The KENTUCKY ALUMNUS

Volume XXVI

February, 1955

Number 1

They Have Earned Their "L" For Loyalty

Alumni of the University of Kentucky are URGED to read the story in the current issue of the ALUMNUS, describing proposals which will be put before the annual membership meeting on May 28th., relative to an enlarged and more adequate fund-raising program. One of the many concrete reasons which has inspired these proposals is the fact that this year's Loyalty Fund campaign to raise money for scholarships, has been more successful than any since the initial drive.

An effort will be made to acquaint alumni with the purposes of the plan in this and the May issue of the ALUMNUS, in the hope that the voting membership will see its wisdom and ratify its execution.

In the meantime, each of you who have participated this year may take great personal pride in the list of contributors.

Alumni To Vote On New Financial Program At Annual Meeting, May 28

Plans for a more comprehensive fund-raising program, involving an enlarged staff and an annual drive designed to raise funds for specific projects as well as for the operation of the Alumni Association, have been envisioned and outlined by the alumni executive committee, to be brought to a vote of the general Alumni Association at its annual meeting on May 28.

Alumni Association President Newton W. Neel appointed a steering committee last fall from the membership of the executive committee to study the needs of the Association in its relationship to financial support and the monetary potential of the alumni, in order to make plans for a more adequate fund-raising program.

This committee worked with the executive secretary in a comprehensive study, which included a survey of physical facilities, mechanical equipment, personnel and fund-raising in institutions of similar size and scope in the south, and brought to Lexington the assistant secretary of the V.P.I. Alumni Association who has had considerable experience in successful fund raising, for the purpose of obtaining advice and counsel.

Proposed Program Is Result

The program which will be proposed to the general association in May is the result of this study. The steering committee has made a determined effort to adapt to the UK Alumni Association's needs the best features of other university fund drives, at the same time trying to hold down initial costs.

At the January meeting of the Alumni Executive Committee the steering committee outlined a proposal, to be brought before the general association at its annual meeting, which proposal was approved by the executive group subject to the vote of the general membership, as follows:

Four-Point Program

1. To inaugurate the fund drive in the spring of 1956, at which time the Association expects to have a ruling from the Director of Internal Revenue giving all contributors to the Alumni Fund deductions on their tax returns.
2. Employ an assistant to the executive secretary, preferably a male graduate of the University, at a salary to be established by the steering committee after interviews with the person selected. This person to be employed as soon after June 1, 1955 as it is feasible.
3. Recommend to the membership at the annual meeting on May 28th that the Executive Committee be authorized to borrow sufficient funds from our life membership cumulative fund to finance the campaign and reorganization for the first three years.
4. Recommend to the general membership that as of 1956-'57 the annual dues be changed from the current two and three dollar memberships to one classification of five dollars per membership, which will include subscriptions to the KERNEL and ALUMNUS, and all other privileges of membership.

The other two points of the outlined program have already been carried out, as they did not need the vote of the general association for ratification. They were to start an information program on the proposal in the current (February) issue of the ALUMNUS, so that alumni returning for the annual meeting in June would be well acquainted with the plans, and to purchase additional and improved Elliott Addressing Machine equipment necessary for enlarging office procedures for the alumni fund campaign. The money expended for this equipment was taken from a savings fund accumulated over a period of years through over-realization of budget needs.

Reasons for Plan Outlined

The executive secretary, in a preliminary statement made in connection with the steering committee's recommendations, said that the report is the result of a long period of study by the secretary and the members of the committee, resulting from the general concensus of opinion that the Alumni Association is not realizing its potential in the annual collection of dues and funds.

Founders Day Celebration Planned For February 24

Mr. Townsend Named "Alumnus of Year"

William H. Townsend, past president of the UK Alumni Association, a member of its executive committee and legal counsel, was chosen last November to receive the "Alumnus of the Year" award given annually by members of Alma Magna Mater between halves of the homecoming football game on Stoll field.

Alma Magna Mater is a group of undergraduates whose parent or parents, and, in some instances, grandparents, attended the University of Kentucky, and each year this organization designates one man or woman among the alumni as the one who has contributed the most unselfish service to Alma Mater.

Mr. Townsend is a member of the Lexington law firm of Stoll, Keenan and Park, is president of Lexington's Civil War Round Table, a historian of note and a special authority on Abraham Lincoln about whom he has written books and papers. A distinguished jurist, his legal knowledge is available at all times to the University family, and his time and efforts have been devoted to the University over a long period of years.

J. C. Everett, Loyal Alumnus, Trustee, Dies In New York

John Chenoweth Everett, 55, prominent Maysville, Ky., businessman, trustee of the University of Kentucky for the past 11 years, and a life member of the UK Alumni Association, died of cancer in Doctors Hospital, New York City, January 8.

President of the J. C. Everett Company in Maysville, Mr. Everett was also a director of the Maysville National Bank.

As an undergraduate student at UK Mr. Everett had served as captain of the basketball team and a member of

Dr. Frank J. Welch Is "Man of Year"

Dr. Frank J. Welch, dean of the University's College of Agriculture and Home Economics has been selected "Man of the Year in Service to Agriculture" in Kentucky. The selection was made by the Progressive Farmer magazine on the basis of Dr. Welch's work in 1954. Dr. Welch is also director of the Experiment Station and director of agricultural extension at the University.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon social fraternity. His son, John Chenoweth Everett, III was graduated from the University in 1950.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Thelma A. Everett, a daughter, Mrs. William C. Trueheart, Paris; two sons, John C., and Leslie; his mother, Mrs. John C. Everett, and three brothers, Joshua B. Everett, Louisville, Addison L. Everett, Maysville, and Warfield B. Everett, Mayfield.

Funeral services and burial were held January 10 in Maysville.

Will Feature Jean Ritchie, Tom Scott

Miss Jean Ritchie and Mr. Tom Scott, both of New York City and both former students of the University of Kentucky who have made outstanding contributions to the wider knowledge and enjoyment of Kentucky folklore and folk music throughout the state and country, will be the featured artists who will be honored in a program at Memorial Coliseum at 8:15 p.m. on the night of February 24, in celebration of the University's annual Founders Day.

All alumni and friends of the University are invited to attend this program, at which time Mr. Scott and Miss Ritchie will be presented awards by their Alma Mater for their work in the development and knowledge of this unique Kentucky culture.

Dr. Wm. Hugh Jansen, assistant professor of English at UK and well-known folklorist will narrate the program, which will depict through narration and musical interpretation the folk culture peculiarly Kentucky's and the relation to that culture of the University of Kentucky. The narration by Dr. Jansen will outline the story of folk music, its roots and development in Kentucky. Miss Ritchie and Mr. Scott's contributions in the dissemination of that culture, and, conversely, that culture's contribution to Miss Ritchie and Mr. Scott. Prof. Aimo Kiviniemi, in cooperation with other members of the UK music department, is preparing the illustrative music.

A portion of the Founders Day program will be broadcast over Louisville radio station WHAS on Sunday, Feb. 27, from 3:05 to 3:30 p.m.

Thoughts For The New Year

President Donovan

In this article I wish to present a number of unrelated thoughts which I want to convey to our alumni. These ideas are things I would like for you to know and to be thinking about:

For the first time in the history of the University the Alumni Association in 1954 had more than five thousand paid-up members. Permit me to congratulate the Association on this achievement. The Alumni Association is becoming a dynamic force for the promotion of higher education in Kentucky. More and more of our graduates are demonstrating a loyalty to their Alma Mater in the support which they are giving the University.

Let us set another objective. In 1965 the University will celebrate its Hundredth Anniversary. Why not set the goal for ten thousand paid-up alumni members as a part of our celebration of our hundredth birthday?

The University now has more than 27,000 graduates. If we could persuade each graduate of the institution to make a ten dollar gift each year to his Alma Mater, this would bring in an income of $270,000 per annum.

The income for one year would erect the alumni building which so many of our graduates have been anxious to see constructed on the campus of the University. Won't some of you take the initiative in promoting this idea? In many colleges and universities each graduating class is organized and makes an annual class gift to its Alma Mater. Such an investment in your University would bring dividends of incalculable value to the University and the state.

Have you ever sat down with a pencil and listed the things the University has done in which you have pride; things that you could boast about relative to the accomplishments of your Alma Mater? Try this some time. Here are a few to start off with:

1. The University has had two Rhode scholars, Floyd Cammack and Diogenes Allen, during the past couple of years. These young men were selected over competition with all the colleges in Ohio, Wisconsin, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan. The University of Kentucky is the only college or university west of the Atlantic Seaboard that has had more than one Rhodes scholar during the last two years, and, of course, very few have had even one.

2. Approximately one hundred members of the faculty of the University are in Who's Who and fifty-three in American Men of Science.

3. During a recent year 160 articles have been published by University scholars in the leading scholarly journals and magazines of this country as well as fifteen complete books.

4. Our debating team has won regional and national honors during the last two years.

5. Teams from the College of Agriculture and Home Economics have won regional and national honors in judging livestock.

6. Nine professors have been awarded Ford Foundation Fellowships to study and do research abroad.

The list of achievements of faculty and students of the University can be stretched out indefinitely.

The Alumni Association has 110 local alumni clubs that meet one or more times each year. This is one of the most essential programs in the promotion of the welfare of the University that could be devised. As President I wish to urge you to continue to carry on at the local level. There should be a very active local alumni association in every county in Kentucky.

Let every alumnus observe Founders Day, February 24. This is a good time to hold a meeting of your local alumni group. The University of Kentucky will be ninety years old this year. Observe its birthday.

H. A. Donovan.

President

UK Makes New Week-end Reunion Plans

Medical Foundation Names Watkins Head

Promotion of Med School, Objective

J. Stephens Watkins, '30, Lexington consulting engineer who has been serving as temporary chairman of the Kentucky Medical Foundation since its incorporation some months ago, was elected to the presidency of the group for a one-year term at a meeting held in December at the Lafayette Hotel.

Among other alumni elected as officials of the Foundation were: Gilbert W. Kingsburg, '33, Ft. Mitchell, a vice president; Edward S. Dabney, '20, Lexington, treasurer, and Glen Weinman, '32, Lexington, secretary.

The by-laws, adopted at the meeting, include the dedication of the organization to the "development of better medical services for all of the people of the Commonwealth," and the promoting of a state medical college at the University of Kentucky.

The business program included the naming of an executive committee, 37 directors, five special committees and a consultant for the committee.

Last November Gov. Lawrence W. Wetherby named Mr. Watkins to the University of Kentucky Board of Trustees for a term extending to Dec. 31, 1957.

Gen. Dabney With Eucom Near Paris

Maj. Gen. John A. Dabney, '26, who has had a distinguished military career, has recently been assigned to the EUCOM staff near Paris. Prior to the current assignment, General Dabney was in command of American forces in Trieste for six months, and before that was stationed at Munich, Germany in command of the American forces in the southern area there. A native of Hopkinsville, he is a brother of Edward Dabney, of Lexington, a UK graduate in 1920 and president of the Security Trust Company in Lexington.

Alumni Day Set For Saturday, May 28th

The University of Kentucky faculty has approved a new plan for commencement and class reunions, effective this year, which sets the calendar of events for the last week-end in May, and which establishes Alumni Day as Saturday, May 28th, thus making it possible for many more alumni to return for class reunions.

Heretofore, Alumni Day has been held on the Thursday before commencement on Friday, and has, in many instances, made it necessary for alumni to take almost a week's vacation in order to return for their class reunions. This new plan should eliminate that necessity and make it possible for many more former students to come back to the campus for finals week.

The entire program will be held over the week-end of May 28th, 29th and 30th, and has been set up as follows: Alumni Day, Saturday, May 28th; Baccalaureate, Sunday, May 29th, and Commencement, Monday, May 30th.

The following classes are scheduled to reunite in 1955. The class of 1905 will celebrate its golden anniversary; the class of 1915, its 40th, and the class of 1930 its 25th. The class of 1907, bless 'em, will return for its biennial reunion, according to its own designated plan which brings the group back at two-year intervals.

Regular reunions are scheduled for the following classes: 1921, '22, '23 and '24; and 1941, '42, '43 and '44.

This schedule does not preclude the scheduling of additional reunions, and if any specific classes desire to arrange a special reunion, it may be done by contacting the executive secretary of the Alumni Association, Room 124 SUB, and notifying her of the wish of the class to come back in 1955.

Detailed plans for Alumni Day will be announced through direct mailings to the classes involved, and in the May issue of the KENTUCKY ALUMNUS, but this preliminary announcement is being made now so that those planning to return may have the dates available early enough to make arrangements to be here.

Library Associates Organize

A group of friends and alumni of the University of Kentucky libraries have organized under the name of University of Kentucky Library Associates, for the purpose of increasing the usefulness of the university's libraries to the commonwealth and to the nation and to help develop the holdings and services of the libraries by encouraging gifts of books, manuscripts and money.

The University of Kentucky library is the youngest of all of the great research libraries in the United States and probably the most vigorous. Founded in 1909—almost three centuries after Harvard, over two centuries after Yale, and nearly a century after Michigan—the UK libraries now recognize only the libraries of Duke and Virginia as equals in the southeastern United States.

The group was organized at a dinner meeting held in the Student Union building on the campus last November 15, with more than 150 persons, mostly alumni, present. In addition to the above stated purposes it is hoped that Library Associates will become a common meeting ground for bibliophiles throughout the Ohio Valley, as the group plans to hold a dinner meeting annually, and attend exhibits and lectures in the Margaret I. King library. Every year there will be a keepsake given all members. This year a rare signature of Simon Kenton from the library's manuscript collections was reproduced in facsimile and given to all Associates.

Other publications of the libraries are also available to the Associates. They may receive upon request the facsimile of the First Enabling Act creating the commonwealth (a handsome piece suitable for framing), the Library Bulletin series including the annual "Writings on Kentucky History," the Library Guide describing the resources and services and the libraries, the printed catalogs of the recent exhibits of German bookbinding and modern Norwegian printing, and the descriptive account of the Samuel M. Wilson Library by Dr. Jacqueline Bull.

Members of the Associates are those individuals who make an annual contribution of five dollars a year or more to the Associates' account with the Kentucky Research Foundation. All requests for affiliation with the Library Associates should be sent to the office of the Director of Libraries, and checks should be payable to the University of Kentucky Library Associates.

Dr. Holman Hamilton, UK writer and historian, said at the organization dinner meeting that "Old books, stored away in trunks and attics would be welcome additions to the University of Kentucky library," and urged Kentuckians generally to aid the library by going through their private libraries and sending to UK those books which may be of value to future historians.

Reed Miller, '26, Speaks On Campus

Reed Miller, '26, of Louisville, teacher of physical education at Highlands Junior High School there for the past 25 years, returned to his Alma Mater last December at the invitation of Maurice A. Clay, another UK alumnus and a member of UK's physical education faculty, to talk to a class in Organization and Administration of Physical Education.

Mr. Miller played baseball for UK from 1923 to 1926, was captain in 1925, received his B.S. degree in 1926 and returned to the University, after having embarked on his teaching career in Louisville, to receive his M.S. degree in Physical Education in 1936. His thesis was developed around a program of physical education for the Junior-Senior high schools.

Mr. Miller has done an outstanding job at Highlands and Dr. Clay invited him to lecture before his class in order to share his experiences and philosophy with current physical education students.

During his teaching career Mr. Miller has officiated at many sports events and has run a highly successful summer Day Camp at Kentucky Military Institute, Lyndon, Ky. It is Dr. Clay's opinion that Mr. Miller has done one of the best pieces of work of any of the department's graduates.

Mr. Miller is married and has three children.

Alumni To Vote

Miss King said, in part: "We believe that now is the time to change our financial structure, because, even though we have haltingly tapped our sources of income during the past eight years, due to limitations in finances and staff, we have operated during those eight years without a deficit, and have accumulated funds as follows: $22,300 in government bonds; $5,834.54 in a savings account; and an accumulated total of $33,737.81 in the Loyalty Fund. In addition we have educated and graduated three students representing a total expenditure of $8,400, and we are in the process of financing the education of four more students on whom we have already spent $5,600, at the same time maintaining the clear balance quoted above."

Results at Other Universities

There is not a University of like size in the country whose alumni are contributing as little to the support of its Association, and the executive committee, in making this report, has felt for some time that the onus for this fact rests directly on the governing board of the Association rather than on the general membership, due to the fact that a fund-raising campaign, in the broad sense, has never been thoroughly organized by the UK Alumni Association.

May ALUMNUS To Give Facts

In the May issue of the ALUMNUS we will attempt to outline for you the methods for conducting an annual fund-raising campaign, and the uses to which your contributions will be put in the conduct of Alumni Association business, as well as the projects which we hope to sponsor for the University.

Two Loyal Alumni Set Up Insurance Plans Benefitting UK Alumni Association

Two insurance plans have recently been inaugurated by two loyal alumni for the benefit of the Alumni Association which not only have substantial financial value, but indicate a trend in the thinking of UK graduates in planning for the disposition of their estates.

Strangely enough, both plans have been thought out and set up by grad-for the present, and simply say that a loyal alumnus has recognized what the University did for him, and, in a small measure, is attempting to show his appreciation in a material way. Let us hope that this will impress other alumni as being worthwhile, and will strike a responsive cord."

The other alumnus, Mr. J. Franklin Corn, '16, of Cleveland, Tenn., has set up an insurance trust for his grand-nephew, Charles Corn Renfro, of Lexington, who is now four years old. The policy, in the approximate amount of $4,000, is an educational insurance policy, and has been set up in the form of a trust agreement between the settlor (Mr. Corn), and the trustee (the UK Alumni Association), and provides, in brief, that the trustee has been named settlement beneficiary to assure that the proceeds from the policy will be used in support of Mr. Corn's nephew's college education at the University.

It further provides that if the youth should fail or refuse to take advantage of the educational benefits provided by this trust within four years after his high school graduation, or should die before he is eligible for admission to the University of Kentucky, or should he die or discontinue (other than for military service) his attendance at the University before all payments have been made to him, the trust for his benefit shall cease and trustee shall pay over all of the remaining proceeds to the University of Kentucky Alumni Fund absolutely.

Both parents of the beneficiary, Charlotte Corn Renfro and John Renfro, are alumni of the University and make their home in Lexington.

The officers and executive committee of the Alumni Association are deeply grateful to these two men for their deep interest in and devotion to the work of the association, and for this concrete evidence of their loyalty. It is an inspiration and a challenge to other alumni.

uates of the class of 1916—certainly an indication of the intense loyalty of the group.

One of the two alumni, who prefers to remain anonymous, has set up two insurance policies of $5,000 each, made payable to his estate, with directions in his will that his executor pay $5,000 to the University of Kentucky Alumni Association, and the other $5,000 to the Kentucky Research Foundation for the Alumni Loyalty Fund.

In giving his permission for the ALUMNUS to carry a report of his generosity, the alumnus stated: "It is not that I object to the publicity, for who does not like it. However, I think that it is preferable to omit my name

Voss Comes Home To Kentucky

Grad Is Louisville Ins. Agency Manager

E. A. Vossmeier, '26, known to his generation of alumni as "Voss," an expatriated Kentuckian since 1930 at which time he joined the Equitable Life Assurance Society in Brooklyn, N. Y., has finally found his way back to Kentucky as manager of the Equitable agency in Louisville, after "tours of duty" in Cincinnati, West Palm Beach, Fla., and Nashville, Tenn.

The Nashville agency of Equitable dedicated its November monthly publication to Mr. Vossmeier, as he left Nashville, to assume his duties in Louisville.

Voss' advance with Equitable was fast and well-earned. A substantial personal producer as an agent, he was promoted to assistant agency manager in Brooklyn in 1932. Later he went to Cincinnati as assistant agency manager there, and then to West Palm

A Kentuckian Shows New York To The Rest Of The World

Frank C. Davidson, B.A. in Journalism, '30, from Barbourville, was the subject of a feature story in a recent issue of the magazine section of the Louisville Courier Journal, which pointed out that the former Kentuckian, for twenty years a teacher of speech and drama at the College of the City of New York, conducts a course at that institution called "Know New York City."

Davidson, besides being an expert on drama has become a professional on the nation's biggest city. He holds the master of fine arts degree from Yale University, and the Ph.D. in drama from New York University. Besides courses in acting and directing he also teaches courses in foreign accent correction, argumentation and debate, extemporaneous speaking, speech defects, and principles and types of speech at C.C.N.Y.

His biographical sketch reads like a fascinating story of the theater. He has directed summer stock in Vermont, New York, New Jersey and Maine. Has had experience in Broadway plays, musicals and experimental productions as well as experience in professional productions in New York for Equity Library Theater, professional showcase for actors, under the sponsorship of Actors' Equity Association. He was Elliott Murphy's assistant in staging the Aqua Shows at Flushing Meadows in the summer of 1952. Directed Community Theater at Williams Bay, Wisconsin in 1951. Set up complete recreation program for children for the Standard Oil Colony in the Island of Arubia in the Dutch West Indies in 1947.

Frank has authored two plays, "The Ladder Falls" and "A Month of Grace," and was co-writer and director of a musical "A Nice Place to Visit" which was the first full length musical ever produced on TV. He is also the author of three books, "Niagara Falls," "Washington, D. C.," and "Where To Take Your Girl in New York on $1.00 to $20.00."

His Army experience included writing training films, serving as special service officer for the Special Service School at Washington and Lee, and theatrical advisor and director in New Guinea and the Philippines. He holds the Bronze Star medal and two letters of recommendation. He served as classification officer, Army Forces, western Pacific with the rank of captain.

Honored as "Kentuckian of the Year" by the New York Society of Kentucky Women in 1954, Mr. Davidson will go to India, Pakistan and Burma on a three months' trip in 1955 under the auspices of the State Department, to lecture on the theater and set up theatrical projects for adults and children in those countries.

UK Man Gets Greek Citation

A citation from King Paul of Greece was awarded last November to Dr. Irwin Sanders, UK professor of sociology, "in recognition of the most valuable services rendered to Greece."

During the 1952-'53 school year Dr. Sanders was on leave from UK to study peasant life in Greece. The citation commended him for his interpretation of Greek rural life.

The presentation was made by Greek Ambassador Athanase G. Politis in Washington, D. C., who gave Dr. Sanders the gold cross of the Royal

UK MAN TO DIRECT PROJECT IN EGYPT

Dr. Fred E. Harris, professor of education at UK has been selected by the U. S. State Department to direct a new project in fundamental education at Cairo, Egypt under the Foreign Operations Administration.

Under terms of the State Department project, Dr. Harris will set up "a ten-year program to eradicate illiteracy among children and youth through the development of an open air and shelter-type schools."

He will be attached to the Egyptian Ministry of Education at Cairo as a specialist in fundamental education. The Foreign Operations Administration is the agency which formerly directed activities of the "Point Four Program."

POLO BEING TAUGHT FOR CREDIT AT UK

University of Kentucky students are being taught how to play polo as one of several courses in horsemanship now included in the curriculum.

It came about when Kob Ryen, a Norwegian horseman lost his riding stables after the war and migrated with his family to Kentucky. He has been teaching horsemanship to UK students for several years, and last year for the first time the course in polo was inaugurated—and is proving very popular.

Mr. Ryen says, "we believe the University of Kentucky is the only school in the country which offers polo as a credit course. We have checked carefully. A few others play polo—but just for fun."

Dr. Sanders is completing an analysis of Greek rural life and plans to publish this work as a book.

A native of Millersburg, Ky., Dr. Sanders is a graduate of Washington and Lee University and holds the doctorate degree from Cornell. He taught at American College in Sofia, Bulgaria and served as its dean, and also taught at Alabama College before joining the UK faculty in 1940. Dr. Sanders has worked on assignments for the United States Department of Agriculture and Department of State.

Diogenes Allen Wins Rhodes Scholarship

Award to UK Grads Two Years In Row

For the second straight year a University of Kentucky graduate has been awarded a Rhodes Scholarship for two years' study at Oxford University in England. The current award winner is Diogenes Allen, of Lexington, a 1954, 22-year-old graduate student at Princeton University.

Upon graduation from the University last June young Allen was given the Sullivan Medallion by the University as the outstanding graduating man student in the 1954 class. He was graduated with high distinction, and received the Patterson Literary Society scholarship and the Brent Prize in American History. He was awarded a Princeton University national fellowship upon the completion of his undergraduate work at UK.

While an undergraduate he was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Omicron Delta Kappa, the Westminster Fellowship, YMCA, Eta Sigma Phi, an ancient language honorary; the Patterson Literary Society, the Pitkin Club and the Inter-Faith Council.

In 1952 he was sent on a missionary journey around the world by the Presbyterian Church of the United States, and in 1954 was chosen student delegate to the World Council of Churches in Evanston, Ill.

UK GRAD INVENTS NEW BASEBALL GAME

Frank Seale, 1933 graduate of UK and former Wildcat football center, has invented and marketed a baseball game called "Grandstand Manager," which, observers and players say, is one of the best sports games on the market.

Frank has been working on the game for about nine years, and many who have played it believe it is destined to provide a lot of entertainment for young and old and in-betweeners—and make money for its inventor.

The game already has been placed on sale in big stores in New York, Washington, Chicago, Columbus, Cincinnati and Louisville, as well as in Lexington and many smaller cities in the Lexington area.

John Day New CBS News Head

John F. "Sunny" Day, former managing editor of the Louisville Courier Journal and more recently assistant managing editor of the Newark, N. J., Star-Ledger, has resigned to accept the appointment as director of news for the Columbia Broadcasting System.

A native of Flemingsburg, Mr. Day, 41, was graduated from UK in 1935 with the A.B. degree in journalism. He began his career with the Lexington Leader in 1936.

It is Mr. Day's first position in radio and television news gathering.

He has held positions as rewrite man for the Cleveland Press, managing editor of the Dayton, Ohio Daily News, a correspondent for the Associated Press, and Washington correspondent for the Courier Journal before becoming managing editor of that paper.

Mr. Day is believed to be the only newspaper man ever awarded both Nieman and Reid foundation fellowships. He is the author of a non-fiction book, "Bloody Ground," which deals with eastern Kentucky mountain

His wife, the former Bettie Bosworth of Lexington, was graduated from the University of Kentucky in 1937.

UK BIOCHEMIST SPEEDS UP RESEARCH

Dr. Robert Griffith, '41, UK biochemist in the Agronomy Department, has discovered a quicker process in burley tobacco research which will enable Kentucky farmers to plant their 1956 burley crops with seed from varieties lower in nicotine.

The perfecting of the process that has revolutionized research aimed at cutting nicotine in burley plants is attributed directly to Dr. Griffith.

By reducing the nicotine content, researchers expect to produce a type that will be more desirable to cigarette manufacturers and increase the demand for burley.

Under Dr. Griffith's process, drops of tobacco extract taken from plants are placed on chemically treated filter paper. When this sheet is developed in other chemicals, the various amounts of nicotine appear red and amounts of non-nicotine appear orange.

He said strains could be developed with practically no trace of nicotine but the present experiment station project was aimed at cutting burley nicotine content about 25 per cent.

Dr. A. C. McFarlan Feted By His Boys

Dr. A. C. McFarlan, head of the University of Kentucky Department of Geology for 31 years, was honored by "His Boys" on the eve of the homecoming football game last November, at a dinner party at the Lafayette Hotel.

Approximately 100 of his former students and colleagues were on hand for the occasion, at which David M. Young, of Dante, Va., presided.

Included in the program was the presentation of gifts from alumni of the department. They included a silver service to Dr. and Mrs. McFarlan, a gold wrist watch for "Doctor Mac" and a book of letters from his boys.

President H. L. Donovan, Vice President Leo M. Chamberlain, Dean M. M. White, representatives of the profession and alumni of the department were among those paying tributes to the UK professor.

Alumni, The President, Coach And Fans

Festivities Draw Hundreds of Alums

Homecoming—that magic time each fall when former students of UK converge on the campus for fellowship, football and fun, reached its peak last November when hundreds of alumni returned to participate in the many festivities prior to and following the Kentucky-Vanderbilt football game.

The alumni program opened with registration at all of the hotels, the Student Union and the Coliseum, followed by the annual brunch from 11:30 to 1:30 in the ballroom of the Student Union; the football game on Stoll Field at two p.m., the traditional homecoming tea given by the President and Mrs. H. L. Donovan at Maxwell Place, following the game, and the alumni dance at 8:30 p.m. in the ballroom of the Lafayette hotel.

Special features of the day were: presentations of the "Alumnus of the Year" award to William H. Townsend, Lexington alumnus and attorney, between halves of the game; announcement that Miss Margaret Ford, Lexington, had been chosen homecoming queen; the decisive victory over Vanderbilt, and the special fraternity, sorority and residence hall decorations.

To say that the campus was "jumping" with excitement and gaiety, would be a fitting description of each event. Pictured here are groups of UK officials, alumni and friends snapped at the informal brunch in the Student Union, and at the dance that evening.

Cliff Hagan, '54, of Owensboro, Kentucky's sleek 'Cat and high-scoring All-American pivot man on the 1953-'54 team which was undefeated, was named the "most valuable player" in the annual college All-Star basketball game held in Chicago.

Cliff is now an Air Force lieutenant, assigned to Andrews Air Force Base, Washington, D. C.

Dr. Cecil C. Carpenter, '26, dean of the UK College of Commerce, has been appointed to the Kentucky School of Banking advisory committee.

Collier Named SEC "Coach of the Year"

By KEN KUHN
UK Sports Publicity Editor

Kentucky's "freshman" football mentor, Blanton Collier—a native Kentuckian who made the unique jump from high school coaching ranks to the pros—has added another illustrious chapter to his career by gaining Southeastern Conference "Coach of the Year" honors.

The popular Wildcat chief, who turned down attractive offers to leave Kentucky and whom the University rewarded for a successful season with a five-year extension of contract and salary adjustment, was given the "Coach of the Year" title by fellow coaches of the league in a poll conducted by The Nashville Banner.

Collier became only the second coach in the 19-year history of the Banner poll to be picked to join the exclusive company after his initial season as a head coach and was the first Kentucky football chief to be so honored. He received five votes for first, three seconds and two thirds for a total of 71 points in the balloting that saw his name appear on all nominations.

In guiding Kentucky to a surprisingly-successful, 7-3 season, Collier was considered to have done a tremendous job in molding a successful team despite big gaps left by the departure of All-America end Steve Meilinger, All-America guard Ray Correll and hard running fullback Ralph Paolone. Last year's five top ground gainers all had gone too and he met head on one of the conference's roughest schedules.

The 47-year-old Paris product was honored Jan. 31 at the Banner's annual "Banquet of Champions" in Nashville.

H. L. Woods, Jr., '26 Promoted by Armco

Henry L. Woods, Jr.

Henry Lee Woods, Jr., B.S.M.E. '26, formerly of Ashland, and former assistant to the president of Armco Steel Corporation, has been appointed director of sales planning for the company, according to an announcement from W. W. Sebald, president.

Mr. Woods, who had been assistant to the president of Armco since 1948, has had extensive experience in sales work both at the general offices of the company and in several regional offices.

In his new assignment he will assist L. T. Johnston, vice president in charge of sales, in planning, administering, and coordinating sales and marketing development programs.

Mr. Woods joined Armco in 1926, after graduating from the University of Kentucky as a mechanical engineer. He worked in various departments of Armco's east works plant at Middletown, and then spent a year in the home sales office.

During the period 1928 to 1938, he was a salesman in the New York and Detroit offices of the company. In 1939, he was made manager of the Cleveland district office.

Returning to Middletown in 1943, Woods was appointed assistant sales manager of the midwestern area. He became manager of the central area in

Work Of UK Scientist Is Featured On "Life" Cover

The December 3rd. issue of LIFE Magazine carried a color photograph on its cover, featuring the applied use of a new measuring apparatus called a contourometer, an invention of Dr. Karl O. Lange, associate director of the University of Kentucky Engineering Experiment Station.

The picture shows the contours of the head, in zebra-like stripes, and is the result of the development of the ideas of Dr. Lange and Dr. Merle Carter, a member of the Engineering School's faculty.

The machine actually was built at the Lange Instrument Company, an independent firm which the UK scientist operates in Lexington.

The Wright-Patterson Air Development Center awarded this company a contract to build the machine for use at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio. The equipment was sent to Wright Field last summer and has been used for head measurements ever since.

Dr. Lange said he could not explain its operation and function in detail due to security regulations. He said, however, the chief purpose of his invention, as it is being used by the Air Force, is to help scientists design masks for future airmen.

Dr. Adron Doran, native of Mayfield, Ky., and graduate of Murray State College, who holds the Doctor of Education degree from UK, is the new president of Morehead State College, Morehead, Ky.

Ky. Lawyers Set Up Scholarship Plan

A committee made up of attorneys from all sections of Kentucky met on the campus Nov. 20 for the purpose of establishing a scholarship program for law students at the University of Kentucky.

This state-wide committee is made up of more than 100 Kentucky lawyers, representing all of the 42 Kentucky judicial districts and most of the 120 counties. Under the proposed program, any Kentucky attorney may nominate a student for the new scholarships.

Chief qualifications to be considered will be the students' character, need and demonstrated ability. A committee made up of members of the state bar and one member of the UK Law School faculty will make the final selection of scholarship recipients.

Historical Society Head Is UK Grad

Dr. Bell Irvin Wiley, M.A. '29, formerly of Wilmore, nationally known authority on the Civil War and professor of history at Emory University, was elected president of the Southern Historical Association at a recent annual meeting of the association in Columbia, S. C. Dr. Wiley moved up from vice president to become president, and will preside over the meeting of the group next fall in Memphis.

The historian is the author of "The Plain People of the Confederacy," "The Life of Johnny Reb," "The Life of Billy Yank," and has contributed articles and book reviews to historical journals, the New York Times, and other publications. Dr. Wiley holds a Ph.D. from Yale, and was chairman of the historical department at Louisiana State University prior to going to Emory in 1949. He formerly taught at the University of Mississippi, Mississippi Southern College, and Asbury College.

Thoroughbred Finish Marks 'Cats First Season Under Blanton Collier

By KEN KUHN
UK Sports Publicity Editor

Finishing in the best traditions of the Bluegrass horse country with a stretch drive that saw them first under the wire seven times in their last eight starts, Kentucky's surprising Wildcat gridgers closed out with an amazingly-successful, 7-3 mark and for the second season in a row could make the dubious boast of being "the best team snubbed by the bowls."

Coach Blanton Collier's youthful charges, outmanned at almost every position in virtually every game and given a change in pre-season to finish no better than seventh in the Southeastern Conference, finished with an unexpectedly high standing in the national grid picture and were very much in the bowl picture right up to the last moment before final selections were announced. Kentucky not only posted a 5-2 record within the SEC, including upset victories over Ga. Tech and Auburn plus a triumph over arch-rival Tennessee, and finished in a second place tie in the standings, but they also were rated 18th nationally in the next to last Associated Press poll.

There was a lot of "bowl talk," mainly centering on the possibility of a Cotton Bowl bid, but for the second straight season it was apparent that the Wildcats were in the category of being too strong and dangerous for the Southwest Champion to pick as a desirable opponent. And the Sugar Bowl had its sights set on Ole Miss as the SEC representative, so the Wildcats were out in the cold again despite their terrific finish and colorful reputation.

Some laurels were forthcoming, however, as league coaches named Coach Collier as "Coach of the Year" in the Southeastern—marking only the second mentor to be so honored following his "freshman" campaign as a head coach and the first Kentucky grid chief in history to gain the distinction.

The climax to a never-say-die season, which saw the Wildcats molded as a successful unit in spite of the imperfections of the big gaps left by graduation and a schedule acknowledged as the league's toughest, came "south of the border" in Knoxville on Nov. 22 as the Kentucky lads firmly disposed of the traditional Tennessee "jinx" by beating the Vols on their home ground. It was the first time a UK football team had whipped Tennessee in Knoxville since 1924 and, coupled with the 1953 victory, signified two successive victories for the first time in nearly 30 years. The "Old Beer Barrel" never looked so bright and Kentucky players and fans, alike, looked forward to future games with new hope. The score, unimportant and insignificant in the eyes of joyful alumni and followers, was 14-13.

The Wildcats look back on the prosperous campaign with pride in the knowledge that they played the game well. High points on the extremely difficult trail, in the opinion of Coach Collier, were Kentucky's smashing triumph over Auburn and Ga. Tech—a pair of teams who later showed their national stature by wins

Collier Withdraws From Consideration By Rams

Kentucky Football Coach Blanton Collier said last December he had asked officially that his name be withdrawn from consideration for the Los Angeles Rams coaching vacancy.

He said he wired Ram President Dan Reeves to take his name off the list of prospects for the job.

Some unofficial sources had said Collier at one time was the No. 1 choice of the professional club.

Collier said:

"I am very happy with my present position at my home state university and I have always intended to live up to the letter of my contract despite

Coaches, Squad, Are Honored By UK Fans

A total of 550 alumni, faculty, students and fans honored the 1954 edition of the Wildcat varsity and freshman football squads and coaches at the annual alumni football banquet held last November 29th in the Student Union ballroom.

Dr. Lyman V. Ginger, dean of UK's College of Adult and Extension Education, a former Kentucky high school coach and long-time friend of Head Coach Blanton L. Collier, was the principal speaker.

N. W. Neel, of Henderson, president of the Alumni Association presided at the function which honored the seven senior members of the squad. They are: Dick Rushing, Co-Captains Joe Koch and Harry "Peté" Kirk; Neil Lowery, Larry Hennessey, Jack Hanley and Dick Mitchell.

Chief individual presentation of the evening was the awarding of the Samuel L. Huey, Jr., scholarship trophy to the team member holding the highest cumulative scholastic standing, Dick Mitchell, Somerset senior halfback was the recipient of the award, which was presented by Mr. Huey.

Coach Blanton L. Collier reviewed the season and paid tribute to his squad, and Co-Captain Joe Koch gave the invocation. The WHAS-TV award to the most valuable member of the team, announced the week before, was presented to Neil Lowery by Athletic Director B. A. Shively.

Gold watches were given to the graduating seniors by Mr. Shively from alumni and friends of the team, and the Alumni Association presented an electric coffeemaker to Coach Collier. Mr. Neel made the presentation.

A floor show was given by the Fayette County Recreation Department under the direction of John Gettler and John Jeter.

Elgan B. Farris, '28, the University of Kentucky's chief engineer, has been named president of the Southeastern Regional Association of Physical Plant Administrators of Universities and Colleges.

"Desire" Kids Keep On Top In Polls

No. 1 Spot Assigned To Basketball Cats

By KEN KUHN
UK Sports Publicity Editor

Before the current basketball campaign got underway, wise-cracking observers of the Kentucky cage dynasty were quipping "25 down and 24 to go."

This obvious reference to the Wildcats' almost unprecedented feat of forging a perfect season last year and having only 24 scheduled games to go in chalking up another in '55 was hardly even remembered as the Cats started out with winning ways this year. But after they had rocketed along in convincing fashion by polishing off the nation's number 2 team, Utah, and the defending NCAA Tournament champions, La Salle, in the University of Kentucky Invitational Tournament, people began to wonder where the defeat might come and maybe suspicioned cautiously that another undefeated season could be fashioned after all.

Everyone realized that this Kentucky cage unit was almost a "pickup" crowd—a team minus the "Big Three" of last season (Hagan, Ramsey and Tsiropoulos), a team with only one man who was a consistent regular last season and a team that would become known in the sports world as one "without a star." For the first time in the memory of many followers, Coach Adolph Rupp entered a season without an established offensive star in the fold to mold his racehorse-style fast break around.

However, the 1954-55 Kentucky basketballers reached the halfway point in the season with only a single, one-point defeat marring an otherwise perfect record; they had topped two of the country's best teams to win their own invitational tournament for the second year in a row; and they were not only ranked number one in all the national polls but were accorded a margin over competitors that matched or bettered that given many other top-flight Kentucky teams of past years.

Baron Rupp was not quite ready to put the stamp of greatness on the present Wildcat squad despite the great showing they have made record-wise and their superb desire to overcome the many obstacles that might have floored a less determined bunch before they even started.

"I have gone on record as saying I expected this team to pick up more than its share of honors before the shouting is over and I believe I said we could have a very fine team by the middle of January," Coach Rupp declared. "I'd have to stick to this prophecy. It would be difficult to call this team great or to compare them to our other good teams of the past at this point in the season, but I do believe we are a good ball club and will continue to improve as the season progresses."

At the halfway point in their difficult schedule, the Wildcats had racked up a surprisingly-successful 11-1 record and were gaining ground easily in increasing their domination of the Associated Press, United Press, International News Service and other national polls. Yet, in their own conference, they were not on top—thanks to the catastrophic, home-floor defeat by lowly Georgia Tech.

The Wildcats started off the season like a house afire to the surprise of many who foresaw trouble right off in the form of the opening game with arch-rival Louisiana State. But Kentucky whipped the Bayou Bengals, 74-58, to keep intact their record of never having lost to LSU in basketball. Setting a pattern that was to hold for the rest of the season, one starter stood out above all others. Phil (Cookie) Grawemeyer, 6-8 junior forward, bucketed 28 points.

In later games, other members of this "team without a star" stood out as the best of the night. Strangely, for a Kentucky team used to operating with one or two top individuals, no one man was consistently the star of each ball game.

In quick succession after the non-conference tilt with LSU, the Wildcats polished off Xavier (73-69) and Temple (79-61) as warmups for the second annual UKIT. The tournament looked like too big an obstacle to expect the Kentuckians to hurdle. Utah of the Skyline Conference, fast returning to their former national pre-eminence, had knocked off La Salle's NCAA champs a couple of nights before the tournament in a game at Madison Square Garden. The Utes were Kentucky's first night competition, according to the draw, and ranked number two in the nation. If through some miracle one got by Utah, then the foe in the way would be La Salle and the great Tom Gola.

Kentucky was up to the task, however, and startled the basketball world with successive-night conquests of Utah (70-65) and La Salle (63-54) that catapulted them into first place nationally—a position they did not relinquish after once gaining—and stamped them as the "darkhorse" team to beat for the 1955 National Championship.

As if in proof of the fact that their tournament success over classy opposition was no fluke, the Wildcats a few nights later met and subdued a good St. Louis team, 82-65, and then visited Philadelphia New Year's Day to wallop Temple in a return match, 101-69.

It was at this stage that most everybody was about ready to concede they had misjudged the rebuilding Wildcats. Who was to stop them from another undefeated season, many people asked. Most of the games remaining were with the comparative "weak sisters" of the Southeastern Conference and the experts foresaw trouble in this section only from glory-happy Johnny Dee's Alabama crew, but the Tide would have to meet Kentucky in Lexington where the Wildcats had gone 129 games and nearly 12 years without tasting defeat.

But somebody forgot to tell Coach Whack Hyder and his upstart Georgia Tech Engineers.

As one sportswriter wrote in summarizing the game of January 8, 1955: "This should require an affidavit, but 8,500 shocked witnesses will swear it's true: Georgia Tech 59, Kentucky 58. The lowly rated Engineers constructed one of the most unbelievable upsets in modern sports history when they edged the Wildcats here tonight with a basket in the last 12 seconds of play."

After the initial shock wore off of defeat by a team that could not win a conference game just a year ago, many people were inclined to think of the loss philosophically. But not the Wildcats and Coach Rupp who declared "a defeat never did any team any good and we're certainly never going to get beaten again just because in the Gator and Cotton Bowls, respectively.

With only seven seniors graduating off the '54 club and some promising material coming up from last year's yearling squad and returning from the service, Kentucky fans are looking anxiously to 1955 as another banner year with high hopes for as good or better a season than the great campaign of 1954.

Dr. E. N. Fergus, outstanding Kentucky agronomist and for 35 years a member of the faculty of UK's College of Agriculture and Home Economics, was named "Man of the Year" last November at a meeting of the Southern Seedsmen's Association in New Orleans. He is widely known for his work with grasses and legumes. He has been in charge of forage research at UK since 1936, and at present heads the crops section of the Agronomy Department.

we take an opponent lightly."

So a face-lifted Wildcat crew set out with new vengeance to conquer everything in sight. Two nights later they snapped out of the Georgia Tech nightmare with a startling 92-59 triumph over well-regarded DePaul.

Then the mid-season jitters overtook the youthful and inexperienced Wildcats. It could have been realization of the difficult time they could expect from future foes, who knew by Georgia Tech's example that the Kentuckians were no invincible myth, or it might have resulted from trying too hard. At any rate, a southern swing into Bayou country saw them eke out a couple of thrillers against Tulane (58-44) and LSU (64-62).

With this out of their system, the Wildcats visited Knoxville a week later. The Vols were surprising in their own right by being a contender for the SEC crown, but when the Wildcats got through with them they were out of the picture. The score, incidental as it was: 84-66.

At the halfway point, Kentucky's omnipresent champions were back at the same old stand doing business and it appeared likely that they would be hard to dispossess.

It was Sept. 18, 1954.

Construction work was beginning on a new road—a road that began in Lexington. It was to wind through the countryside and finally end in Knoxville, Tenn.

The date the road building began, from the Kentucky view it looked as though it was going to be a mighty rough proposition—all the way to Tennessee. And it appeared that it was going to be a mighty long road with work moving mightily, mighty slow.

At the start a bunch of Terrapins got in the way, slowing down work considerably.

Moving on a bit further, a band of Rebel raiders descended on the road crew to slow up the construction a bit more.

Creeping up on the crew and still further on was a big Tiger, right out of the bayou. But the crew ganged up on the Tiger, and the bewildered animal slunk back to the bayou.

The road dipped through some swampland where Gators lurked. The Gators were rough to handle and things weren't easy, the work again being slowed down.

Things looked bad, but the boss instilled some spurring influence and the crew went to work with a new will, cutting through forests and mountains of opposition, straightening out curves and rolling out hills.

There was one spot that the Engineers had blueprinted as a dangerous spot, certain to cause an inevitable Ramblin' Wreck. But the crew took it on their own to straighten out the curve and they doggedly moved on. A whole "passel" of Wildcats that had moved in from the Mainline couldn't slow down the now very determined crew.

The road came to a lake that Vander built, but a bridge was built right over the lake, much to the consternation of the inland Commodores who tried to stop the project.

Then came the only stretch that was expected to be smooth sailing.

It was Tiger territory, but work speeded up, winging through a valley floor toward a final Tennessee mountain that lay in the path to block the crew from the ultimate end.

Nearing that end, a group of Volunteer left-wingers—or possibly they were right-wingers—At any rate they were single-wingers of some sort that rose up to challenge the right of way of the road that had started out as a mere rough lane, hardly more than a pathway, but through sheer determination, plus a lot of ability and hard work, all under a genius-like guidance of a boss who knew what he was doing, the road was now being completed as a highway.

The Volunteers finally saw the light and admitted defeat, allowing all rights of way.

And so, on Nov. 20, 1954, the road was completed, winding up not as just a highway, but as a super highway.

The name of the road? Collier Highway. Named after the bossman himself.

The road crew? A bunch of students from the University of Kentucky that liked to play football.

At the start of the "roadbuilding" folks who felt they were in the know couldn't see how the kids were capable of building more than a couple of sections of the road that would have any semblance of smoothness. But others said, "Wait and see."

True, there are three slightly bumpy spots on the highway—but, all in all, what a road those guys built!

It's the pride of Kentucky!

And even Tennesseans have to admit it's a mighty good road.

WORK PROGRESSES ON NEW UK DORMITORY—Brick work has begun on the University of Kentucky's new residence hall for men. The $1,711,000 dormitory has been designed to house 365 students and to provide dining facilities for 1,200. It is being financed through a $1,400,000 loan from the federal government and an allocation of $311,000 by the Kentucky Property and Buildings Commission.

NEW HOME FOR UK GIRLS—Construction is under way on this modern residence hall for girls at the University of Kentucky, and it is expected to be ready for occupancy next fall. The $1,250,000 building is being financed through a $200,000 gift from the Keeneland Foundation, a $722,000 loan from the federal government, and the remainder from accumulated earnings in the UK plant fund. More than 300 women students will be housed in the four-story structure.
