DR. OTIS A. SINGLETARY
President, University of Kentucky

The University of Kentucky has become one of the major institutions of higher learning in the United States under the leadership of Dr. Otis Singletary, the eighth president of the University.

Dr. Singletary was named president of the University in August, 1969. He had previously served as executive vice-chancellor for academic affairs in the University of Texas System and director of the Job Corps program for the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Dr. Singletary, a native of Gulfport, Miss., holds degrees from Millsaps College and Louisiana State University.

As president of the principal institution of higher learning in the Commonwealth, Dr. Singletary is greatly concerned with the University's role as a land-grant institution, a "people's university" accessible to all who can profit from education.

In the nine years he has been president, the University has grown to where there are now more than 22,000 students on the Lexington campus and more than 17,000 students in UK's 13 community colleges, and the University has become one of the major research institutions in the country.

Recognition of his service to the University was evidenced by the UK Alumni Association, which presented to Dr. Singletary its Alumni Service Award—an honor rarely bestowed upon a non-alumnus of the University.

Dr. Singletary is the author of two books and several monographs.

A Navy veteran of World War II and the Korean Conflict, he is a commander in the U. S. Naval Reserve. He and Mrs. Singletary, the former Gloria Walton, have three children: Bonnie, Scot and Kendall.

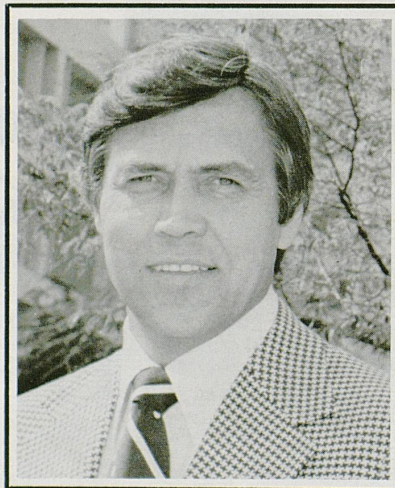

The Singletarys live at Maxwell Place, traditional home of UK presidents.

Athletics Department

CLIFFORD O. HAGAN
Director

Expansion of the football training room and addition of a beautiful player's lounge at Shively Sports Center, new carpeting in the stadium football offices, a new basketball office complex in Memorial Coliseum, re-arrangement of the baseball fences and a new surface for the running track are just a few of the recent improvements that signify the continuing progress of UK athletics since Cliff Hagan joined the Wildcat Staff seven years ago.

Recognized nationally as a progressive, business-oriented and promotion-minded administrator, Hagan has seen and overseen vast improvements in all phases of an ever-expanding operation that has encompassed 16 sports since the men's and women's programs were merged in July of last year.

The merger, under Hagan's direction, has been orderly, with office space re-modeled and in some cases created to make room for the women's coaching and administrative staff.

The indoctrination of Hagan into the UK athletics administrative structure came in 1972, when he was named assistant to Harry C. Lancaster and given the task of implementing the Blue & White Fund for 57,600-seat Commonwealth Stadium and later for Rupp Arena. The fruits of his labors in this area have provided the additional financial support that has elevated the UK athletics program into a first class operation.

Hagan was named Athletics Director in July 1975 following Lancaster's retirement.

Hagan also has been an advocate of a strong scholar-athlete program, feeling "a genuine commitment to provide all the academic support and encouragement we can to help our athletes leave our campus with a college education and a degree."

On the personal side, Hagan received one of his highest individual honors last May when he became the first University of Kentucky basketball player to be installed in the Naismith Memorial National Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, Mass.

He is married to the former Martha Milton of Owensboro. They have four children: Lisa, Laurie, Amy, and Kip.

FRANK HAM
Assistant Director of Athletics

FRANK HAM became Assistant Director of Athletics in July 1975 soon after Cliff Hagan succeeded Harry C. Lancaster as Director of Athletics.

A native of Scranton, Pa., Ham came to the University in 1969 as administrative Assistant to football coach John Ray, and was reassigned to the Athletic Director's staff in 1972 when Ray resigned.

Ham graduated from high school at Niles, Michigan, and completed his undergraduate work at Indiana University and coached high school football and track at John Adams High in South Bend in 1944-46 and then returned to Olivet as athletic director and head football and basketball coach.

In 1951, he became assistant to the president at Olivet, with responsibilities in public and alumni relations. He was in private business from 1954 until 1968.

SUE FEAMSTER
Assistant Director of Athletics

SUE FEAMSTER joined the athletics association July 1, 1978, with the merger of the men's and women's programs. Feamster had been the director of women's athletics prior to her appointment as assistant director of athletics.

A native of Frankfort, she came to the University as a graduate student in 1970, was named assistant director of campus recreation in 1972 and director of women's athletics in 1974.

Feamster graduated from Franklin County High School where she was an outstanding tennis player and athlete. While in college she earned letters in tennis, field hockey, basketball and track from Indiana University and Kentucky State University, where she earned her B.S. degree and graduated with honors.

LARRY IVY
Assistant Director of Athletics for Finance

Adding a new dimension to UK athletics was the appointment three years ago of LARRY IVY as Assistant Director of Athletics for Finance.

Ivy, who came to the University as Director of Housing in 1969, is involved primarily with the administration and management of financial aspects, and develops and initiates policies for accounting procedures and related business management activities of the department.

In addition to the Globetrotters tour in 1951, and the "Down Under" tour in 1974, he has helped conduct basketball clinics for the U. S. Game plan.

Success in basketball requires plenty of training, good coaching and team play. And it requires a game plan.

At McDonald's, our game plan is simple. We have the team to produce winners every season.

Winners like Quarter Pounder,[™] Big Mac,[™] Golden French Fries, and Triple Thick Shakes.

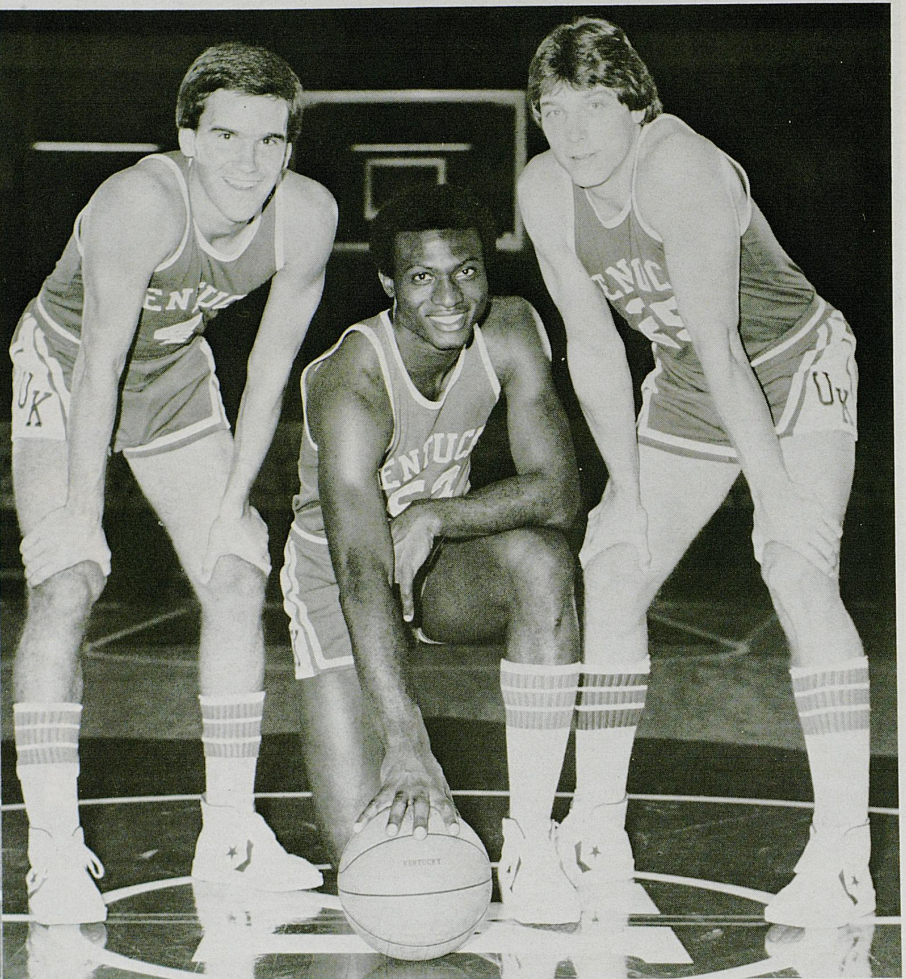

And our game plan includes careful handling. We never drop the ball when it comes to service. Prompt and courteous—whether you're home team or visitor.

So, before or after the next battle on the hardwood, include McDonald's in your game plan.

Nobody can do it like McDonald's can[™]

After 25 years of working as a secretary in the Kentucky basketball office, Jane Rollins still loves her work with the Wildcats.

By Lisa Becker

Jane Rollins leaned back casually in her chair amid the numerous blue and white Wildcat memorabilia in the Kentucky basketball office. One cannot help but notice the large color photograph of the team, hanging behind her desk. The photograph is also symbolic of a major portion of this dedicated person's life—Kentucky basketball. Blue carpet, a trophy case and basketballs here and there tell you where you are.

Ms. Rollins has served for 25 years as not only a dedicated secretary to UK basketball, but a personal friend of the late Adolph F. Rupp, coach Joe B. Hall and the entire basketball program.

Bernie Shively, who was athletic director, recommended she apply for it.

Initially she was afraid that she would not like the job since she was not an avid basketball fan. She also felt that perhaps she and Coach Rupp would not be compatible due to their having similar personalities.

However, that did not prove to be the case and she became an active ingredient in the program.

After being on the job for 25 years, she still finds her job interesting. She works daily with a variety of interesting and sometimes notable people who visit the office and faces a continuously changing collection of duties.

"She adds dignity and class..."

She is a woman who loves people and life which is why she has enjoyed the job for 25 years. If she could, she would probably continue to work at the job until 81.

Not only does she help the program through such duties as making appointments for the coaches, taking dictation and opening the mail, but the players help her stay young at heart and active.

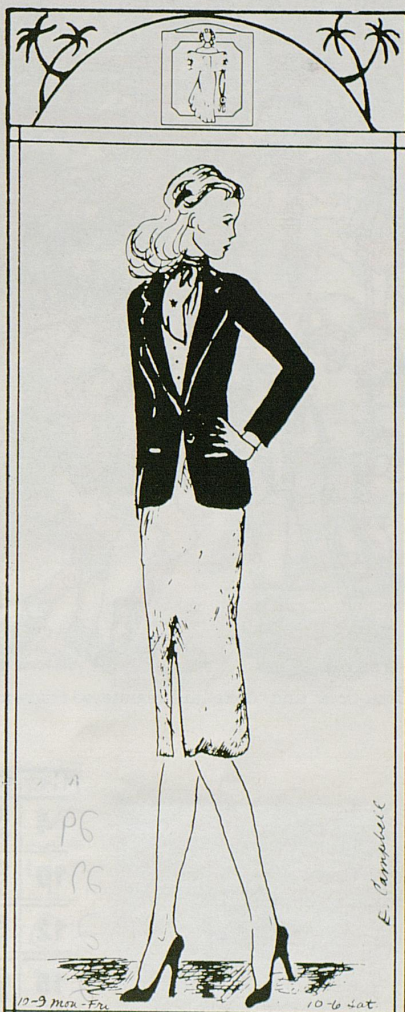

By having worked under Coach Rupp and now for Coach Hall, she is able to provide a view of how the program has changed over the past 25 years. She has watched the program expand tremendously and has witnessed two great men develop one of the most successful programs in the country.

Looking back at the years with Coach Rupp, she describes the Baron as an exceptionally keen wit, and a considerate and congenial employer.

Working under Coach Hall is different only in that the program has undergone considerable expansion. The traditions are the same but modern basketball programs are faster paced and therefore more demanding.

The personal satisfaction which she receives from working with UK Basketball is obvious. She likes her job and it shows in the proficiency with which she performs it.

In describing his feelings toward Ms. Rollins, Coach Hall goes further than referring to her as a secretary. "She was Coach Rupp's secretary and has been my administrative assistant since my becoming head coach. She adds dignity and class to the program and handles her duties with exceptional concern and loyalty."

The Last Time

Kentucky vs. Florida

The saying goes, "There's no place like home," and for most opponents of the Gators of the University of Florida, Alligator Alley has been one of the most dreaded places to play in the SEC. The Kentucky Wildcats, however, seem to have put aside all fear and the last time the teams met, left with happy memories of "the Alley," winning 76-63.

Leading 19-18 with eight minutes left in the opening half, the Wildcats, sparked by a Dirk Minniefield dunk, ran off 16 straight unanswered points enroute to a 35-18 lead with 2:37 remaining in the half. The Cats halftime lead was 39-24.

Kentucky, hitting on 57.4 percent from the field, was led in scoring by junior Freddie Cowan's 16 points. Kyle Macy added 11 points complimented by a game-high seven assists. Florida's Mike Milligan also contributed a like number of assists.

The Gators were led in scoring by Bob Van Noy who hit on 9-of-13 field goals and 3-of-5 free throws for 21 points.

Kentucky leads the series 42-11. Nine of the 11 losses have come in Florida or the SEC Tournament.

The University of Florida, located almost in the geographical center of the Sunshine State, is the largest and most diverse university in the southeast and is among the nation's 52 leading doctoral-granting research institutions.

Along with the University of Minnesota and Ohio State University, the University of Florida offers more academic disciplines on a single campus than any of the other universities in the nation. Its 32,500 students can select from more than 200 majors in 16 colleges and three schools and can be enrolled from freshman through post-doctoral programs. Graduate degrees are offered through the Graduate School in 110 programs, 56 of them leading to doctorate degrees.

The University of Florida received its present christening in 1906 when the state's fledgling land-grant agriculture school was moved from Lake City a few miles north of Gainesville and merged with other schools that traced their beginnings back to 1853. Until 1947, it had an all-male student body.

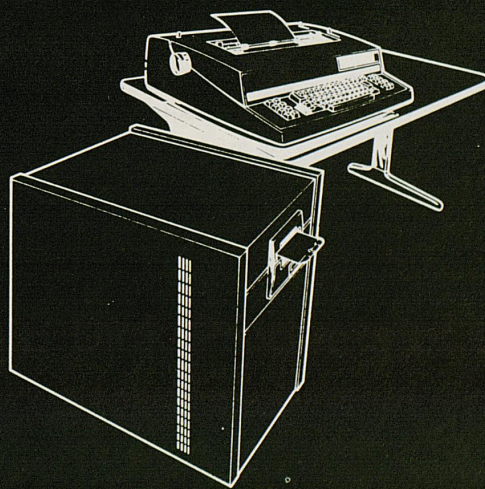

The University of Florida has grown into one of the most respected institutions in the nation in the areas of agricultural research and engineering, annually attracting more than $31 million in federal research funds.

Its research efforts have led the way in bringing Florida agriculture from an ability to do little more than provide for its own citizenry 50 years ago to one of the nation's principal agricultural states.

Florida is also extremely proud of its medical, law, and communications colleges and its degree programs in liberal arts and sciences, fine arts and physical education, health and recreation.

"It must be a Southwick."

It must be Leonard Cox

The trend to more traditional styles appeals most to those who are advanced in their taste, not necessarily in their years. Southwick's natural shoulder suit, "Dorset," is a classic example. There is an elegant, shaped line—a look achieved by a touch that is youthful and contemporary, yet one that hasn't varied a stitch in quality for half a century.

OUR PLAY LIST

You're looking at a wall containing over 10,000 record albums. It's the main source of music for the personalities who play the daily sounds of Double Q.

But it's not the only source. We present live concerts, too. From places like New Orleans and Los Angeles.

Sometimes our personalities bring in singles, albums, or tapes from their own collections and they're always getting the first advanced releases of the most important new rock and roll albums.

Of course, they play hits too. But the main thing that dictates what our personalities play is their unique sense of the energy, diversity and excitement of the music of our times. And a special sense of knowing just what you want to hear.

That goes for Kathie Stamps in the morning. For Gary Dickson and Terry Meiners at midday. For Kruser in the afternoon, and Tony Tolliver in the evening. And it goes for Ross Martin in the wee hours of the night. They're what makes Double Q different.

And why our listeners hear more new music, more old music, more of all kinds of music than any other listeners in Lexington.

Origin of Universe Lies in Ions

By Betty Tevis
UK Information Services

Amid a flurry of public programs on energy and radiation at the University of Kentucky this fall, two longtime UK nuclear hands, Marc McEllistrem and Fletcher Gabbard, quietly pursue on UK's nuclear accelerator their basic research into the atom.

Their work has practical—if somewhat distant—applications.

Inside the accelerator—a stubby, 60-foot concrete silo behind the UK Chemistry-Physics Building—these UK physicists produce ions that move so incredibly fast they are capable of penetrating to the atomic nucleus, or core, of the atoms.

In underground laboratories connected to the accelerator, the same fast particles are guided against various target materials—iron, oxygen, fission fragments—and cause them to explode.

“From the way target atoms disintegrate,” says McEllistrem, “we infer their formation.”

These UK physicists and their students probe nuclei formation processes that occurred near the beginning of the universe.

It is a primal work of the imagination: the collision and scattering of ions and atoms too small for the eye to see; in fact, the accelerated ion is 50,000 times smaller than an atom, explains McEllistrem.

Gabbard adds that work at the UK accelerator also provides an understanding of stellar evolution, especially of how the elements in stars were produced.

“We can calculate certain reaction rates that determine why the stars shine,” he continues.

At the same time, what is learned at UK contributes to the “design work of fission and fusion reactors” in the generation of energy. Basic research here, says Gabbard, helps in understanding the problems associated with the use of nuclear energy; for example, nuclear waste disposal.

And everything learned about the nucleus of the atom provides “information for the development and testing of theories of nuclear structure,” Gabbard adds.

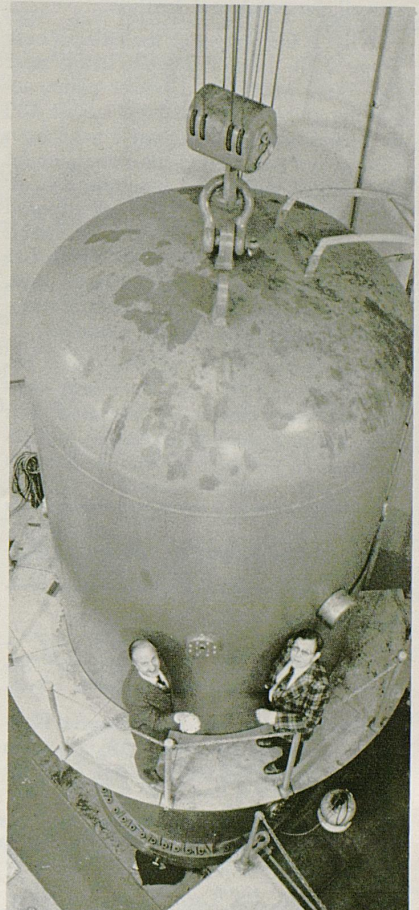

Kentucky presented the nuclear accelerator to UK in 1963; it cost $500,000 then. McEllistrem is principal investigator and Gabbard co-investigator on a current National Science Foundation (NSF) research grant of $100,000.

Fusion and fission release nuclear energy; that is, by combining or dividing pieces in the nucleus of the atom.

Fusion is thought to be the sun's power source; fusion powered the “H” bomb.

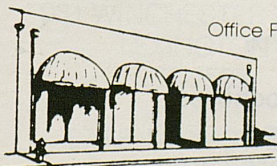

Fission, the simpler process, was the source of U. S. atomic tests in Nevada in the 1960s. And fission of heavy particles—uranium or plutonium—creates energy in today's nuclear power plants.

Nuclear energy is the most carefully-thought-out power source in history, Gabbard explains, and “there is consensus among nuclear scientists that it can be developed safely and economically.

"A lot of people made a lot of noise about the Three Mile Island nuclear accident," he says, "and it's important to have people concerned." Afterward, however, when attention is focused, rational approaches to nuclear power should then prevail, he points out further.

What is the danger to the citizens near Three Mile Island? People living near the Three Mile Island power plant, according to the scientists, get about 130 mr's (millirads) of radiation a year from natural sources. This is the same amount that people living in Lexington, Ky., or anywhere else in the U. S. are exposed to. The accident at Three Mile Island raised the radiation level to about 131 mr's for one year, McEllistrem says, based on the inquiry of a federally-sponsored consortium of health scientists.

Radiation's health effects—that between 130 and 131 mr's for a year—are so small they cannot be measured. But they are not negligible either, McEllistrem adds. The best estimate is that this increase in radiation may (a 50-50 chance) cost some one or two individuals 10 to 15 years of life.

Gabbard thinks the public outcry over the Three Mile Island incident results partly from the newness and unfamiliarity of nuclear power and its presumed connection with disease, notably cancer, as well as a certain "lack of trust of people with power" (utility companies).

While Gabbard believes a strong anti-intellectual reaction exists in "No Nukes" protests, McEllistrem spots "something reminiscent of the Vietnam protests" as the driving motive behind that outcry. He sees this as an expression of no confidence in the country's power structure.

To UK's nuclear researchers, nuclear energy remains neither mysterious nor threatening. They believe it is one more option for a future in which the world needs many more options on energy sources.

value & variety

You know the situation. It's time to decide on a place to eat. Family Battle #46. Everybody wants something different.

Your wife loves fried chicken. Junior doesn't. All he wants is a hamburger and fries, a hamburger and fries. You'd think he'd turn into a hamburger and fries. And your daughter? Crazy about fish. As for you, you only have one concern. That it doesn't cost you half a week's pay to eat dinner.

How do you make everybody happy? Come to Burger Queen. Delicious golden brown fried chicken for your wife, the chicken fan. A world of hamburgers for Junior. Hamburgers, cheeseburgers, Royal Burgers, Imperial Burgers. And for your daughter, Burger Queen's batter-dipped Fish 'N Chips or their new Complete Fish Dinner. They even serve breakfast in the morning. And everything at a price that will satisfy even you.

Value & Variety at Burger Queen. The answer to the family dinner dilemma.
