PROF. OLNEY

Olney dies day before retirement

Prof. Albert Jackson Olney, 70, head of UK's department of horticulture since 1930, died of a heart attack Sunday, June 29, at his home.

His death came the day before he was to retire as head of the department. He was guest of honor at a testimonial dinner held here June 21.

A native of Michigan, Prof. Olney had lived here since 1916 when he joined the UK faculty as professor of horticulture.

Degree Awarded In 1913
He received a bachelor of science degree from Michigan State College in 1913 and a master of science degree in 1925 from the University of Chicago. Michigan State awarded him a honorary master of horticulture degree in 1920.

Before coming to UK, Prof. Olney taught science and agriculture at Greenville, Mich., in 1913-14, and served as horticulturist at Lyndonville, Vt., in 1914-16.

Language Exams

The basic achievement examination in foreign languages will be given July 18 at two o'clock (CST) in room 111, McVey Hall.

Students wanting to take the examination must sign up for it before three o'clock, July 16, in Dean White's office.

Whether this is the farmer's daughter or not we don't know but if she is it's back to the farm for us. Any way you look at her, Leitchfield's Jo Robertson is just about the prettiest flower to grace any Bluegrass meadow in many a sweltering summer sun.

high school band stars play tonite

Seventy high-school musicians from all over the state are on campus this week for the All Kentucky High School Band program.

Band members, selected by application from high school students, began rehearsals Monday and will continue through today. The program will be concluded tonight with a concert at 8:00 p.m. in the Memorial Hall Amphitheater. In the event of rain, the concert will be held in Room 22, Fine Arts Building.

Fitzgerald To Direct Band

The band will be under the direction of Bernard Fitzgerald, director of bands and head of the UK Music Department. He will be assisted by Daniel McAninch, Jerry Ball, William Worrel and William Steiden, all members of the music faculty. Other staff members working with the band include William Watson, Jerold Gerbrecht, Robert Davis, Claude Fouse and Mrs. William Worrel.

A party was held for band members Wednesday night, and Thursday the students presented a solo recital program in the Laboratory Theater of the Fine Arts Building.

Concert Program

The program for the Friday night concert is as follows: "Toccata," Frescobaldi; Overture from "La Sultane Suite," Couperin; "An Occasional Suite," Handel; "Salvation Is Created," Tschesnokoff; "Folk Song Suite," Vaughan Williams; "Hansel and Gretel" selection, Humperdinck, arranged by Bernard Fitzgerald; "Pastels," McRae; Highlights from "My Fair Lady," Loewe; "Holiday," Grundman; and "Liberty Bell March," Sousa.

coronation tops dairy field day

Dogs may have their days but Tuesday belonged to the cows as UK's annual Dairy Field Day was held on campus.

The program, sponsored by the American Dairy Association of Kentucky, was climaxed by the coronation of Ann Elaine Kelly, 18, Falmouth, Ky., as Kentucky Dairy Princess of 1958. She was selected from 29 contestants from all over

Auburn post is accepted by Melzer

Dr. John Henry Melzer, associate professor of philosophy at UK, has resigned to accept a position as head of the philosophy department at Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, Ala.

Dean M. M. White, of the College of Arts and Sciences, said he received Dr. Melzer's letter of resignation recently.

The salary increase he will receive as head of Auburn's philosophy department was not the prime consideration in his acceptance of the position, Melzer said. The opportunity to direct a philosophy program weighed more heavily, he said.

Will Experiment With TV

At Auburn, Melzer will experiment with closed-circuit television teaching of philosophy. He said the school wants to begin a program which will require all students to have at least two philosophy courses before graduating.

the state. Janie Griffin, Pulaski County, last year's princess, crowned the new winner. Miss Kelly will represent Kentucky in the national contest Nov. 19 at Baton Rouge, La.

Dairy President Gives Keynote
Earlier in the day, Lyman McKee, president of the American Dairy Association, delivered the principal address, emphasizing the need for markets for dairy products. He urged his listeners to adopt modern methods of dairying to improve their herds and to take part in the campaign to sell more dairy products.

The part that the ADA plays in helping farmers was stressed by McKee. Research work done by land-grant colleges was discussed at the session.

The program of the ADA uses the four tools of selling . . . advertising, merchandising, public relations and research, he said.

During the morning those attending the field day were taken on a tour of UK experimental work in dairy subjects.

Six aspects of the dairy industry were discussed during the tour. Speakers were: Dr. D. M. Seath, head of the UK dairy section; Dr. Don R. Jacobson, Don Dowden, Joe W. Rust, William Templeton, Dr. R. Buckner, Don Claypool, Dr. Durward Olds and B. Brown all of the UK staff.

Summers is distinguished prof of A&S

Prof. Hollis Summers, member of the UK English Department, has been chosen as Distinguished Professor of the College of Arts and Sciences.

This title is presented each year to a professor selected by his fellow faculty members.

Summers, the author of three novels, plans to devote the year of research time which goes with the title to work on another novel.

Has Written Three Books

His published books are "Weather of February," "City Limit," and "Brighten the Corner." A book of poetry, "The Walks Near Athens," will be published next year.

Summers has also written several short stories and in collaboration with Jim Rourke, he wrote the mystery, "Teach You A Lesson." He was also the editor of "Kentucky Stories," a collection of short stories by Kentuckians.

The Winner!

'58 grad develops system for sending photos by radio

A system which would enable news photographers to send pictures from the scene of action to their home offices by short-wave car radio has been developed by a 1958 UK graduate.

Copthorne Macdonald, Lexington, developed the system as a project in a course here at UK. Macdonald was graduated in May in electrical engineering, and is now a junior engineer in advanced electronic work for Federal Telecommunications Laboratories, Nutley, N.J.

The method is especially adapted for use by newspapers and smaller television stations. It employs inexpensive "slow-scan" television type pickup and reproduction equipment and has a range limited only by the range of the radios used.

In a paper describing the system Macdonald said it may also be used by law enforcement agencies in squad car communication, such as sending out pictures of criminals or suspects wanted for questioning.

gift of the year

A childless couple in Marion Springs, Pa., a high school graduate from Columbia, Ky., and the director of the UK Testing Service are the principal figures in one of the most refreshing human interest stories of the year.

The story developed when Mr. and Mrs. L. C. L. Thomas advertised in the Saturday Review of Literature their desire to contribute to the support of a needy student of high ability.

UK's Dr. Ernest McDaniel answered the ad and recommended Carrol Robert Renfro, who had made high scores on a statewide testing program.

Mr. Renfro had every requisite for a college education except the money to pay for it. Now he has that. The Thomases will pay $750 toward his expenses at UK.

The Kernel echoes Mr. Renfro's thanks and applauds Dr. McDaniel, who made such a gratifying story possible.

It would be nice if such generosity were contagious.

the golden age

Grade averages for the spring semester are out, and UK's frat men will no doubt lead the nation's state universities in scholarship for the fifth time in the last six years. That must make all of the University's male students eggheads, because the all-male average is the same as that of the fraternities. With almost 40 per cent of the UK enrollment averaging below 2.0, one might conclude that the other state universities are turning out muscleheads instead of scholars.

a place to roost

A few more parking spaces have been added for the travel-weary motorists who circle the campus like birds in search of nests. Now if the University can add 60-odd more new spaces (as they plan to do) by fall, it might not be necessary to banish parking offenders to exile on the Scott Street lot.

frat house files reveal secrets on how to pass

By DON DEATON

No fraternity has attempted to deny rumors that its files are full of old tests, term papers, and notes on every course on campus, but one of the best-kept of all secrets was bared this week when a Kernel reporter accidentally uncovered the secret files of a local fraternity.

This file was unique in its complete coverage of all instructors. Some of the milder reports were: Dr. Ignatius Mediocrity—Yale, '18, M. A. in English. Only way to get an A under this one is to converse with him in Greek. He has never learned to speak English, and as a result has never passed anyone not speaking his native tongue.

Limbo, Yale '38
Juan P. Limbo—Also a Yale grad, this one majored in economics. Cut class as excessively as you wish, but always give the excuse that you have attended your grandfather's funeral. He can't remember, and this excuse has served the same student as many as 35 times in two different classes. Dr. Clyde Mismatch—Ph.D. in Math. Two dates with the doctor's homely daughter should get you an A, but beware; married off two daughters in one semester by holding up the grades of graduating seniors until after the weddings.

Unfortunately, the Dean's special investigator stepped in and destroyed the files just as the fraternity was in the process of swapping information with its chapters on other campuses.

plenty of entertainment in the area for students

UK students don't need to head for the library every weekend because of lack of entertainment in the area. Besides the downtown movies, there are many other shows and dramatic presentations which offer a pleasant respite from summer school.

"Wilderness Road," an outdoor drama by Paul Green, is now in its fourth season. It is presented nightly except Sunday at 8:15 in the Indian Fort Amphitheatre at Berea. Student tickets may be obtained at a discount by contacting Sharon Miller in the SUB.

The Louisville Amphitheatre is presenting five shows this season, starting with "No Time for Sergeants," July 14-20. Other features to follow are "The Pajama Game," "Song of Norway," "Naughty Marjetta," and the Gordon McRae Show.

Season tickets for these five shows range from $7.90 to $16.75.

Danville Playhouse Open "Ladies in Retirement," a murder melodrama, is now in progress at the Pioneer Playhouse in Danville.

Entertainment can be found right on the UK campus beginning July 23. Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Carousel" will be presented by the Music Department.

The annual Summer Opera in Cincinnati is now in progress and will continue until late August. "Carmen," "La Boheme," and other well-known operas are scheduled. Many Metropolitan Opera stars, such as Roberta Peters, Walter Cassel, and Dorothy Kirsten, will be featured.

Pres Whelan holds both the varsity and freshman two-mile records setting the frosh mark of 9:45.3 in 1957 and the varsity mark of 9:52 in 1958.

If all the cars in the world were lined up bumper-to-bumper, half of them would try to pass.

Bigge gets grant for study tour

Dr. Adolph E. Bigge, head of the Department of Modern Foreign Languages and foreign student advisor, has received a grant for a two-month travel-study tour of the Middle East, beginning Sept. 15.

The grant was given by the American Friends of the Middle East, working with the National Association of Foreign Student Advisors. Only one grant of this type is made each year.

Dr. Bigge will tour a number of countries in the Middle East and expects to spend some of his time in Turkey, a portion of which is in the Middle East.

Dr. Bigge

While on his hour, Dr. Bigge will visit a number of former foreign students and alumni members of the University and tour educational institutions. During the past academic year, 53 tries. Many of the former students now hold positions of major importance in their home countries, Dr. Bigge said.

Cultural attaches of the countries to be visited will arrange meetings among officials of the countries, former students, and Dr. Bigge.

The grant was made directly to Dr. Bigge, who received permission from the University to accept it. During his absence, Dr. Paul E. Whitaker, professor of German and German literature, will be acting head of the department and foreign student advisor.

AF extends pact for UK research

The Air Force Office of Scientific Research, Washington, has renewed a contract with the University of Kentucky for the study of a special class of materials closely related to the elements used in transistors.

The announcement was made by Dr. Merl Baker, director of the Kentucky Research Foundation, and Dr. Lewis W. Cochran, acting head of the physics department. Dr. Lee W. Gildart, associate professor of physics, is principal investigator and director of the project.

The new contract, which will go into effect July 1 and continue through Sept. 30, 1959, will provide an additional $27,910, bringing the total for the project to $55,910. The former contract went into effect Jan. 1, 1957.

Dr. Gildart said the research will be mainly a study of electrical effects in certain crystals, largely compounds containing the element selenium, and the relations between the crystalline and glassy forms of these materials.

Others working on the project are Thomas E. Johnson Jr., Lynch, who is doing research for a Ph.D. thesis; J. R. Davis, and John A. Stamper, both of Lexington, who are studying for Master's degrees; D. M. Mattox, Lexington; D. R.

Grid great on campus for summer

By LARRY VAN HOOSE

So you think that big brawny fellow should be a professional football player instead of a University of Kentucky student?

You mean the bull-necked guy you've seen dodging through the crowded campus sidewalks like an All-American end slipping through an enemy pass defense?

Well that's just what he is, an All-American college end and a professional gridder. He's Steve Mellinger, who cavorted on the collegiate gridirons for Kentucky's Wildcats from 1951 till 1953.

The hulking Mellinger is enrolled in summer school for what he hopes will be his last time as he is scheduled to graduate in August with a B.S. degree in Secondary Education, a process which has been strung out for eight years.

The graduation route was de-toured to include a tour in the Army and two years with the Washington Redskins, who snatched the Wildcat "all-everything" after his last season with Coach Pau Bryant in 1953.

Big Steve's Back

Big Steve Mellinger the former UK All-America who even played in the band (by proxy) is shown being interviewed by Kernel sports editor Larry Van Hoose. Mellinger who is here this summer to complete the requirements for his B.S. degree will join the Green Bay Packers this fall where he will again be teamed with another UK All-America, Vito "Babe" Parilli.

After two years with the Redskins, Mellinger was traded to the Green Bay Packers last winter. He'll leave for camp as soon as the sheepskin is firmly in hand next month where he will join "The Kentucky Babe", Vito Parilli, who teamed with Mellinger to form what most UK fans rate as the best pass-catch combination the South has seen.

"I'm very happy with the trade and I am looking forward to being with the Babe again," Steve said recently.

"Green Bay is more of a passing team than the Redskins. I will be playing slotback up there, which is actually a halfback split up past the end position," the Bethlehem Penn., native explained.

Mellinger expects to replace former Michigan great Ron Kramer, who has been hampered by knee and leg trouble since he joined the Packers.

"And too, there has been a lot of talk around the pro league and in the newspapers about how hard Parilli is to catch so that may have had something to do with my going to Green Bay. Once you get used to Babe's passes you can catch him," the crew cut gridder said.

Mellinger and his wife Eileen have two children, a boy and a girl. Steve's plans for the future are aimed at a successful pro career and then a coaching job.

home ec junior receives $300 Erikson Scholarship

Billie Lou Reed, a University of Kentucky Junior Home Economics student from Carrollton, is the recipient of a $300 Statie Erikson Scholarship for the 1958-59 school year.

The award, sponsored by the UK School of Home Economics with the cooperation of the alumnae of Phi Upsilon Omicron, professional home economics fraternity, will be administered through the University's Thomas Poe Cooper Fund.

Approximately $3,900 has been given to the Erikson Scholarship fund, named for the director-emeritus of the school, by 164 donors. The most recent contribution was received from Mrs. Honji of Karachi, Pakistan, who was a special student in child development in 1955-56 and who is now teaching in Karachi. Her husband administers the national program in community development there.
