

{The mantels worn here are all shapes & colors, all very small and every variety of trimming. They are worn very much by children.
Kemp called in her carriage to go with me to see Hattie Tucker but as she knew of my being here a week or two since, ~~and~~ has not yet called, she ^{Sabina} agreed to wait for me. We went however to return Miss Gover's call. She invited us to spend the evening with her, of which kindness we shall avail ourselves next week. Amanda and I went to hear Gough the great Temperance lecturer last evening. It was really an intellectual treat. He is certainly one of the most eloquent speakers I ever listened to. Last Sabbath went to hear Brother Burnet (as Amanda calls him) was very much pleased with him. As Ed says "he can preach a real good gospel sermon".
Ed went with us Wednesday evening to hear him lecture, but was disappointed, as one of the elders filled his place, although he was present. After the service, you would have been amused to have seen Brother Burnet and the elders flocking around Ed to shake hands with him. Mr Burnet has been to pay Amanda three or four pastoral visits.
I should not be surprised to see ^{him} round to call on me, as I am rather inclined to believe he thinks I am a sister Campbellite. We have had a very severe thunder & hail storm this evening. It has been oppressively warm most of the day, I was obliged to put on some of my summer clothing this afternoon. Tell Kate I shall be very much disappointed indeed if she does not come down. I know she would not regret taking the trip. I am looking for a letter from cousin Margaret every day. Give my love to all friends. I made Mary Ellene's apron in a day, I have the other apron and patchwork to make and then I am going to work a bookmark for Brother Mills. Good night Kinzie Yeatman was here last night on her way to Indianapolis. Your affectionate sister Lizzie
