He believes that the American business man showed a general lack of knowledge in the 1929 depression, giving as reason over-production.

Auburn Plainmen Score Unexpected Victory Over Wildcats At Birmingham

O'Rourke, and Kilgore Turn in Scintillating Game for Auburn

Weakly weakened by the absence of New and Potter, the Kentucky Wildcats fell before a powerful onslaught of the Auburn Plainmen in Montgomery, Ala., Saturday afternoon, and wound up on the short end of a 23 to 0 score, in one of the worst defeats the Cats have suffered since Ghet Wynne became head coach.

It was Bunky O'Rourke, a substitute fullback, replacing the almost unreplaceable Wilton Kilgore, who started the show in one of the most beautiful exhibitions of broken field running ever staged in Crampton.

He believes that the American business man showed a general lack of knowledge in the 1929 depression, giving as reason over-production.

Referring to college athletics, Dr. Embree said that they had assumed astonishing proportions. In his assault on them he said that football had little better than horse racing and little worse than professional fighting.

Dr. Embree said that to be a gentleman is one of the marks of an educated man. He claims that the old southern idea of an educated man was a scholar, a gentleman and a judge of good liquor.

YOUTH AND THE RED EVIL

A remarkably large and blustery tempest is being waged within the china-thin confines of the Yale Daily News teapot.

One can well imagine the Yale bulldog growling uneasily in the half-sleep of his self-sufficiency. Comfortable old men, bulldogs, and Yale work themselves into a tremendous dither when the odor of a new idea wafts around an ivied corner.

It is not that we believe the United States harbors no red propagandists—that would be like denying the existence of the people themselves—but rather undue emphasis is being placed on Yale as a breeding place for communists.

In the first place, 62% of the 3300 undergraduates, and faculty who were questioned recently admitted having been born in Russia.

The revelation does, however compel realization more clearly than before that there is such a thing as Red activity among our younger fry.

The foreign-born, even though foreign-born, is nevertheless making itself at home in America's front parlor and has to be seriously considered.

The Kernel does not feel as the Daily News digest might suggest to some, that all that is left to be done is to pull down the stars and stripes and send up the red rag.

It is not that our system is to be considered perfect—that is not the question—but rather honestly to discuss problems of public interest.

The people as a whole are not willing to overthrow a form of government they have for one little tried and not too successful.

In whatever way, however, Yale or any other university may have been afflicted by the red peril of Russia, The Kernel is confident in the conviction that upon the campus of the University of Kentucky the crimson devil can expect no comfortable abiding place, either now or hereafter.

THE ANNUAL THANKSGIVING DAY GAME

For the past few years there has been a growing agitation on the part of Tennessee athletic authorities to change the date of the annual Kentucky-Tennessee game.

The desire for the increase in revenue which would result from the playing of two games in the place of one is obviously the only reason for seeking such a change of schedule since each school has great respect for the other's team and athletic relations are most cordial.

of most other schools, these games could easily be arranged on other dates.

Feeling that college football is already highly enough commercialized, yet at the same time realizing that a certain amount of commercialization is necessary if A-1 teams are to be maintained, we protest against this altering of a time-honored tradition.

Then too, there is a decided advantage in the mid-week day for a football game in that it gives both teams a chance to make real preparation for a real battle.

Let us then uphold this time honored and revered tradition—the highlight of our football season, the finishing touch to a day of feasting and gladness, the proponent of good will between two great states, which would lose much of its glamor if it were given the status of an ordinary weekly contest—the annual Turkey Day grid battle between the Tennessee Volunteers and the Kentucky Wildcats.

TIME FOR ACTION

For the past several years, incoming male freshmen students have been required, through a regulation of the Men's Student Council, to wear caps in the colors of the University, so as to distinguish these freshmen from upperclass students.

It has been apparent, during the last year or two, that the first year students have been more and more inclined to grow away from the usage of these caps until now it is indeed a rarity to see a freshman hat.

There is, however, another angle which must be attacked before this matter is so completely and loosely tossed aside. We refer, of course, to the effect which the consistent violation of any regulation has upon the morale of any body.

Now, it is squarely upon the Student Council to act one way or another. It is wholly unlikely college people to allow matters to permeate themselves. If it is decided by that group that the blue and white caps are not in keeping with the prevailing attitude in our colleges, then let them be discarded.

If, however, the council believes that freshmen hats are an integral part in the traditions of the University, it lies upon that body, with the cooperation of staff and students, to rigidly enforce the regulation requiring first year men to wear caps.

Honor systems of some kind or another exist in about 20 per cent of American colleges and universities. They are more prevalent in privately-controlled institutions than in either public or denominational schools.

Sophomores at Haverford take a comprehensive examination containing 2725 questions. It requires 12 hours to complete the test.

Harvard will celebrate the 300th anniversary of its founding in 1936. It is the oldest institution of higher learning in the United States.

Kentucky twice penetrated deep into Auburn territory late in the second quarter after Mitchell, punting from behind his goal line, kicked off of bounds on Auburn's 35 yard line. Johnson went in for Ayers and made a yard off left tackle, but the play was called back and Auburn's defense held the 35 yard line. Johnson went off for off-sides. Davis made four through center. On the next play Auburn was penalized again for off-sides and Kentucky had first down on Auburn's 33. Davis made two at center. Johnson tossed a long pass to Hagan on the Plainsmen's 15 yard line. Again Auburn was penalized five for off-sides and Kentucky had first down on the opponents' 10. Davis made four at left end. Johnson was smothered for a seven yard pass. A pass from Johnson to Davis was incomplete and the half ended.

Opening the third quarter, Patterson kicked to McMullan and he returned to the 28. Johnson made four at right tackle. A pass from Johnson to McMullan bounced off an Auburn player's hands. McMullan caught it and ran to the Plainsmen's 35 yard line. Davis made three at left end. A pass from Johnson to Davis, 45 yards, was good for three more. Another pass from Johnson to Davis gave Kentucky a first down on the Auburn 22 yard strip. Johnson tried another pass and was hurt on the play. Ayers replaced him. Ayers tried a pass and it was intercepted by O'Rourke. Auburn was watching for Bert Johnson and Bob Davis and these two stars were smothered nearly every time they bugged the leather. Auburn's running attack was functioning almost perfectly Saturday and they gained 285 yards from scrimmage while their defense lim-

Cochet Wynne's Wildcats lost their second ball game of the season last Saturday when they dropped a 23-0 decision to Auburn's Plainsmen. Even the so-called "Scarlet Scourge," that Francis Schmidt is guiding up at Columbus, didn't beat Kentucky that badly.

So there must have been a reason or two, not alibis, mind you, but a couple of reasons for the way the Plainsmen manhandled the Kentuckians. And there are some reasons.

We didn't see the contest down at Montgomery. We did listen to Ed Ashford's account of the game. He played by play, over the radio, but listening to a broadcast of a game does not quite come up to actually seeing the same tilt.

But after listening to the broadcast and then talking it over with a couple of first-hand witnesses, we may be able to make matters a little clearer to some of the customers who would like to know what went on down there.

In the first place and probably of most importance, last Saturday was Auburn's day. Once or twice during a season, and often at the most unexpected times, a football team will play such a brand of ball that they just can't be beaten that day. This was the situation at Montgomery, last Saturday.

The Plainsmen had evidently been waiting for Cochet Wynne and Kentucky, and Saturday they were ready and eager to go. Before the game, we're told, they had all kinds of pep and the terrific heat didn't take away a bit of their enthusiasm. In other words, they were "a ready ball club."

On the other hand, for the Wildcats, it was one of those days that coaches always fear; just an off day is probably the easiest way to explain it. The 'Cats lacked their usual spirit and dash and appeared listless in the hot sun and dust of Cranton Bowl.

Once the game got underway, it was apparent that the Plainsmen had been well-drilled by Coach Jack Meagher and that they would be formidable any afternoon, let alone on one of their "hot" days.

The Auburn quarterback knew just what he was doing and sent plays into the Kentucky line until he found his opening and sent Hitchcock through for 18 yards and a touchdown. It was easily discernible, right there, that the 'Cats should be chalked up to experience and may be a good thing, coming as it did before the vital games with Alabama, Tulane and Tennessee. The 'Cats will be out to vindicate themselves and Coach Cochet Wynne and will be beating down all the time.

There are still four more games on the schedule and Kentucky will win some of them and maybe all.

As a result of his brilliant exhibition in the Georgia Tech game, "Bullet Bob" Davis is to receive a "certificate of merit" from the All-American Board of Football. Each week, this board, aided by sports-writers in all parts of the country, select ten players whose work the previous week was particularly outstanding. The ten players are awarded the certificate and at the end of the season are considered on their record for the year, for positions on the All-American team selected by the board.

The All-American Board of Football consists of Coaches Howard Jones, Elmer Layden, Bill Alexander, Frank Thomas and Lou Little, presided over by Christy Walsh.

INTRAMURAL

The Intramural-W. A. A. dance, an annual event at the University will take place at the Alumni gymnasium on Saturday evening, October 26, the day of the varsity-freshman football game. Participants will be given Friday.

The annual volleyball tournament has started in full blast. Last Thursday night saw all three divisions in action. In the first division the Deltas defeated the K. A. S. A. E. received a forfeit from the Phi K. A. S., and the Triangles defeated the S. P. E.'s in a hard fought game by the scores of 15-13, 13-15, and 16-14.

In the second division, the Phi Taus defeated the A. T. O.'s and the Sigma Chis the Alpha Gamma Rho. While in the third division the Kappa Sig's and the Sigma Nus took the Lambda Chis and the Alpha Sig's respectively.

In individual sports, tennis, golf, and horse shoes have been slow in spite of the fine weather. The golf tournament has already advanced to the quarter finals with Mohney a heavy favorite. Tennis and horse shoes are still in the third round with no outstanding contestant as yet.

Independents and fraternity men are urged to prepare early for boxing and wrestling.

From Enemy Camps

The Crimson Tide of Alabama marched right back into the football limelight of the South, Saturday, when they charged all over the Tennessee Volunteers to the tune of a 25-0 score.

After the small Howard College team tide Alabama, the dopsters all over the country said the Tide was just another "has been". The next Saturday they ran over George Washington and were on the comeback trail. Back out they went when, a week later they lost to Mississippi State; but now they are again in the spotlight.

This time they are very definitely in the running because in defeating Tennessee the Tide left no doubt as to which was the stronger team. The Tuscaloosa boys completed five out of ten passes for 90 yards and ripped through the Volunteer line for 174 more yards, while they held Tennessee to a total of 20 yards net offensive gain. They made 17 first downs to three for the losers.

Alabama, led by Riley Smith who scored twice, talked ones in each quarter and during the whole game allowed the Vols to cross the center of the field only twice. Once just after the start of the second half, Tennessee penetrated to the Tide 49 yard line and again in the last quarter a pass from Dickens to Porter put them on the Alabama 33 yard line. However this last play was called back as both teams were offside.

This Saturday the Tide will attempt to stay on the comeback trail when they meet the undefeated University of Georgia gridsters at Athens. The following week they will meet the University of Kentucky Wildcats at Birmingham.

The University of Florida continued their string of losses, being defeated by Mississippi, 27-6. Tulane met mighty Minnesota and was repulsed 20-0. Georgia Tech made the nation's headlines by virtue of their amazing upset of the widely acclaimed Duke Blue Devils. This is the second time in three years that the Tech team has knocked the Devils out of the national spotlight and they did it by the identical score, 6-0, that they did it by in 1933. The Yellow Jackets gained 188 yards from running plays to 95 for Duke. From passes, the Tech team gained 4 yards to the Blue Devils 19. And they made 15 first downs to Duke's seven.

Ohio State continued its march to the National championship by defeating Northwestern, 28-7. Xavier defeated the Haskell Indians 32-0 while Maryville fought King College to a 7-7 tie.

Sport Sketches

Clarence "Able" Ayers, versatile halfback, comes to the University from Corbin, a town in the South-eastern part of Kentucky... "down that" his many friends gather around the radio every time Kentucky plays... to hear what "Able" is doing... like us they are very proud of him and have a right to be... It was Ayers who stepped into the shoes of Bert "ManoWar" Johnson to start the Wildcats off with the first touchdown against Georgia Tech... "Able" can really leave a football and is also very handy as a placekicker... it's been quite some time since the 'Cats have had as good a passer as Ayers... although one of the lightest men on the squad he is also one of the toughest... he likes it best when the going is hardest... 22 years old, he is 5 feet 11 inches tall but weighs only 157 pounds... "Able" is a Delta Chi pledge as well as a pledge of Scabbard and Blade... he is a member of the senior class... and is in his third season with the varsity... swimming and raising flowers are his hobbies... and he doesn't especially care for women.

TAYLOR TO LEAVE
Dean W. S. Taylor of the Department of Education, will leave for Louisville this afternoon to attend the Safety conference and also a meeting of the Teacher Training committee of Kentucky.
