the process (of selection as described in the code) then we don't have full due process," Williamson said.

Zumwinkle indicated that he would not approve nonrepresentative selections. "If representatives are chosen from nominations of eight or nine senators, I'll have trouble with that. But if one nomination comes from each senator, I won't have any trouble," he said.

Zumwinkle must approve J-Board members selected by the president.

Harralson has proposed adoption of the random method of selection used last year when a J-Board was needed to adjudicate a constitutional question for SG.

"The J-Board is too political," Harralson said. "It ought to be selected like a jury (randomly). It seems logical to select it that way."

The random method is "worth considering, but the average student is not interested" in serving on the J-Board, Zumwinkle said. "We approached six students for every one that served last year."

Williamson supports the random selection method because "no biases or political motives would be involved."

"We're going to have to study new methods of selection and compare them with other schools," Zumwinkle said.

Positions on judicial boards are considered an honor at other schools, Williamson said. Several universities have training programs which must be attended by judicial personnel, he said.

Fund promotes athletics

To comply with National Collegiate Athletic Association guidelines, Blue and White Fund donations must be maintained by the Office of Development in a reserve account. Trudey Smetanko, development office employee, said, "All we do is take the money and deposit it into a special account. We fill out a monthly ledger with the names of contributors and the amount of the gift."

Blue and White Fund season ticket holders represent only a small percentage of all season ticket holders, Ham said. "Thirty-five thousand other seats are available for season ticket purchase—for persons who aren't contributors to the fund," he said.

Faculty and staff personnel requesting season tickets are eligible for a special ticket plan. Assistant Ticket Manager Alice Woods said faculty and staff get a 25 per cent discount on tickets. "We've had this discount plan for years," she added.

After reserving about 40,000 seats for season ticket sales, about 15,000 seats remain for students, Ham said. "If the students don't request all of them they go on sale to the public."

Although students don't pay directly for individual stadium seats, University Controller Henry Clay Owen said an athletic fee of $6.25 is deducted from each student's semester activity fee.

Corea and Return to Forever hesitant to label their music

By JAY RHODEMYRE and PATRICIA DOOLING
Kernel Staff Writers

Any pre-concert press conference with a known subculture music group can boil down to a rehash of their latest press release. Surprisingly then, talking to Chick Corea and Return To Forever before their concert Wednesday was a very pleasant task.

The group, Corea, Al DiMeola, Lenny White and Stanley Clarke, was chatty and loose, obviously enjoying everything they're doing, which includes making some bread these days from personal appearances and album sales.

They all made it perfectly clear that their main goal is communicating their music to the audience. "Our satisfaction doesn't come from having a fantastic private jam session, but from performing for the audience and seeing the smiling faces; that's real harmony and satisfaction," said Corea.

An aspect of the unity in the group is that they don't worry about how difficult a passage may be to play.

Corea explained that this leaves the group completely free to communicate; the music becomes instinctive to them.

Chick Corea, chatty and loose, obviously enjoying it.

White, who has had no formal musical training, said that compromise among the band members is not a strong factor. They each have a style of their own with likes and dislikes. They all compose so they all get a chance to do each other's style.

When asked how they would term their music, the group's guitarist, DiMeola, was hesitant to label their music as any style in particular. They all took offense at their music being called jazz-rock fusion.

DiMeola simply termed it contemporary and said the group doesn't aim its music in any one direction. Corea said they sit back and think about it after it's done and not until then.

Corea was asked how he liked having other artists do his songs.

He said he is always curious how someone will interpret his work. "I was listening to one of my songs by Herb Alpert and halfway through it I suddenly realized that it was one of my songs!"

DiMeola then announced that all the members in the group would have new albums out soon. Included is the original unreleased album by Return To Forever.

With that Corea said he was hungry. Their road manager took the cue and quickly adjourned the press conference.

Sitting informally in the coliseum, the members of Return To Forever display a tremendous affinity for one another. They know they have a good thing going.

DiMartino directs Jazz Ensemble in concert of contemporary music

By STEVE LAYMAN
Kernel Staff Writer

The UK Jazz Ensemble will present what can best be described as a "heavy" concert under the direction of Vincent DiMartino, Oct. 9 at 8:15 p.m. in Memorial Hall.

The band will cover many facets of today's contemporary music in the concert and will feature two blues numbers by trumpeter Thad Jones who has gained a reputation in jazz circles with his creative and coloristic writing and arranging for the Thad Jones-Mel Lewis Big Band.

A new composition by UK faculty member Dick Domek, entitled "Trombone Job", will be fronted by the band for the first time in public.

The ensemble will also venture into the world of pop and rock with a Don Sebesky arrangement of the Lennon-McCartney tune "Uncle Albert-Admiral Halsey". The concert will close with a funky trumpet feature, "Gospel John", from the high flying Maynard Ferguson band.

DiMartino, director of the jazz program at UK, was educated at the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N.Y., and taught music for two years in the Rochester public schools before coming to UK. His professional experience covers not only jazz but orchestral and wind ensemble music. He played first trumpet in the Eastman Orchestra and has played in the Cincinnati Orchestra.

In the field of jazz, DiMartino has free-lanced with Dave Brubeck, Gerry Mulligan, Dizzy Gillespie and Chuck Mangione.

Discussing the jazz program at UK, DiMartino said the band has a double purpose, the first being a lab-type experience in contemporary musical idioms. He hopes to prepare the future music educators in the band for problems they will encounter in the interpretation and performance of today's music in the "real world."

Secondly, he sees the band as a prime source of practical playing experience and exposure to the public—something needed by any musician if he/she is to successfully grow and mature.

DiMartino's commitment to the jazz program at UK is nothing short of total. In his three years here, he has helped the jazz program grow from one band to two and possibly a third.

The concert Thursday is free and open to the public.

Penn State's Woody Petchel, one of many fine offensive backs for coach Joe Paterno, was the Nittany Lions' second leading rusher Saturday when his team defeated UK 10-3. Petchel, a senior, ran for 31 yards in six carries. Chasing him is senior defensive end Rick Fromm.

Cats fall to Penn State 10-3

The Wildcats lost to 10th-ranked Penn State, 10-3, but the visitors led in virtually every department.

Kentucky dominated in rushing yardage (240 net yards to the Nittany Lions' 151), total yardage (295 to 232), pass completions (seven to five), possession time (37 minutes to 23 minutes) and pass interceptions (The Wildcat defensive unit picked off three Penn State aeriels, and the Nittany Lions intercepted one UK pass).

Yet, Kentucky still lost. "It was really a very frustrating thing," Kentucky head coach Fran Curci said in a quiet dressing room afterward. "These kids deserve a lot more than what we're getting them. We outplay everybody. We do everything it takes to win, but we can't get a break."

In their 14-10 loss to Kansas two weeks ago, the Wildcats led in rushing yardage (213 to 184), passing yardage (33 to 17) and total yardage (246 to 201).

In their 10-10 tie with Maryland a week ago, the Wildcats dominated in the ground game (264 net yards to 82) and total yardage (264 to 157).

Penn State's first scoring drive covered 80 yards in 13 plays, ending with a one-yard scoring plunge by junior fullback Larry Suhey.

PSU quarterback John Andress, who passed for more than 200 yards against Iowa last week, teamed with split end Dick Barvinchak for passes of 15, 13 and 28 yards in the successful march. That final completion came in a third-and-13 situation and enabled the Nittany Lions to reach the Kentucky 24-yard line, their deepest penetration to that point.

Seven plays later, Suhey dived over right tackle for the touchdown. Chris Bahr's kick gave Penn State a 7-0 lead.

The other scoring drive came on Penn State's next possession.

A 10-yard run by junior fullback Duane Taylor kept the hosts' hopes alive in a crucial third down situation. A 14-yard gain on an end reverse by Scott Fitzkee, a personal foul penalty on Kentucky's Tony Gray and a 16-yard pass from Andress to Barvinchak accounted for three more first downs as Penn State marched to the Kentucky 13-yard line.

The Nittany Lions finally scored on a 29-yard field goal by Bahr.

Kentucky's only points came on a 36-yard field goal by John Pierce. Pierce, who had missed on 11 of 13 tries this season before the successful kick, failed on earlier attempts from 44 and 41 yards away.

Late in the second period, Kentucky reached the nine-yard line before PSU defensive back

Tom Odell intercepted a pass from Derrick Ramsey.

The Wildcats reached the nine-yard line again in the final quarter, but a desperation pass by Cliff Hite in a fourth-and-six situation fell short of a diving Dallas Owens.

"I knew I had to throw it low, but it was too low and away," Hite said. "I couldn't find my primary receiver (Pete Gemmill) at all, but I saw Dallas. I tried to force it."

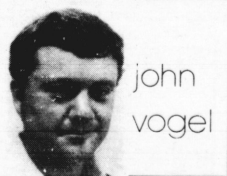

The jinx lives on. "But I think it ended today," Hite said. "I don't know why it happened the way it did, but this team's not going to put up with this too long. We have real offensive potential. We're not about to give up."

"We have no choice now," he said. "It's all SEC (Southeastern Conference) from now on. We've got to win."

Fan enthusiasm is high at Penn State

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—At 10:30 p.m. Friday Penn State student homecoming festivities were reaching a frenetic pace.

On College Street (how original) the sidewalks were packed with students on their way to the Lion's Den bar, Hi-way Pizza Shoppe, Don's Do-nuts or Campus Casino entertainment center.

john vogel

The Campus Casino was jammed full of students with quarters until 2 a.m.

The pizza shoppe did a brisk business until 1 a.m. when it sold its last pizza.

The doughnut store stayed open all night, and as of 2:30 a.m. (when I left), its cash register was still ringing every other minute.

This scene sound familiar at UK the night before a home football game?

Well, believe me, football is taken as seriously at Penn State as it is here in Lexington.

I was astonished to find the student's enthusiasm to rank with UK fans' spirits. After all, Penn State President John Oswald, when he was head man at UK a few years back, came out publicly against raising football to be worshipped by all campus citizens.

Head Coach Joe Paterno, himself a firm believer in the student-athlete, was another reason I thought football at Penn State would be found to rank second to academics.

Enthusiastic fans back football

Somewhere along the trail I was misled.

Jeff Young, student newspaper sports editor at Penn State, helped me to re-evaluate the seriousness which students take of the highly successful program here.

"Everyone is into football here," Young said. "Homecoming is a little bit extra, but what you saw on College Street last night happens nearly every weekend.

"The fraternities here are especially serious about Homecoming weekend," Young said. "The people I know in fraternities prepare at least four or five days in advance for a Saturday home game.

Fraternities were not the only groups taking advantage of home football game weekends, but Young, himself a fraternity brother, said he knew students were wrapped up with Nittany Lion football.

"The stadium is filled by noon for an afternoon game, (it was Saturday)," Young said. "The students are especially wrapped up in the alma mater song."

Why is that?
"Oh, they don't know the words to the song," he said. "They just sing 'We don't know the goddamn words' over and over.

"It fits real well with the tune," Young pointed out.

Dave Morris, Young's assistant, said he was surprised to find I had a preconceived notion on Penn State and its relationship with weekend football.

"Heck, we don't overemphasize academics here when a big game is coming up," Morris said. "Everyone comes out to get drunk and have a good time.

"Paterno talks about having a good student-athlete, but believe me, if he had a chance to sign a recruit that didn't have much talent upstairs, that wouldn't stop him.

"And besides, this student-athlete publicity here has been blown out of proportions," Morris said. "I took a class last year with two football players and they never showed up but the first time. I hear they got an 'A' for the class, too."

"Now I'm not saying my boys are perfect angels and go to class every day," Paterno said.

this different from what other students do."

I haven't heard about the two players who were supposed to have skipped classes and still got an 'A'. My players are above that."

"The weekends when Penn State plays a home football game the students are really enthusiastic," Paterno said. "Dr. Oswald and I talk of sports having its place within the overall academic structure here. I think students here do place sports in its proper perspective. Studies and classes do come first and that goes for sports teams as well.

Perhaps it's a winning program, Paterno said, "but enthusiasm is pretty high here."

John Vogel is the Kernel sports editor and his column appears weekly in the Kernel.

It Sounds Incredible

BUT EVELYN WOOD GRADUATES CAN READ

JAWS IN 41 MINUTES

At That Speed, The 309 Pages Come Across
With More Impact Than The Movie.
In Living Blood, You Might Say.

You can do it, too. So far, almost 1,000,000 people have done it. People who have different jobs, different IQ's, different interests, different educations have completed the course. Our graduates are people from all walks of life. These people have all taken a course developed by Evelyn Wood, a prominent educator. Practically all of them at least tripled their reading speed with equal or better comprehension. Most have increased it even more.

Think for a moment what that means. All of them - even the slowest - now read an average novel in less than two hours. They read an entire issue of Time or Newsweek in 35 minutes. They don't skip or skim. They read every word. They use no machines. Instead, they let the material they're reading determine how fast they read.

And mark this well: they actually understand more, remember more, and enjoy more than when they read slowly. That's right! They understand more. They remember more. They enjoy more. You can do the same thing - the place to learn more about it is at a free speed reading lesson.

This is the same course President Kennedy had his Joint Chiefs of Staff take. The same one Senators and Congressmen have taken.

Come to a free Speed Reading Lesson and find out - It is free to you and you will leave with a better understanding of why it works. Plan to attend a free Speed Reading Lesson, and learn that it is possible to read 3-4.5 times faster, with better comprehension.

Degrading

Editor:

In response to John Vogel, Kernel sports editor, I feel, as many UK students do, that he degrades UK football. In these times of rebuilding it is really unfair to the football coaches and players to have to read such pessimistic material regarding UK football games, as this reporter has already proven himself wrong in his predictions of football scores and also this season's record. Wouldn't it be fairer to be optimistic toward the team and their capabilities? UK has already proven several things this season. For one thing, it has one of the best defenses in the SEC and also the nation, and a majority of the fans are more optimistic than pessimistic about UK football.

Just ask yourself this question: Would you find such articles downgrading football programs in such schools as Tennessee, Alabama or Auburn? Did these schools obtain powerhouses with such pessimistic views from students and their school papers? If UK is to be a power house in football, it will be because of the good job that is being done by Fran Curci and his staff and also with optimistic support of all UK students and even Kernel reporters. Let's all back the cats.

Predictions

Editor:

I find Sports Editor John Vogel's "prediction" that Pittsburgh will beat Cincinnati in the playoffs truly amazing. He must be a disciple of Jethro Bodine's school of thought to come up with that one. Vogel states lack of "team play" will doom the Reds as it did in the 1973 playoffs against the Mets. I doubt it.

A team that wins nearly 110 games, has the second best team batting average and the third best ERA earned run average in the National League has something going for it. Moreover, a mental lapse and great pitching are the reasons why the Reds lost to the Mets, not lack of "team play." Cincinnati's superb blend of speed, power, defense, pitching and bench will prove fatal to

Mountains

Editor:

Mindy Fetterman's article in Thursday's Kernel on Alice Lloyd students at Caney Cottage ("Living in Caney College," Kernel, Oct. 2) shows that Sinking Creek telescoping continues in this generation. How can you define an Appalachian? Give us your sociological "sub-culture" or non-funded "minority" labels if you will, but please none of this "give-away" soft voice twang "hillbilly mud-slinging." Appalachians are, contrary to Fetterman's distinction as "apart from others," a part of UK. The University is a conglomeration of cultures—each contributing to the total fabric. I agree it's time for the upcoming Appalachian Seminar to the mountains. Only 2-3 hours up the parkway, the mountains are there for all who wish to telescope and romanticize.

Satire?

Editor:

Will wonders never cease? Jon Murgino's rebuttal to my article, ("A Defense of the UK Bus Cutback" Kernel, Sept. 22), would seem to indicate so.

I am compelled to point out to Murgino that an essential element of all satire is an indication that it is just that—satire. While the skillfulness of my indication could be debated, I wish to draw Mr. Murgino's attention to the summary of my defense: "Why do something sensibly when there is perfectly illogical...way to do it?"

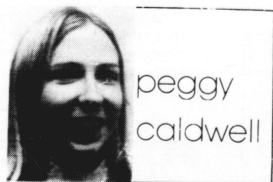

It is indeed unfortunate that Mr. Murgino completely misread my article. We really are, after all, on the same side.

'Good Ole Boy' takes his own grits

When a friend of mine—his name is Pate, but that's not important—announced last spring that he was moving from Nashville, Tennessee, to St. Louis, Missouri, the sole comment of the only bona fide Good Ole Boy in the room was "Take your own grits."

Now what is a Good Ole Boy and what would prompt him to say a thing like that? Andy Griffith is the perennial Good Ole Boy, even when he's pushing crisp Ritz crackers on the tube, and one strongly suspects that Opie, under the watchful eye of Aunt Bee, grew up to be one. I thought Dennis Weaver was a Good Ole Boy until I found out that he is a preacher in some bizarre California sect. Good Ole Boys almost have to be (nominal) members of the Southern Baptist Church or the Church of Christ.

Ned Beatty in his roles in "Deliverance" and "Nashville" is a Good Ole Boy, especially in the latter, with his white shoes, ban-lon shirt (with a tie), and his affection for both Gwenn Welles and for bumping in the night with the young, polished, Kennedyesque advance man (who was far too polished and blue-suited to ever aspire to Good Ole Boydom). Beatty has a right to be a Good Ole Boy; he's from Louisville.

It is, to be sure, an ephemeral quality. Politicians of national stature, even though they be Southern, are never Good Ole Boys, but they might be accepted into bar room enclaves of those who are. George Wallace is not a Good Ole Boy; his brother Gerald is. That's probably because Gerald sells liquor—the lubricant and common denominator of the species—and rarely appears on television. Jimmy Carter would like to be a Good Ole Boy, and he rolls up his shirtsleeves—neatly—at rallies and state fairs, but he is entirely too urbane for permanent admission to the vast confraternity. As a GOB might put it, Carter is slicker'n owl shit, and that's too slick.

A strict constructionist might be tempted to define the Good Ole Boy as a blue-collar type with a pick-up truck and a gun rack. Not so fast there, son. The Good Ole Boy can drink Jack Daniels (but not Scotch) out of a paper cup as well as he can suck on a beer can. He may even be a high university official. His style of management as well as of politics, is essentially laissez-faire, back-slapping, nonaggressive manipulation. He lets nature take its course, treating events with the same deference as a maiden aunt.

The Good Ole Boy's female counterpart is the Sweet Ole Gal, but a woman is not born to this distinction. She must be anointed by the boys. A GOB's sister is often a Sweet Ole Gal, but not necessarily. She is, however, sacred. Hence, while Lyndon Johnson may well have been a Good Ole Boy before he left Texas (even after he was in the White House, remember he was once just folks enough to show the world his gall bladder scar), Lady Bird could never have been a Sweet Ole Gal because she promoted Keeping America Beautiful (whatever that meant), about which a GOB doesn't give a rat's ass. It impinged on his personal freedoms because it meant he couldn't throw his Dixie cups and Falls City cans around the country club lawn.

Again, Ned Beatty as Lily Tomlin's husband in "Nashville" exemplifies the Good Ole Boy vis-a-vis females. Because Gwen Welles had earlier taken off her clothes, however hesitantly, she was automatically fair game, but he pounced as politely as one can, with the standard GOB formula of flattery and self-indulgence. In fact, they are obsessed with sex and football, not necessarily in that order, but are just too polite to speak of the former in mixed company and/or the Masters-and-Johnsonese of the East. Imagery and sports terminology are primary modes of expression: much goes unsaid, but little is unnoticed. Florence King, who wrote a delightful book called "Southern Ladies and Gentlemen," advised Southern ladies never to take bananas to work for lunch. I would go so far as to say that any object longer than it is wide, when seen by a GOB in the possession of a female, is an indicator that she wants it. Good Ole Boys think all women want it; so there are many illegitimate children and Tennessee Williams-type scandals in the South, but GOB's rarely stoop to rape.

A friend of mine—whose name is not Pate, but that's not important—believes that the Good Ole Boy syndrome is a rural, not an exclusively Southern, phenomenon, a reflection of what he terms "the abandonment of identity and ideal standards and the result of consensus thinking" which has invaded all sectors of society and ultimately led to the breakdown of continuity and philosophy—in short, the ills of democracy, which are non-regional. Hence the Atlanta bankers in white shoes and the chic Kinseyites of Manhattan.

Sure, Maybe. It is my own belief that the Good Ole Boy, whether he wears a white hood or a hard hat or no hat at all with his leisure suit, is inextricably bound to the South and its history. He is the misundstood, well-meaning individualist in the novels of Thomas Hardy (a rural English type who might well have been related to the landed gentry of the Old South). Southern men are the only American men (not counting Vietnam) who have ever gone down in military defeat, seen their towns and fields burned and their women raped—and this generation has not forgotten the Great War of Northern Aggression any more than those who survived it. Just watch the Kappa Alpha's drag out the rusty grey uniforms in the spring or ask any Mississippi boy about Vicksburg.

To an extent, the same thing is going on now, in the name of progress. Savannah still stands, but other Southern cities are beginning to look like little plugs of Chicago dropped in the tobacco fields by helicopter. And the Good Ole Boy remains as jealous as ever of his womenfolk and tenuous history, thinking fondly of 5 p.m., when he can belly up to the bar to drink beer and talk filthy before going home to pick up his wife and six kids for church services. Such contradictions are inevitable in a subculture trying desperately to hang on to its machismo in the face of change.

To paraphrase the writer John Egerton, Dixie has been Americanized, and not always ameliorated in the process. For the Good Ole Boys, the only thing to do is roll with the damn punches, ma'am.

Fayette voters may get no say on demerger

FRANKFORT (AP) — A state Court of Appeals order Monday makes it unlikely that Fayette County voters will have a chance to say how they feel about the merged county-city government.

Justice James B. Stephenson upheld a Fayette Circuit Court ruling denying a temporary injunction requested by opponents of the merger. Stephenson had been designated by the Court of Appeals to hear motions in the case.

The injunction might have put the question of separating the city and county again before the voters in the November general election. It would have prohibited Fayette County Clerk Charles Baesler from not placing the issue on the ballot after being petitioned to do so.

Baesler, who was responsible for certifying the signatures on the petitions, said the number of petitioners fell 420 short of the 6,103 required. Fifteen per cent of those voting in the last mayoral election would have to petition to have an issue placed on the ballot.

Arson named as cause of Jefferson school fire

LOUISVILLE (AP)—Arson has been blamed for a fire Monday that caused major damage to a Jefferson County elementary school—the seventh fire in three days at or near schools in the county.

At least four of the fires were caused by arson, fire officials said, including the one at Semple Elementary Monday that severely damaged one classroom.

"There was absolutely no doubt it was arson," said Maj. William Foushee, head of the Louisville Fire Dept.'s arson squad.

Foushee said a window had been broken at the school and a flammable liquid used to start the blaze.

Officials would not speculate on whether the fires were related to protests against court-ordered busing of children for school desegregation in the county.

A fire Saturday gutted a portable cafeteria and a portable classroom, causing an estimated $10,000 to $12,000 damage. That blaze was also blamed on arson.

School attendance near normal as busing protest winds down

LOUISVILLE, (AP)—An anti-busing protest at Jefferson County schools seems to have run out of steam, with attendance reported "very near normal" Monday.

The absentee rate was ten or 15 per cent Monday, according to Dave Espin, assistant superintendent for personnel.

"We haven't had enough days in a row of full attendance to establish what's normal," Espin said. "But this is about as good as we can expect."

President proposes $28 billion of permanent tax cuts for 1976

WASHINGTON (AP) —President Ford proposed Monday $28 billion of permanent tax cuts to take effect in the 1976 election year contingent on a similar cut in annual federal spending.

In a broadcast address from his Oval Office, Ford said tax cuts for both individuals and corporations "must be tied together in one package" with a presidential recommendation that federal spending in the 1977 fiscal year that begins next July 1 be held at $395 billion, about $28 billion below present budget projections.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon told newsmen the tax cuts Ford is recommending—which would exceed the temporary tax reductions due to expire Dec. 31—would benefit individuals over businesses by a margin of about three to one.

"Three-quarters of this permanent reduction will be for individual taxpayers. And the chief benefits will be concentrated where they belong—among working people," Ford said.

Ford called on Congress to raise everyone's personal tax exemption to $1,000 from $750, to lower basic personal income tax rates and to make the standard deduction for single taxpayers a flat $1,800 and $2,500 for married couples.

The sentiment in Congress was to try to extend the tax cuts regardless of what the President recommended. The House Ways and Means Committee is scheduled to tackle the subject on Tuesday.

Resolution passes 18-14

Gay Coalition gains SG support

One senator said, "In talking with constituents, I found they were about 4-1 against the resolution. And I can not in good conscience support something that is against my Roman Catholic beliefs."
Hal Haering, senator-at-large, said, "No matter how you word the law, homosexual acts are immoral and illegal. We can not give legitimacy because we would be condoning homosexual acts."

Mary Duffy, A&S senator, said, "This is not a moral issue, it's a political issue. The GSC is trying to work within the system to change the law."

"It's our moral obligation to support the GSC according to the preamble" to the Student Government constitution, Duffy said.

Jerry Thornton, Law senator, said, "I've heard alot of moralistic opinion, mostly on the Christian religion. The federal constitution guarantees free association, and gays are being denied their first amendment rights."

"I think it would be highly favorable for this group to go on record as supporting the GSC efforts to obtain their constitutional rights," he said.

One senator said, "I don't see that the functions of the coalition have changed since last year to make a difference."

Dennis George, B&E senator, asked, "What good is the resolution if the University doesn't give a damn what we say?"

The 1974-75 and 1975 summer assemblies passed resolutions supporting the gay student efforts to become a recognized student organization.

Approximately three years ago, the Gay Liberation Front, after organizational status was denied, sued the University in federal court. The court found the University president had the right to deny official status to any organization he chose. The decision was upheld in the Court of Appeals.

Hal Haering, senator-at-large, and Steve Petrey, Engineering senator, listen during Monday's

"The catch 22 is that they are denied the right to get together to campaign for legal change," Wade said.

"Sate after state has removed the laws against sodomy," Junkin said. Even the Bible does not condemn homosexuals, he said. "Lust is condemned, homosexuality is not."

A senator asked Junkin to read Romans I, 26-27. Junkin read the passage to the Senate.

"I don't know what's in the bible and could care less, it's totally irrelevant," Thornton said. "Over the years we have consistently recognized the rights of individuals to fight to change attitudes to get laws changed."

After the roll call vote was taken, several senators who voted "no" explained their reasons.

"I couldn't see it as a political issue," Patterson said, "though I'm not going to say you're bound to hell or anything like that, Carey."

Welch said, "I couldn't in good conscience endorse homosexuality."

Haering said, "I feel sad for the Student Government and sad to be a part of it."

Petrey, and Tom Lawrence, B & E senator, said their constituencies did not want them to support the resolution.

In other action, the Senate encouraged President Jim Harraison to sign a bill to authorize payment of an outstanding Free University debt.

The Senate voted Sept. 22 to fund the Free University, but Harraison has not signed the bill.

"I have had several problems justifying the $200 debt," Harraison said. He said he was investigating the cancellation of several Free University classes and the Free University's association with the Newman Center.

The debt was incurred in printing the Free University posters.

Wade, a Free University member, said the classes were dropped because the person who was to teach them returned home.

He also said the Free University was only publicizing programs available at the Newman Center in an effort to promote alternative educational opportunities.

Physics lesson illustrates plight of football team

By DICK GABRIEL
Assistant Sports Editor

A pressure cooker full of water will boil for only so long. After a while, the pressure of the steam inside becomes so great that unless there is a valve on the lid, the pot will explode.

This brief physics lesson helps illustrate the plight of the UK football team.

The team is the pressure cooker and the steam building up inside represents what has happened over a span of the last three games. The pressure is really building, and short of banging heads against the wall, there seems to be no valve to release it.

On paper, the Cats have dominated. Coach Fran Cinci's team has beaten Kansas, Maryland, and Penn State everywhere but on the scoreboard, which unfortunately is the only place that counts.

The disappointments are building into tension, and somewhere along the line, something has to give. But like the pressure cooker, the Wildcats can release the pressure one of two ways. The team can either explode violently and destroy Auburn, or it can crack, let the steam off gently, and merely fizzle for the rest of the season.

The mood of the UK locker room after the Penn State loss was not so much one of sadness, but one of anger. Undeud, the players and coaches were disappointed, for they felt that they'd outplayed the number 10 team in the nation.

They seemed to feel it wasn't Penn State which had beaten them. The players felt, too, they had not beaten themselves. It was just a matter of bad breaks.

"It's just bad luck," Sonny Collins said. "Things just aren't happening for us. Coach Curci's one of the best coaches in the nation and it's a shame something good isn't happening right now. Maybe it will happen before the season's over with."

Collins was the victim of several bad breaks. More than once, the speedy senior had daylight but lost his footing and fell to the ground untouched. He also apparently set up a Kentucky touchdown with a 31-yard run in the fourth quarter, but it was nullified by a holding penalty on center Tom Dornbrook.

Senior noseguard Tom Ranieri said "It's very frustrating. It seems like whenever we get a long run on offense there's a flag on the play. It frustrates the hell out of you.

"Our defense gets the ball back and the offense gets it moving and some silly play happens. It's really a bummer," he said.

Curci proclaimed his displeasure to the referees with their calls time after time, and Ranieri agreed.

"It seems like every time we go into a ball game it's Kentucky versus the opponents and the referees. Everything we do, there's a flag on the play. It seems like insurmountable odds."

The pressure is building and will probably be released this week. Whether it's a loud explosion or a hissing fizzle remains to be seen.

Nolan picked for third game

Candelaria hopes to stop Reds

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates can't use barbed wire on the base paths, so rookie pitcher John Candelaria will be relied on to slow the Cincinnati Reds in its dash for a playoff sweep.

"I don't feel any pressure at all," Candelaria said Monday as he awaited tonight's third, and perhaps final, game in the National League championship series.

"If there's pressure on anybody, I'd say it's the Reds. Everybody expects them to win," he said.

The Reds, who'll pitch veteran Gary Nolan in its bid for the clincher, defeated the Pirates 8-3 and 6-1 in Cincinnati.

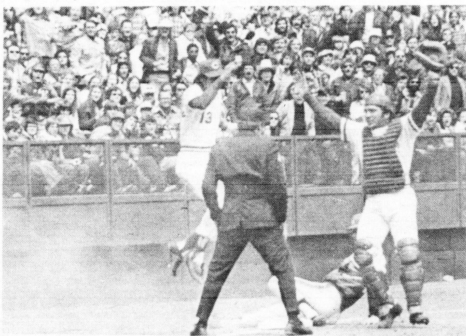

Candelaria watched as the Reds stole 10 bases in 10 tries. They've already got three more steals than Oakland's previous record for an entire playoff series.

Yet, the 6-foot-7 Candelaria, despite his smooth face and boyish moustache, is an unusually calm rookie.

"I don't get excited too easily. I try to keep my mind under control," said the 21-year-old native of New York City.

Candelaria was 8-6 after joining the Pirates in June from the minors and he was 1-1 against the Reds.

"It's no secret what you have to do against them," he said. "You have to keep Joe Morgan and the other ones off the bases so you can pitch to Johnny Bench and Tony Perez."

—Nick Powell

The Cincinnati Reds, Western Division champs of the National League (NL), take on the Pittsburgh Pirates in game number three of the NL playoffs tonight at Pittsburgh. This picture was taken April 20 at Riverfront Stadium when the Reds faced the Houston Astros. The play at third base was called safe by the umpire and catcher Johnny Bench and shortstop Dave Concepcion were rather upset by the call.

Meanwhile Cincinnati has held Pittsburgh to 13 hits in two games. The Pirates are batting at a .203 clip compared to .348 by the Reds.

Nolan, 27, making his first playoff start since 1972, missed most of the last two seasons with injuries, and he had a shoulder operation last summer.

Yet he was 15-9 this season and 2-1 against Pittsburgh. "I've said before that I feel I've gotten a new lease on life," Nolan said. He has started four World Series games for the Reds.

"I've made a contribution this season and I'd like to make another one right here," he added.

If the Pirates get an early lead Tuesday night, it could make Cincinnati more cautious on the basepaths, Nolan knows that.

"They've proven they can explode at any time," he said.

"No question a big early lead would help us stop their running," said Pirate pitcher Jim Rooker, the loser in Sunday's game.

"But the way we're going, I'm not even sure we remember what a lead feels like."

Action seems to be at a standstill as the UK rugby club faces off against the Queen City (Cincinnati) rugby team Saturday at UK's rugby field. UK was able to record its first victory of the season against Queen City winning 12-4.

Rugby team splits two games

By DOUG MAKITTEN
Kernel Staff Writer

UK's rugby team had mixed success last weekend, winning 12-4 against Queen City (Cincinnati), but taking a 41-4 pounding from arch rival Louisville.

The Saturday home victory over Queen City was Kentucky's first win of the season. After a scoreless first half, UK jumped on top shortly after the interval on Tim Popham's try (four points). Steve Harrison booted the two point conversion to put Kentucky ahead 6-0.

Midway through the second half UK's George Sandusky bulled his way through the Queen City defense for another try.

Harrison again converted and Kentucky led 12-0.

Queen City scored a consolation try in the game's closing minutes.

A key to both UK tries was the fine approach work of winger Henry Roszal.

Kentucky player-coach Art Wallace praised Roszal for his "timely kicking on attacks."

Wallace had predicted Sunday's match with Louisville would be a "tough one." He was right.

Louisville roared to 22-0 halftime lead on the way to its 41-4 rout. UK's Greg Walters scored a second half try to avert a shut out.

According to Wallace, "Louisville was just too fast for us. Their attack was really vicious."

UK scrum half John LeBoon added, "It seemed every breakdown we had they capitalized on. Their execution was amazing. Everything was near to perfection."

The Kentucky "B squad, the second-string team, fared better, downing the Louisville "B" team 6-0 on George Sandusky's try and Bill Eiderman's conversion.

This weekend the ruggers are scheduled to play in the Tri-State Tournament at Indianapolis, Ind. UK, now 1-3, will battle for the tourney title against top teams from Kentucky, Indiana and Ohio.

Top intramural teams are decided by number of points accumulated

By SHELIA LEIGH
Kernel Staff Writer

This year the five most popular intramural sports are flag football, horseshoes, croquet, golf and tennis.

Participation has increased compared to last year. In tennis there are over 500 entries in the present tourneys.

"This increase in participation is probably due to the higher enrollment at UK and the fact that women's athletics are on the rise here," said Steve Cohen, graduate assistant on the Campus Recreation staff.

Top teams are decided by the number of points accumulated for placing during the period of tournaments. There are four major tournaments.

Each position taken in a game receives a point. Thus, the more games and higher positions, the more points gained. The team or single person at the top at the end of the competition is considered the best.

The competition is divided into three divisions in men's sports—fraternity, residence hall and independent. They compete within their own divisions.

The women's teams are not divided; they compete with each other.

"The only reason for this is because there aren't as many women's teams," Cohen said. There have been no major problems in intramurals so far this year outside of rain cancelling flag football and tennis games and forfeits. There are a large amount of entries that drop out before tournament time.

Cohen said, "Any forfeits makes too many forfeits. I feel a person should sign up because he wants to participate and then feel it a responsibility to show up."

"We try to supply the players with the information needed about when and where games will be played. When they are forfeited, it causes us (staff) much extra work."

The staff of graduate assistants this year for Campus Recreation include:

Red Sox have momentum

OAKLAND (AP)—The Boston Red Sox had momentum on its side Monday as they arrived here to prepare for tonight's third game of the American League playoffs against the Oakland A's.

The Red Sox took the first two games of the series and need only one more victory in the best-of-five championship playoff to eliminate the A's, world champions for the last three years.

A's pitching coach Wes Stock announced Monday afternoon that Holtzman, with only two days rest, would come back to start for the A's Tuesday against Boston in Game Three.

—Steven Cohen, a Brooklyn, N.Y. native, is in charge of men's independent and fraternity games. This is his first year on the staff at UK.

—Alan Steinberg, a UK graduate, is first coordinator for men's residence hall teams.

—Gayle Hall, from Transylvania, is the coordinator for women's residence hall teams.

—Richard Hall, also from Transylvania, is assistant to Bill Pieratt, associate director of campus recreation. He works closely with Pieratt in preparing fields for games.

—Linda Powell, a graduate of UK, is the women's volleyball coach.

"Alvin Dark and I decided on it last night," Stock said before the A's regular workout Monday. In making the selection, Dark passed up starters Dick Bosman and Stan Bahnsen.

We goofed

Due to a reporting error, Mr. Do-nuts Shop was referred to as Don's Do-Nuts Shop in John Vogel's column Monday.

In Friday's Kernel an intramural flag football picture identified the ball carrier as Frank Taylor of Owensboro. Actually this is Robert Bolton, a freshman from Louisville.

Person-on-the-street

Student reaction is divided on 'no smoking' request

By MONA GORDON
 Kernel Staff Writer

Maude Finley, of the TV show "Maude," has an excellent retort for stifling her husband, Walter: "Who cares, Walter, who cares?"

Most of the UK students in a random on-the-street interview are offering the same comment about the recent request that the "no smoking" signs on campus be obeyed. The students are divided into three factions: the majority, which does not care; a large group which is in a state of unresolved conflict or "stalemate syndrome;" and a small group divided into smokers and non-smokers who have strong feelings.

"It doesn't concern me," said Sandra Jones, a telecommunications junior. "I don't smoke, but I don't see why anyone should have to stop. That's infringing on the rights of the smokers. I guess we could have smoking and non-smoking sections. But it really doesn't bother me..."

Brad Barnett, business administration major, agreed. "I wouldn't object to smoking. It does bother me, though. Just keep it out of my face."

Carol Lopat, a horticulture major, is unconcerned, because "Everybody goes by the rules pretty much, at least in the agriculture building. I can hold out through one class."

Another smoker, a special education junior, also can "go an hour without a cigarette. I don't want to offend anyone."

These responses were typical of the students who did not seem to mind the request. More perplexing comments came, however, from students who tried to justify the rights of both smokers and non-smokers, and ended at a "stalemate" with no real solutions.

"I understand the feelings of the people who don't smoke," said Suzanne Hadden, a social work senior. "But it is easy for those who don't smoke to say no to. If you've never smoked, you don't understand what you're asking. I mind when people ask me to stop. I feel like I'm being put down. But I can understand..."

"It doesn't bother me," said Laura Dawkins, English major. "Smokers have rights as well as non-smokers, though."

One architecture major said the smoke bothers him, but he will not ask anyone to stop. "I do occasionally give a few dirty looks..."

According to Mark Ingram, who is working on his masters in library science, the whole issue of smoking "depends on how I feel that day. Maybe all the seats are taken in a class. People sure get offended when you ask them to stop smoking. They can wait for an hour. I think it is the wave of the future that you can do whatever you want in the privacy of your home, but not out in public. That includes smoking."

Rita Henderson, a kindergarten-elementary education major, said, "It is unfair to the smoker, but I understand why they have made the request. I have a three hour class, and it is a lot to ask of someone. When I go into a class, I try to smoke before other people get there. But then when they see me with the cigarette, they can choose whether or not to sit next to me."

Other students interviewed had strong opinions, and their views could be distinctly divided between smokers and non-smokers.

"Cough, cough!!!" replied one senior economics major.

An arts and sciences senior commented, "I like the request because being exposed to smoke is just as dangerous as smoking itself. Smokers inflict their own vices on other people."

Stewart Mallernee, political science, says, "Being a smoker, I obviously think that everyone should have the right to smoke. It is senseless to tell people to stop and to make rules, because they have been smoking for a long time, longer than this campus has been here, and they will smoke anyway, regardless of rules."

"I think there is a growing trend in this country not to smoke. It's not taboo any more to tell someone to put their cigarette out. However, I think smokers should be in one section of the room. Make them sit in their own smoke..." said Eddie Kozlove, a sophomore history major.

The request, which was issued by Jack C. Blanton, vice president of business affairs, and Dr. P.S. Sabharwal, University ombudsman, has not generated much reaction. Perhaps for a few days the skies will not be cloudy. But Mickey McCoy, an undecided major, did offer a solution.

"I think there should be a 15-minute break in the middle of the day around the fountain for all the smokers to smoke...Just like high school, remember? Hey, be sure you print that that was a sarcastic remark..."

"In other words," a friend of McCoy's added, "Who cares?"

Lexington houses to be nominated for National Register of Historic Sites

Three ante-bellum houses on South Broadway, remnants of what once was one of Lexington's most exclusive residential districts, are being nominated for the National Register of Historic Sites.

The homes, located at 355, 361, and 367 S. Broadway, were destined to be razed for Civic Center parking but have been granted a temporary stay of execution.

Pam Miller, Urban-County

councilwoman, requested this summer that the Lexington Civic Center Board postpone demolition.

"I asked them to please stop until they finished their parking study," she said. The decision to save the houses is "completely up to the Civic Center Board," Miller added.

Richard DeCamp, executive director of the Lexington-Fayette County Historic Commission, is among those working to have the homes placed on the National Register and eventually save them.

"It's being brought before the Kentucky Review Board which is the procedure before its approval. We hope that we'll draw the proper attention to the houses by placing them on the National Register," he said. "I feel sure they'll pass. At least I hope they do."

DeCamp said the Board had taken a "hands off policy" until they have a total parking plan.

The Civic Center Board has retained a consultant to study the parking situation and make a recommendation about the disposition of the houses.

Claudia Lawson, office manager of the Board, said that the consultant's report should be complete in 30 to 60 days.

"We have purchased the house at 361 South Broadway but no action has been taken on the other two," Lawson said.

The occupants of 361 S. Broadway are scheduled to move out by October 9, but residents of the other two houses will remain.

The disputed area of Broadway, known as the South Hill section, was at one time a prestigious neighborhood.

The Historic Commission has done extensive research on the structure and history of the three homes and, according to its findings, the houses were built in the 1840's or 1850's. There is reason to believe that all three houses were designed and built by John McMurry, according to the Commission's report.

McMurry was a prominent Lexington architect of the early and mid-1800's who built over 200 buildings in Lexington.

Carolyn Mayfield, executive director of the Bluegrass Trust, commented in the Historic Commission report that "the loss of these houses will not only ruin the South Broadway streetscape but will create a void in the annals of Lexington's architectural history."
