Money For The University Is Money For The State

THE UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY has prepared for the next legislature a budget request that, on the surface at least, is a shocker. For the next two years, school officials want $30,329,000 to run the state's university. Considering that the last legislative appropriation for the school's two-year budget was only $17,036,100, this latest request is really a request.

The trouble is that the legislature and the next administration will have a hard time refusing this budget without abdicating their responsibility to the university, and without violating the spirit of the promises that both gubernatorial candidates are now making to support state education fully. The university needs this money, every penny of it.

Actually, the increase is deceptive. The amounts requested for running the various branches of the university are pretty well in line with previous budgets, taking into account rises in costs caused by inflation. The biggest increase asked for general operation would provide a long-overdue 17 per cent pay increase for instructors, and again this is going to be hard to deny, since both candidates for governor have acknowledged the need for higher teachers' salaries and their intention to support them.

But the biggest dollar increases are asked for new services and new construction. For the first time the legislature will come to grips with the fiscal side of the new U.K. Medical School, which will begin general operation in the fall of 1960, and for which the budget asks a whopping $5,764,000. The legislature's handling of this item will be a test the university will watch closely, for there have for some time been fears among other departments of the school that medical school costs might make it hard for other colleges to get the support they need from the state. If the legislature grants all the money asked for the medical college and then denies equal treatment to the rest of the school, it will indicate that the medical school is going to be a financial drain on the rest of the university, though a blessing to the state.

In addition, university officials have asked approval of a new means of financing classroom construction. It is an extraordinary proposal, including a $5,500,000 direct grant and authority to issue bonds to finance other critical construction, but the classroom situation at the university is becoming so desperate that only extraordinary measures are going to be sufficient. The state has lavished a huge stadium, a glittering basketball palace and a lush bluegrass farm on the university. But it can't, for some reason, find money for classrooms. As a result there is room for everything at the university but books and people who study them.

Perhaps The Only Way

To remedy this, the university wants authority to issue $15,000,000 in bonds, to be retired by annual appropriations of $1,000,000 from the state. This is one way—and perhaps the only way, since the state cannot issue non-revenue bonds without a referendum—to meet the emergency need for buildings. And unless this method is approved, the university is going to be forced to consider closing some of its currently-used classroom buildings, even though it means enrolling fewer students. For these old buildings are dangerous. Some of them were condemned 20 years ago.

There are other new services for which the budget seeks sizable amounts. For example, a million dollars of the budget request is for operation of the Geological Survey, transferred to the university by the 1958 legislature. In the next two years, $1,189,000 is needed to enable the survey to complete its geological mapping of Kentucky, a project vital to industrial promotion, highway building, minerals exploitation and forestry development.

Much Is State-Wide

Like other functions of the university, this is a state, rather than a strictly university function. In viewing the university's budget, we often tend to overlook the fact that much of the university's direct spending is in state-wide services. The College of Agriculture and its experiment stations not only train future farmers but are a vital service to present ones. The College of Education serves our teachers; the governmental departments in Frankfort are constantly served by the Bureau of Business Administration.

It was this relationship between university and state that prompted former University President Herman Donovan to declare, "You can't have a great state without a great University." That's not just a slogan. It's a fact. And if the legislature fails to approve this budget request, it will be hurting not just the university. It will be retarding the progress of Kentucky.

UNIVERSITY AFFAIRS

Mrs. Charles N. Bayless, president of the Fayette County chapter of the American Cancer Society, and Dr. William R. Willard, dean of the UK College of Medicine, hold the clipping which announced a $27,809 cancer research grant to the University. Looking on is UK President Frank Dickey.

Cave Hill Property Given To University

A gift of $85,000 from the author of the Marshall Plan was among the gifts accepted by the University of Kentucky trustees in September.

The gift for purchase of the 13-acre Cave Hill property—including a 138-year-old residence—on the Harrodsburg Pike in Lexington was accepted by the University from Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Clayton, of Houston, Texas, owners of Cave Hill.

The Clayton gift represented full purchase price for the property, which has been estimated to be worth $185,000, the University said.

Clayton, internationally known financier, author of the Marshall Plan and under secretary of state in the Roosevelt and Truman administrations, bought Cave Hill in 1952.

In addition to the 15-room main house there is a six-room guest house on the property.

ARCHITECTURE DEPARTMENT TO BE SET UP IN 1960

A department of architecture, with a five-year curriculum beginning in 1960, was recently authorized by the University of Kentucky Board of Trustees.

Creation of the department represents expansion of the existing architectural program at the University, in which students may take courses in architecture as optional area of study in the civil engineering department.

Addition of one full-time and one half-time member to the present teaching staff will be required.

Some work in the field has been offered by the Department of Civil Engineering since 1927 and the number of Kentucky students interested in architecture has grown steadily since that time, Dean R. E. Shaver of the College of Engineering said. During the past year, 104 students were registered for the optional courses in architecture.

CANCER RESEARCH GRANT GIVEN UK MEDICAL SCHOOL

A $27,809 American Cancer Society grant has been made to the University College of Medicine for an 18-month study in the chemotherapy of cancer and growth rates of tumors.

The grant is one of 211 for a total of $4,763,000 made throughout the United States by the Society.

Dr. Henry B. Asman, president of the Society's Kentucky division, said Dr. William H. Knisely, head of the UK College of Medicine's Department of Anatomy, will be the principal investigator in the local project.

"Dr. Knisely proposes to gain information about differential growth rates of cancers in different locations of the body in order to find out if there are rate differences from one area to another and, if so, to learn why," Dr. Asman said.

He said the second aim of the research is to "evaluate the effect of chemotherapeutic agents on given tumors within precise locations in the bodies of experimental animals."

By this study, he said, "it may be possible to select drugs which will yield better results when used against tumors growing at known rates in given locations of the body."

A third aim of the research project will be to find why the spleen is not a frequent site of spreading in cancer.

UK Opens Education Center At Fort Knox

An educational center at Fort Knox was opened in September by the University of Kentucky.

Under an agreement between the University and Fort Knox, the Armor Center there is providing all necessary physical equipment and facilities. It also is maintaining and operating the center's facilities and providing utilities.

The Armor Center is providing library facilities and services.

The University is operating the center, employing a staff of instructors and providing lower division instruction leading toward degrees from UK.

Opening of the center was recommended by the University Division of Extended Programs.

BUDGET REQUEST STATEMENT

In presenting the budget request for the 1960-62 biennium the University does so with the belief that unless the state university is adequately supported at this crucial juncture in the history of this institution, the state will suffer for many years to come.

During this period of ferment and change in higher education, some institutions will move ahead, and some will fall behind. New leaders will rise and old ones will become relatively insignificant. In the final analysis, the people of Kentucky will not only have as much education as they are willing to buy, but the kind of education for which they are willing to pay.

Primary Purpose of University

The primary purpose of this institution is to serve and benefit the Commonwealth. The University of Kentucky has always tried to meet those needs of the Commonwealth which a great university is uniquely equipped to provide. As the state changes, the University must change. For example, as industry has increased in Kentucky, there has been a mounting demand for trained personnel and special training courses in such fields as engineering and business administration and a growing need for basic research in related areas. The University, well aware of such trends, is shaping programs to meet them.

At the same time, it will not neglect other state needs. During the past, much of Kentucky's economy has depended on the farm, and the University consciously adapted many programs to the interests of agriculture. However, our College of Agriculture and Home Economics has always approached problems along broad lines; hence its research has benefited urban as well as rural areas. Utilities companies, transportation industries, packing industries, and numerous other businesses are utilizing agriculture graduates in large numbers today. Though fewer citizens of Kentucky live on the farm, agriculture remains as important as ever, and needs for agricultural products will grow. The importance of agricultural research continues to increase from year to year.

Off Campus Centers

University activities have long centered on the Lexington campus, but to meet statewide needs, the University also is developing additional off-campus centers. These centers, set up in five communities, will broaden educational opportunities for young and old. Essentially the off-campus centers offering two years of college work supplement the University's programs. Combined they may provide "opportunity for all" in the American educational tradition. The first two years are decisive for more than half of the young men and young women who today are seeking opportunity through education beyond the high school. Because of their comparatively simple educational programs, their emphasis on teaching, their utilitarian plants, their relatively small overhead, these two-year centers will make it possible for the educational dollar to count for more. The Ashland Center was a gift to the University by that community and the Fort Knox Center will cost the state nothing in terms of capital construction and almost nothing in terms of operational funds. The Northwest Center at Henderson and the Southeast Center at Cumberland also represent large contributions to the University by these communities. The Northern Center at Covington continues to grow and thrive through the excellent support of the citizens of that area. All of these Centers will be even more useful as demands for higher education increase.

Must Maintain Quality

As the size of the University increases, we must maintain quality. Increase in size in the years ahead is inevitable. This institution has a mandate to serve the educational needs of the people, but in its growth the University must continue to protect quality of teaching, research and public service. We have given more thought this past year to ways of aiming at distinction, so that we shall never be satisfied with mediocre performance. Maintenance of quality may be difficult in the years immediately ahead. We shall have serious space restrictions, but the most pressing needs will be in the area of qualified personnel.

Because the quality of an educational institution derives from the quality of its faculty, the greatest possible emphasis must be placed upon retaining and building a strong faculty. The future rests with youth, and in planning for the future enrollments, we must build faculty strength with new talents. To accomplish these things we must work toward more realistic salaries. In order to hold present faculty and recruit new professors, we need to increase many salaries from 15 per cent to 20 per cent over present ones. Teachers and researchers are not inclined to measure satisfaction in terms of salary, but their place in society can be maintained only by incomes commensurate with others in the community and with colleagues in other institutions. In addition to improving salaries we must maintain an atmosphere providing the opportunity for research, an added inducement to the most promising young scholars and scientists.

Teaching, Research, Service

Balance in our institution must be a conscious goal. Equal strength in every part of a university is not always possible. In fact, we must avoid any tendency to sacrifice quality for uniformity. But balance is essential. This is a total, integrated university, not a collection of separate units. Balance, therefore, must mean strength in teaching, research and service. These functions are closely interrelated, each necessary, each depending upon the others. Thus, whatever the difficulties ahead, we must continue to emphasize all three. We must stress teaching and must make certain that it is well done. We must build toward stronger research programs. And we must certainly not neglect public service because of pressure for research and teaching. Only thus can we do the job the Commonwealth asks of us.

Balance also means strengths at various levels—undergraduate, graduate, and postgraduate. In recent years there has been a very substantial increase in graduate and postgraduate studies at the University. At the same time, undergraduate work has continued strong. This is both logical and desirable. We believe that students at different levels gain by associating with each other; and the University would suffer major damage if it abandoned or de-emphasized any level of instruction.

We must be strong both in liberal and in professional education at the University of Kentucky. Some educators maintain that these two areas are mutually exclusive. We do not feel that this is the case. We believe that professional training, increasingly important in modern society, must include liberal education. Under a government based upon popular decision, broad, liberal education is vital and we hope to strengthen this combination.

The University, in presenting its budget as a unified request, believes that the General Assembly would prefer to have the entire request from the University and not be deluged with groups representing pressure areas. It is our belief that the University staff is in a better position to know the needs of the institution than any other group and, while we shall always welcome suggestions and ideas for development, the only way to maintain control and balance is to have the University consolidate and present the budget needs for the institution. It is clear that the taxpayers of Kentucky must continue to shoulder a major portion of the University of Kentucky's support. Their contribution from tax revenues is, of course, a great investment in the future of the Commonwealth. Money spent for education will eventually add to Kentucky's total income and provide a broader tax base. More important, it will enrich the lives of everyone in the entire state.

Our Role Is To Move Ahead

As we face the future, we must prepare to act with boldness and vigor. While respecting the past and those values that have built the University, we must not be content in their shadow. The University was built by men of vision, men willing and eager to try new approaches. Today, new ideas are needed as never before. Our role, clearly, is to move ahead, serving the Commonwealth and the nation by example and by leadership. If we do this, if we build out of yesterday and today, then assuredly a greater University of Kentucky lies ahead.

The 1960 Legislative Session is a time of decision for Kentucky education. The Kentucky General Assembly in its 1960 session is faced with these alternatives in considering problems of support for higher education:

ADEQUATE SUPPORT of its state university and colleges to meet the increasing instructional costs and climbing student enrollments and salary increases needed to retain the strong faculties in the competitive market for scholars and teachers of real ability.

Or

INADEQUATE SUPPORT of its state university and colleges which will mean the loss of top quality members, the overcrowding of physical facilities, and the possible denial of admission to qualified Kentucky high school graduates.

The University budget request is based on two fundamental assumptions:

1. That the people of Kentucky want a quality program in higher education for their sons and daughters and future citizens.
2. That the people of Kentucky believe in and are willing to make the necessary investment in education and research to insure the continued growth and development of the Commonwealth.

Appropriation Requests

The appropriation requests are presented in five major divisions:

1. Division of Colleges
2. Experiment Station
3. Extension Service
4. Medical Center
5. Capital Construction

The last named item, capital construction, is a new factor and deserves some explanation. The building needs of the University are well known to many persons throughout the state; however, we have a responsibility to interpret these needs to every citizen. The most pressing needs which have been determined by faculty and administrative committees are:

1. Chemistry-Physics Building
2. Addition to King Library

3. College of Commerce
4. Addition to College of Engineering
5. Addition to Mineral Industries Building
6. Renovation and alteration of Pence and Kastle Halls
7. Agriculture buildings for instruction and research, including library facilities
8. General expansion of utilities systems
9. Addition to Student Union Building
10. Residence halls for men and women
11. Addition to Taylor Education building
12. Addition to Lafferty Hall

The University Board of Trustees is including in its budget request the recommendation that the General Assembly appropriate a sum of $5,500,000 for a physics-chemistry building; in addition, we are requesting $250,000 during the first year of the biennium for architects' fees for planning, and $1,000,000 for the second year of the coming biennium as the first appropriation in a series to underwrite a $15,000,000 bond issue to be used to construct the most urgently needed classroom, library, laboratory and office facilities for the University. Each succeeding General Assembly would be requested to appropriate $1,000,000 per year to retire the bonds, thus eliminating the necessity of any one legislature again being called upon to secure the revenue to build five to ten million dollars worth of buildings during a single biennium.

Construction of classroom, laboratory and library type buildings has by no means kept pace with the mounting enrollments and activities of the University. Forty-five per cent of our student classes are taught in buildings constructed prior to 1917. Some of our best faculty members have no place to counsel students except in corridors.

We began falling behind in classroom, laboratory and office buildings in the depression when funds were not available. Then the war stopped all building. In spite of prodigious efforts on the part of the University administration, we fell further behind when enrollments began mounting after the war. Now three more things have occurred. Our citizens are demanding that the opportunity for a

Request a Realistic One

The budget request for the University of Kentucky is a realistic one, based on the needs which are now confronting this institution. The detailed analysis of the request follows:

Summer Exchange Program Given Grant

A $20,000 annual grant has been approved for a new type of educational exchange under the direction of the University of Kentucky.

The International Summer School Unit has 10 Southern schools and a school in Mexico as participating members.

The project will be financed by the grant from Carnegie Corp. of New York to the Kentucky Research Foundation.

Under the plan, each of the United States schools will send one professor and ten students to summer sessions at the Institute of Technology and Higher Studies at Monterrey, Mexico, and the Mexican school will send a similar contingent to each of the U.S. schools.

AEC Gives $96,837 To UK For Research

The University of Kentucky has been granted $96,837 for two research contract extensions and purchases of new equipment by the Atomic Energy Commission. The Kentucky Research Foundation will administer the project.

The bulk of the new AEC grant, $52,030, went to the Physics Department for continued research into the structure of the nucleus of an atom.

The Physics Department also received $15,677 from the AEC to purchase equipment that will be used in teaching undergraduates to handle radioactive materials and measure radiation.

An $11,333 grant went to the College of Agriculture for the purchasing of equipment to be used in animal industry.

The equipment will be used to teach the principles underlying radioactivity and its use as a technique in agricultural research.

Dr. W. F. Wagner and Dr. J. F. Steinbach of the Chemistry Department will study methods of separating chemical compounds by the use of special solvents with $17,797 of the grant.

ANNUAL FOOTBALL BANQUET NOV. 23

The annual Alumni Association Football Banquet will be held on November 23 at 6:30 p.m. (CDT) in the Student Union Ballroom. Guests are promised a hilarious evening of entertainment by the Pantomime University Band of Owensboro, Ky. Reports are that you will howl with laughter over the band's performance.

On the serious side will be the presentation of gift watches to graduating seniors, a review of the season by Coach Collier and presentation of the Sam Huey Award.

Lewis Brinkley Barnett, '55, in August was awarded a Ph.D. degree from the State University of Iowa. William Charles Golton, '57, received the M.S. degree at the same commencement.

Dolores A. Landrum, '58, has accepted a two-year appointment as technical secretary and administrative assistant to the team of UK professors at Bandung, Indonesia.

Latest report on the Kentucky-Tennessee membership challenge is that Tennessee is way out in front of us. The closing date for the contest is January 1, 1960. If you have not become a member of your Alumni Association, won't you send in $5.00 today and join us?

Dr. Eaves Elected To Presidency Of Fraternity

Dr. J. C. Eaves, head of the Department of Mathematics and Astronomy at the University, has been elected national president of Mu Alpha Theta, national honorary mathematics fraternity.

He assumed office at the fraternity's annual meeting in Salt Lake City, Aug. 31-Sept. 5. The organization has chapters in high schools, junior colleges and senior colleges throughout the country.

Eaves announced that projects of the organization for the year ahead will include establishment of an international mathematics journal for outstanding contributions. He said the journal will be exchanged with journals of honor organizations in Germany, France, Italy and Poland.

Eaves has served as visiting lecturer for the Kentucky section of the Mathematical Association of America, visiting over 100 schools in the state and speaking to around 15,000 honor students in high schools and colleges.

MAYNOR RESIGNS

Dr. Hal W. Maynor Jr., associate professor of metallurgical engineering at the University, resigned in September.

Dr. Maynor, who came to the University from General Electric Co. in 1955, accepted a professorship of mechanical engineering at Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn.

He will be a key member of an Auburn research team which will conduct a study of fracture phenomena of metallic materials. This work will be carried out in conjunction with a $70,881 contract between the Auburn Research Foundation and the Army Ordnance Corps., Army Rocket and Guided Missile Agency, Redstone Arsenal, Ala.

Dr. Maynor holds bachelor and masters degrees in metallurgical engineering and a doctorate in engineering, all awarded at UK in 1944, 1947 and 1954.

Dr. J. C. Eaves

Dr. Mervin J. Kelly, '16, now has ten doctorates. Last summer he was awarded honorary degrees by Princeton University and Case Institute of Technology. He received also the Alumni Medal from the University of Chicago and was elected a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. Dr. Kelly is now consultant to the president of IBM. He retired last year as chairman of the board and former president of the Bell Telephone Systems.

Women's Residence Halls Director Appointed

Miss Velma (Dixie) Evans, a June graduate of the Syracuse University student dean program, is the new director of the women's residence halls at the University of Kentucky.

She is also head resident of Jewell Hall.

She was awarded a master of arts degree from Syracuse after completing the two-year student personnel administration program.

She has been a housemother in a girls' dormitory, a student dean, student counselor, mathematics assistant, secretary and bookstore sales clerk during her college training.

DR. H. B. PRICE IS HONORED FOR SERVICE TO UK

Dr. H. B. Price, member of the College of Agriculture faculty at the University since 1929 and acting dean for a portion of that time, was honored with a dinner recently at the University's Student Union Building.

Formerly head of the agricultural economics department and in recent years serving in a number of other capacities with the University, Dr. Price went on a change-of-work status with the University March 1.

President Frank G. Dickey, speaking at the dinner, told Price, "as teacher, researcher, and finally as an administrator of the top echelon you have demonstrated your abilities and talents.

"In your quiet, unassuming, and unselfish manner you have accomplished things in five minutes on which others have labored for hours and days. If there ever was a master of human relations, Dr. Price is one, and yet he is not given to compromise."

Dr. Frank J. Welch, dean of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics and director of the Agricultural Experiment Station, told Price:

"You have made an outstanding and distinct contribution as a teacher and a research worker, as administrator and as counselor and friend of both faculty and students alike."

Also on the program was a skit, directed by Prof. Lawrence Bradford, presenting highlights of Price's life and employing cartoons, old photographs, and other materials.

Dr. and Mrs. Price have four children, Bruce, a market analyst; Glen, a nuclear physicist; Mrs. Alfred Moore, a housewife with four children, and Dwight, former UK basketball player and now a teacher in the Fayette County School system and assistant UK track coach.

DR. CARL CONE, HISTORY PROFESSOR, IS CHOSEN UK "DISTINGUISHED PROFESSOR"

Dr. Carl B. Cone, professor of history at the University, has been chosen "Distinguished Professor of the Year" for 1959-60 by vote of his colleagues in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Dr. Cone, an authority on British history, is the sixteenth winner of the award, which was inaugurated in 1944 as a means of recognizing outstanding academic achievement.

The winner is the first holder of the Hallam professorship in history and winner of the Hallam book award.

The honoree customarily is given a semester free of teaching duties to pursue a research project of his choice and to prepare for the annual Arts and Sciences lecture the following spring. Dr. Cone is visiting Great Britain during the fall semester in order to do research for the second volume of a two-volume biography of Edmund Burke.

Cone is the author of two books, the first volume on Burke, entitled "Burke and the Nature of Politics," published in 1957, and "Torchbearer of Freedom," published in 1952. The latter volume is a biography of Richard Price, British political philosopher who influenced the leaders of the American Revolution and framers of the Constitution.

He also contributed a chapter in "The Making of English History" and edited a book on "The American Political Tradition." He has written numerous articles for professional journals.

A native of Davenport, Iowa, Dr.

Cone was awarded a bachelor's degree from the State University of Iowa at the age of 20, a master's at 21 and his doctorate at 24. He did post-doctoral study in English literature at Yale in 1951.

He began his teaching career as an instructor at Allegheny College, Pa., in 1940. He has served with the University of Iowa, the Iowa State Historical Society and Louisiana State University.

Previous winners of the award were the late Grant C. Knight, professor of English, 1944; Dr. Amry Vandenbosch, Department of Political Science, 1945; Dr. Thomas D. Clark, Department of History, 1946; Dr. William S. Webb, Departments of Physics and Anthropology, 1947; Prof. John Kuiper, Department of Philosophy, 1948; Dr. Irwin T. Sanders, Department of Sociology, 1949; Dr. Morris Scherago, Department of Bacteriology, 1950; Dr. Charles E. Snow, Department of Anthropology, 1951; Dr. Arthur C. McFarlan, Department of Geology, 1952; Dr. Herbert P. Riley, Department of Botany, 1953; Dr. Lyle E. Dawson, Department of Chemistry, 1954; Dr. Clement Eaton, professor of history, 1955; Dr. Gladys M. Kammerer, associate professor of political science, 1956; Dr. Ralph H. Weaver, professor of bacteriology, 1957, and Dr. Hollis Summers, professor of English, 1958.

LIBRARY SCIENCE, NURSING SERVICE HEADS NAMED

A program officer for the U.S. Information Agency in Washington and a Minneapolis assistant director of nursing services have been appointed to posts at the University of Kentucky.

The UK trustees announced in September that Maurice D. Leach Jr. of Washington has been appointed head of the Library Science Department and Miss Sue Kern, of the University of Minnesota Hospital, Minneapolis, has been named director of nursing services for the Albert B. Chandler Medical Center.

Leach, who succeeds Edward J. Humeston Jr., also will be a professor of library science. His appointment was effective immediately.

Miss Kern, who has taught nursing arts at the University of Minnesota, will take office on Jan. 1.

A native of Lexington, Leach at one time was an assistant at the public library. He holds bachelor degrees from UK and the University of Chicago and a master's degree from UK.

He has been a bibliographer, director of library services and program director for federal agencies.

Miss Kern, who also will be an assistant professor in the UK College of Nursing, is a native of Earlville, Ill., and a graduate of St. Luke Hospital School of Nursing, Chicago. She holds bachelor and master degrees from the University of Chicago.

ORR APPOINTED

Clyde L. Orr, who has been serving as principal of Franklin County High School, is the new director of the University of Kentucky Ashland Center.

Orr, who has completed requirements for the degree of doctor of education at the University, holds degrees from Lincoln Memorial University and the University of Tennessee.

He has taught elementary school in Lee County, where he was born, and high school mathematics and chemistry at Grundy, Va. He also has served as principal of the Oakdale, Tenn., School and of Versailles High School. He taught for one year at Eastern Kentucky State College.

UK Artists Win Fair Prizes

Two members of the UK Art Department won prizes at the Kentucky State Fair.

Raymond Barnhart won second prize in oil painting for his picture, "Cymbiform," and Anne G. Green's water color, "Library Walk," won third prize in the fair's professional division.

Proffitt At Michigan

John R. Proffitt, assistant to the dean of men at UK, is studying for a Ph.D. in political science under a fellowship to the University of Michigan.

Proffitt, a native of Louisville, was appointed to the UK post in 1957.

He is a 1953 graduate of UK, and received his M.A. degree at summer commencement.

Kenneth Harper, YMCA secretary at UK, recently was appointed to replace Proffitt.

SPORTS NEWS

By KEN KUHN
UK Sports Publicity Director

Well before he had any indications that the 1959 campaign would turn out so successfully that his sophomore-studded club ranked second in the nation on an amazing record of 24 wins in 27 starts, Kentucky Coach Adolph Rupp warned "they better get me this year 'cause Uncle Adolph won't be caught short again."

It could be that the famed Bluegrass Baron of Basketball will live to regret his words, but the experts are not counting on it. Losing only All-America Johnny Cox and a quartet of reserves, the perennially strong Wildcats should not be short of talent in the coming campaign as they seek to atone for a missed golden opportunity to win an unprecedented fifth NCAA crown.

Headed by the Southeastern Conference "Sophomore of the Year", 6-3 forward-guard handyman and Co-Captain-elect Bill Lickert, Kentucky will have the services of an experience-enriched band of four juniors and three seniors plus a promising 6-4 forward-center, Carroll Burchett, who was held out last season. In addition, an undetermined amount of help will be forthcoming from the ranks of '59 freshmen.

Although Burchett looks like a good bet to step into the forward spot vacated by the sensational Cox, Kentucky's starting lineup for next season is far from certain. Coach of the Year Rupp, in the most masterful juggling since wartime days when he had All-Americans on the bench, utilized no less than eight different opening lineup combos last year and could well surprise everyone with his choices in 1959-60. However, barring the unexpected, the experts don't foresee any graduate of the freshman team breaking into the top five at the start.

The top Kitten prospects are 6-1 guard Larry Pursiful (top scorer who averaged 19.1), 5-11 guard Eddie Mason (18.7), 6-5 center-forward Allen Feldhaus (12.7) and 6-3 forward Jim McDonald (10.5).

With the tallest new man stretching only 6-5, Coach Rupp doesn't figure to get much help in the height department. However, still around and on the physically fit list again is the big boy, 6-9 junior Ned Jennings, who figured into plans last year but never saw much action due to slow early development and then an ankle sprain that kept him out of eight games in mid-season. Also back is Co-Captain-elect Don Mills, a 6-7 senior who operated most of last season as the regular pivotman. Mills was the team's fourth best scorer with a 10.5 average and the tenth most accurate free thrower in the nation (82.7%).

The lack of exceptional height should be offset by a status-quo or possible slight improvement in the speed department. True to tradition, Kentucky will attack opponents in 1959-60 with a scintillating crop of small but speedy guards, forwards who can move and centers who get down the floor with surprising ease. The always-surperbly-conditioned Wildcats boast probably the fastest set of guards in the country in senior Bennie Coffman, a junior college transfer who hit at a 50 per cent clip from the field last season, and junior long-short artist Dickie Parsons. And ready to step up the pace when needed is another junior college product, senior Sid Cohen.

Defense, which allowed UK to rank eighth in the nation in average scoring margin last year, also should be one of the long suits of the '60 Wildcat band with the sensational Lickert setting the example. Rupp and such coaches as Frank McGuire of North Carolina class the Kentucky junior as one of the best they've seen. Lickert turned in several outstanding jobs on the opposing team's top scorer last season, but his best were on Notre Dame's All-America Tom Hawkins and Rex Frederick of Auburn.

Biggest offsetting factor to the generally optimistic outlook in the Kentucky camp is the knowledge that they again will have to win their laurels at the expense of an increasingly-strong host of pointing opponents. The Wildcats had the roughest time in years last season within their own Southeastern Conference, failing to win the title for only the third time in the last 15 years. And the non-league schedule traditionally includes nationally-rated foes such as West Virginia, North Carolina and St. Louis—who will be participants in the high-calibre UK Invitational Tournament.

CENTURY CLUB DRIVE PASSES HALF-WAY MARK

DRIVE TO CONTINUE UNTIL GOAL REACHED

More than 300 loyal alumni and friends of the University of Kentucky already have pledged a minimum of $500 each to the Alumni Association's Century Club fund drive designed to reach $250,000 by the time the University celebrates its centennial in 1965.

The campaign, kicked off at an alumni leadership conference in June, has continued steadily and successfully due to the concentrated efforts of a group of volunteer workers composed of alumni, faculty and citizens and it is anticipated that the goal will be reached by the time reunions roll around the latter part of May.

There has been no let-up in mail and personal solicitations throughout the summer and fall, and those alumni who have not been contacted personally may accept this general notice as an invitation to participate. Members of the Century Club will be the proud wearers of gold lapel pins (men) or bracelet charms (women) designating their membership in this distinguished group of alumni and citizens who believe in the University of Kentucky and its program for the future.

To demonstrate the devotion of one alumnus to his Alma Mater, we are quoting here an excerpt from a letter from Dr. R. C. Kash, '25, of Lebanon, Tenn., an early contributor to the Century Club.

"It might seem a bit unusual for me to enter into a pledge of this amount since I am now a transplanted Tennessean. However, I am still a Kentuckian at heart and a UK man to the core! In making this contribution I do so with the realization that all of it will be well spent and none wasted, for I still have an abiding faith in the principles, methods and policies that have always guided the administration of this great University.

"Also, when one reaches the age of fifty, he will know, if he has read the price tags in life correctly, THAT THE GREATEST PLEASURE COMES NOT FROM HAVING MONEY BUT IN ITS PROPER USE. To contribute to a cause in which worthy students and faculty members would benefit is one of the greatest privileges that could come to me."

This successful physician-alumnus is a philanthropist and a humanitarian who still believes in the fundamental things which he gleaned while an undergraduate and the Alumni Association and the University are grateful to him—not only for his monetary contribution but for his unwavering faith in the University and in her future.

There are several ways in which an alumnus may become a member of the Century Club. He may pledge to contribute $100 a year for five years either by sending in his first check of $100, by signing a pledge card and forwarding four post-dated checks for $25 each to be deposited by the Alumni Association at the dates designated on the checks, or by sending in 12 post-dated checks—eleven for $8.33 and one for $8.37. When the renewal date comes around next year the Alumni Office will send out reminders that the next installments are due and you may repeat the method until the five years have elapsed.

Few alumni of the University of Kentucky are unable to adapt to their own budgets these simple methods of payment and many will become members of the Century Club upon learning about the installment payment plan. Just write to the Director of Alumni Affairs, University of Kentucky, and a brochure explaining the purpose of the Century Club, the uses to which the money will be put and a pledge card, will be sent to you.

A sample pledge card is reproduced on the inside back cover of this magazine if you should desire to use it. The Century Club Fund campaign will not be concluded until the total goal has been reached. We are counting on each and every one of you to do your part.

Frances Ott, recently accepted an appointment as instructor in German at DePauw University. Miss Ott received the master's degree from UK in 1959. In 1955-56 she was an exchange student at the University of Tuebingen in Germany.

A recent gift to the University of Kentucky Alumni Association of stocks points up the growing tendency of alumni to take advantage of the additional tax savings gained by giving securities which are worth more than they cost to their alma maters.

The advantages of giving stocks are real to the small donor as well as the large. For example: assume a share of stock cost an alumnus $50 and is now worth $90. If sold, this would represent a taxable capital gain of $40. If the share of stock is given to the University of Kentucky, the alumnus pays no capital gain tax and can deduct $90 as a contribution on his income tax return.

Alumni should be reminded not to give stocks which are worth less than they cost. This is disadvantageous tax-wise. If one wishes to dispose of such stocks, he should sell them outright, creating a deductible tax loss.

Alumni contemplating a gift of stocks should write to the Alumni Office, Student Union Building, for full instructions regarding the most advantageous method of transfer.

PORTION OF BROWN ESTATE GOES TO SCHOLARSHIP FUND

A check for $1,869.63 was recently presented to the UK Alumni Association for its scholarship fund. Presentation of the check was made according to the wishes of Mrs. Lynwood A. Brown in her last will.

Making her home in Lexington for 50 years, Mrs. Brown was the widow of Lynwood A. Brown who headed the public service laboratory at the University Experiment Station for many years. Joining the UK faculty in 1909, Brown had degrees from the Louisville College of Pharmacy and the University of Michigan. He retired from the faculty in July, '54, and died shortly after that. Mrs. Brown made her home at 125 Johnson Blvd. in Lexington until her death in October '58. The couple had no children.

WILL YOU BE ONE OF THE PROUD MEMBERS

The loyal alumni and friends of the University, listed below, already have demonstrated their allegiance to the institution and their belief in the Century Club program by pledging a minimum of $500 to the Alumni Association's centennial program.

More than 300 Century Club members have already enrolled; a minimum of 500 will insure the success of the program. Many of you have been contacted, either by mail or personally, and those of you who have not may accept this as a personal invitation to join. A detailed story about the Century Club is included in this issue of the ALUMNUS. Be sure that your name will be listed on the bronze plaque in the new Alumni Center when the University celebrates her 100th birthday in 1965.

A former all-around athlete, Wilson was head basketball coach, assistant football coach and head of the Physical Education Department at the College of William and Mary at Williamsburg, Va., before he launched his life insurance career in 1951. In 1950, he was named "Coach of the Year" of the Southern Conference, of which William and Mary was a member. Prior to his service at William and Mary, he served for several years as head basketball coach and athletic director at Union College, Barboursville, Ky. He is married to the former Elizabeth Irene Howard of Harlan, Ky. They have two sons, Bernard E. III, age 11, and William, age nine.

STAHR IS FORMALLY INAUGURATED AS WEST VIRGINIA UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT

Forty-three year old Elvis Jacob Stahr Jr., '36, native of Kentucky and brilliant scholar who has devoted his career to education and the law, was inaugurated October 3 as West Virginia University's 14th president.

A crowd of 6,000 West Virginians headed by Gov. Cecil H. Underwood attended the ceremonies which were held in the University Field House following a colorful academic procession of nearly 300 official delegates of universities, colleges and professional and learned societies, several hundred members of the faculty, and the University Board of Governors and state officials.

President Stahr received the formal induction charge and a new "President's Medallion" symbolic of the office from Dr. Thomas L. Harris of Parkersburg, veteran member of the Board of Governors who is now in his second term as president of the nine-member University governing body.

Gov. Underwood brought greetings in behalf of the people of West Virginia. The president of the Alumni Association, J. Ray Fredlock of Morgantown, spoke in behalf of the alumni. The faculty was represented on the program by Dr. Festus P. Summers, chairman of the department of history, and the students by Jack Bowman of Petersburg, president of the student body.

Inauguration ceremonies come almost eight months to the day since President Stahr reported for duty last Feb. 1 from the University of Pittsburgh, where he had been vice chancellor for more than a year. He had accepted this position in 1957 after resigning as provost and law dean at the University of Kentucky.

He is the youngest West Virginia president in 60 years and his inauguration is the fourth since the turn of the century, the most recent having been that of his predecessor, Dr. Irvin Stewart, in 1947.

A public reception was held on the President's lawn following the program. More than 800 diners honored President Stahr at an inaugural-evening banquet.

William G. Thompson of Montgomery, member and past president of the Board of Governors, presided over the banquet program, which included messages from Governor Underwood and six men who have been closely identified with President Stahr's career.

This group was headed by his father, Judge Elvis J. Stahr of Hickman, Ky., and consisted of Chancellor Edward H. Litchfield of the University of Pittsburgh; Frank Pace Jr., chairman of the board, General Dynamics Corp. and former secretary of the Army; President-Emeritus Herman Lee Donovan of the University of Kentucky; Robert T. Rinear, executive vice president, General Precision Equipment Corp., New York; and President Courtney C. Smith, Swarthmore College.

More than 30 university and college presidents were among the official delegates participating in the academic procession and attending dinner.

John Gordon Wins Art Prize

John Gordon, '50, faculty member of the department of art at East Carolina College, received in Atlanta, Ga., on Sept. 27 the third prize of $300 in the Fourteenth Southeastern American Exhibition in the Art Association Galleries.

Gordon's oil painting "Boodie at Table" was chosen as a prize winner in the regional exhibition. Artists from nine states entered their works in the show.

"Boodie at Table," a prize winner in the 1958 North Carolina Annual Artists' Competition, is a study of the artist's daughter and belongs to his "brown period" when he used a restricted palette and worked mainly in brown, black and white. It is modern in style.

Gordon began his teaching career at East Carolina College and has been a faculty member there since 1952. He teaches painting, drawing, and design and acts as advisor to some of the students chosen to give senior exhibitions of their work.

His interest in art, realized at an early age, was intensified when he studied during military service abroad at the Beaux Arts School, Marseilles, and the American University, Biarritz, France. Later he did two years of undergraduate work at Centre College, 1946-1948; received the bachelor's degree at the University of Kentucky and the master's degree at the State University of Iowa in 1952.

DR. HARRY CONRAD WINS
AFMA NUTRITION AWARD

Dr. Harry Conrad, assistant professor of dairy science and an Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station researcher, was selected by the American Dairy Science Association to receive the first of three $1,000 awards to be made in 1959 by the American Feed Manufacturers Association for outstanding contribution to nutrition research. He received his award at the 54th annual meeting of the science association held last summer on the campus of the University of Illinois.

Dr. Conrad was selected for the signal honor for his outstanding contribution to public knowledge in the field of dairy cattle nutrition. His investigations dealing with calcium and phosphorus metabolism in which cows were fed large doses of Vitamin D to prevent milk fever, and his researches on rumen function of the dairy calf, earned him special recognition. Other studies dealt with bloat, anemia in calves, and protein metabolism in dairy cows.

The Ohio researcher is a native of Burlington, Ky. A University of Kentucky graduate in 1948, he received the Sullivan Medalion in recognition of high academic achievement. In 1949, he earned his Master's Degree, and in 1952, was awarded his doctorate in dairy science at Ohio State University. Since 1952, he has been a member of the dairy science staff at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, Wooster.

While attending the University of Kentucky, where she received a bachelor of arts degree in 1957, she did field work at the Child Guidance Service and at Eastern State Hospital. She also was a volunteer worker with the Patients' Council at Eastern State.

During the past two summers, she was a social worker at the Leet Clinic and served as a member of the Clinic team at psychiatric clinics in Pineville, Pikeville and Middlesboro.

She is a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

SPICER ELECTED HEAD OF SAVINGS AND LOAN LEAGUE

William H. Spicer, executive vice president of the LaGrange Federal Savings and Loan Association, was elected President of the Illinois Savings and Loan League at its 80th annual convention in September.

Spicer heads an organization which consists of 518 savings and loan associations with combined resources exceeding $5 billion. He was advanced from the League's first vice presidency, and also served as a member of its board of directors.

Spicer attended Lexington public schools and was graduated from the University in 1940 with an AB degree in economics. In his senior year Spicer posted a scholastic average of 2.97 against a perfect mark of 3. He also attended evening classes at Northwestern University Graduate Schools and holds an American Savings and Loan Institute diploma.

He played on the Kentucky varsity basketball team and captained its frosh quintet. In high school he was captain of both football and basketball teams. He earned all-conference honors in football, and twice was named to all-conference and all-state basketball teams.

Spicer joined the staff of LaGrange Federal Savings as assistant secretary in 1940. Two years later he enlisted in the Navy and was commissioned an ensign in 1943. As Commanding Officer of the USS LCI 1054, he saw action at Saipan, Tinian, Guam and Iwo Jima.

He rejoined LaGrange Federal upon release in January, 1946 as managing officer of the association. Under his leadership assets of the association have increased from $3,500,000 to more than $48 million, ranking in the top 20 of the state's 585 associations.

Active in savings and loan groups, Spicer is a past president of the Federal Savings and Loan Council. He has served as a director of the Cook County Council, and on several committees of the U.S. Savings and Loan League as well as the Executive and Federal Committees of the Illinois Savings and Loan League.

He is a former director of the LaGrange Chamber of Commerce and chairman of its civic affairs committee.

A former vice president of the Young Men's Business Club of LaGrange, director of Kiwanis Club, and treasurer of the Red Cross drive, he directed the LaGrange and LaGrange Park Community Chest campaign and served as commander of Robert E. Coulter, Jr. Post of the American Legion. He is a member of the LaGrange Country Club and Sigma Alpha Epsilon social fraternity.

Spicer married the former Anne Jane Bestler in May, 1941. They reside at 650 South Edgewood, LaGrange with their family of seven children, 4 girls and 3 boys.

William H. Spicer, '40, and family of LaGrange, Ill.

CENTURY CLUB LOOKS FOWARD TO ALUMNI CENTER AS GIFT IN '65

Kentuckians interested in their state university and in the betterment of the state as a whole should take to their hearts and support with their pocketbooks a new organization which has prepared an ambitious program for the University of Kentucky's centennial birthday in 1965.

The Century Club, organized by the UK Alumni Association, plans to present to the University a new alumni center as a 100th anniversary present. The club also has a seven-point program which includes scholarship and faculty awards, financial assistance to faculty members, research facilities and seminars and is designed to make the University's education standards among the highest in the country.

Organizers hope for a minimum membership of 500 persons who would give $250,000 during the next five years, by pledging $100 annually. Membership is not limited to UK graduates. More than 150 persons already have joined the club. However, initial sign-ups always are easiest to get. The big membership test now has begun.

As an added inducement to prospective members, the club will display in the new alumni center a bronze plaque inscribed with members names. Men will receive a lapel pin, women a bracelet charm, both bearing the Century Club emblem of achievement. A Century Club wallet card will entitle the bearer to all club privileges. . . .

These benefits undoubtedly will help attract many members. However, the main inducement for membership should be what the club organizers term "The Big Benefit"—"the tremendous satisfaction of knowing you are playing a leading role in the development of American education . . . helping America to grow stronger through greater knowledge."

Alumni and friends of the University should consider as an honor membership in the Century Club, and should take pleasure in knowing they are helping insure the University of continued high standards, growth and prestige as one of America's great universities.
