Paul Maxwell finds life enjoyable as 65-year-old Donovan Scholar

Attending school is a 'stimulation that keeps the mind active'

an Scholar Paul Maxwell, still spry at 65 years young, says unger students in his classes treat him like one of the guys.

At age 65, most people are content to retire and relax. Paul Maxwell sirst entered college in learn and I learn something new everyday. Lefter everyday before graduation. He came to UK in the fore graduation. He came to UK in continue to be active so I won't stagnate—mentally as well as aphysically."

Maxwell, 65, is a UK Donovan scholar.

The Donovan program, open to people 65 and older, offers to students free tuition and free testienton of classes in the College of Arts & Sciences. The program, which started in 1983, now has an ennollment of more than 20.

According to Maxwell, attending school, in the content of the program, and with my devication. Phones are ringing in Room 203 the Student Center Board Concert Committee is preparing for the upcoming Dave Mason concert (March 7) featuring Bob Welch. On a wing and a prayer.

"Everyone's calling and coming by to find out when and where tickets go on sale," said cochairman Jeff Bojanowski. "It looks real good—getting this kind of response even before ticket sales have begun—theyr es scheduled to 'begin' Monday."

Bojanowski admitted that econcert would cost the SCB around $30,000—theye the amount that is currently in its bank account. This isn't as risky as it sounds. The concert committee, which has a student members, has been operating 'out of the hole' since early last summer the committee to take a reasonable risk and bring musicians of Dave March and the proparament of the

Smut control: It's just the beginning

In a manner of speaking, pornography is now very much on the minds of local and state legislators.

Lexington police cited three bookstores for displaying obscene books in December. That action effectively removed the dangerous Joy of Sex from the reach of small children. Charges, though, were not pressed.

But the Joy of Sex escapade didn't top the Oh. Calcutta misadventure for sheer hilarity. In that adventure last October, Metro Police arrested the cast of the nationally performed play. The Keystone cops never had it so good. Now the Kentucky legislature is getting into the act. Last week a bill was introduced in the House which would problish the sale of lilicit and immoral sexual materials to minors (under age 18).

Sponsored by Rep. Claudia Riner, D-Louisville, and 42 other legislators, the bill has broad standards that could ban famous nineteenth-century nude paintings as easily as pornography until the hour someone turns 18. A sliding scale, designed by government experts to lessen the shock of exposure to salacious material, would be a needed addition to pornography control. Here's a rough outline:

television comedies?

An important area of definition will be in measuring emotional intensity. Many restrictions depend on the arousal of lust and passion, and distinctions need to be made. When does health become lust? What is the difference between passion and puppy love?

There are many such questions that need to be answered before we can safely be under the protective umbrella of government smut regulation. But the answers are there, and must be found. Otherwise, people will have to make their own decisions on what they want to see.

In the second half, UK ioward James Lee was wide open for a layup when reserve Floyd Bailey decided to take matters a little too seriously and smashed Lee to the hardwood behind the basket and was awarded two shots for the intentional foul. After the game, LSU coach Dale Brown was asked in a postgame interview if his team was "simon pure." Brown dodged the question at first with a question of his own to the reporter, "Have you ever masturbated in your life." Brown's response was not exactly the response of a man whose mind was on the game of baskeball and the welfare of the players. Last weekend, Brown became enraged at a Georgia spectator after LSUs 88-86 win in Athens and started kicking him just before the regional television cameras cut away. Continued, on following page

SEC commissioner Boyd McWhorter believes there is not much reason to be alarmed. "We've got certain games that attract trouble more than others," he said. "We had a situation down at Nashville where there were a lot of oranges thrown toward the end of the game (Vanderbilt-Tennessee). "Everyone of our institutions has shown a chink in their armour. It's unfortunate that a small percentage can do something to mar the game."

Brown echoed some of the some thoughts is.

Brown echoed some of the same thoughts in his interview here. "You're probably the most knowledgeable people here in Kentucky, Ninety percent of your fans are phenomenal, but you've got 10 percent that aren't, like but you've got 10 percent that arent, use anyplace."

So, as McWhorter explained, "Every in stitution evaluates its security department. We put responsibility (for security) on the host institution."
Gary Durham of Campus Security at LSU said that 15-20 more officers are expected for the game tomorrow. "We will have in the neighborhood of 50 officers," he said.
"We don't expect any problems. The only problem! The seen was at a football game (coincidentally, the UK game last fall)."

"You are asleep, more of the state of constant of the others who worked with Mapes in his performance in the Student Center ballroom Wednesday night.

The word hypnosis brings to mind images of a Svengalir of agustino, of people inducing others to commit acts of questionable legal or moral standing. Mapes, however, denies the possibility of such things.

"Hypnosis is an extension of our consciousness and magination, to achieve not an altered state of consciousness but a heightened sensitivity. I cannot make you do anything that your own morais and values will not permit you to do."

Mapes opened his show the signatures each time reflected the stage of hand-of questionable legal or moral and reverse that the top of the signatures each time reflected the stage of hand-of questionable legal or moral of the signatures each time reflected the stage of hand-of questionable legal or moral on a light note.
