Black History Ruled Out

Oswald Hears BSU Proposals

By LIZ WARD

Encouragement from UK President John W. Oswald to members of the Black Student Union Thursday night, overshadowed confirmation that a course in Negro history will not be part of the University curriculum next year.

Members were told by Dr. Carl B. Cone, chairman of the Department of History, that his department does not plan to recommend that the course be included in its curriculum for next year.

Dr. Cone said, in essence, that the course was too specialized for general interest. He did say that present courses in American history would be broadened to include more about the American Negro, but this met with dubious reaction from the BSU.

A spirited discussion of the matter ensued, but the final answer was the same:

BSU Member: "Does all this mean you will not add the course?"

Dr. Cone: "At this time, yes."

The BSU has circulated a petition in an effort to give some indication of how many students would be interested in the course. The petition, at this time, bears about 900 names. There are approximately 150 Negro students at UK.

Dr. Cone was asked about the possibility of students doing independent work in Negro history.

"This is possible," he said. "But if 800 people signed for it, we would be swamped."

Part of the discussion among Dr. Cone and BSU members was heard by President Oswald, who also spoke.

"I'm glad I got to hear this," was his first comment after being introduced by BSU President Theodore Berry.

Berry called Dr. Oswald "sincere" and one who wants to help Negro students.

Dr. Oswald emphasized that he was, indeed, interested and sincere and offered to meet with the group as many times as necessary to hear its entire program.

The program includes recruitment of Negro professors, accelerated recruitment of Negro students and athletes, establishment of more effective fair housing policy, and action on complaints by Negro students of "verbal abuse" from UK instructors in classroom situations.

Dr. Oswald told the BSU he could not respond to the question of verbal abuse without specific information of incidents.

He suggested that the BSU form some sort of committee to meet with him on the matter so that action can be taken.

"This sort of thing does not come under policy. It is a personal thing and action must be personal also," he said.

He called such verbal abuse "alien to the concept of the academic community."

Dr. Oswald further suggested

President John W. Oswald, appearing Thursday night at a meeting of the Black Student Union, offered words of encouragement to the organization's members. He indicated he will make himself available for future meetings of the BSU. Sharing the speaker's table with Dr. Oswald is Theodore Berry, president of the militant Negro group.

Kennedy Insulted Kentucky, Angry Legislators Insist

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI)—Sen. Robert F. Kennedy (D-N. Y.) was assailed on the floor of the state Senate Thursday for having "insulted" Kentucky by conducting a two-day tour of Appalachian poverty pockets.

"I think Kentucky has been insulted, and that every Kentuckian has a right to feel that way," said Democratic state Sen. Edward Murphy.

Sen. Murphy of Richmond, Ky., was given a rousing applause following his speech to the Democratic-controlled body.

Mr. Kennedy, chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Poverty, covered 500 miles of Appalachia areas Tuesday and Wednesday, talking to the poor and holding public hearings. A large delegation of newsmen followed him.

Without mentioning Mr. Kennedy by name, Sen. Murphy mentioned the visit of "a distinguished senator from Congress."

He said news media which followed Mr. Kennedy showed Kentucky's poverty and want to all the world while not mentioning the assets of the Bluegrass state.

"I have to wonder how different our poor Kentuckians are from the poor of crime-infested Boston, and New York City," Sen. Murphy said.

"I have to wonder why, if this concern for the needy is motivated by anything other than a quest for votes, that this senator did not go among the poor who sent him to Washington . . . and hold their plight up for public scrutiny instead of making a trip to my state."

Sen. Murphy also questioned how many poor could be fed for a month on what Mr. Kennedy's trip cost the taxpayers.

Sen. Murphy invited Mr. Kennedy to come back to Kentucky "to visit the thriving industrious people on our farms and in our factories and our stores and our offices."

"I would say to this senator that people who live in glass houses don't have any business throwing rocks, at least not at Kentucky," Sen. Murphy said.

Lt. Gov. Wendell H. Ford, also a Democrat, agreed with Sen. Murphy from his presiding chair. Mr. Ford said he would "recognize another speech like that."

Republican whip Norman E. Farris of Science Hill in Eastern Kentucky commented: "Amen."

Ombudsman Job Gets SG Approval At Last

By GERRY McCLURE

Student Government Thursday night ended a debate that has stretched over two semesters and officially authorized the creation of a student ombudsman post.

The assembly voted to follow the recommendation of temporary ombudsmen Ellis Bullock and Bob Valentine, who urged SG to take the action.

It was clearly a major victory for Student Government President Steve Cook. The student ombudsman issue has been his personal cause celebre ever since he assumed office.

The president's appointment of Bullock and Valentine in September had been openly challenged by the assembly, then belatedly approved in October. Thursday night's vote was the clincher.

It meant final defeat for those who believe no ombudsman is needed at all, and for those who advocated a UK administrator, rather than students, in the role of ombudsman.

Now, it appears, two students will function in the post. One will occupy a "senior" position, the other a "junior" one.

Each will serve two years. At the end of his first year, the junior ombudsman automatically will assume the seniortitle. The senior ombudsman will rotate off the job.

Initially, a second-semester junior and a second-semester sophomore will be chosen in order to establish a phase-in, phase-out pattern from the outset. The upperclassman will be appointed for one year, the sophomore for a full two-year term.

The program may be in effect before the end of the current semester.

Ombudsman appointments are to be made by the president of Student Government following interviews and the advice of a selections board.

The selections board will comprise the president of Student Government, speaker of the assembly, vice president for student affairs, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, and—in the future—the incoming senior ombudsman.

Their Manhood 'Is On The Line'

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI)—Protesting that their "development into whole manhood" is at stake, more than 1,200 of Notre Dame's 4,000 men have demanded the school go coed.

In a resolution adopted at a meeting of the general assembly of the student body, the men proclaimed that "normal and frequent association with the opposite sex both intellectually and socially is necessary for maturity."

Their manliness is on the line, the resolution said, and "is being hampered by a marked scarcity of the feminine influence."

The resolution favored a merger of Notre Dame with several women's college and demanded, in the meantime, that women be allowed to visit men's rooms.

Smith's Thoughts: Compartments Born

By CHUCK KOEHLER

When Pantagleize strides onto the Guignol Theatre stage on Feb. 28 and speaks his first lines, it will be his show. The director won't be there to say, "No, that's not how it's done." Pantagleize will be entirely on his own . . . well, almost entirely.

For the concentrated efforts of two creative men will have created an environment in which the actor can best perform. That environment is the stage setting envisioned by Associate Prof. Raymond Smith and implemented by Assistant Prof. Charles Grimsley.

Prof. Smith, who directed and designed the set for the Guignol production of "Royal Gambit," is the idea man behind the set's design. In his words, a set designer must be "a painter, sculptor, electrician, lighting expert and an architect."

Circus Of World

Smith might add "philosopher" to that list. Of "Pantagleize," he said, "The play involves a carnivalesque setting, a sort of circus of the world. Realism and expressionism characterize it; words like grotesque, macabre, exaggerated, and distorted best express my feeling about it."

"A heavily realistic setting would destroy the concept of the play," added Smith.

The play is now running at the Phoenix in New York. Smith said he has never seen it performed and prefers "to start fresh on a play's set design so that he can formulate his own ideas about it."

Grimsley is the technician of the two. He has made Smith's thoughts concrete. Smith's thoughts:

Smith's Thoughts:

The set involves eight settings. There are three tiers ranging from seven to nine feet above the stage. A ladder leads up to the left tier. Chairs are arranged around a small table. The center tier extends out to the audience in an arc. A movable ladder-platform extends to it. On the right is an inclined tier on which a low table rests.

Two doors fade into the left wing, one behind the steps. On the extreme right is a flying screen on rollers.

How well "Pantagleize" may be received on Feb. 28 is conjectural, but one thing is certain: the cast will be well served by the setting and lighting of Professors Smith and Grimsley.

LOUISVILLE—Some 1,600 to 1,700 students are expected here for the beginning of the fall semester at Jefferson Community College, according to James Hawkins, registrar at the college. The projected growth plan originally called for around 1000 students.

"We expect the enrollment to soar," said Mr. Hawkins. He pointed out that Jefferson has 804 students this semester, some 300 more than was originally expected. About the same number is expected for the summer 1968 session.

Mr. Hawkins said the present rate of applications indicates that the fall enrollment will nearly double early estimates. He also said that the college, which uses a swing schedule to make full use of available classrooms, could handle many more students than was expected.

Barriers of the Blue Grass

"What is Lexington made of?" asked Peter Rabbit, ever so softly and sweetly." And he answered his own question.

"Gains, gains, hotel integration, school integration, gains to the right of you, gains to the left of you, many, many gains," he said emphatically and wearily.

These seeming gains in the area of racial integration have lulled the general public into apathy and complacency. That part of Lexington's population exiled from the abundant economy is growing rather than declining. We are tranquil and they are tranquil, and to say that the lack of disturbances in past summers was accident or good fortune, . . . is realistic.

Lexington is a traditional southern town with a lot of apathy and a middle class that is solidly wishy washy. Twenty-four thousand Negroes are cut off from communications here and there is danger in future summers that they can be aroused by emotional means depending upon the effectiveness of a group or leader.

The greatest danger for Lexington is the public's unawareness of what's happening. Some of the most unaware, are the illustrious families in Lexington who own some of the biggest slums.

Right now in Lexington we have a ring of all-white suburbs and all-Negro communities existing in the inter-city. Last year, downtown urban renewal received four and a half million dollars from the Federal Government but it was for commercial renewal, not residential renewal.

Pralltown, the blighted area across the street from the University, has been rezoned business and industrial and thus residents in this area do not receive many needed services. We are, in fact, making more slums in Lexington. Beautification for stores, not homes, appears to be the city's answer. But it would seem that if the city fathers wanted an urban renewal program in residential areas they could get it.

Another factor contributing to racial unrest and rioting is the inequality in job opportunities for minority groups. Unemployment rates run much higher for Negroes than for whites in Lexington. Historically, Negroes have not been properly educated to qualify for good paying jobs. Since economics plays a leading role in creating discontent and is one of the stages in the development of pride, one of the more positive programs in helping Negroes to gain self-respect is a job-training program.

Lexingtonians would do well to support a new organization intent on helping Negroes in this community find jobs—the Lexington Fayette County Urban League. This might be a giant step in preventing the growing formation of discontent.

The National Urban League, headed by Dr. Whitney Young Jr., a native Kentuckian, has won growing recognition as a responsible organization offering practical solutions to many of the problems in the area of human rights. It has found as many as 40,000 jobs for unemployed Negroes in a year's time.

A fund drive has been organized, headed by UK President Dr. John Oswald, to put the Urban League into immediate operation. Citizens and students of Lexington would greatly benefit the community by helping in this fund-raising drive, whose goal is $25,000. This is one way to combat the formation of discontent, to make realistic, not superficial gains.

Hired and Fired

A UK graduate, James M. Jones, has struck his blow against the stagnation usually prevalent in the education of high schoolers. As a reward for this novel idea Jones was fired.

It's not that the Gallatin County Board of Education is opposed to Jones' methods of teaching American history as much as they object to his material. It seems Jones discussed taboo subjects and used Playboy as a textbook. However, in a Kernel interview Tuesday, Jones denied that he had discussed abortion with a seventh grade class as previously reported. "The only thing I have to do with the seventh grade is study hall," he said. Sad for Kentucky school children that the teacher who "tells it like it is," is hired and fired so quickly.

Kernel Forum: the readers write

To the Editor of the Kernel:

I take this opportunity to thank the University Student Body for the tremendous enthusiasm and support exhibited during our crucial Southeastern Conference game with Tennessee Monday night.

The boys won the game, of course, but I feel the students supplied that extra enthusiasm which gave the team a needed lift when the going got rough. Each victory has been important throughout my many years at the University and the many fine youngsters who have worn the Blue and White have made the Great Adventure possible.

However, I wouldn't dare minimize the importance of an interested and enthusiastic student body. We hope to continue to deserve such faithful followers.

Adolph F. Rupp
Basketball Coach

To the Editor of the Kernel:

Since Ron Owen signed himself as a freshman in his letter of Feb. 14 concerning compulsory military service, I can understand why he didn't put a little more thought behind his views on the great American right to dissent against the majority. In his letter Ron says that if anyone decides that he cannot conscientiously serve, no one is going to stand behind him with a gun and make him stay here.

Perhaps this is one of the greater distinctions between the free world and the other. If we can't justify our government's policy we can ask to be classified as a conscientious objector. This demonstrates our freedom of thought. It shows not only our privilege to dissent in mind but allows us to disassociate ourselves physically with what we feel is wrong. I doubt if the other side has such freedom of action.

But what does Ron Owen think? His letter said this person can leave just as easily as anyone else. One of the great things that makes America what it is is the objectors privilege and right to stay. Kossygin, DeGaulle, Mao, Ho etc. may all love to have him but our freedom to dissent doesn't mean we should exercise our freedom to leave!

It is true the majority makes rules, some of which we don't like, but is it TOUGH, something we must take or leave? No! This is America, we have a right to try to change things. Our forefathers realized this and the only restriction they imposed is that it be done without force and violence.

Phrased another way, What does the American public think of deserters? Isn't that going too far, an act only to be done as a last resort? Who is considered the better man, the one who dislikes the system and quits it or the one who tries to reform it?

To serve in our country's military is a cost we must bear. It can't really be a privilege or our value system would have us all flocking to join up. Nor can it be a punishment because the end result gives us many benefits. More properly it can be labelled a cost, comparable to taxes.

We don't like them but they are always present as long as there is civilization. It is something we would rather not pay but yet we realize that it is the price we have to pay for our system.

Ron says one who loves his country realizes two years is an infinitely small sum to pay for the lifetime benefit of being an American. How very true—two meager years for a lifetime of the distinctly American benefits! (one which is the privilege to dissent) But two years isn't the issue. Many Americans would be willing to give two years or more for their country.

VISTA and the Peace Corps are just a few of examples of living proof. The key word Ron mentions is love. Does it follow that one who loves his country would serve in the military? I don't think so, if he truly loves his country, he would want to see it do what is right.

He wouldn't want to help it engage in something he really felt was wrong. To stop there really wouldn't show love either. America would expect him to do something positive, to express himself, if not to show us another path, then indirectly strengthen the one we are on.

Let me ask you Ron, wouldn't it be unamerican to ask the dissenters to conform or leave?

To the Editor of the Kernel:

In the Feb. 14 issue of The Kernel there was a letter from freshman Ronald Owen telling us how he feels about conscientious objectors, The Kernel, and other "Danny Dissenters." But there was a great deal Mr. Owen didn't tell us. I would like to inquire about some of those omissions.

Would you tell us, Freshman Owen, how you happen to be an expert on battle psychology? You said you . . . doubt the average person gets any joy out of killing, . . . and that "It is highly questionable that the combat pilots write home bragging of the masses that they have annihilated." or ". . . that the typical U.S. field soldier gets a thrill out of shooting a Viet Cong." My roommate was a jet pilot in Vietnam. He's a nice, average guy. He says he enjoyed dropping napalm. He says all his nice, average pilot-friends bragged about it. David Tuck, the ex-Green Beret, says he enjoyed killing the Viet Cong. Then, But he doesn't brag about it. Now.

Would you tell us, Mr. Owen, why a man should be forced, coerced, or "persuaded" to leave his country because he cannot kill for it? You said, in reference to the draft law, "He can either take it or leave." Mr. Owen, how many people would remain in this country if everyone left who disagreed with one or more of its laws? Mr. Owen, would you give up college just because you disagreed with some requirement of one of your teachers?

Mr. Owen, you told us that you felt that the author of the editorial opposing our present draft system found it all very easy to say from his "comfortable office, pecking on (his) pansy yellow typewriter with backbone to match." Hmm.

Tell us, Mr. Owen, how your room in Donovan Hall compares to a battlefield.

Tell us, Mr. Owen, if you have a student deferment from the draft.

Tell us, Mr. Owen, among other things, what's the color of your typewriter.

Tell us, Mr. Owen, do tell us.

To the Editor of the Kernel:

The Greek Activities Committee wishes to thank all those who attended Saturday night's concert for bearing with us during the difficulties which were experienced. As everyone realized, the committee had no control over the travel difficulties which Smokey Robinson and the Miracles experienced and could not prevent the technical difficulties experienced with the sound equipment which was demanded by contract. Because the audience was patient enough to wait for the group's arrival, the concert was able to be continued despite a long delay.

We are pleased to announce that it will now be possible to contribute a sizeable donation to Cardinal Hill Crippled Children's Home from the profits which were realized.

Paul Shoemaker
Chairman

To the Editor of the Kernel:

Probably the only contribution from the audience at Saturday's Smokey Robinson Concert was a few hundred liquor bottles. Certainly the fact that they (The Miracles) were delayed affected the spirit, but one would think that the pseudo-sophisticates of UK would have provided a better reception than that observed. The nerve to boo such a fabulous group!

More Van Cliburn or maybe Flatt and Scruggs, would better satisfy the tastes of UK's conservatives. There is no doubt that the big name stars will think twice before coming here again.

Perhaps we're being hypercritical, but then that seems to be the trend around here.

Oswald Hears BSU Aims

that such a committee could assist in administering the fair housing policy.

The University keeps a listing of off-campus housing which is supposed to be rented on a non-discriminatory basis. A note on the listing asks students who are refused housing because of race, or any other discriminatory reason, to report the action to the housing office.

Dr. Oswald said a BSU committee could help investigate such incidents.

Regarding recruitment of Negro professors, Dr. Oswald conceded that this is an area in which the University is lacking.

Asked how many Negro professors UK has, he smiled and quipped, "You know the answer to that as well as I do."

BSU members said they believe Negro professors would have to be actively recruited by UK, in order to get them to come here. They referred to UK's "white image" and said Negro professors were not likely to become interested in UK through ordinary advertising procedures.

Dr. Oswald agreed, saying UK should make a greater effort to recruit Negro teachers on a personal basis.

Encouragement of Negro students and athletes was another area in which Dr. Oswald said the BSU could be most helpful. But the subject will be brought up at the next BSU meeting Dr. Oswald attends.

Running short of time Thursday apparently will not affect the chances of the BSU to be heard by Dr. Oswald. Obviously interested in its program, he apparently will be with them as often and as long as they wish.

Delts Retain Hoop Title With Win Over Lambda Chi

By CHUCK DZIEDZIC

It wasn't too an artistic performance by either team as Delta Tau Delta downed Lambda Chi Alpha, 33 to 29, at Alumni Gym Thursday night for their second straight fraternity hoop title.

The defending Fraternity League Champion Delts hit only 34.7 percent from the floor while Lambda Chi netted a meager 22.4 percent.

Lambda Chi's Ron Hollinger grabbed the opening tip but LXA gave up the ball without taking a shot.

DTD's Greg Scott was fouled and sank the first of his eight points putting Delta Tau Delta in the lead for good.

LXA's Frank Cassel gained his teams first point on a free throw attempt bringing the score to 3-1. That's as close as Lambda Chi could get all night.

New Gamble

Mrs. Gary Gamble, wife of the UK basketballer, gave birth to a seven pound 12½ ounce boy Thursday at the UK Medical Center.

The infant was born at 1:56 p.m. The Gambles have not yet decided on a name for the baby.

The margin of victory proved to be the miscues as LXA gave up the ball eight times without a shot the first half.

At the charity stripe Lambda Chi hit 66.6 percent, netting 20 of 30 foul shots.

Delta Tau Delta hit 18 for 31 for 58 percent.

Lambda Chi was never able to get over its early game jitters and DTD coasted with a comfortable 22 to 10 halftime lead.

During the first period LXA was able to can only two of 13 field goal attempts.

The win was the nineteenth in a row over a two-year period for the Delts while Lambda Chi finished the season with a 7-1 mark.

DTD's Earl Cornett took game scoring honors with 12 points while teammates Greg Scott and Steve Lakamp hit for eight and seven points, respectively.

Frank Cassel and Terry Nuxol each tallied nine points in a losing cause for Lambda Chi.

The campus Intramural office was undecided as to whether or not there would be an all-campus playoff with the Fraternity, Independent and Dorm League champions vying for all-campus champ.

Dormitory basketball action will continue with semi-finals Feb. 19 while Independent League play will terminate with the finals on Feb. 20.

Delta Tau Delta's Earl Cornett goes in for a layup in Thursday night's Fraternity League championship game, won by the Delts, over Lambda Chi Alpha, 33-29. Cornett led the Delts to victory with 12 points.

Berlin Resigns As Cat Trainer

Ralph Berlin, head trainer of Wildcat footballers, has resigned to take a similar position with the Pittsburgh Steelers professional football team.

Berlin, 32, has been at UK since 1964.

Berlin, a native of Pasadena, Calif., is a Marine Corps veteran. After his service hitch, he entered Iowa State University, where he was a tackle on the freshman team.

After an injury ended his playing career, Berlin turned to training to stay near the game. He served as an assistant at Iowa State for three years before graduation in 1962.

From 1962 until taking over at UK, Berlin was head athletic trainer at Depauw University in Greencastle, Ind.

During the summer months of 1963 and 1964, he also worked as an assistant trainer for the professional St. Louis Cardinals football team of the National Football League.
