The New Season Kicks Off Tomorrow Night

Game To Feature Band And K-Club

The University kicks off its second football season under Coach Charlie Bradshaw at 8 p.m. tomorrow. In addition to the game with Virginia Tech, the UK Marching 100 will join with the K-Club to present the half-time show.

The Marching 100, which has lost 20 members because of schedule conflicts, will present a pre-game show including the Alma Mater and National Anthem. A new formation consisting of the letter U changing to K and back again has been added.

During the half, the band will present six minutes of precision drill and marching including another new formation which has the word, Cats, written in script.

For this game, the half-time show will be cut short to allow time for the introduction of members of the K-Club. The K-Club consists of alumni who received letters in University sports. They will be introduced by Dick Rushing, field secretary of the Alumni Association.

The band will not go on the field after the game but will remain in the stands and play several numbers. Phillip Miller, band director, said the policy was adopted because of the confusion encountered last year while the band was attempting to leave the field.

Seating for all home games will follow that of the basketball games this year. All tickets will be numbered and students will have to sit in the proper seats.

The K-Club will have a banquet meeting for approximately 100 members at 12:30 p.m. tomorrow. Included in the business meeting will be the election of K-Men.

Also present at the meeting will be both the Virginia Tech and UK coaching staffs. The VPI coaching staff has a pronounced Kentucky flavor. Head coach Jerry Claiborne played his college football with Coach Bradshaw at Kentucky and both were assistant coaches under Paul Bryant at Alabama.

Three of Claiborne's aids have had ties with the University. Chief assistant coach, Bill Conde played for the Wildcats in the early fifties. Assistant coach Doug Shively, son of UK Athletic Director Bernie Shively, starred for the Wildcats until his graduation in 1959.

Another Tech assistant, John Shelton, received his Master's Degree from UK and served two years as graduate assistant.

There are other connections with the University including VPI president Dr. Marshall Hahn, a University graduate, Tech athletic director Frank Moseley, a former UK assistant coach, and field VPI equipment manager, Luke Lindon, a former UK player.

Dr. Smith To Lecture At Libya

Northern Africa is the destination of Dr. Walter T. Smith Jr., UK chemistry professor, who leaves Tuesday for nine months at the University of Libya. Dr. Smith will lecture on organic chemistry.

The trip is sponsored by the Educational and Cultural Exchange Program, under the Fulbright-Hayes Act. Expenses will be shared by the government of Libya.

"I really don't know how I was selected," said Smith, who has taught here 10 years. "I was notified in August by representatives of the program, and said I was interested in going."

The science division of the University of Libya is located at Tripoli, on the Mediterranean Sea.

Lecture Canceled; Huxley Reported Ill

Aldous Huxley, prominent writer and philosopher, will be unable to appear as speaker at the Harper Lecture Series as previously announced.

Joe Coughlin, Harper Lecture Series Chairman, made the announcement early yesterday morning. "Mr. Huxley has written us a note of deep regret that he will not be able to attend the series. He says that he has been forced to take a prolonged rest by the order of his doctors and that there is a possibility that he may not be able to attend even at a later date."

Huxley, scheduled to speak at Memorial Hall on Oct. 14 and 15, was also to have participated in a student seminar for which questionnaires were to have been passed out today.

Huxley is the author of such novels as "Brave New World," "Brave New World-Revisited," and "Chrome Yellow." For the past several years Huxley has been lecturing to schools and groups all over the world.

"As the situation stands right now the entire program has been cancelled for Oct. 14 and 15. Our agents have submitted several people from whom we may choose but after conferring with the Dean of Men and other administration officials and students we decided not to accept any of the people," Coughlin said.

"The series is not cancelled however," he added. "We will wait until a little later in the year and if it is not possible to get Mr. Huxley we will substitute a person of equal stature."

Dr. Oswald To Speak At Conference Oct. 5

"The A-B-C-D's of Leadership" will be the theme of the annual Leadership Conference.

Sponsored by Mortar Board, Omicron Delta Kappa, Links, and Lances, the conference will be Oct. 5 from noon until 8 p.m. at Carnahan House.

Keynote speaker for the event is Dr. John Oswald president of the University. Faculty members will conduct four student discussion groups and a faculty panel discussion will close the conference.

Faculty sponsors are Dean Doris Seward and Dean Leslie Martin. Miss Mary Ann Harris is the adviser.

Anne Meece, a member of Links, is chairman of the steering committee. Other committee chairmen are Betsy McKinivan, registration; Kathy Illston, and Jim Pitts, publicity; Sandy Brock and Peggy Carter, hospitality; Ophelia Speight, correspondent.

"The purpose of the Conference," Anne Meece stated "is to enhance the qualities of leadership in the leaders of the various campus organizations."

Students who have not picked up their ID cards may do so from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. today and tomorrow in the front lobby of the Coliseum. Students must have their fee slips to pick up their cards.

Nunn Speaks On Education

By JIM CURTIS
Assistant Daily Editor

Louie B. Nunn speaking to about 80 members of the Student Bar Association yesterday, said he was "very impressed with University President, John Oswald's concern about education."

Nunn spoke to the UK students in Lafferty Hall in the first of a series of talks to be presented in the Law Forum Series of the SBA.

Speaking on education, Nunn said Kentucky is 46th in the national field of education.

"We propose a student loan program for students to borrow money to finish their education," Nunn said.

He explained that such students could repay the loan after they are producing and on their own, "and the program won't cost any additional tax money."

Bringing his talk to the University, Nunn said, "the law provides for an equal number of Republicans and Democrats on the Board of Trustees. Now there is only one Republican and the rest are Democrats."

"I can take issue with any man who would have such utter disregard for education, the University, and the taxpayers, and would disregard the laws," Nunn explained.

In the area of scholarships, Nunn told the group "there should be some advances made to keep the smart people here and to interest industry."

Further discussing the field of education in the state, Nunn said, "I propose to maintain the sales tax as it is." Nunn said this move would help pay the interest "on the state's indebtedness, and would further education."

"This would help stop the migration of teachers from the state," Nunn commented.

"I also propose to raise the teachers' salaries $500 the first year and $500 the second year." Nunn explained this raise would total $12 and a half million each year.

Nunn told the group to analyze the platform of each candidate before voting.

"I don't propose to be all things to all people. But I do believe there are certain basic principles of government like there is in law," he said.

Commenting on Ned Breathitt, Democratic candidate for governor, Nunn said, "I assume that my opponent must believe in the philosophy of government like the Kennedy administration."

"Combs said he wanted to put Kentucky in the columns with the Kennedy's for the next election. I don't advocate that kind of government," Nunn explained.

Nunn said his philosophy of government "more nearly corresponds with Thomas Jefferson's."

"Jefferson said economy should be the first and foremost goal of government and public indebtedness was the greatest danger,"

Art Club

The Art Club meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m., Monday in Room 208 of the Fine Arts Building. The program will consist of two films; "Renoir to Picasso" and "Mark Tobey."

Membership in the Art Club is open to University students and townspeople who are interested in art. Meetings will be held every Monday evening in the Fine Arts Building.

UK Nunn Leaders

SC Election Date Still Not Definite

"Elections may be held within the six week period that the Student Congress by-laws have been set aside according to the motion presented at the Student Congress meeting Sept. 17," said Ron Nickell, president of the Student Congress.

Gene Sayre, chairman of the elections committee of the Student Congress, said that elections would most probably be held before the period was up. "What we have to wait on now is the University Faculty approval of the suspension of the by-laws. The meeting will be held the first of next month. After that we can have the elections as soon as we can set up the election machinery."

Joe Coughlin, acting recorder of the Student Congress because of the graduation of the last year's secretary, Lochie Overby, quoted the motion as reading, "I (Sayre) move that we suspend Article I, sections 1 through 5 of the by-laws of the Student Congress for a period of six weeks."

Dr. Gifford Blyton, parliamentarian of the Student Congress, said that as he understood the motion there was no reason why the elections should be put off until after the six week period. "The suspension of the by-laws constituted only the fact that the normal election machinery of the Congress had been abolished for this period," Blyton said.

Birmingham
WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 — President Kennedy, having arranged to discuss the racial situation in Birmingham, Ala., with seven Negro leaders, agreed today to see five white Birmingham businessmen, clergymen and officials next Monday.

The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., and six other Negroes—five of them from Birmingham—were to see Kennedy at 5 p.m. today. They requested an urgent meeting to discuss the Birmingham situation.

Barely two hours before the Negroes were due at the White House, Press Secretary Pierre Salinger announced to newsmen that five white leaders from Birmingham would meet with Kennedy at 12:30 p.m. Monday at the request of Birmingham's Mayor Albert Boutwell.

Salinger said the delegation wanted to "present their views on the situation in Birmingham to the President."

Alabama
TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Sept. 19 — A 21-year-old Negro girl who helped crash racial barriers at the University of Alabama last Spring registered quietly today for the fall term.

The registration of the girl, Vivian Malone, went without incident in contrast with the furor raised last June.

Miss Malone arrived at Foster Auditorium unescorted about

Nunn Speaks

Nunn told the meeting.

Citing his belief of the present Commonwealth administration Nunn told the group that the state payroll in 1956 was $53 million. "Now it is almost $111 million, more than double in the past six years."

"Is that practicing economy in government?" he asked the group. "If you don't run the government, the government is going to run you," Nunn warned the students.

He stated his belief in economy in government and said, "I advocate a constitutional government."

He called the Executive Order issued by Governor Combs in June "illegal, and unconstitutional." "I don't want the rights of any citizen to be left to the whims or fancies of any one man," he said. Nunn added "the executive order didn't solve the problems, it created more."

"I am opposed to government by edict," he continued.

In a question and answer session following his talk Nunn commented on Bible reading in the schools.

"This country was founded on prayer, worship, and reading the Bible. Our constitution says we shall have freedom of religion— not freedom from religion."

"Too much tax is a burden on the people and tends to corrupt the principles of government by allowing too much patronage," Nunn concluded.

Brown Named Fellow

The first American graduate of the University of the Ryukyus on the island of Okinawa is now a fellow in the Patterson School of Diplomacy and International Commerce at UK.

He is Michael Warren Brown, who is also a former recipient of the UK Heidelberg Fellowship.

Brown is the son of retired Army Major Joseph L. Beasley and Mrs. Beasley, 290 Lafayette Parkway. He was graduated from Lafayette High School in 1958, attended UK for two years, and then went to Heidelberg, Germany, where he was active in the student parliament and in church work.

After his return to the United States, he studied German literature at the University of California in Berkeley for a year, then accompanied his family to Okinawa where he enrolled in the University of the Ryukyus.

Although Brown did not know the Japanese language, he was graduated two years later with a B.A. degree in English literature, and all of the classes had been conducted in Japanese. By then, he had a fluent command of that language.

Brown plans to enter diplomatic work or join one of the United Nations affiliated organizations after he receives his master's degree in diplomacy and international commerce.

In addition to his diplomatic studies, he has also been recruited to teach a class in the German language at UK.

The other newly appointed fellow in the Patterson School is Harold W. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dillon E. Miller, 194 Forest Park Road. He was graduated in June from Bowling Green State University in Ohio.

10:30 a.m. She walked past a half-dozen uniformed National Guardsmen to the registration desk.

Her arrival went unnoticed except by a handful of newsmen who had gathered on the front steps.

James A. Hood, the other Negro student who desegregated the university for the summer session, did not show up for registration today.

Social Sidelights

By Nancy Loughridge

It has finally come. What you ask? Why the opening game of the season. Yes, tomorrow night at 8 p.m. Charlie's boys take the field against Virginia Tech. I have been assured by our sports department that Tech is a pushover. So be on hand for the first slaughter of the season.

This year, you all, let's get out and really let the boys know we're there. After all, the boys have been sweating it out for many days getting ready for a great season. Let 'em know you want them to win.

Of course, the Greek contingent may not be in the best mood considering the new seating arrangement. In case you haven't heard, the Athletic Association has decreed that those who wish to sit together must go together. In other words, numbered seats.

After last night's rousing pep rally you can get further in the spirit of things by joining the "unwelcoming caravan" to the airport to meet Va. Tech. Take your car and join the throng at sorority row at 4 p.m. See you there! Well so much for the game.

To start Saturday off with a bang the sorority girls are throwing their annual bash known as Pledge Presentation. This year it's going to be different. So pay heed or you may not be able to join the happy throng. The doors to the Student Center will open at 12:30 p.m. tomorrow and the fun will start at 1 p.m. sharp. The Temptations will make the "B" music until 2:30 p.m. We will be introduced to the beautiful, shapely pledges until 3 p.m. In order to be rested for the game, after all that dancing there will be a concert by the Travelers Three until 5 p.m.

There are two vital points which all must note. One is that all students must present their ID's to be admitted. The other is that there is no smoking in the new Center Ballroom. You see the interior decorators didn't take the college weed fiasco into consideration when they picked the flooring, it's snow white.

So fraternity men, gather your pledges and come en masse to the greatest attraction on campus, with the greatest array of beauty ever assembled. Anyway come and enjoy the music.

While we're on the subject of the Student Center and dancing there is an important announcement from them to us.

In keeping with the new name and look of the old place we're having the opportunity of making our Grille one of THE places on campus, like it is in other campuses.

For your convenience the Grille will be open until one-half hour after women's closing hours every night of the week. And as a special added attraction they are encouraging dancing in the Grille at all times. Now you all, this is the greatest thing to occur on this campus in a long time. It's something comparable to putting beer on campus.

Let's back this, it's the perfect place to go at night after studying. Just think what a little dancing will do for your morale. This is strictly on a trial basis until the first of December. But if we let them know it's great they'll continue the policy. See you at the Grille.

Back on the weekend social scene. There will be a round of parties this weekend I'm sure. But once again the fraternity social chairmen are juggling in their duties. My communique says the Delts, Lambda Chi's, Fiji's, and Phi Tau's are holding get-togethers after the game.

Tonight the Fiji's will have a patio party in honor of the pledges. Dress will be grubb, sweatshirts, and bermuda shorts. The Continentals will provide the cool beat.

If you're in the mood for partying and aren't a Greek, fear not for behold the Presbyterian Student Center and the Baptist Student Union are holding open houses after the game. So from the information on my desk that wraps up Social Sidelights for another weekend. But, remember the most important events of the weekend, Pledge Presentation and the game.

The Travelers Three will entertain from 3-5 p.m. tomorrow in the Student Center Ballroom as part of the entertainment for sorority Pledge Presentation which starts at 1 p.m.

Football Seating

Students who attend Saturday night's football game should be pleased with the new seating arrangements.

For the first time, students will be given tickets for specific seats as they enter the stadium. They will be required to sit in the seats corresponding to the tickets they receive.

No longer will certain campus groups be able to send a few members early to hold a section of seats for latecomers. Now, those who want to sit together must go together.

The average student will benefit.

Nehru's Daring Move

That fumbling, lethargic giant of South Asia—India—has been shocked into life and hope, at least momentarily, by Prime Minister Nehru's daring political move. He has swept six of his principal Cabinet Ministers and six States' Chief Ministers out of office and into the hard grind of party politics.

The myriad speculations on why Mr. Nehru did this are not as important as the fact that he astonished and pleased the Indian political world by his action. It was belated recognition of the need to revitalize the government and to give the public renewed confidence in the creaky, bumbling, ineffectual and corrupt Congress Party. The endless talk of a successor to Mr. Nehru has subsided into vague whispers. Everyone is now awaiting the next move.

Normally, it is not like Jawaharlal Nehru to take strong, decisive action. He is noted for his temporizing and his desire to avoid showdowns. But in this swift coup the Prime Minister has shown that he is still in command

Newly-Elected President

Venezuelan Lawyer Heads General Assembly

By A. I. GOLDBERG
Associated Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS—The U.N. Assembly elected as its president Tuesday a slim, trim lawyer from Venezuela who once exiled himself from his homeland for six years because he did not like a dictator there.

Carlos Sosa-Rodriguez, who has headed the Venezuelan delegation here since 1958 is the sixth diplomat from Latin America, the first from Venezuela, to be elected assembly president in the 18 years existence of the United Nations.

The others were from Brazil, Argentina, Chile and Peru.

Sosa-Rodriguez was his country's ambassador to Britain in 1950-52.

Then came the elections in which Marcos Perez Jimenez took over control of the oil-rich country.

Sosa-Rodriguez promptly resigned in protest against the coup of Perez Jimenez and went to Spain to sit out the reign of his political foe.

If he goes early he will find a seat near the field. If he chooses to go late he will be forced to sit farther back.

If the new plan works properly, students who arrive early won't be forced to go far up in the top of the stadium because a few students have "reserved" the closer sections. No longer will any student be able to wait out of the weather at the local pub, make a late appearance at the game and claim his "reserved seat."

The new rule is simple and fair for all. If you want to sit together, go together. The same thing has worked successfully in basketball seating for some time.

Students also will be pleased to learn that date tickets are now $2.50 instead of the full price.

We congratulate the Athletic Association for these steps forward.

and that he has no rivals. His opponents seem to have no program except to get him out; his leaders in the Congress Party have been discredited. The time had come for a new deal and Mr. Nehru has shuffled the cards in preparation for it.

The power and the loneliness of Jawaharlal Nehru are increased, insofar as this is possible. The internal problems, the Chinese threat, the necessity to reaffirm India's basic policy of non-alignment, the embarrassments that grew out of his deals with the United States for the Bokaro steel mill and the Voice of America radio, the breakdown of the Kashmiri negotiations and the bad relations with Pakistan—these are all weighty burdens to place on the shoulders of an aging, tired, unwell leader.

Mr. Nehru has picked them up, wearily but courageously. He is staggering under the load, but neither India nor the Western world would want to see him lay those burdens down. —From The New York Times

With the downfall of Perez Jimenez, Sosa-Rodriguez returned to political and diplomatic life and became head of the Venezuelan delegation in 1958.

His election to succeed Muhammad Zafrulla Khan of Pakistan thrusts him into a social-diplomatic whirl even madder than the one up to now that, he complains, doesn't give him enough time for reading and for his favorite sports, motoring and swimming.

Now 51, he confesses that automobile driving and water sports are the most strenuous things he does.

But his dark eyes sparkle when he recalls how he played outside right on the Baddingham (England) College rugby team in 1929—he was then a lively 17—as he prepared there for law examinations at Oxford and Cambridge.

Sosa-Rodriguez managed to get in quite a bit of swimming this last summer, however, at the family's

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Ignores Student Body

To The Editor:

On Tuesday night, 34 members of last year's 100 member Student Congress voted to suspend sections one through five of Article One of the By-Laws of the Student Congress Constitution. These sections regulate election dates and procedures.

This action effectively postpones the Student Congress elections at least five weeks beyond the period for elections as called for in the by-laws. This needless and drastic action returns our student government to its deplorable condition of last spring.

It is well to note two pertinent facts concerning this action: (1) The persons who voted for this action are in no way duly constituted representatives of the new student body; nevertheless, these persons have perpetuated themselves in power without any support whatsoever from the majority of the student body. (2) This group has shown itself to be totally indifferent and unresponsive to the opinions of many UK students. In less than two days, the Campus Organization for United Participation (COUP) has secured over 600 signatures on a petition calling for the elections as scheduled in the by-laws.

Certainly no group having the best interests of the whole student body at heart could ignore such a manifestation of student desire to participate in what is, after all, their student government, not the student government of last year.

The members of the Campus Organization for United Participation (COUP) will not condone such a blatant violation of the right of the student body to govern itself. Contrary to the belief of those Student Congress members hoping to consolidate their power by this action, the students will remember such tactics. We urge all students to speak out against such action and to support the Campus Organization for United Participation (COUP) in its effort to bring responsible student government to the University of Kentucky.

The Kingston Trio listened to the songs of the world and decided to turn folk music into popular music for all folks. They have become the most widely known folksing-trio in America and their albums have sold millions.

The latest album put out by the Trio is entitled "Sunny Side," and the songs included on it generally follow the sunny theme.

The two exceptions to the sunny rule are "The Ballad of the Thresher" and "Blowin' in the Wind." "The Thresher" is a stirring tribute to the men who died on the ill-fated atomic submarine. The lyrics are somewhat trite but they are set to a rousing tune which understates their triteness.

The Trio's rendition of "Blowin' in the Wind" is beautifully done both vocally and instrumentally, but as has so often been the fate of this angry and protesting song, it has been reduced to merely a pretty song with no emphasis on its meaningfulness.

The best song on the album is "Desert Pete," a combination talking-singing number reminiscent of "The Reverend Mr. Black" done earlier by the Trio. The story of the song is concerned with a man who is lost in the desert without water. He comes upon an old pump and a note from Desert Pete with instructions as to how to prime the pump. The song has a lesson of sorts told in the lyrics of the chorus: "You've got to prime the pump and have faith and believe—you've got to give of yourself 'fore you're worthy to receive."

As is always true of the Trio, they play and sing better than any of the other commercial folk groups. All three are expert on their respective instruments—Nick Reynolds, tenor guitar; Bob Shane, six-string guitar; and John Stewart, banjo. They sing as a group which may sound simple but is probably the greatest problem which confronts singing groups.

Singing alone is one thing but achieving that all important blending of voices and sensitivity to the singing of the other members of the group is an equine of another hue. The Kingston Trio has perfected these elements of really fine group singing.

University students will have the opportunity to hear many of the songs mentioned here sung by the Trio in person when they appear in the Coliseum on Oct. 4.

Tech Opener Offers Bradshaw, Fans Long Look At Untested Sophomore Crop

By JERRY SCHUREMAN
Kernel Co-Sports Editor
Remember the Alamo! Or better yet "Remember the Coliseum!" and the 1962 opening basketball game with Virginia Tech, the same school which is sending football representatives to Stoll Field Saturday night.

Adolph Rupp and his boys had expectations of a very bright campaign last season before VPI crept into town with the silence of a mouse and loudly escaped with UK's tradition and future.

Certainly not considered a football powerhouse, the Tech Gobblers nevertheless could marry Coach Charlie Bradshaw's outlook for a presentable season. And if experience were the decisive factor, the Virginia team already would have a strong edge.

Tech's plans call for 22 senior and junior lettermen without a single sophomore in the two top units, while the Cats will be leading off with possibly three or four seniors, three juniors, and the rest sophomores unfired on in varsity competition.

Both teams are out to make vast improvements in their previous year records and a win Saturday would be a step in the right direction.

Tech last season managed to break even with its 10-game schedule and the Wildcats could do no better than 3-5-2, a record Bradshaw feels confident can be markedly improved.

Similarities are many between UK and the Gobblers, but the most evident and highly publicized is the strong tie the several of VPI's players and coaching staff have with Kentucky.

The most pronounced relationship lies between Bradshaw and Tech's Coach Jerry Claiborne, who both played at UK under the rugged leadership of Bear Bryant during the late 1940s. Both also served as assistants under Bryant at Alabama before staking claims of their own in the head coaching field. Building of reputations behind their own names now face the former teammates.

Claiborne is reported to have the strongest team the school from Blacksburg, Va. has had in six years. And out to back up this prediction are captains Mike Cahill, senior from Louisville St. Xavier High, Buddy Weine, senior from Flaget High, and Newt Green, senior from Hazard High.

Cahill is expected to be the starting tailback in the wing-T offense. Weine has been hurt and withheld from contact work, but "will be ready for Saturday's game." Green was an All-Southern Conference guard last season and is slated to be one of the seven seniors in the starting lineup.

Calling the signals for the Gobblers most likely will be triple-threat quarterback Bob Schweikert, who as a sophomore last season averaged six yards a carry. He also demonstrated fine passing prowess by completing 19 attempts for 205 yards and three touchdowns. His punts averaged about 36 yards.

Strong speculation is mounting that the air will have its fill of footballs during the 8 p.m. opener. In a Tech scrimmage last week, a trio combined to hit on 13 of 22 passes for 163 yards, quite a bit better than the 64-yard average compiled last season.

Bradshaw will attempt to counteract VPI's aerial attack with a little arm-work of his own in the quarterbacking of highly touted Rick Norton, Louisville sophomore who gained All-America acclaim as a prepster. Noted for his fine passing, the inexperienced signal-caller will get a chance to show his pin-point ability should the UK running attack become stified.

Sophomore Mike McGraw was expected to hold down the right halfback duties, but has been out with a twisted knee for several weeks and Tuesday came up with a charley horse in the other leg. No other serious injuries have been reported and all are said to be in fairly good physical shape.

Gobble Gobblers!

Regardless of how the Cats fare, they will have one game under their belts when they play host to powerful Mississippi a week after VPI's invasion, thus opening the Southeastern Conference schedule.

And one thing's for certain, UK fans remember the last time a Tech came to town and they don't like repeat performances.

IM RESULTS

The Kernel sports staff is issuing a plea to all intramural teams and their captains to assign one person associated with the team as a publicity director.

With so many different teams playing so many sports at so many different times, we of the sports department must have some outside help. And to make sure of getting complete coverage of all groups, cooperation from those concerned would facilitate our job.

To help us stay in the good graces of the participants, a complete roster of members should be brought to the Kernel office in the Journalism Building as soon as possible. Each team's designated publicity man also should plan to meet with one of the co-sports editors to discuss important facts and figures to be gathered.

Wildcats, Tech Resume Series After Layoff

UK holds a slight edge (2-1-2) in gridiron relations with Virginia Tech in a series which got underway Oct. 30, 1926 on the Wildcats' home field.

Coached by Fred J. Murphy, the Cats battled VPI to an indecisive 13-13 standoff. Another meeting the following season, when John Simms Kelly was in his prime, saw UK emerge victorious 20-6.

Tech notched its only win over the Wildcats in 1932 at Blacksburg 7-0 in a game that was to be the final meeting for nine years. The series resumed in the war years of 1941 and 1942 in Louisville and Roanoke, respectively. UK took a high scoring (37-14) decision in the first meeting and then had to settle for a 21-21 tie in the second.

Besides the five Kentuckians on the squad, other ties from VPI are:

Frank Moseley, athletic director, received his degree at UK and was an assistant coach here before and after World War II.

Two members of the coaching staff are former Wildcats Doug Shively and William "Moon" Conde.

Conde, a guard, graduated in 1951 after playing on UK's Orange, Sugar and Cotton Bowl teams. He was head coach at Manual and Corbin before joining the Tech Staff. Shively, an end, graduated in 1959 and is the son of UK Athletic Director Bernie Shively.

A third Tech assistant with a Kentucky background is John Shelton, a Henderson native who played halfback at the University of Louisville. He received his bachelor's degree there in 1952 and was an assistant Wildcat coach while earning his master's degree at UK in 1957.

Final Gobblers with Kentucky ties are equipment manager Luke Lindon, who played Wildcat tackle in 1939, and President of Virginia Tech Dr. T. Marshall Hahn Jr., a native of Lexington who attended UK and taught physics here from 1950-54.

New Academic Rule

Shively Says Tech Problem Stems From Scholarships

By KEN BLESSINGER
Kernel Sports Writer

Is Georgia Tech planning to quit the Southeastern Conference? That's an idea that is being bandied about a great deal these days. In view of this, UK's Athletic Director Bernie Shively offered some clarification.

According to Shively, the problem revolves around the leagues scholarship rule pertaining to football and basketball, which stipulates that conference schools are restricted to a combined total of 140 boys on grant-in-aids for the two sports.

Most schools allocate 120 or 125 grants for football and the remainder for basketball. Kentucky's formula is 115 for football and 25 for the roundball sport.

The Atlanta school has been trying to put through a rule at conference meetings which would place a definite limit on the number of new grants that could be awarded in any one academic year.

They would also like to see the ceiling limit of 140 removed. They contend that they are placed at a disadvantage in recruiting athletes because they in the country is either integrated athletes who will remain in school.

Bobby Dodd, Tech athletic director, maintains that other schools recruit many more players than they can ever hope to use, and let the poor students drop out on their own.

He claims that if the students all made their grades it would be impossible for these other schools to stay at or below the 140 limit.

Shively went on to say that he has heard that the Tech administration is against leaving the SEC, but Dodd might get his way if he persists.

Also making the rounds on the rumor mill is some conjecture that Tulane might decide to withdraw. The problem for the Green Wave is that they have a hard time recruiting superior athletes because of their difficult admission requirements.

Shively, however, contends that their standards aren't any more demanding than UK's.

In the event that the two schools withdraw, Shively thinks that the league will make no effort to replace them. The feeling throughout the conference, he states, is that the league is already almost too large.

There had been some discussion in the past few years of schools such as Memphis State, Florida State, and Miami possibly becoming league members.

On another front, Shively guesses that the conference is now getting used to the fact that Negroes will be playing on member teams in the near future.

As nearly every other league in the country is either integrated now or in the process of doing it, the Southeast Conference would find itself with no one to play if it didn't go along with the trend in the near future.

Pagan and Schureman Named Sports Editors

Wally Pagan and Jerry Schureman have been selected sports co-editors for the year by the Board of Student Publications.

Pagan and Schureman have each had three years experience on the Kernel sports staff. Last year Pagan served as a Daily Sports Editor while Schureman was an associate Daily Editor.

Pagan worked this past summer on the Cincinnati Post as a sports writer. Schureman was employed by the Lexington Leader sports department.

"We intend to offer a wider

Clay Vs. Liston Bout Scheduled In 2 1/2 Years?

LOUISVILLE (AP)—Cassius Clay said today Heavyweight Champion Sonny Liston may have to wait 2 1/2 years to fight him.

The No. 1 contender said that's how long it will be unless Liston comes up with suitable terms within three months. Clay explained that his contract with his current sponsoring group runs out in 2 1/2 years and after that he'll get the entire purse.

Clay said he's not going to fight again unless he gets a profit of $30,000 for himself. He said he was unhappy about his financial situation and, in these words, "The fight game is dead with me."

UK Tourney Sets Pairings

Pairings for next December's University of Kentucky Invitational Basketball Tournament will pit the host Wildcats against Wisconsin of the Big Ten and powerful Wake Forest will face Princeton, the Ivy League champion, UK Athletic Director Bernie Shively announced Wednesday.

The arrangement of games, which will find the Princeton-Wake Forest encounter on tap as the opener in the two-night twin bill Dec. 20-21, is intended to further the aim of presenting the public with a well-balanced, inter-sectionally-flavored card, Shively added.

"We are confident," he declared, "that this will be one of our best UKIT fields and a fine display of top-flight basketball."

The 1962 tournament, in which Kentucky defeated West Virginia for the title, proved to be the second most successful since the classic was inaugurated in 1953. Participants, which also included

Iowa and Oregon State, played before a two-night total audience of 22,138 and picked up shares of the net proceeds amounting to $14,067.17.

All three of the visiting teams this winter will be newcomers to the nation's richest tournament. Over the years, 20 of the top basketball powers of the country have taken part in the UKIT.

West Virginia holds the record for most visits with four trips and is the only visitor to cop more than one championship—winning in 1957 and 1959. Baron Adolph Rupp's host Wildcats have taken top honors six times, Dayton and St. Louis once each.

The 1963 UKIT opponents are all anticipating good seasons that will rank them among the national leaders and each boasts crowd-pleasing individual stars in its lineup. Among these are Princeton's returning All-American Bill Bradley, who averaged 27.3; UK's two-time All-American Cotton Nash (20.6); Frank Christie, 6-4 senior forward for Wake Forest (13.2); and 6-8 Jack Brens of Wisconsin, who notched points at a 17.8 clip last season.

Long-Buried Tusk

The Geology Department recently received this nine foot prehistoric mammoth tusk, uncovered near Warsaw in a gravel pit. UK geologists estimate the mammoth stood about 11 feet at the shoulders and was almost 14 feet long. Dr. Lois Campbell, curator of the geological museum, applies a preservative solution while Dr. Thomas Roberts watches. The tusk will eventually be on display in Miller Hall.

Coleman Named Head Of Sociology Society

The next head of the Rural Sociological Society, a national professional organization, will be the head of the University Departments of Sociology and Rural Sociology. Dr. A. Lee Coleman will take office in August, 1964 and will serve for one year. During the past year he has served as vice president of the society and as program chairman for its national meeting. For seven years, Coleman was managing editor of the society's journal, "Rural Sociology." Coleman, who joined the University staff in 1949, has served as head of the sociology departments since 1959. The author of a number of research bulletins and scholarly papers, Coleman received his Ph.D. degree from Cornell University, his M.A. from the University of North Carolina and his B.A. from Emory University.

Article Discusses Prevention Of Stock Pile Fire Causes

Prevention of stock pile fires caused by spontaneous combustion is discussed by Prof. William H. Roll, associate professor of mining engineering at UK, in an article written for the current UK Engineering Station Bulletin.

During 30 years of observing and studying coal storage, Dr. Roll has seen many stockpiles ruined by these costly blazes.

According to the engineer, the spontaneous heating of coal is caused by the reaction of oxygen in the air uniting with elements in the coal. The presence of moisture and sulfur in the form of pyrites is believed to trigger and accelerate the process. An additional contributor is slacking—the breaking down of lumps into small pieces when exposed to the atmosphere.

"Any method of storing that prevents air flow through the pile will result in safe storage," states Prof. Roll in regard to fine coals.

On the other hand, the passage of air through piles of screened or sized coal—coal made up of uniform lumps—is an important safety feature. The air carries off whatever heat is generated, but there is always the danger of slacking and degradation due to handling of this type of coal.

If proper storage procedures have not been followed, a serious fire may be set off.

The bulletin also describes how to compact fine coal for storage at mine and industrial sites and measures for fighting stock pile fires.

Using modern equipment, the cost per ton to stock pile coal should average four to six cents per ton, according to Prof. Roll. Reclaiming runs between five and seven cents per ton.

Med Center Lecture Set

Dr. Hans Popper, Pathologist-in-Chief, Mt. Sinai Hospital, New York, will lecture at the UK Medical Center on Oct. 17.

The University initiated the Medical Center Distinguished Lecture Series two years ago to have eminent scientists visit here and present to the faculty, students, and physicians in the state, the results of some of their investigative work. Philosophical discussions of some of the important issues facing medicine today may also be presented.

Dr. Popper will be the fourth lecturer in the series, and his topic will be "Chronic Hepatitis: From Organ to Organelle Pathology."
