Greenwell swamps Ashcraft for SGA top spot

By JAY BLANTON
Staff Writer

It was inevitable: Donna Greenwell knew it, the voters knew it and the 80 people who filled the Student Center's Great Hall knew it.

But that didn't affect the celebration when it was announced that Greenwell had beaten her opponent by a more than 3-to-1 margin to become UK's first female SGA president.

As the tallies were read at about 10 p.m., Greenwell was flanked by her sorority sisters, supporters and the also-victorious members of her ticket, Kenny Arington and Karen Skeens, for senior and executive vice president, respectively. The two ran unopposed.

Greenwell tallied 1,007 votes to Kathy Ashcraft's 316. The race had the lowest voter turnout in years with only 1,334 voting in the presidential race.

Last year's election prompted only about 50 more students to vote, but John Cain ran unopposed for president. In the '84 election, 2,830 students voted for president, with Tim Freudenberg defeating Larry Bisig by only 71 votes.

Although Greenwell said she was excited about being the first female student body president, she doesn't think it will add any additional pressures to the office. "I like the idea that I have had the opportunity to be the first female," Greenwell said. "(But) I'm going to work hard no matter what."

And as far as setting a precedent for future female presidential candidates, Greenwell only replied, "I think the most qualified person will get it."

Karen Skeens said, "I think it is a very important step not only for women, but for the SGA. We'll probably work twice as hard." Skeens added that she was "excited for all the other candidates for senators."

A supporter puts her arm around Donna Greenwell at last night's announcement of her victory as Student Government Association president. Greenwell beat Arts & Sciences Senator Kathy Ashcraft in a landslide, 1,007 votes to 316.

Arington, the only male on the Greenwell ticket, said he was looking forward to working with Greenwell and Skeens.

The newly elected leaders said they expected to accomplish all the goals in their platform and in fact, will begin working next week.

"Each one of us has one or two (goals)," Arington said, adding that he will work to improve attendance at senate meetings and develop more specific job descriptions for senators.

Greenwell, citing Wednesday's editorial in the Kentucky Kernel that endorsed neither presidential candidate and pointed to the lack of substance in the candidate's platform said, "Any doubt about the lack of substance in our platform will be proven wrong next year."

Brothers slips by freshman to lead voting

Senator at large candidates found there was strength in numbers last night, as 13 students rode their tickets to victory.

Incumbent Susan Brothers led her ticket in edging Susan Bridges, an Arts & Sciences freshman, by 13 votes, to make her the top vote-getter in the Student Government Association elections.

Brothers, a bachelor of general studies senior, was elated with the victory but was disappointed with the voter turnout.

"I really hoped the turnout would be better," Brothers said. "During our campaign we tried to impress upon students it was their responsibility to vote."

Brothers captured 674 of the total 11,274 votes in the senator at large race while Bridges received 661 and incumbent Brad Dixon 645.

Brothers, who ran on a ticket of four — David Botkins, James Rose, Elizabeth Masters — said during her campaign she tried to emphasize the importance of SGA as a representative body.

"Student government can not only provide a service, but they are also their advocates — we are the students' representatives."

In her next term, Brothers said she would like to work for "fiscal responsibility" in allotting the $110,000 SGA budget for next year.

In addition, Brothers said she would like to improve SGA's rapport

SAB picks Lynne Hunt for president, chooses chairpersons, members

The Student Activities Board has made its selections for the 1986-87 executive and committee positions.

The newly selected president and vice president are Lynne Hunt, a marketing sophomore, and Tina Payne, a marketing junior, respectively.

The selections process, which took place Monday through Wednesday, "went over really well," said Paul Hayden, president of SAB.

"We had some very talented people, and there were a lot of tough decisions to make. The selections committee as a whole feels they have chosen a very diversified and competent board," Hayden said.

"We got a fine crop of young people, definitely the best people for the best positions," said David Nickell, SAB vice president.

Nickell said once again SAB has the best leaders on campus. "I don't think we could have made better selections."

The newly selected SAB committee chair positions are as follows:

- Public relations committee chairwoman — Mindy Martin, a communications junior;
- Secretary/treasurer — Leslie Patton, a finance junior;
- Travel committee chairwoman — Amy Huffman, a business/finance freshman;
- Visual arts committee chairman — John Scheidt, a telecommunications/English sophomore;
- Little Kentucky Derby committee chairwoman — Missy Derfitt, an accounting sophomore;
- Contemporary arts committee chairwoman — Susan Peck, a political science sophomore;

- Spotlight jazz committee chairwoman — Lyn Carlisle, a journalism sophomore;

- Cinema committee chairwoman — Jennifer Ballard, a journalism sophomore;
- Co-concert committee chairwoman — Birgid Niedenzu, a microbiology junior;

- Members at large: Sam Hughes, an electrical engineering sophomore; Carrie Bettersworth, a marketing junior; Klare Schmidt, a mechanical engineering freshman, and Elizabeth Bushong, an accounting freshman.

Panel focuses on Afro-American black divisions

By BOBBI WOLOCH
Staff Writer

Cultural similarities and differences are the topic of a seminar tomorrow to evaluate the relationship between American and African blacks.

By examining the values of each group, the seminar "will help blacks to understand the factors which prevent Afro-Americans and Africans from being closer together," said Touba Bedingar, president of the Black Graduate and Professional Student Association.

The association, in conjunction with the Office of Minority Affairs, is offering general sessions and a panel discussion on "African and Afro-American Relations" in 206 Student Center from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m.

Media impact, education and religion are a few of the aspects panel participants will be addressing, Bedingar said.

"Students are encouraged to attend the general sessions," he said, which are scheduled from 10 a.m. to noon and 2 p.m. to 3 p.m., and will conclude with a question and answer session.

A panel discussion will feature Robert Cumming, chairman of African Studies at Howard University in Washington, D.C., and Fulbright Professor James C. Mphahisa of the University of Zambia and the University of Richmond, Va.

Registration for the entire seminar, which includes a luncheon and group sessions on special topics, will be from 9:30 a.m. to 10 a.m.

The luncheon will be from noon until 1 p.m. in 214 Student Center and is free to students who registered earlier.

Special topic group sessions will be from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m.

Police hunt suspect in airline bombing

By KERIN HOPE

ATHENS, Greece — Police are hunting for an Arab woman suspected of planting the bomb that exploded on a TWA jetliner over southern Greece, killing four Americans, police sources said yesterday.

The source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said a woman called May Elias Mansur, a known terrorist, flew on the TWA Boeing 727 from Cairo to Athens Wednesday morning. The plane went on to Rome and the bomb exploded during its return flight from Rome to Athens Wednesday afternoon.

"We have launched a search around Athens and other cities and also put out a signal to trace this person through Interpol," one police source said. Earlier yesterday in Rome, Italian Interior Minister Oscar Luigi Scalfaro said, "It is certain that a suspect person, who is on file as a terrorist, got on in Cairo and got off in Athens, occupying in the airplane the exact seat where the explosion occurred."

The Italian news agency ANSA last night quoted unidentified Italian investigators in contact with Greek authorities as confirming that the suspect was believed to have boarded with a Lebanese passport in the name of May Mansur.

ANSA said she may have boarded a Middle East Airlines flight to Beirut, Lebanon, shortly after arriving in Athens.

The Greek police sources said the woman may have passed through Greece previously.

The blast tore a 9-by-3-foot hole in the right cabin wall in front of the wing while the plane was about 15,000 miles over the ground. A Colombian-American and three Greek-Americans — a woman, her daughter and 9-month-old grand-daughter — were sucked out.

The plane landed safely in Athens about 25 minutes later.

TWA President Richard D. Pearson said in New York Wednesday that the explosion took place on the cabin floor in row 10 or 11 and blew out seat 10F. TWA spokesman Steve Heckscher told reporters in Athens.

"The person who sat in seat 10F on the Cairo-Athens-Rome flight" is being investigated to see if it is a live lead."

Heckscher said that both U.S. experts and Greek security officials now agree that the bomb was placed in the passenger cabin and not the cargo hold, as Greek officials had said on Wednesday.

The pilot, Capt. Richard Peterson, told reporters yesterday at Athens airport, "I think the explosive device was placed at floor level near the cabin wall... in row 10F. But the crew didn't see anyone acting suspiciously."

In Cairo, the head of the Cairo Port Authority was quoted as dismissing claims that the bomb was

University celebrates centennial of "Tin Lizzie" with week of lectures, museum exhibitions, theater

By KAREN MILLER
Staff Writer

UK will celebrate the 100th anniversary of the automobile next week with a series of exhibits and lectures, an auto show and a theater performance.

Raymond Betts, director of the Honors Program, said he felt "this would be a wonderful opportunity to show the relationship between technology and the humanities."

Betts said that "like any technological device" the effect of the automobile on society has been neutral, "but in its use and application it has brought both good and bad."

"It's provided us with the highest degree of personal mobility that humankind has ever had but also a high degree of accidents," Betts said.

The first automobiles were invented by two German engineers, Gottlieb Daimler and Karl Benz who were working simultaneously on the project. The automobile became available to the public through the efforts of Henry Ford and his assembly line technique of production.

One of three highlights of the week, Betts said, will be a "stunning" hood ornament exhibit from the '20s and '30s that will run from Thursday through Sunday in the Art Museum in the Center for the Arts.

William Hennessey, director of the museum, said they tried to come up with an applicable topic for next week.

"Since we couldn't really display the cars themselves, we decided to have a hood ornament display... They're wonderful bits of sculpture in their own rights," Hennessey said.

Betts said another exciting event will be a production by James Rodgers, chairman of the theater department, entitled "Oh! Henry." The production is a musical biography of Henry Ford down through the creation of the "Tin Lizzie."

Betts said the academic highlight of the week will be a lecture by Jerry Palmer, chief of the Corvette

Design Studio, Chevrolet Division, on "The Design of the Corvette." The lecture will be at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Reception Room of the Center for the Arts.

There will also be an automobile trivia contest open to all UK undergraduates which will take place at 4 p.m. Tuesday. The prize will be two tickets to the Indianapolis 500 courtesy of the Corvette Club.

The week of events is being sponsored by the Gaines Center for the Humanities, the Appalachian College Program, the Theater Department and the art museum.

Other events of the week include: a lecture entitled "Speed and Sport:

Automobile Racing," by Eric Christianson, associate professor of history, at 2 p.m. Tuesday; a lecture entitled "The Automobile as a Transformer of Modern Culture," by Betts and Stanley Brunn, chairman of the geography department at 7 p.m. Wednesday; a lecture entitled "Speed and Sex: Automobile Ornamentation," by Hennessey at noon Friday.

An antique and customized car exhibit in the parking lot on Euclid Avenue will take place from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Saturday; a time rally, Blue Grass Sports Car Club, at Commonwealth Stadium from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday.

Stop at Cincinnati

Spring vacationer's Dantesque journey to hometown Detroit the last mistake he'll ever make

I spent my spring break in a mortal hell. No I didn't go to Cleveland, I went to (ugh!) Detroit.

I am sick and tired of listening to what everyone else did on their spring break. I can't even enjoy MTV anymore with its Spring Break Live Coverage. Stop rubbing it in my face.

"We went to Key Largo, Sarasota, and Fort Lauderdale," boasted Danny, one of my friends. "Fort Lauderdale really sucked, but the rest of the break was great," he complained as he scratched his peeling, tanned neck. I don't care!

If you think your break was an experience beyond compare, just listen to this.

After an incredible weekend here in the Bluegrass, I left Louisville Sunday in my rented Cadillac Supreme to go where few men have dared go. I ventured through the land where they spell farm E I E I O. That's right, Ohio.

The trip seemed to last forever, but it enabled me to make numerous observations that may be of service to future explorers who make this famed journey to The Motor City.

First I made the mistake of stopping at one of Ohio's famed rest areas only to be approached by an elderly man sporting a high quality bowling shirt. He was lost. "How do I get to Fort Wayne Indiana," he asked as he puzzled over the multi-colored expressway map. I attempted to explain to him that we were on I-75 at the exact location of the tack as he promptly corrected me.

"No! We're on 71," he exclaimed. "I've made the trip home before young man." I shattered his illusion when I finally convinced him we were well into Ohio. Beware the men in bowling shirts.

The best bumper sticker in the world declares "Whoever said love thy neighbor didn't live next to Ohio."

Do not openly display a copy of The Michiganian's Official Guide to Ohio Jobs on your dash board. This can tend to upset the Ohio-born-and-bred-Neanderthal-petroleum-trans-

KISS army gigs draw all manner of recruits

Were you a member of the KISS Army? They've still got some troops in Toledo, Ohio, where they sold out the Toledo Sports Arena, Home of the Toledo Goaltenders — you know the Goaltenders, the toast of the International Hockey League.

The "rig," the first step in staging a show, was at 7 a.m., so we were there at 6:30 to set up breakfast.

Riggers are a strange lot. You've got to be some kind of stranger to work 70 feet in the air, setting 200,000 pounds of equipment above the very heads of your best friends, and the stagehands union.

They generally come in, cuss a little, grab some coffee and doughnuts and go to work.

Then in comes the generator tech, because KISS still has that huge flashing "KISS" stage set and all the rest, they get a generator to supplement the power available at most of the smaller halls they're playing these days, and the generator tech works with that.

He's Irish, and pretty loud considering the hour. When another roadie asks if he can have some eggs, this Irish accent yells, "YOU'LL GET NOTHING AND LIKE IT!"

I like this guy. But I make the eggs.

He rolls this lopsided, scarred roadcase over and opens it up. In there with the industrial power "snakes" and tools and tape is what he's looking for — a cappuccino machine.

The cappuccino-swilling roadie is nothing compared to the girl who's outside hanging around.

Kakio URCH

My boss Gordie calls her "Leather," but I say it's more like "Naugahyde." She's wearing shorts with no socks, running shoes, a fake leopard-skin coat, the dust of the road, and half of Walgreen's stock of "Day-Glo Pink" blush.

She just walks right in, and begins her story, slurring her words through long brown hair caught up in a headband.

"You got any work? I gotta get some work, to get up the price of a ticket. All my money got stolen. I was at this truckstop and looking at the map to see if I was going the right way and I had my money there and looked up and it was gone. I need to talk to these guys because they stole my song and there are copyright concerns. I came all the way from Kentucky."

Oh great.

I can tell by looking at these roadies that they're about to drop some quintessentially cruel remark on her. "Look, we haven't got any work, this stuff is arranged in advance, you really should go outside, if you're hungry, I can give you a doughnut or something, and tools and tape is what he's looking for — a cappuccino machine."

You could tell that this girl was not going to be satisfied with a doughnut and coffee and see ya later.

It's time to take the big metal "KISS" out of the trucks now. Scared and scratched and on its last time around from the looks of things.

It's time to take the big metal "KISS" out of the trucks now. This thing is old. It's been in Madison Square Garden shaking from the high decibel screams of thousands of fans. It's been to Japan.

Now it's in Toledo.

This thing is scratched, banged, dented from eight or more years on the road. It depresses me. This thing is my youth. Bright and flashing and larger than life. Scared and scratched and on its last time around from the looks of things.

I never even marched for the KISS Army. Watching some of the show later on, I see a guy with a T-shirt that says "If It's Too Loud, You're Too Old." Gene Simmons is singing "You pull the trigger on my Love Gun."

It isn't that loud. On to Pittsburgh.

fer-engineers who conveniently leave your gas cap in their back pockets. I checked it on my way back to the car. I think I shattered his dream. "I sorry," he whined. "I always forget that." Right!

Ohio drivers never change lanes and like to drive side by side. Go ahead, flash your lights, honk your horn, weave from lane to lane, these people are clueless.

Cincinnati is the only salvageable part of Ohio. Toledo is a "Teen-age Wasteland."

In four hours I'd finally made my way through purgatory, arriving in hell. Broken glass, abandoned cars, smog and pot holes that could swallow a Buick announced that I was in Motown.

While in Detroit I worked in a restaurant bussing tables to make up for the expense of my travels. I'd worked there before, it's a fine Greek restaurant, Opa! and all that stuff. For three days I slaved for patetically rich patrons who tip 15 percent to the penny. It wasn't bad until the cook threatened to kill me.

"You weasle mother—," he said, "I'm gonna kick your..." I got the impression I had done something to upset him. When I approached him rather cockily to discover why he might desire to deal me this painful fate he responded, "because you're ugly and stupid." It was obvious to me at this point that he was much too intelligent to reason with so I avoided him for the remainder of the evening.

To tell you the truth, he would have most definitely killed me had I stuck around. I left as soon as my shift was through. To this day I have no idea why he felt this way. Aren't Detroit people nice?

I went into my neighborhood White Castle at 3 one morning and soon became aware that reverse racial discrimination isn't dead yet. Luckily my friends and I decided to leave their "turf" before the next Detroit riot made us part of the parking lot. I missed Kentucky more and more with every waking moment.

Stay away from Detroit.

I never did make it to Virginia Beach or anyplace else. The 15-degree weather wreaked havoc on my health and handed me "The Detroit Cold," a relative of "The Pittsburgh Cold" and "The New York Cold." Now I'm back home in Kentucky, content and safe.

If it weren't for Bud and Lou my break would have been a total loss. The two days I spent here in the Bluegrass with them were great.

By the way, if anyone knows of a cheap apartment here in Lexington for the summer, I need one. There's no way I'll ever go home to Detroit again. I plan on establishing an official Kentucky residence as soon as possible.

WEEKEND CINEMA

April Fool's Day — A group of teen-agers get together on April 1 at a spooky mansion, with the usual bloody results. Stars Deborah Foreman ("Valley Girl") as the mysterious but beautiful hostess. Rated R. (Fayette Mall: 1:40, 3:40, 5:40, 7:40, 9:40. Also Northpark: 1:50, 2:45, 5:35, 7:40, 9:40. Friday and Saturday at 11:40.)

The Cars Have Movie 2 — Those lovable, furry little bastards are back, much to the delight of merchandisers everywhere. Rated G. (Southpark: 1:30, 3:30, 4:50, 6:30. Turfball Mall: 1:45 and 3:45.)

The Color Purple — Whoopi Goldberg and Danny Glover ("Silverado") are well-cast in this Oscar-nominated Steven Spielberg feature that nearly qualifies as a success. Rated PG-13. (Crossroads: 8:55 only. Also Northpark: 2, 4:45, 7:40. Friday and Saturday at 10:25. Also Southpark: 2, 4:45, 7:30. Friday and Saturday at 10:15.)

Crossroads — Ralph Macchio ("The Karate Kid") stars in this new Walter Hill ("48 HRS") film about a young guitarist trying to make it big under the tutelage of a former blues great (Joe Seneca of "The Verdict"). Rated R. (Fayette Mall: 5:30, 7:30, 9:30.)

Down and Out in Beverly Hills — This comedy stars Nick Nolte ("48 HRS") as a derelict who works the night shift at a hotel ("The Rose") and Richard Dreyfuss ("Close Encounters of the Third Kind"). Rated R. (Southpark: 7:55, 10, Friday and Saturday at 11:55.)

Galaxy — This animated kiddie flick is a cinematic version of TV's "Voltron" or "Masters of the Universe." Rated G. (Fayette Mall: 1:30 and 3:30. Also Northpark: Saturday and Sunday only at 1:20.)

Gung Ho — In a comedy that should be of interest in light of the recent Toyota deal in Detroit, Michael Keaton ("Johnny Dangers") stars as an American sent to work in Japan. Rated R. (Northpark: 1:35, 3:35, 5:40, 7:50, 9:55. Friday and Saturday at 11:55. Also Southpark: 1:30, 3:35, 5:40, 7:50, 9:55. Friday and Saturday at 11:55.)

Mannequin and Her Sister — Barbara Hershey, Mia Farrow and Michael Colton join Woody Allen in his latest comedy that satirizes everything from religion to philosophy. His best in years. Rated PG-13. (Lexington Mall: 1:20, 3:25, 5:30, 7:40, 9:45. Friday and Saturday at 11:50.)

House — William Katt ("TV: The Greatest American Hero") plays a guilt-ridden Vietnam vet who tries to find his son, who disappeared years earlier in his reputedly haunted house. Co-stars George Wendt ("TV's 'Cheers'"). Rated R. (Northpark: 2:45, 4:30, 7:55, 9:50. Friday and Saturday at 11:50.)

Lucas — There's nothing like a fresh, innocent little high-school love story honestly done by a director (David Seltzer, who wrote "The Onion," of all things) who cares for his material. Stars Corey Haim ("Silver Bullets") and Christopher Sheen (brother of Emilio Estevez). Rated PG. (Turfball Mall: 1:30, 3:30, 5:30, 7:30, 9:30.)

The Money Pit — Tom Hanks ("Splash") and Shelley Long ("TV's 'Cheers'") are a happily married couple who see their relationship crumble symbolically through the destruction of their new house. Rated PG-13. (Northpark and Southpark: 1:35, 3:30, 5:30, 7:35, 9:30. Friday and Saturday at 11:50.)

Naked Cage — What could this be about? Perhaps a raunchy look at the zoo. Maybe a raunchy look at the feature match at Wrestlemania 2. Maybe it's just raunchy. Rated R. (Fayette Mall: 1:45, 3:45, 5:45, 7:45, 9:45. Also Northpark: 1:30, 3:30, 5:30, 7:35, 9:45. Friday and Saturday at 11:50.)

9½ Weeks — Mickey Rourke ("Year of the Dragon") and Kim Basinger ("The Natural") star in this wholly unappealing romance. Lotsa sex. Rated R. (Northpark: 1:25, 3:30, 5:35, 7:40, 9:50. Friday and Saturday at 11:50.)

Out of Africa — Oscar loved this one. This film features beautiful cinematography and a wonderful performance by Meryl Streep as writer Jack Dineson to offset the unfortunate casting of Robert Redford as Streep's lover. Rated PG. (Lexington Mall: 1:30, 4:30, 7:30. Friday and Saturday at 10:30.)

Police Academy 3 — Mindless repetition is boring and pointless. Mindless repetition is boring and pointless. Mindless repetition is . . . Zzzzzzzzz. Rated PG. Poetic concert closes conference tonight

By SCOTT WARD
Special Projects Editor

The eighth Women Writers Conference will close tomorrow night with a performance by the Theater Workshop of Louisville of the poetic concert "I Have Been Hungry All My Years."

reading; it's a compendium of works of black women poets tied together thematically. The 90-minute show will explore the relationships of women as women, sisters, daughters, mothers, lovers and friends.

Morton described the concert as "a woman's psalm," and said, "It's a rather unique experience that must be witnessed." She said it is "a very strong show" and that the Theater Workshop has presented it before.

Morton said the show is "by and about black females," and encouraged the entire Lexington community to attend.

Also performing with Morton will be Priscilla Hancock Cooper, and piano accompaniment will be provided by Jeffrey Hunter.

of quality theater by black authors/playwrights.

Of the Women Writers Conference in general, Morton said one of the important things is its diversity, and "we're real pleased to be a part of that."

"I Have Been Hungry All These Years" will be presented at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Memorial Hall. Tickets — $2 for students and $4 for the general public — are available at all Women Writers Conference events.

Boys Choir of Harlem teaches discipline while boys explore creative potential

By LYN CARLISLE
Assistant Arts Editor

It's not easy being young and talented and living in Harlem.

But through the Boys Choir of Harlem, at least 30 young men have a way out.

Peter Bailey of Ebony magazine: "Whether doing Vivaldi's 'Gloria' . . . or Duke Ellington's 'Take the A Train' . . . the Choir shows over and over why music lovers across the country flock to its concerts.

New York Times writer Will Crutchfield complimented the Choir on its ability to sing in German with distinct pronunciation.

The Boys Choir of Harlem will perform a concert tonight at 8 in Lexington's Shiloh Baptist Church. The performance is free.

The choir is not only a project which benefits the boys, but it brings top-notch entertainment to the world, with major tours throughout the United States and Europe. Tonight, their spring tour will include Lexington with a concert at 8 at Shiloh Baptist Church, 237 E. Fifth St. Admission is free.

The repertoire will include a wide variety of songs typical for them, ranging from Mozart to Duke Ellington to Kool and the Gang pieces. They will also perform "America Is," the official song for the Reconciliation of the Statue of Liberty at Ellis Island, which they will perform there on July 5.

The choir was founded as a Harlem neighborhood church group in 1969 by Walter J. Turnbull and Ruth Nixon. In 1975 the choir was reorganized and incorporated, celebrating its first decade last year.

Behind the onstage image of the Boys Choir of Harlem is the reality of the lives they lead. Turnbull said in a press release: "Most come from inner city schools and neighborhoods where everyday they face the entrapment of drugs, alcohol and the many other dangers of city streets."

planted by a passenger who boarded in Cairo.

"This is a ridiculous claim," Maj. Gen. Mustafa Kamel Mohamed was quoted as saying by the state-run Middle East News Agency. "Anyone who said so is either ignorant or trying to throw off responsibility."

Earlier, a security official at the Cairo airport said that after the explosion, Egyptian officials checked the names of passengers who were on the Cairo-Athens-Rome flight.

"We had no suspicion about anyone on the list," he said, speaking on condition of anonymity. "That plane left here completely clean."

In New York, TWA spokeswoman Sally McElwreath said all passengers went through a security check before getting on the plane in Cairo and got off the plane in Athens to undergo a second security check.

At each stop, she said, security officers were at the door to check maintenance and other employees who entered the plane. She said a security sweep was undertaken at each stop and in Rome, but she refused to say what such a sweep entailed.

In Rome, the Boeing 727 took aboard 101 passengers from a connecting TWA flight from New York and 11 other passengers. It left for Athens as Flight 840.

The plane carried a total of 122 people. In addition to the 112 passengers, there were seven crew members and three non-working TWA employees.

TWA experts, U.S. Federal Aviation Administration and FBI officials, and investigators from Greece and Italy examined the plane yesterday. Heckscher said.

Commons Pint Party benefits Blood Center

Staff reports

More than 300 persons are expected to participate in Pint Party II, a two-day blood drive to benefit the Central Kentucky Blood Center. It will be held from noon to 10 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday in the Commons Commons.

The first 150 donors will receive free T-shirts and every donor will receive a tote bag with assorted goodies.

A plaque will be awarded to the fraternity and sorority with the most members participating.

Members of the WKQQ-FM air force and basketball team will also appear.

The event is being co-sponsored by WKQQ-FM, Delta Zeta sorority and Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. For more information, call 254-5030 or 254-1607.

Forward look way out for beleaguered MSU, Collins tells gathering

By BILL BERGSTROM, Associated Press

MOREHEAD, Ky. — Gov. Martha Layne Collins, who intervened in January to end administrative turmoil at Morehead State University, told a spring Founders Day convocation yesterday she'll now "leave to others the looking to the past."

Collins made no mention of her January request that the eight governor-appointed MSU regents resign, the swearing in of a new board March 4, or the administrative conflicts over university President Herb F. Reinhard Jr.'s contract that led to the moves.

"It's a beautiful spring day. The sun is shining bright on our old Kentucky home. This season is a time of hope, or rebirth, of looking to the future," she said during the school's 64th anniversary celebration.

Collins spoke of her efforts to increase funding for higher education and her commitment to Morehead and higher education in general.

"It used to be that a strong back and willing hands were enough to earn a living. That's not so today."

Because it is in eastern Kentucky, Morehead State has a special role, Collins told several hundred university officials, faculty members, students and others at the school's Button Auditorium.

"Your challenge is to reach out even more aggressively to the men and women who, unless they earn a GED, stand little chance of making a good living for their families," she said.

"Your challenge is to reach out to a region whose hopes for more and better jobs rest largely in better schools and in providing education for men and women who left school early."

Collins shook hands in the crowd outside before her helicopter flight back to Frankfort. She said the choice of a new university president is "pretty much up to the board" and "they're going to take their time."

Reinhard, 54, who had just become president in July 1984, was refused a one-year contract extension by the former board last fall, escalating administrative squabbles and leading to Collins' intervention.

He had drawn the fire of critics who said he acted too precipitously when, facing budget problems and a declining enrollment, he made rapid changes in academic departments and the administrative structure of the school.

On Monday, at the second meeting of the new board of Regents, Reinhard said he'll leave when his contract expires June 30.

"I feel this university is in capable hands for the future," Reinhard said in introducing the new board chairman, former Gov. Louie B. Nunn, at the convocation.

Collins and Nunn both received standing ovations before and after their speeches. Nunn said Collins had promised to support the new board but "she assured us that it was our responsibility that we would not be interfered with."

The board, headed by Nunn and Vice-Chairman Edward T. "Ned" Breathitt — another former governor who 20 years ago signed the bill into law that made Morehead a state university — has named a search committee for a new president. Nunn said after the convocation.

He said the committee will work "as expeditiously as possible while doing an adequate search. We're not going to rush into anything just to get somebody here."

"As far as I know there aren't any restrictions" on who may seek the post, Nunn said. And he said, "It will not be a political appointment."

S. Africa state discusses integrated rule

By JAMES F. SMITH, Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — White and black leaders in Natal Province yesterday began debating a proposal to create the nation's first racially integrated regional government.

Meanwhile, police headquarters said four blacks died in racial attacks around the country, including two black youths killed in street battles with police patrols in the black township of Vosloorus, southeast of Johannesburg.

A court had imposed harsh restrictions on a funeral in Vosloorus for a suspected black nationalist guerrilla shot by police last week.

Roving security vehicles fired repeated barrages of tear gas and birdshot to break up groups of blacks who gathered for the service in defiance of the restrictions, and militant youths enforced a one-day protest strike by workers in the township, witnesses said.

An evening police summary of a dozen unrest incidents around the country during the day said the charged body of a black woman was found at Kwanobuhle, near Uitenhage in the eastern Cape Province.

In the black township of Soweto outside Johannesburg, a crowd stabbed a black man, placed a tire around his neck, ignited it and dangled around him as he burned to death, the South African Press Association said.

The man was slain for allegedly pushing a man out of a moving train over the weekend, the report said.

Nearly 1,300 people have been killed, almost all of them black, since violence against apartheid began in September 1984. Most were killed by security forces, but about a third died at the hands of fellow blacks.

Apartheid is the legal system of racial segregation that enables 5 million whites to rule 24 million blacks who are denied the right to vote.

In Durban, a conference of 420 delegates began talks on a proposal to combine the white Natal Province government with that of the KwaZulu black homeland, made up of 25 sections of land scattered across Natal.

Thirty-one organizations, including Natal's main business groups, attended the opening session of the talks, expected to last six months.

Militant anti-apartheid groups boycotted the gathering, saying the plan implied recognition of the white-led government's policy of granting political rights to blacks only in 10 tribal homelands.

The government sent observers to the conference, although it did not formally take part in the talks and has not endorsed the idea.

Meanwhile, government officials said restrictions on black activist Winnie Mandela were still in force. They denied her lawyer's statement that an agreement had effectively lifted her banning order.

Mrs. Mandela made a dramatic return to Soweto on Wednesday following word from lawyer Ismail Ayob that a prosecutor had agreed not to fight Mrs. Mandela's appeal against her banning order.

But State Attorney Pieter Kleynhans said he had made no deal with Ayob, and that the case "is definitely proceeding."

Third suit filed against Spendthrift owners

Designer Calvin Klein and Kentucky horseman Kenneth Franzheim II are among the plaintiffs in a $34 million lawsuit seeking repayment of the money they spent on stock, plus punitive damages from the majority owners of Spendthrift Farm.

It is the third suit filed by private investors against Leslie Combs II, his son Brownell Combs II and others since the thoroughbred farm went public in 1983.

The suit was filed Monday in San Francisco by Klein, of New York; Franzheim, owner of Xalapa Farm in Bourbon County; Klein's partner Barry Schwartz; George Layman Sr. and George Layman Jr. of Washington state; and California physician Earl H. Shultz.

45 more to be laid off at Firestone

HENDERSON, Ky. — Firestone Steel Products Co. will indefinitely lay off another 45 hourly workers today, company officials said.

The latest layoffs will push the number of workers laid off by the plant in the past two months to about 150.

In addition, a corresponding percentage of salaried employees will be laid off "within the next few weeks," said corporate spokesman Roy McMillan.

Rehiring the employees is "going to depend on our being able to get additional business back into the Henderson plant," he said.

The layoffs, McMillan said, will reduce total employment to about 795, including 525 hourly workers.

Group advocates space flight oversight

WASHINGTON — With the enthusiastic concurrence of America's most experienced astronauts, the Challenger commission yesterday recommended that an independent safety panel oversee space shuttle travel to end a "kind of Russian roulette" in which NASA flies without fixing problems.

The safety panel, suggested by astronaut Henry Hartsfield, was instantly endorsed by commission chairman William P. Rogers, who said "all of us think there should be an independent safety panel of some kind."

One commissioner said an astronaut should be on the panel. The commission, at the mid-point of its four-month life, heard four of America's most experienced astronauts say they did not know or did not realize the seriousness of booster rocket problems. They disagreed over whether an escape mechanism should be added to the shuttle.

Cain, who publicly endorsed Greenwell, said he was pleased with the outcome of the election. "I'm very happy with the results; it's a sad time but it is time to move on," he said. "I think Donna is going to do a terrific job."

There were no congratulations, however, for Greenwell's opponent as she sat alone in the darkened Student Organizations Center away from the noise of the crowd.

A teary-eyed Ashcraft offered her congratulations to her opponent. "Congratulations to them. I hope the issue of student rights has gotten the press and attention it deserves," Ashcraft said. "I hope they work hard; I think they will."

UK baseball team slides past Bellarmine

Wildcats' home runs, Knights' bunting blunder seal Cats' third-straight win

By BRETT HAIT
Staff Writer

Perhaps no sport requires as many on-the-spot decisions that can determine the outcome of a game as baseball does. Bellarmine College manager Kevin Cox did nothing to disprove that theory yesterday at Shively Field.

The Kentucky Wildcats upped their season record to 10-16 with a 10-6 win over Bellarmine yesterday. But for as easy a win as the score may indicate, the Knights had their chances late in the game.

Bellarmine loaded the bases against UK relief pitcher Vince Tyra in the top of the eighth inning, but had Tom Brown and David Kerner coming up. Cox had both players bunt in succession, both of which Tyra fielded and forced runners out at home.

"We had our eighth and ninth place hitters coming up (Brown and Kerner) and they were freshman," Cox said. "I didn't think they could do what I wanted them to do in that situation."

"We could have let them swing the bat, but we just wanted some runs. You can get the ball on the bat better by bunting than by swinging."

"I was really surprised they did that," UK coach Keith Madison said. "If there had been one out, I could maybe see doing it, but not when you are that many runs down."

UK pitcher David Voit picked up the win to improve his record to 2-0, and Tyra picked up the save after shutting the Knights down in the final two innings.

Madison said Tyra worked the final two innings as a tuneup for his scheduled start Sunday against Vanderbilt.

The Wildcats rapped out 13 hits, including home runs by John Marshall, Jim Murphy and Chris Estep. Marshall, UK's third baseman, has been the Wildcats' hottest hitter this week. The sophomore from Louisville, batting only 159 after Sunday's loss to Florida, has eight hits in his last 12 plate appearances.

For the game, Marshall had three hits and three runs batted in and was named the Key Oil Player of the Game. "Marshall is swinging the bat real well," Madison said.

"I made an adjustment in my swing," Marshall said. "Once I got a few hits, my confidence was up."

He said the UK coaches noticed that his hands were too close to his body when at the plate, and has since moved his hands out farther away.

"I felt like I was getting jammed a lot," he said. "With my hands out, I'm getting my arms extended and that's giving me more power."

Murphy and Estep's home runs came in UK's four-run sixth inning. Both came after drag-bunt singles by Greg Stephens and Scott Belding.

"We work on the drag bunt a lot and it is a weapon we use a lot," Madison said. "It worked out well."

Bellarmine led 1-0 in the second inning, and again held the lead in the fifth after first baseman Craig Sharpe drilled a three-run homer off Voit to put the Knights ahead 4-3.

Banquets galore to honor basketball teams

Faithful fans and supporters can say "thanks for the memories" once again to the 1985-86 UK men's and women's basketball teams.

The men's annual awards banquet, honoring the Southeastern Conference champions, will be April 15 in the Patterson Ballroom at the Hyatt Regency downtown.

Tickets can be purchased at the Memorial Coliseum ticket office for $20. The banquet, sponsored by the Committee of 101, will begin at 6:45 p.m. WLK radio's Tim Smile will be master of ceremonies.

The women's banquet will be April 11 at 6:45 p.m. at the Campbell House. Tickets are $15 and can be purchased at the Lady Kat basketball office in Memorial Coliseum.

Guerrero injures knee, out for 3 months

VERO BEACH, Fla. — Los Angeles Dodger third baseman Pedro Guerrero suffered a severe knee injury yesterday and will be sidelined for at least the first three months of the 1986 campaign.

Guerrero, who hit .320 and blasted 33 home runs to lead the Los Angeles Dodgers to the National League West championship last season, was trying to steal third base in the Dodgers' exhibition game against the Atlanta Braves when his spikes apparently caught in the dirt.

According to a team spokesman, Guerrero, 29, suffered a ruptured patella tendon below his left knee and surgery will be necessary. The surgery could be performed as early as today in Los Angeles by team physician Dr. Frank Jobe, the spokesman said.

Boston Garden is home to NBA record-setters

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics, rolling along with the longest single-season home winning streak in NBA history, are closing in on other records.

Their hardy crowd cared less. "I'm more concerned about how we play the last six games," center Robert Parish said. "I want to be on a positive note going into the playoffs. I don't want to slack off."

Said Kevin McHale: "I bet when I'm old and gray and I tell my grandchildren we won 28 straight at home, they'll say 'so what?' But if I say we won the world championship, they'll say 'oh, that's neat.'"

Boston was 63-19 last season but lost in the playoff finals to the Los Angeles Lakers. By crushing Detroit 122-106 Wednesday night, the Celtics notched their 63rd victory against 13 losses and wiped out the 36-year-old record of 27 consecutive home victories in one season set by the Minneapolis Lakers in 1949-50.

They can tie another record, and set several others, by winning their remaining six games.

They would match the 69-13 record, the best in league history, established by the Los Angeles Lakers in 1971-72. They would set records for the best home mark, 49-1, the longest winning streak in their history, 19, and most consecutive wins at the end of a season. Boston also would become the first team to lose no more than one game to any opponent.

"We better be more concerned with New York and Philadelphia this weekend instead of trying to sweep the rest of the season," McHale said. "If it happened, it would be great, but that's a long ways away."

Boston figures to win its remaining home games against New York, Cleveland and New Jersey in the regular-season finale two days after that. But a road trip that takes the Celtics to Philadelphia, Milwaukee and New Jersey could bring trouble.

"Unless we play well in each game, we'll lose," Boston backup center Bill Walton said.

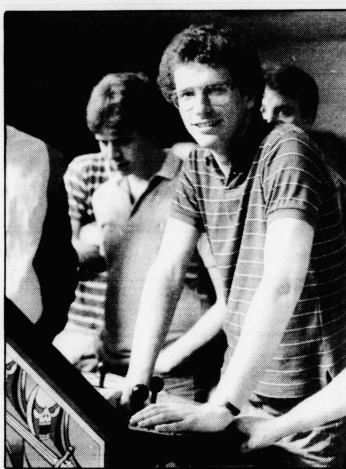

The Celtics' current 13-game winning streak equals the longest of the season which they established earlier. They have won 21 of their last 23 games, losing only in overtime by two points to Washington and in regulation by one point to Dallas. Sixteen of those triumphs have been by at least 11 points.

Celts coach K.C. Jones was an assistant coach on that team, which featured Wilt Chamberlain, Jerry West, Gail Goodrich, Jim McMillan and Happy Hairston.

"It's impossible to compare" that club with this year's Celtics, Jones said. "All you can do is just guess at it."

His guess?

"This is a more talented team, a better team," than those Lakers.

Pinball wizard

Gem Smith, a computer science freshman, spent 5 1/2 hours playing the pinball game Gauntlet in the Student Center yesterday before having to leave for class. He racked up about 1,500,000 points on the game with one quarter.
