Oswald Quits UK Presidency As Students Chant 'Don't Go'

President John W. Oswald left the Alumni House by a side exit Monday night after telling an executive session of the Board of Trustees he will quit his UK post. Trailing Dr. Oswald is board member Ralph Angelucci. The president's decision to resign was first made public this afternoon at a meeting of the entire board.

Dr. Oswald's Tenure Here Marked By Swift Progress

By CHUCK KOEHLER

Dr. John W. Oswald took office as the sixth president of the University of Kentucky Sept. 1, 1963, late in UK's 98th year.

One of the primary challenges of the position, he remarked, was that of successfully bridging the gap between the University's first and second centuries.

"The responsibility," he pointed out, "is to make sure that the foundations for a strong university, laid during its first century, will be adequately built upon and added to in its second, so that an even stronger university develops."

Dr. Oswald believed UK's Community College System ultimately could become "the undergirding of higher education in Kentucky." After assuming the presidency, he moved to develop that system. He established a separate office for administering community colleges and took other actions aimed at giving the regional schools necessary latitude to perform a comprehensive function embracing liberal arts, technical and adult education alike.

The 1963 enrollment of the Community Colleges—1,808—jumped to 5,662 in 1967. Part of the growth can be attributed to substantial increases in student loans, scholarships, fellowships and work opportunities and to a growing recognition of academic achievement.

In the same period, UK increased the number of its Community Colleges from five to ten. Three more are planned.

The main campus also experienced a rapid growth during the Oswald administration, from 9,190 students in 1963 to 14,737 in the fall of 1967.

While the University was granting between 35 and 45 doctoral degrees a year until 1965, last year's number increased to 88; there will be between 115 and 125 this year.

During the last four years, the number of Ph.D. programs has grown from 21 to 31, graduate-student enrollment has risen from 1,400 to nearly 2,200, and "outside" fellowships—those not provided by state funds—have increased from 67 to 169.

Other landmarks of Dr. Oswald's tenure include:

The addition of about 200 new faculty members. Improved recruiting and retaining of faculty, resulting partly from rising salary levels. A funded retirement system for the faculty, stated procedures on appointment, promotion, tenure and merit, and a plan of appointments on a 10-month rather than 12-month basis.

The adoption of an academic plan as a general framework for future development of the University.

The University budget in the 1963-65 biennium was $80,354,143. For the 1968-70 biennium, UK will have a total budget of $167,817,470.

Dr. Oswald was vice president for administration at the University of California before he accepted the presidency here.

He and his wife, the former Rosanel Owen of Bessemer, Ala., have two daughters, Elizabeth and Nancy, and a son, John Jr.

Dr. John W. Oswald, sixth president of the University, resigned this afternoon.

More than 600 students and some professors stood on the lawn in front of the Administration Building, chanting "Oswald, Don't Go," as the president arrived to inform the Board of Trustees of his decision. The group had lowered the American flag to half-staff.

Dr. Oswald paused briefly in front of the crowd, and, eyes reddening, said he was "deeply touched" by "this heart-warming exhibition."

He called the demonstration "one of the most exhilarating experiences I've had as president of the University." Then he waved and went inside.

As Dr. Oswald walked into the Board Room, trustee Sam Ezelle was the only board member who applauded the president's entrance.

In announcing his decision to resign, Dr. Oswald said:

"As I take this action today, I wish to express the deep affection I harbor for the University and the utmost confidence I have in its present state of development and especially for its promising future."

"It most certainly is maturing into one of the nation's finest state universities. I have the greatest respect and admiration for its excellent faculty, its thousands of outstanding, serious students, its very loyal and supportive group of alumni, and its dedicated, capable staff of administrators."

"I shall miss Kentucky very much."

Dr. Oswald will become executive vice president of the University of California system in September. He will be second-in-command to UC president Charles Hitch.

President Oswald came to UK in 1963 from a vice presidency at the University of California. He succeeded Dr. Frank C. Dickey in the No. 1 administrative position here.

During Dr. Oswald's administration, total UK enrollment has mushroomed from 10,500 to 20,000. Major gains have been registered in research, faculty recruitment, graduate programs and the community college system.

"This is a bad day for the University, a bad day for the Commonwealth," Sam Ezelle said after Dr. Oswald's announcement. "I consider it a 10-year setback for UK."

Mr. Ezelle said after the meeting that "all indications" point to a conflict between Dr. Oswald and the new and conservative state administration as the main reason for today's announcement.

Had the president not resigned, Ezelle claimed, he would have faced "something like Chinese water torture. They would have made conditions unbearable for him."

And he added:

"I hope this action won't begin a mass exodus from the University. I'm sorry for any and all reasons that made this decision necessary. Jack, you're a stand-up fellow."

Students, apparently reacting to speculation that Dr. Oswald's decision was caused by opposition from within the board, plastered the car of board chairman Gov. Louie B. Nunn with signs reading "Repeal Nunn."

Mr. Nunn told Dr. Oswald "it hasn't been my privilege to serve with you very long, but we are all extremely grateful for what you've done and are glad you can be here until September. We will make your stay as pleasant and enjoyable as we can."

He then asked for a portrait of Dr. Oswald to be hung in the Board Room among those of "other distinguished presidents of the University."

Gov. Nunn also asked that

LBJ's Bombshell Surprises UK McCarthyites

By CHUCK KOEHLER
President Johnson's political bombshell exploded Sunday night in the midst of snowballing pro-McCarthy sentiment at UK.

On Sunday, Phil Patton, chairman of UK Citizens for Mc-

Carthy, announced it was "a political fact that Lyndon Johnson will have to fight." But that was before the political world had been turned upside down by Mr. Johnson's refusal to seek a second full term as President.

'Interabang' Series Set By YWCA

"Minority Groups at UK" and "The Political Gambit" are the programs planned for "Interabang," a two-night discussion series sponsored by the YWCA at Nexus.

"Minority Groups at UK" will be a discussion panel of students who belong to three minority organizations on campus—Black Student Union, Cosmopolitan Club and Dillard House—moderated by Dr. Albert Lott, associate professor in the Psychology Department. "Minority Groups at UK" is set for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

At 7:30 p.m. Thursday, "The Political Gambit," a student discussion panel on politics at UK, is scheduled.

With a representative from Student Government as moderator, members of Students for a Democratic Society, Young Americans for Freedom, Young Republicans and Young Democrats will explain what their groups are doing on the UK political scene.

'J.B.' Staged By Seminary

"J. B.," Archibald MacLeish's Pulitzer Prize winning drama, will be presented by Lexington Theological Seminary at 8:15 p.m. on Thursday and Friday, April 4 and 5, and on Palm Sunday, April 7, in the seminary's Fellowship Hall.

Based on the biblical characterization of Job, the play is under the direction of Dr. Lester C. Rampley, professor of religious education.

He describes "J. B." as portraying a modern affluent man who is brought face to face with the profound religious question of unmerited human suffering as his family and fortune are stripped from him.

The question of why must the righteous suffer, Dr. Rampley says, has haunted mankind throughout recorded history and is "brought alive" in Mr. MacLeish's drama. "It provides a vital and appropriate means to ponder anew the profound meaning of Holy Week, so central in the lives of Christians."

The "J. B." cast is as follows: Mr. Zuss—John Bristow; Nickles—Bill McDonald; J. B.—Kerry Reed; Sarah—Linda Austin; Maids—Carol Diehm and Hazel McCuiston; First Messenger—Ron Crooks; Second Messenger—Phillip Connley; Girl—Cheryl Neely; Bildad—Jack Snellgrove; Zophar—Nik Donges; Eliphaz—Jim Burton; David—Tim Parks; Mary—Jean Graham; Jonathan—John Graham; Ruth—Kathy Faulkner; Rebecca—Suzanne Kenny.

now may face a choice between Sens. Eugene McCarthy and Robert Kennedy, who already have announced, and Vice President Hubert Humphrey, whose announcement as a candidate could attract much of the pro-Johnson sentiment.

The McCarthy group here is still working for a delegation favorable or committed to the Minnesota senator and, if the enthusiasm and turnout at Sunday's meeting is any indication, that goal may not be inconceivable.

The audience was large enough to be divided into two groups: one composed of students from eight Kentucky campuses and one Lexington high school; the other largely made up of

SEN. MCCARTHY

Fayette Countians of the Citizens for McCarthy Fayette County branch.

For the students, the next immediate goal is the Indiana primary on May 7. McCarthy supporters have organized north of Indianapolis, where most of the population is, but the southern part of the state still needs work. According to Patton, Kentucky McCarthyites may play "a significant part" in the Southern Indiana organization.

Patton said much of the increased support is a direct result of Sen. McCarthy's impressive showing in the New Hampshire primary. And "handwagon" support could be solidified following a McCarthy win in Wisconsin tonight.

An Indiana victory could add fire to the sentiment here; but for the local group, the real test will not come until July or August when Kentucky chooses its delegation. Although this gives swelling pro-McCarthy sentiment time to ripen, it also gives Sen. Kennedy and Vice President Humphrey needed time to establish their own organizations here.

Focus '68 Schedule Set

Sen. Robert Kennedy, Cassius Clay and Sen. Thurston B. Morton will highlight separate segments of the Focus '68, student-sponsored "seminar" on social inequities, this weekend at Memorial Coliseum.

Carson Porter, Focus '68 chairman, said today that a schedule has been set as follows:

- Friday, April 5, 7:30 p.m.:
 - Alfred B. Fitt, assistant secretary of defense for manpower; T. George Harris, senior editor of Look magazine, and Muhammad Ali (Cassius Clay), former heavyweight boxing champion.
 - Sen. Thurston B. Morton and Stanley P. Hebert, deputy counsel, U.S. Navy Dept.
- At 1 p.m., following a luncheon break:
 - F. Lee Bailey, defense attorney from Boston; Dr. Frank A. Rose, former president of Transylvania College, currently president of the University of Alabama, and presidential candidate Robert F. Kennedy.

The student chairman said each speaker will talk from a prepared speech for approximately 30 to 40 minutes, and that questions from the floor will be accepted. All sessions will be in Memorial Coliseum.

Tickets currently are on sale at Kennedy's, Wallace's and the University bookstores, Dawahare's Graves-Cox, Barney Miller's, and the Student Center, Porter said.

Tickets are $1 for students and $2 for the public. A single ticket will admit one to all sessions.

Tiger or lamb: who makes the best CPA?

Men who move in flocks don't make the best CPAs.

The CPA often hunts for answers in wild new country. He's constantly trying to solve problems that have no pat solutions. He needs conceptual imagination and conviction — and guts. He may have to defend his answers (like a tiger) when he thinks he's right.

The demand for CPAs is growing fast. Whether they are in independent practice or part of the top management team of a company, they are taking on increasing responsibility in financial and business affairs.

You can select the college courses that can help you earn a CPA certificate soon after graduation. Or you can take them in graduate school. Ask your faculty advisor about them.

If you'll drop a card or note to us, we'll be glad to send you a booklet with the whole CPA story.

Election, Vietnam Positions Reassessed

Stunned Leaders React To LBJ's Announcements

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American and world leaders were stunned Sunday night by President Lyndon B. Johnson's decision not to seek reelection.

Republican and Democratic leaders agreed that presidential candidates of both parties—as well as the Communist leaders in Hanoi—will have to reassess their positions on Vietnam and the 1968 elections.

President Johnson pointedly declined to endorse anyone for the nomination he said adamantly he would not accept.

His decision to reduce bombing in Vietnam sent a wave of relief and hope for peace around a surprised world.

Britain appealed to the Soviet Union to reconvene the 1954 Geneva Conference which could arrange a settlement. India, chairman of the International Control Commission on Vietnam, promised "wholehearted cooperation" on the new peace initiative.

Communist parties in the Soviet Union and other nations brushed off the bombing halt. Newspapers and citizens of many countries suspected President Johnson's action was a pre-election maneuver. Others called his speech an act that will change history and that "proved the vitality of a great democracy." Some said Mr. Johnson was a "tragic" figure.

From Paris to Warsaw, citizens and the press predicted Sen. Kennedy would become the next President.

Sen. Kennedy took his presidential campaign into Pennsylvania Monday night after praising President Johnson's decision to retire as "truly magnanimous."

Sen. McCarthy heard the stunning news of President Johnson's withdrawal from the race as he was putting the finishing touches on his campaign against him in the Wisconsin presidential primary.

He was first stunned, then elated, and then he saluted the President.

"I look upon this as a personally sad and difficult moment for a man who has given so many years to the service of his country," Sen. McCarthy said. "With this generous judgment, President Johnson has cleared the way for the reconciliation of our people which he called for, and for a redefinition of the purpose of the American nation."

Sen. Frank Carlson (R-Kan.) said Mr. Johnson's decision means "Republicans will have to do some soul searching before our convention."

"The announcement that President Johnson will not seek and will not accept the nomination for President affects candidates in all political parties this year," Sen. Hugh Scott (R-Pa.) said.

Sen. Scott urged New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller to reconsider his decision and "become a candidate in this time of great crisis and great challenge for America."

Gov. Rockefeller, however, said Monday he was standing pat on his decision against becoming an active candidate despite President Johnson's withdrawal. He did leave the door ajar.

"Will you reassess your position?" A newsman asked when the governor returned from a weekend at his estate in Westchester County.

"Well, I will tell you," Gov. Rockefeller replied. "I think that many decisions that are made in haste often turn out to be wrong. So, I am a great believer in waiting and absorbing the impact of what's going on."

Third-party presidential candidate George C. Wallace said he was "stunned and shocked" at President Johnson's withdrawal from the race but said it would not influence his campaign.

Mr. Wallace said "I'm not going to withdraw under any circumstances" and said the President's action might improve his own chances.

Sen. Harrison A. Williams (D-N.J.) said he would lead a group of senators to meet Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey upon his return from Mexico to endorse him for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Sen. Williams said he and other senators loyal to President Johnson would greet the Vice President and his wife when they landed at Andrews Air Force Base and would offer Mr. Humphrey their support.

Voters React To LBJ In Primary Vote Today

From Combined Dispatches

Wisconsin's citizens will be the first to express voter reaction to President Johnson's surprise decision not to seek reelection.

Today's primary conceivably might give Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy (D-Minn.) 57 votes toward the Democratic nomination.

And the extent of a vote of confidence in the President's Vietnam deescalation decision could affect the chances of Republican candidate Richard M. Nixon.

Mr. Johnson's name remains on the ballot, and Rep. Clement Zablocki, head of the President's campaign forces in Wisconsin, urges an "overwhelming" vote for Johnson.

State Democratic Chairman Richard Cudahy asked Wisconsin voters to show "we approve of the program the President proposed last night." Cudahy is generally expected to support Sen. Robert F. Kennedy (D-N.Y.) for the nomination.

Voters can select either party's ballot at the polls and Republicans feared that many might vote Democratic to register a protest vote against Mr. Johnson. Mr. Nixon has no significant primary opposition.

Nixon supporters, however, were not discounting sympathy for Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, whose name is on the Wisconsin ballot.

Exit Dr. Oswald

The resignation of the President is no surprise. Ever since Gov. Nunn was elected in November, an increasingly conservative mood has swept the state. With this mood has come serious efforts to oust Dr. Oswald.

Dr. Oswald's efforts in dragging this university into the Twentieth Century have gone largely unheeded in Frankfort. His programs have been met with anguished cries from the Legislature; the future directions of the University have been questioned as to their "multiversity" tendencies.

But the blame rests not with Frankfort.

The blame rests with you and me. For we members of University community are the ones who have not voiced our opinions of the University. We have let slide all the things that make us proud to be here, while concentrating on the things that displease us.

We will gripe about parking, but ignore speaker ban resolutions; we will fuss about the food, but ignore a student seat on the Board of Trustees. We will take their knowledge but ignore their education.

We simply do not care, it seems, and because of that, the shining light of higher education in the Commonwealth has not been able to penetrate even his own confines of Euclid, Rose, and Lime.

Kentucky was not ready for Dr. Oswald; Kentucky is not ready for higher education.

Exit Dr. Oswald.

Kernel Forum: the readers write

By JOHN JUNOT

Fear not. Rather than let the democratic process in America decay, I have decided to take action. I am a candidate for student government president. Before I deal with the obvious questions of eligibility and qualifications, let me present my platform:

If I am elected, I will work to, but can not guarantee that I will: 1. Abolish women's hours, with the exception of freshman girls. And even with them I will leave open a provision that they may be released from hours requirements at the discretion of the Dean of Women based upon recommendation of the girl's floor counselor and by the permission of the girl's parents. Since this freedom from hours will become a status symbol in women's dormitories, it will encourage better discipline.

I see this abolition of women's hours as only the first step toward completely free visiting privileges and, eventually co-educational dorms. By this I do not mean coeducational roommates, but rather stacking one sex atop the other on different floors.

Also in line with this goal, I would ask the Administration to end the de facto segregation of the sexes by shifting the dormitory populations. That is, the populations of say, complex 3 and complex 8, or Donovan Hall and Jewell Hall. This would be merely a change in book-keeping and wouldn't cost an extra cent to the University.

2. I will personally go to Frankfort and negotiate an end to the war between the State Legislature, the Administration, and the student leftists here. Much progress could be made simply by teaching all parties concerned each others viewpoints.

I would also strive to take more responsibility for controversial student activities upon the Student Government itself. This would not only increase student power, but also help get the Administration off the hook and so release the energy they now spend uselessly fighting the Legislature and worrying over what the Herald might print for more beneficial pursuits. By generally working to head off this trend toward polarization and auto-suggestion we are now faced with, I would hope to at least forestall a Southern-style Berkeley incident.

a. To help implement this program, I would use my power as Student Government president, such as it is, to organize and fund a student "think tank" made up of qualified graduate students in such fields as psychology, architecture, and business. This group would devote its time entirely to studying the University, the present campus and planned additions, and put out a report at the end of every semester, or perhaps at the end of the year, which would analyze the campus and suggest scientific solutions to its problems, and improvements. The group would get academic credit for it.

A possible second use for this "think tank" would be to train future college administrators. That is, whenever there was an absence due to illness, vacation, or out-of-town convention, a student would assume the role of caretaker.

Failing in this, I would subsidize, personally, necessary, an idea contest and, as president, work toward implementation of the best idea.

3. I would move to reform the present Student Rights Code so that it made more sense. However, in order to save the Student Rights Code, it may be necessary to destroy it. After the change, I would act to make it effective for the first time.

a. Hand in hand with this effort I would, having required new leverage, ask the Administration to abolish certain parts of the student housing contract which make that agreement a potential tool of dictatorship.

As for the compulsory housing issue: I believe that once free visiting privileges are instituted, and kitchen facilities are put in for those who want to use them instead of the cafeterias, there probably won't be that many students who want to live off campus, since dormitory prices are lower and living conditions better than anything you can find in Lexington.

4. Today's young people are in danger of believing that there is no one really human today except today's young people. Because of this, I would ask the Administration to expand the present Donovan Scholars program with one significant change: that, where possible, these new students be required to live in dormitories. However, I would say it would be best if all the older students were roommated together at the start.

a. To increase enrollment even further I would encourage the Administration to make a big play for veterans returning from Vietnam. Especially black veterans.

5. The Vietnam war aside, the present Selective Service System is gradually destroying all that America holds dear, including our young men, due process of law, and our graduate schools, without which I can't form that "think tank" of mine. For that reason, I would use whatever SC resources left over from the above efforts to organize campus wide draft resistance, with the goal of destroying or reforming the present SSS.

6. Aside from what I've specifically mentioned, I would leave such things as the student ombudsman, all present campus organizations, and all other Administration-student relationships strictly alone.

That, in brief, is my platform.

As to why am I running? I still maintain a naive faith in democracy. No government, no matter how big or how small, should be controlled by any one faction. But government belongs to the person who goes out and gets it. If only one person runs, that person will get all the power. What I mean to say is, I'm running because I want a piece of the action.

As for eligibility, I'm only a sophomore. Big deal. I'm also on academic probation. Well, if I'm going to do half what I set out to do, I'm going to have to give up studying anyway. That I am prepared to do.

As for qualifications: that's a minor point in any political campaign. But you can read my qualifications I through 6 above. I'm actually offering a platform. I've got imagination, I've got guts, I've got a sense of humor, I know how to handle people when people give me half a chance, and I'm just a little bit crazy. In other words, I'm the only guy on campus who could possibly pull off anything like that. It's a change, man. The choice is yours, etc., etc., etc. Since I can't get on the ballot, write me in.

Registrars Outline Pre-Registration Procedure

Students wishing to pre-register for the fall semester must do so on or before April 12.

Ray Cumberledge, assistant registrar, said he urged all students who plan to enroll for the fall semester to take advantage of the pre-registration period. "Students who pre-register will get first priority for available course spaces," he said.

Several innovations and changes have been made in the system, Mr. Cumberledge said.

He noted that students now have a chance to look at schedules for an entire year. Not only are schedules for the summer session and the fall semester available, but tentative schedules for the 1969 spring semester have been sent to advisers' offices.

Changes in the schedule booklet include listing both lecture and labs of the same course under one number. Separate listings have been made both for night courses and honors courses. Students wishing to take night courses cannot pre-register for them, however.

"We hope that by making these changes, we can give more students a complete schedule," Mr. Cumberledge said.

Graduate students who receive completed schedules and who pay their fees by mail will not have to confirm their registration at the Coliseum in the fall, he said.

Mr. Cumberledge said it is hoped that this is the last semester upperclassmen will be required to have their pictures made for an identification card. Hopefully, students will merely have their ID's validated each semester.

Last semester, 85 percent of students pre-registering received all courses they requested, Mr. Cumberledge said. "We hope we will be able to do that well or better for the fall semester."

Although students whose names begin with A-L were to have registered last week, they can go through the process this week if they have a "legitimate reason" for missing advance registration, Mr. Cumberledge said.

For summer school, currently enrolled UK students do not pre-register or fill out special applications, said Keller Dunn, associate dean of admissions.

Summer school students register when they report to school June 10 or 11 according to the summer school catalogue, said Mr. Dunn. "This applies to all students now enrolled at UK," he added.

Mr. Dunn said students who want to receive credit for summer classes taken at other schools should first see their advisers.

"Advisers will check the accreditation of other summer schools and try to prevent course duplication by noting class descriptions for students. Advisers will tell students which forms must be filled out for UK to accept credits earned at summer schools elsewhere," Mr. Dunn said.

He said about 4,200 students were enrolled in summer school at UK last year and an increase of one hundred to two hundred students is expected this summer.

"Half the summer school students will probably be public school teachers who will spend their summer taking college classes," he added.

Board Gets 'Stacey Report'

A 26-page report on a letter satirizing the administration of Morehead State University, published in the March 4 issue of the Kernel, has been given to University President John Oswald.

The report, compiled by a fact-finding committee of the Board of Student Publications, was to be submitted by Dr. Oswald to the Board of Trustees at its meeting Tuesday, Dr. Gifford Blyton said at the publications board meeting Monday night in the Administration Building.

The fact-finding committee—which included board members Dr. Lyman Ginger, Dr. Neil Plummer, Laura Muntz and chairman Dr. Blyton—interviewed Jim Stacey, the UK graduate assistant who wrote the letter; Dick Kimmins, Kernel editor, and Tom Williams, Kernel adviser.

Dr. Blyton said "only facts" were included in the report. He said Stacey told the committee, "I and I alone wrote the letter."

The 13 members at the board meeting also set dates to interview applicants for next year's faculty adviser for student publications and applicants for Kernel editor.

the screening committee for selecting a new president include faculty as well as Board of Trustee members.

Dr. Ralph Angelucci, a board member, expressed hope that faculty representation on the committee would "prevent" the feared exodus of professors.

Former Gov. A. B. Chandler, a Nunn appointee to the board, said the Oswald administration "has done some good things and it has done some bad things."

Mr. Chandler told the Kernel he "will serve" as UK president "if such a notion is pushed," but added that he would "try to talk the board out of it."

The former governor will be 70 this year. That is the mandatory retirement age for University employees.

Dr. Oswald leaves UK at the age of 50 with a record of long service to higher education.

An Open Invitation To Concerned Students

A year ago this summer several students got together and created the Student Activities Board. This Board was conceived as a group of students that should and would be concerned with all campus activities. Coordination, communication and innovation were to be the bywords of this new organization. Several of the programs that have come under the guidance of the SAB are the Miss UK Pageant, Hanging of the Greens, several concerts and speakers, LKD and Focus.

As this academic year quickly comes to an end it is time to make plans for next year. In the planning stage now is a SAB that would continue many of this year's programs and at the same time become an even more active forum for these and other programs. Discussion will center around the "why" of programming as it concerns the wellbeing of our "out of the classroom" learning experiences. Student Athletics Committee, an academic chair for an outstanding individual, better academic advising system, community service programs, and more handball courts are but a few of the topics for discussion and possible action.

Are you one of today's students that has a legitimate bitch and feel you can offer positive alternatives? Do you have trouble participating in the passions of the time? Then apply now for the Student Activities Board.

Applications are available in your residence units as well as the East Information Desk of the Student Center. Friday, April 5 is deadline. Turn in applications in Room 305 Administration Building.

EXTRA POINTS

By JIM MILLER, Kernel Sports Editor

The college basketball season has been over about a week-and-a-half, but there remains a couple of rules questions that need tending to in this off-season.

When the NCAA rules committee met last summer, there were two major questions raised. One dealt with the dominating big man. The other concerned itself with the "slowdown" style of play.

Mild action was taken on each question.

One rule that passed the committee prohibited the giants of the court to stuff the ball during a game. This was to hamper the big man. The other law said a team could not keep the ball in the backcourt, behind designated marks, more than five seconds. This was designed to speed up the game and prevent stalling tactics.

If this past season was any indication, the rulesmakers goofed. Neither rule proved to be as effective as anticipated.

The anti-dunk rule did little, if anything, to deter the big man from completely dominating the ball game.

The averages of the big men this season were just as high, if not higher, than ever before. Elvin Hayes, the NCAA player of the year, was a prime example of this as he averaged nearly 37 points a game in leading Houston to a number one ranking in the wire service polls.

Lew-CLA

Lew Alcindor averaged only about half as much as Hayes, but it didn't lessen his domination any at all. Lew led UCLA to its second consecutive NCAA title.

If the rulesmakers are going to salt the tail of the big man, the anti-dunk rule is not one way of doing it.

The banning of the dunk also took away one of the biggest crowd-pleasers in basketball. A 30-foot set is a pretty shot, but it takes the dunk to get a crowd on its feet.

The anti-slow down rule should have been the one upon which greater action was taken. The number of "slow-down" games did not diminish while one of the "freeze" games played an important part in eliminating an NCAA contender.

Duke University, heavily favored over mediocre North Carolina State, was caught in the deep freeze by the Wolfpack en route to a 12-10 loss. The score was 4-2, N.C. State, at the half.

The game set an Atlantic Coast Conference low-score record for one game. The Carolina fans continually booed their own team for using the tactics.

A possession time limit could be the answer in halting the "deep freeze" style. A team which likes to hold onto the ball, especially in extreme cases like the Duke-North Carolina State game, would be discouraged from doing so if it had to shoot in, say 30 seconds.

The rule that was passed to facilitate the speedier game did not serve its purpose as well as the rulesmakers had thought it would.

Five-Second Rule Ineffective

The five-second rule kept the stalling team from standing out front and hold the ball. To counteract this and still comply with the rule, all a team had to do was move the ball toward the basket and past the five-second mark. As soon as they were past the mark they could fire a pass back outside and start over again.

With a 24, or possibly a 30-second rule, the team has to shoot or lose possession of the ball.

Even an application of the Olympic rules would speed up the college game. There are no foul shots during the first ten minutes of play. The fouled team gets the ball out of bounds. During the last five minutes, each team gets two shots per foul.

In effect, the two rules changes did little to change the complexion of college basketball. There was still the big man controlling the game and there was still the 12-10 slowdown game.

The rulesmakers want to counter the big man and speed up the game. A time limit on possession would help speed up the game.

Since a good way to counter the big man is by beating him down the floor, a time possession rule would serve the two-fold purpose that the last pair of rules was supposed to do and didn't.

Netmen Go Undefeated On Weekend Road Trip

By STEVE BRIGHT

A clinic Tuesday afternoon and a quadrangular match this weekend will mark the return of the UK tennis team to its home court after an undefeated road trip.

Billy Talbert, a former player and a former captain of the United States Davis Cup team, will be on hand for the clinic. Talbert was national doubles champion five times, and he has won the senior mens doubles championship several times.

The clinic will be held in Memorial Coliseum at four o'clock. The UK team's portable court will be used.

Tennessee, Eastern Kentucky and Western Kentucky will be the visiting teams in the quadrangular meet at the Sportscenter.

Eastern and Western will meet at 1:30 p.m. Friday, followed by Tennessee-UK at 2:30.

Eastern will play UK at 8:30 a.m. Saturday, and Western will play Tennessee at 9:30 a.m.

Eastern and Tennessee will play at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, and Western and UK will play at 2:30.

UK Record Now 8-2

The UK team won three matches last weekend, improving its record to 8-2. All of its 10 matches have been away from home.

The UK team defeated Berea, 9-0, East Tennessee, 6-1, and Virginia Tech, 6-3.

Sophomore Steve Imhoff continued to lead the UK team in singles matches. He was 3-0 last weekend to make his overall record 8-1.

Ron Hollinger, Les Chapman and team captain Bob Berg also had 3-0 records in last weekend's matches.

Tommy Wade, UK's top-ranked player, was 2-1, as was Brad Lovell.

Wade played what UK coach Dick Vimont called "probably the best match of his career" at VPI. Wade defeated Jay Collins, 6-1 and 6-2 at VPI.

'Cats Fall 2-0 For Fifth Loss

The UK baseball team lost its third game in a row Monday as Miami of Ohio defeated the Wildcats, 2-0 on the Sports Center field.

Miami pitchers George Fannin and Sam Carpenter allowed only three hits, all singles.

Wildcat starter Danny Feldhaus only allowed five hits, but UK could not get the runs.

UK will try to improve on its 1-5 season record as they meet Georgetown, Wednesday at the Sports Center.

- B. Visiting a Nigerian University.

Actually, Virginia Blount and Frank Ogden are doing all these things. As members of the 500-student World Campus Afloat-Chapman College, these two Arizona college students had the opportunity to talk with students at the University of Ife, Ibadan branch, Nigeria.

With the help of Nigerian students and professors, the Americans compared religions, art, anthropology, educational systems, economic developments, geography, drama, music, and dance of the two countries. This is the regular course work aboard Chapman's shipboard campus, the s.s. Ryndam. Virginia and Frank transferred the credits they earned back to their home colleges, Arizona State University and Northern Arizona University, and are going on for their baccalaureate degrees. UK Students Organize Club For Skydiving

By AMELIA SYMPSON
 "Geronimo" is the cry of students involved with the newly organized UK Sports Parachute Club. The group has been jumping the last few weekends at Green County Sports Parachute Club in Xenia, Ohio. Last weekend, members jumped at a farm near Paris.

Jumping through hula hoops, passing batons and making hook-ups are part of the pre-jumping exercises. And once a person learns the basic skills of parachuting, "he is able to do almost anything an airplane can do, except go up," said Pat Stallard, club vice president.

After five hours of training, students are able to take their first jump. The initial training teaches a student to control the parachute, how to land and how to handle malfunctions that may occur.

According to club president Ben Blyton, skydiving is a safe sport. One always has two parachutes and beginners always use a static line which opens the parachute pack automatically, he said.

Blyton said only a few people complete the course of parachuting and, therefore, only about 10 percent of the those who attempt it actually skydive.

Future plans are being made for a "fun jump" with Western Kentucky University skydivers, with the public invited. Jumping for accuracy, which is an attempt to land on a small disc, and jumping for style, which consists of a series of "turns" attempted in a certain amount of time, will be demonstrated.

When the club has more members, it plans to enter competitions with other colleges and universities. Members must be licensed with the United States Parachute Association to participate in competition.

Students interested in becoming a member of the UK Sport Parachute Club should contact

Pat Stallard after 6:30 p.m. at 278-1665. Costs for training are $35 for the initial five hours and $3 for each proceeding jump. If a group of five interested people can be gathered, the initial fee lessons will cost $20. Students under 21 must have notarized permission from their parents.
