Judicial board to decide King's fate Monday

By CAROLINE SHIVELY

The Student Government Association Iudicial Board heard an appeal of the disqualification of a candidate's election to the senate yesterday. However, the judicial board will not release an opinion until 9:30 a.m. Monday.

The SGA Elections Board unanimously voted to disqualify David King because he failed to turn in his expenditure forms by the 6 p.m.

cyndi Weaver, former SGA president, filed the appeal with the judicial board claiming the actions of the elections board were in conflict with the SGA constitution and by-

with the 303 cerebrates and the point of the election board's (argument) seems to be you can't allow candidates to ignore the rules, but our point is you can't allow the elections board to ignore the constitution," Weaver said.

Weaver said the constitution does not allow a candidate to be disqualified for a violation that did not affect the outcome of an election. She argued that the election rule on which the board made the decision mandates automatic disqualification of the candidate without regard to whether this failure had an impact on the election.

"The rule simply contradicts the constitution in two places," Weaver said.

said. The 6 p.m. deadline, Weaver said, also contradicts a provision in the SGA bylaws specifying 8 p.m. as the deadline. She said both the bylaws and the election rule contradict the constitution.

Elections board Chairperson Greg Watkins said: "The elections board was acting on the rules that were passed by the senate unanimously. We feel that we should uphold the rules, and that's what we were trying to do."

Weaver also said the elections board does not have the authority to declare an election invalid unless a written challenge is made by another student. Weaver claimed that no such challenge was made. "There isn't a written challenge," she said. "No one challenged David's election."

Watkins said Ted Supulski, elections board member, submitted a written challenge. However, he did not have the challenge to present to the judicial board.

Weaver also argued that the elections board was the challenge of present to the present to th

'Chorus' a strong production

THEATER REVIEW

By JULIA L. LAWSON

It wasn't just one but a col-laboration of talented perform-ers that made Lexington Musi-cal Theatre's production of A Chorus Line one worth seeing. Most of the actors have local experience in places like Ac-tors Guild or Syncopated, Inc. Although most of the actors/ dancers are still considered am-ateurs, the performance given was only interrupted by a few sour notes.

was only interrupted by a few sour notes.

With the direction of Homer Tracy, the show started off with a bang, but sadly enough, the final number was a fizzle. With strong performances by Alicia Jeanne Tighe (Sheila), Cyndi K. Powell (Val), and Raul Escudero Jr. (Paul), the show was bound to be successful. The dancers earned their titles as such but some were often inhibited.

Powell is not included in these. The girl has gust To be able to get up on stage and "shake her new maracas" in front of a room full of salivating men takes some self-confidence. With the constant mention of the line, "When am I going to get tits?" Val seemed to be obsessed with her new dowry.

the though that one was bound to get knocked off the stage often crossed my mind.

I hold a special place in my heart for the character Diana, played by Julie Myers. Her ethnic accent was outshined only her spunk. Diana is an intense character, and Myers pulled it off pleasantly. She made me believe that her feelings for Mr. Carp were about as strong as her love of publicspeaking.

With a little more work, A Chorus Line could have been a

Since being the opening night, it was more than likely that jitters were playing the main role.

James Lapine, who wrote the book and directed the play Sunday in the Park With George.

About Lapine, Patinkin says, "He has a great eye. His wife wrote the script. Their intent is to take historical truth and go behind a curtain to see what else about these lives has not been written down. You must not take it that every word is true. If you do, we give you at herapist's you do, we give you a therapist's number to call." In "True Colors," Patinkin plays a crook who comes to a bad end.

He didn't make them at the same time. "The only two I made backto-back were "The House on Carroll Street' and "The Princess Bride," he said. "I was flying between England and New York. It was exhaust-ing. I didn't want to turn either one down and tried to figure out a way to get them both.

"Music has changed that whole ballgame for me. In terms of films it gets hot and cold. Now a day doesn't go by that's wasted. I walk around the streets learning a song. I feel like I'm working."

The pianissimo, extraordinarily sweet high notes of Patinkin's voice are remarkable. He doesn't know whether he's singing falsetto or what his top note is. "I don't read music. I know what I'm feeling. I'll try anything, sometimes for the good and sometimes to the night-mare of us all. I have no idea what my range is. I don't want to know. People start to tell me — I put my hands over my ears."

Singing came naturally to Patinkin so he studied acting and at first didn't even audition for Broadway musicals. "Singing was like walking, something I always did. It was much more important to learn about being an actor," he said.

"I loved to sing and finally real ized there's nothing wrong with doing what you like to do." He has become better known for Broadway has for movie roles, primarily for two musicals, portraying the revolutionary Che in Andrew Lloyd Weby and the revolutionary Che in Andrew Lloyd Weby Che Fwita, for which he won a Topy and painter Georges Seurat in Stephen Sondheim's Sunday in the Park With George.

Patinkin s concerts contain a lot Gondheim. "You've got to listen to what Sondheim has to say in his music. He's equal to Shakespeare as far as I'm concerned. They're my two favoritie writers.

Patinkin is from Chicago, where he started singing in temple at 9. He acted in productions at the Young Men's Jewish Theater Center. He went to the University of Kansas for two years and the drama departs.

In the mid-1970s, Patinkin honed his acting craft at the off-Broadway Public Theater.

"Whenever I can, I go back. With New York City and the economics of the world, it's not so easy to take 12 weeks off and do a Shakespeare play that doesn't pay you any mon-ey.

Prosecutor says New Kids singer received no preferential treatment

By STEVE ROBRAHN
Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — A prosecutor said yesterday that New Kids on the Block singer Donnie Wahlberg got no special treatment in a plan for him to make public-service amnouncements instead of facing an arson charge.

Wahlberg, the lead singer and "bad boy" of the group, accepted an agreement to make the announcements instead of facing an arson charge.

Wahlberg, the lead singer and "bad boy" of the group, accepted an agreement, which will place with the standard of the standard was a fire safety and drugs during a rare night court session on Wednesday that was hastily announced.

"I kind of quarterbacked the thing and I know no special steps were taken," Jefferson County Automety Mike Conlife said yesterday.

"Hopefully, we can take a very negative thing and turn it into something positive."

The singer had been charged with first-degree arson following his arrest March 27 in connection with a hallway fire in Louisville's landmark Seelbach Hotel, where he was staying. The arson charge was reduced to misdemeanor criminal mischief under the agreement.

Authorities had alleged that the singer spilled vodka on the floor in the strength of the surface of the surf

Under the agreement, the charge will be dismissed after the announcements have been delivered, Conlife and Salem said. To qualify for the diversion program, defendants must be first offenders charged with non-violent crimes. Conlife said having the singer record public-service announcements made more sense than typical diversion assignments, such as spending 80 hours working in soup kitchen, because Wahlberg "has the ear of the many young people in this community and across the country."

Louisville Fire Chief Russell Sanders said he got "a real education" from the Wahlberg case. But he said he agreed with the decision to require the public-service announcements in lieu of prosecution.

My guest had the broiled chicken and shrimp ($13.75). It was about as boring as its name.

Topped with an aveloute sauce, the chicken breast and six large shrimp were bland. The shrimp especially were dry and tasteless.

The waiter offered us several desearch, but we were too full. Neither of us finished our meals. Our bill was $50. This was without an appetizer, salad or dessert.

The best thing about Del Frisco's was the siriloin strip.

The worst thing was the price. I give the food a 3, with the soup du jour and the broiled chicken and shrimp hurting the most. The food was not half as good as the prices suggested.

However, a useful and cost-saving aspect of the revocable trust is one that allows you to give up to $10,000 to as many persons as you wish annually to decrease the value of your estate and the gift tax paid on it when you die.

"The basic reason for use of an if-revocable life insurance trust is to keep the proceeds out of the estate of the insured and insured's spouse while affording the surviving spouse the enjoyment of benefits of the trust," Porter said.

He stressed that his real message to people is for them to take a comprehensive look at their estates. Nothing legal should be created like a trust — until they have consulted a lawyer or financial adviser.

"We saw an opportunity to com-bine the two needs when the frat got into difficulty," he said. "It's a very important statement to make at the heart of campus."
