

BUCKET SHOPFIGHT

WAGED BY THE GOVERNMENT TAKES A NEW TACK IN CHARGES.

Samuel V. Adler, C. A. Tilles and the Cellas Among Those Under Indictment for Violating Uncle Sam's Laws.

(Associated Press Telegram.) WASHINGTON, May 23.—The Department of Justice took a new tack today in its extensive crusade against bucketshops. In addition to the conspiracy charge made against twenty-nine men in the cities of New York, Jersey City, Baltimore and Washington last April, the Department today lodged a complaint of direct violation of section 865 of the District Code which forbids bucketting or setting up a gaming table in the district. This direct charge of operating bucketshops in the district is made against persons who are said to constitute the Standard Stock and Grain Co. of Jersey City.

Four additional persons are expected to be caught in the dragnet who are not mentioned in the previous indictment. There are Samuel V. Adler and C. A. Tilles of New York, William Fox and E. M. Brown of Baltimore. Two indictments were returned today charging conspiracy and setting up a gaming table against these four men in addition to Edwin Altemus of Jersey City, Louis and Angelo Cella of St. Louis, Robert Hall, Samuel Raymond and Oscar J. Rappe of Baltimore, Henry C. Stump of Philadelphia, Henry R. Harris of the Citizens Alley of Washington. All these persons are charged not only with entering into a conspiracy to violate the district law against bucketshops, but also with being actually engaged in the conduct of brokerage business run in the name of Durico and Co.

(Associated Press Telegram.) PHILADELPHIA, May 23.—The motor boat Louisville, one of the starters in the Philadelphia-Havana race, has returned here, having abandoned the race on account of engine trouble. The withdrawal of the Louisville leaves four boats in the race. A tug arriving today reports that when the light races passed to sea Saturday night, the Berney was leading with the Cahill second, and the Lyle and Caroline close behind.

MAKE SENSATIONAL RESCUES.

Heroes, Carry Forty Persons to Safety From Where They Were Trapped in Burning Building.

(Associated Press Telegram.) NEW YORK, May 23.—Sensational rescues were made by firemen today in a blazing tenement on East Seventh-street. Mrs. Mary Miller died there, a fire which broke out from the effects of smoke inhaled after she was dragged to the roof. Fully forty persons were taken this way from the burning structure where members of sixteen families had been trapped.

CLARA MORRIS, FAMOUS ACTRESS, GOING BLIND.

(Associated Press Telegram.) NEW YORK, May 23.—Clara Morris (Mrs. Frederick Harcourt), critically ill at her home in Yorkers, is going blind from her physical condition, grave fears are entertained for her eyesight, which has been threatened for the last three months. At her home it was said that the actress has been confined to her bed since March and that she has been gradually sinking. Regarding her eyesight, it was said that she could see only dimly. Several specialists have been attending her. Following a general breakdown, she began to give her trouble, and it appears that the oculists have been able to do little to relieve her. The last time Clara Morris appeared on the stage was on April 16, 1909. The occasion was a benefit performance for her at the New York theater. She took part in the sleep walking scene from "Macbeth." Surrounded by the members of the Twelfth Night club, which had arranged the testimonial, she spoke for nearly ten minutes, sitting in an armchair. She told the audience that she was not of those who believed the American public was unappreciative of the actor, and her case gave her the lie to the perennial cry of her sex.

MRS. MARY GIBSON SOUTHERN METHODIST CHURCH

ONE OF THE BEST OF LEXINGTON'S WOMEN PASSES AWAY AT "INGLESIDE."

Her Illness Was of Short Duration and Her Death Came as a Great Shock to Loving Relatives and Friends—The Funeral Tuesday.

Mrs. Mary Gibson, widow of the late Col. Hart Gibson, and one of the widely known and best beloved women of the Blue Grass, passed away peacefully away Saturday morning at 5 o'clock at her home, "Ingleside," near this city, after a brief illness, aged 72 years.

The news of her death will bring sorrow to many relatives and friends, among them being Hart Gibson, her son, who died in the service of the late war, and her daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Gibson, who is the wife of the late Dr. H. H. Gibson, a senior student at Andover; Addison Gardner Foster, H. Duncan Foster, Mary Duncan Gibson and Randall Lee Gibson.

The funeral services will be held at Ingleside, on Tuesday, May 24, at 11 o'clock, Rev. Edwin Muller officiating. Mrs. Gibson, who was born near Duncannon, this county, November 18, 1837, was a member of a prominent Kentucky family and was herself a remarkable woman. Her father, Henry Finckelstein, was in his own right one of the wealthiest and most influential citizens in Central Kentucky. He was chairman of the association which built the monument to the memory of Henry Clay in the Lexington cemetery, and he had contributed the sum of $10,000 to the undertaking.

Mrs. Gibson had all the advantages of superior education, and in her girlhood had as tutor and elementary educator, Lewis Marshall, the son of the great Chief Justice and father of Thomas P. and Edward Marshall. She was later at the college of the late Ralph Waldo Emerson, and afterwards in scientific courses of the great naturalist, Louis Agassiz.

Through the prestige of her social position in Kentucky and the association necessarily made during the period of her residence in Massachusetts, she became, when a visitor to Boston as a young lady at the residence of one of the belles in the aristocratic society of the Massachusetts capital. Her beauty would have won her all the eulogies and popularity she enjoyed, had she been without the educational accomplishments and rare intellectual gifts which made her famous in her day.

Her marriage to Col. Hart Gibson was a brilliant social event of interstate interest, but scarcely had the lingering tones of the wedding bells died away until there came the dark cloud of war and its years of trial. And so the serious side of life began again, and in earnest, but through it all, down through the years that followed, until father, mother, husband and relatives passed into the great beyond, and yet to the end remained over the same—her optimism was inexhaustible, her febrile beauty changed its lines with the years, but was never effaced, even when she lay in her coffin, and her queenly grace and angelic spirit was ever an inspiration to her family, relatives and large circle of friends.

The grasp of public affairs was extensive, her culture was wide as it necessarily must have been as the life-long companion of a husband of the broadest and most exquisite culture, who to the day of his death was a constant student.

With her passing fades away into oblivion a wealth of local and family tradition that is a distinct loss. Her knowledge of the kinships and alliances of the old-time families of the Blue Grass, especially, and of the State as a whole was marvelous, her clear and accurate recollection of many of the notable and striking events of local history were unequalled by any living local authority.

She has more than once recounted, giving name, time and locality of many notable, inspiring and sentimental events, incident to the departure of the troops from Lexington for the Mexican war, that perhaps escaped the eyes of other observers, or were not their recollection; and so she was the repository of many a stirring story of the experience of herself and others in that long and fearful struggle in which her husband bore a gallant and conspicuous part.

Her death is a distinct loss to the community, which will be felt beyond the confines of her own home and family relationship, for she was of that type of old southern gentility as a lady of the experience of herself and others in that long and fearful struggle in which her husband bore a gallant and conspicuous part.

Questions Before Conference Are Discussed—Women Will Continue the Agitation for Recognition—Resume of the Convention.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., May 23.—Nearly all of the newly elected bishops created at this session of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, filed the leading pulpits in Asheville and vicinity Sunday. Bishop E. D. Morson preached at the Bethel Methodist Church, and Bishop R. Lambuth at the Brevard Methodist Church. In the morning at the First Presbyterian Church Bishop Collins Denney occupied the pulpit and preached to a magnificent audience, and at night at the same church Bishop R. G. Waterhouse delivered an eloquent and inspiring sermon.

The subject of the removal of the time limit is still a favorite theme, and the failure of the general conference to pass a law allowing a minister to remain so long in his congregation, presiding elder and bishop are satisfied will continue to agitate the church during the next quadrennium. The woman's memorial was defeated, not because the women did not work hard to pass the measure, but probably because the more conservative members were afraid that it would aid the suffrage movement. The women are steadily denying that their measure meant anything more than a sincere desire to be of more and better service to the church. The question is far from dead, and it is safe to predict that a renewed and more powerful effort will be made to have women in the councils of the church and in all positions except that of preacher.

Notwithstanding the fact that the conference did not nearly an entire afternoon of the day in discussing the wording of a creed from "the Holy Catholic Church" to "the Church of God," no one is due to the fact that at the last moment the presiding officer, Bishop H. C. Morson, ruled that the subject was not in proper form, and that reason could not be discussed.

It is generally understood that the old college of bishops, with the exception of one member, Bishop James Atwell, of the Methodist Episcopal Church in America, the question will not be taken up at the annual conference of the connection.

So far as the South is concerned, Vanderbilt is expected to be the subject of the fight and the right to be taken up at the annual conference will not be again.

It was proved during the past four years that advanced action, along lines, and at the session of the closed provision was made for a far larger assessment on the annual conference for the purpose of still further aiding the good cause. There was much discussion on the subject of increased assessments, some claiming that the church already is too heavily assessed. The theological department of Vanderbilt University will receive the benefit of part of the increase, and the remainder will be turned over to the general board of education.

It is thought that one of the best provisions enacted at this session was the one establishing a court of appeals which will enable a minister to appeal his case, and not cause him to wait until a session of the general conference convenes. This court will have full power to either sustain the action of the annual conference or reverse its findings.

One of the most radical laws made was that requiring the bishop to announce his appointments at an annual conference before his cabinet of presiding elders before giving them in open session of the conference.

THE CHANGE OF NAME.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., May 23.—The most significant action ever taken in the history of Methodism since the division of American Methodism in 1844 over the slavery issue is the action taken by this general conference to change the name of the M. E. Church South.

It is regarded here as the initial step toward a reunited American Methodism. The Methodist Episcopal Church South has done more toward perpetuating the spirit of the "Old South" nomination than any other religious denomination within the South. It has come to pass through its denominational name, "South," which was a confusing word.

WILL SHORT SKIRTED AND TIGHTED WOMEN BE PICTURED BY BILLBOARD PRINTERS, SAY SECRETARY.

(Associated Press Telegram.) CINCINNATI, May 23.—Abbreviated skirts and tight bodices must go from the billboards. "We'll go further than that; we will not print anything that reputable newspapers or a magazine would reject." This was the declaration here today of Clarence E. Runey, secretary of the International Poster Printers Association of the United States and Canada. He made it just before the delegates to the fourth annual convention of the association gathered in their first session and several of them corroborated Runey's statement as to the main purpose of the meeting.

While there is much to prattle about, the favorite topic in pugilist at present is the selection of Tex Rickard as referee of the Jeff-Johnson mill. Although Tex says he is willing to be the third man in the ring, he has also announced that he is ready to step down should Jeff and Johnson decide on another. The Goldfield man is also one of the promoters of the battle, supplying the financial end. Rickard came in prominence four years ago when he engineered the Gans-Nelson fight at Goldfield, Nev.

The purpose of the special session is to approve the April classified list of accounts and to pass a number of street improvement ordinances, which are being prepared for submission. Among these will be one providing for the reconstruction of West Short street and the petition of the property owners of that thoroughfare now being circulated is expected to be ready to accompany it.

The total damage was about $2,700 of which $2,000 is confined to the Linn property. The alarm was sent in from box 424 and companies 1, 3 and 5 responded.
