

Fall 1851?

My Dear Brother,

The last letter

I wrote you contained a pretty severe lecture on your negligence, I hope it did not offend you, but I have every reason to suppose that it did, as you have not written to me since; I did not write it with the intention of so doing, but to help you to get over so great a fault, as you term it, lack of energy.

Since my last letter we have