Dear Julia,

Ep received your letter yesterday in which you complain of indisposition; I hope your consultation with the Doctor relieved you. Write when you receive this and tell us how you are.

Ep presented Brother with another daughter day before yesterday - Brother was quite disappointed, he was anxious to have a son - The young lady screamed as vociferously as though she was most anxiously looked for, she is determined not to be slighted - she is very large and will be pretty I think - Ep has some idea of calling her Emma, but is not decided - Ep is doing well - I would have written yesterday to advertise you of the important but event, but as usual had no paper - In the afternoon I went out with a party to Mr Sam Churchill's and have just returned - Ma sent you a basket of peaches a week since, she wishes to know if
