Active Membership Pays Dividends

We have been preaching the gospel of active membership in the Alumni Association for a long time now, and sometimes we have felt like a voice crying in the wilderness but the prophecy that "everything comes to him who waits" has been justified, and you who have stayed with the organization in the lean days and in the days of fulfillment have just now begun to reap your reward.

It has been pointed out in other columns of this issue of the KENTUCKY ALUMNUS that our long-time dream of an Alumni-Faculty House has come true! With the purchase by the Governor of the $1,850,000 Coldstream Farm in Fayette county and its presentation to the University for use as an experimental farm, there has come to the University a magnificent piece of land on which stands a fine, 22-room house which is being converted into a campus house for faculty and alumni.

Active members of the Alumni Association in Fayette, Bourbon, Scott, Madison, Woodford, Jessamine and Clark counties have been offered the opportunity to take out resident memberships in this house, with daily use of its facilities, and to the other active members of the Alumni Association, wherever they may be, will be extended the courtesies of the facilities when they are in Lexington.

You who have maintained an active interest in the Alumni Association through the years are reaping the reward of your stewardship, even though you have kept up your loyal association through completely unselfish motives. Those who have procrastinated are discovering that loyalty pays dividends.

This is our way of saying "thank you" for your support and interest, and our opportunity to extend to you a cordial invitation to make use of your "campus home" when you come to Lexington.

Dayton Matlick, Louisville, senior student at UK, was selected as the outstanding speaker appearing in the discussion division of the Rocky Mountain Speech Conference held last February at the University of Denver.

Charles E. Hayes, '46, has been promoted to the position of chief of the Corrective Therapy section, Veterans Administration Hospital, Lexington.

The University of Kentucky, for the third time in the last four years, was ranked first in the fraternity scholastic standings for the 1955-'56 school year. The rating included all state universities.

THE COVER . . .

Pictured on the cover of the May ALUMNUS are members of the Class of 1907 gathered in 1932 for their 25th reunion. They will be back this month for their Golden Jubilee celebration.

At the time of the reunion there were 70 living members of the class and 33 attended.

Dr. Frank D. Prindl, member of the University of Kentucky music faculty for the past 12 years, has received a two-year Department of State assignment as a cultural affairs officer with the U. S. Foreign Service. Following two months of orientation training in Washington, he will be assigned to a German-speaking country where he will be responsible for planning programs aimed at increasing the understanding of American culture in the assigned country.

IMPORTANT! Information For Alumni, Parents

New students planning to enter the University of Kentucky for the fall semester must submit an application to the Registrar's Office not later than Aug. 15, or by Jan. 2 for the spring term. The deadline was approved by the University Faculty, and will go into effect this year.

The new ruling also applies to students who have dropped out and wish to re-enter UK. The deadline system is not a new development, according to Registrar Robert Mills. Certain private institutions have had "cut-off" dates for years, and most public-supported schools are beginning to adopt the policy.

The system will enable the University to prepare housing and other facilities for the increasing number of students. The deadline also will encourage students to look ahead to decide in advance the field of study they want to pursue.

Reunions To Set New Attendance Record

Sixteen Classes To Return May 25

There will be "big doin's" on the University of Kentucky campus on May 25 when sixteen classes return to Alma Mater to celebrate reunions.

Headed by the 50-year class, the class of 1907, and the 25-year class, the class of 1932, these sixteen groups are planning a program of business and fun for their week-end return to UK.

Classes returning are: 1896 and 1897; 1907; 1912, celebrating its 45th anniversary; 1913, '14, '15, and '16; 1932; 1933, '34, '35 and 1951, '52, '53 and '54.

Alumni Day will open on Saturday, May 25 with registration from 10 to 12 noon in the Music Room of the Student Union, at which time refreshments will be served.

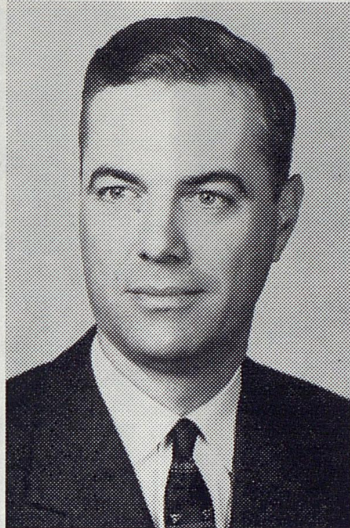

The annual picnic lunch for all alumni, reunion classes and faculty and staff members will be held this year at Coldstream Farm on the Newtown pike, the fine new farm which has been given to the University by the Governor and Commonwealth of Kentucky.

The residence on this beautiful farm is being transformed into an Alumni-Faculty House for the use of both University groups, and the picnic, to be held on the grounds near this fine residence, will give visitors an opportunity to see the house and become acquainted with the facilities available there.

The picnic is scheduled for 12:30 p.m. on May 25, and the Alumni Association is arranging for transportation to and from the picnic for those alumni who may come to reunions by public transportation. The price of the picnic luncheon will be $1.50, and the Alumni Office would appreciate it if all who plan to attend will fill in the form printed in this issue of the ALUMNUS, and let us know whether you will attend this function and the Alumni banquet that night, and how many guests you will have with you.

A public address system will be set up at the picnic, and the annual meeting of the Alumni Association will be held following lunch. It is urgently requested that as many alumni as may find it possible will attend this picnic

UK President Will Be Banquet Speaker

President Frank Graves Dickey, who took office last September as president of the University of Kentucky, will address the alumni at the Alumni Association's annual reunion banquet planned for Saturday night, May 25 at six p.m., in the ballroom of the Student Union.

Mrs. Dickey will hold the traditional President's Reception for alumni, seniors, their parents, faculty and friends at Maxwell Place, and the annual banquet of the Alumni Association will follow at six p.m. in the ballroom of the Student Union, with President Dickey as the speaker. Tickets for the banquet will be $2.50 each.

Features of the banquet program will be introduction of reunion classes, and presentation of testimonials of appreciation to all past presidents of the Alumni Association. The testimonials will be presented by Governor Albert B. Chandler, alumnus of the University and chairman of the Board of Trustees.

The baccalaureate services for the graduating class will be held Sunday afternoon at four o'clock in the Coliseum, to be followed by a reception in the Student Union ballroom.

Commencement exercises will be held Monday morning, May 27 at 10 a.m. in the Coliseum, at which time members of the 50-year class will be called to the platform to receive their Half-Century Club certificates.

Several classes are planning special parties in connection with Reunion Week-End, and information about these parties will be available at the reunion desks at the Music Room of the Student Union at ten o'clock Saturday morning.

Harrison Elliott, '46, Directs Two S. C. High School Bands

The Inman-Landrum "Band Of Gold," directed by Elliott, is one of South Carolina's finest high school bands. This band is one of South Carolina's few high school bands ever to be invited and to appear in The Cherry Blossom Parade (Washington, D. C.) and The Gator Bowl (Jacksonville, Fla.). The photo above was made recently after Elliott's "Band Of Gold" was selected one of the five South Carolina bands to march in the Miss America Boardwalk Parade at Atlantic City, N. J., next Sept. 3rd.

Elliott, a native of Pikeville, Ky., was graduated from the College of Education, University of Kentucky, in 1946. He played in the University of Kentucky "Best Band In Dixie" in the early 'thirties under directors "Bromo" Sulzer and John Lewis, Jr., and sang in the Men's Glee Club directed by Prof. C. A. Lampert. Elliott taught for six years in the schools of Pike and Floyd counties (Ky.) and one year at Ballard Memorial School at Louisville, after which he directed the Portsmouth (Ohio) high school band one year. Thence to South Carolina where he has been for the past 10 years. In South Carolina Mr. Elliott served as editor of the SOUTH CAROLINA MUSICIAN, official magazine of the S. C. Music Educators Assn., for eight years. Currently he is chairman of the Western (S.C.) District Festival area.

Mr. Elliott is married to the former Roberta Pack of Garrett, Ky. They have three daughters and a son.

Elliott's home address: 2 Brock St., P.O. Box 603, Inman, S. C.

Dr. Helen M. Reed, University of Kentucky coordinator of student teaching in secondary schools since 1948 has been elected second vice president of the National Association for Student Teaching. According to the association's by-laws, Miss Reed will be elevated to the presidency in 1959.

Alum, First Woman On Air Academy Staff

An Air Weather Service Waf forecaster will be the first woman to join the staff of the Air Force Academy in Colorado.

She is Capt. Naomi Mae McCracken, recently chosen by Air Force headquarters to serve as assistant registrar at the academy. She reported to the interim academy at Lowry Air Force Base, Colo., about April 15.

Until recently Captain McCracken has been serving with the 18th Weather squadron at Wiesbaden, Germany. She was the only Waf on duty with the Operation Safe Haven control team at Munich-Reim airport where the US Air Force was airlifting Hungarian refugees to the United States.

During World War II, Captain McCracken served as an aerographer's mate first class with the US Navy. Following her discharge in 1945, she attended New Mexico Highlands University at Las Vegas, from which she received the bachelor of arts degree in 1946.

Taking her master's degree from the University of Kentucky in 1948, she was registrar and admissions officer at Converse College in South Carolina until she accepted a first lieutenant's commission with the Air Force during the Korean conflict. She was in the first officer training class to follow World War II.

Captain McCracken is a graduate of meteorology training under the Air Force Institute of Technology at St. Louis, Mo. Her first assignment after graduation was in Wiesbaden, where she helped to forecast flight conditions for Air Force pilots in Germany.

The University of Kentucky's second semester enrollment—7,550 students—is the largest total enrollment ever recorded for the spring term. Officials announced. This figure includes 6,366 students taking regular work on the Lexington campus, 750 at the Northern Center in Covington, 158 in the College of Pharmacy at Louisville, and 306 enrolled in evening classes in Lexington.

Alums-Faculty To Use Coldstream Home

Residence Will Be Enjoyed Jointly

A long-time dream of alumni and faculty of the University is on the verge of coming true.

Early in the current year Governor A. B. Chandler, seeing the need of immediate expansion of the University onto the present Experiment Station Farm, purchased for the Commonwealth from Mr. Henry Knight, Fayette county land-owner and breeder, the $1,850,000 farm on the northern edge of Fayette county known as Coldstream Farm and gave it to the University for the purpose of experimental purposes, mainly in livestock breeding.

There is a 22-room residence on this farm and President Frank G. Dickey immediately appointed a committee of faculty and staff members to study and decide to what use this residence might best be put. This committee came up with the recommendation that the long-awaited Alumni-Faculty House might well be housed in this fine building.

Accepting the recommendations of the committee, President Dickey authorized the group to make plans for such usage, and invited the Alumni Association to join with the faculty in the project.

During March and April both faculty and staff members and active members of the alumni of the University living in Fayette and the adjoining counties of Clark, Jessamine, Bourbon, Woodford, Madison and Scott were extended the privilege to become active members of the Alumni-Faculty House with resident privileges, at the cost of $50.00 per year for a family membership and $25.00 per year for a single membership, plus a possible government tax required on such memberships.

At this writing the full returns on this membership campaign are not in but indications are that the total will be large enough to maintain such a facility for the use of faculty and alumni.

Mr. Henry Knight, from whom the property was purchased, has donated to the University 100 calves from his herd of Shorthorn cattle, with the stipulation that these calves be sold and the proceeds used to improve the Alumni-Faculty House.

A year ago Mr. James W. Carnahan, distinguished UK alumnus and president of the Lyons and Carnahan Publishing Co. of Chicago made a gift to the Alumni Association of $15,000 for the purpose of eventually erecting an Alumni-Faculty House, and at that time pledged to make an annual contribution to the project. Alumni officials are now in the process of contacting Mr. Carnahan to obtain his permission to use the original grant in the redecoration and furnishing of the house on Coldstream Farm.

On May 25 the annual Alumni Reunion Picnic will be held on Coldstream Farm, so that all reuniting alumni may have the opportunity to visit the house and see the facility.

IMPORTANT POSTS TO BE FILLED AT U. OF K.

Three important positions will need to be filled by the University of Kentucky in the near future.

Dean Elvis J. Stahr, Jr., dean of the College of Law has resigned to accept a position as vice chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh, and Dean Daniel V. Terrell of the College of Engineering and Dean Sarah B. Holmes, dean of women, are scheduled to accept a change of work status this summer.

President Frank G. Dickey has announced that persons both on and off the campus are being considered for the posts, and that he hoped that at least one new dean would be named at the April 2 meeting of the Board of Trustees.

Two other faculty-alumni members of the staff are scheduled to retire this year. They are Dr. H. H. Downing, professor of mathematics and J. S. Horine, professor of engineering drawing.

HELM IS BROKERS' ACCOUNT EXECUTIVE

Thornton M. Helm, '33, of Lexington, has been named account executive with Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Beane's Lexington offices.

Former secretary-treasurer of Bomanzi, Inc., men's clothing store in Lexington, Mr. Helm holds the B.S. degree in Commerce from UK.

He was with the leaf department of Liggett and Myers Tobacco Co., for 10 years as a tobacco buyer, and has been with Bomanzi's for the past seven years.

The new accountant is a member of the Optimist Club and the Cotillion Club. He is an elder in the Second Presbyterian church.

UK RECEIVES GRANT FOR SCIENCE STUDY

The University of Kentucky is the recipient of a $35,000 grant from the National Science Foundation for the purpose of conducting a Summer Institute in Science for elementary, secondary and college teachers and school administrators. UK President Frank G. Dickey announced that Dr. Erlan Ritchie, professor of physics at Centre College, will direct the 26-day study.

Approximately 100 persons will be selected for the program, and they will receive financial assistance to cover subsistence, tuition, travel and tours. In connection with the Institute the Foundation earlier awarded the State Department of Education $9,000 to finance five regional workshops in science teaching prior to the summer program at UK.

The general purpose of the overall program is to develop science instruction on the elementary, secondary and collegiate levels.

THREE ALUMNI OF THE UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY were among four Lexington citizens honored last February by the Lexington chapter of the National Council of Christians and Jews at its annual Brotherhood dinner. Pictured above with the honorees are: Dean M. M. White of the UK College of Arts and Sciences who presented the "brotherhood citations;" Dr. Ivan L. Bennett, speaker at the dinner and retired chief of U. S. Army chaplains, and the Lexingtonians who were honored: Miss Marguerite McLaughlin, '03, emeritus professor of journalism at UK representing the Catholic faith; Herschel Weil, '22, representing the Jewish faith; Mrs. Margaret Preston Johnston, '40, and Robert Horace Hogan, representing the Protestant faiths.

Law Dean Leaves UK To Be Pittsburgh Vice-Chancellor

Elvis J. Stahr, Jr., '36, among the youngest men in this country to head a Law School and one of the University's distinguished graduates, tendered his resignation to President Frank G. Dickey last February to accept the position of vice-chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh.

Dean Stahr has headed the UK Law School since 1948 and has been University provost for the past three years. Currently he is on leave from UK until July 1, serving as executive director of President Eisenhower's Committee on Education Beyond the High School. His resignation is effective at the termination of his leave.

Dean Stahr was 32 when named UK Law School dean, the youngest fully appointed dean of a law college in the country. He joined the faculty a year earlier as associate professor.

Born in 1916 in Hickman, Ky., Dean Stahr was a 1936 honor graduate from UK and was a Rhodes scholar, graduating from Oxford University in England. He was affiliated with a New York law firm and in World War II rose to the rank of lieutenant colonel in the Army.

The National Junior Chamber of Commerce named him among the country's 10 outstanding young men in 1948. He spent 17 months in 1951 and 1952 as consultant to the Secretary of the Army and held a similar post in the summer of 1953.

Dean Stahr, his wife, the former Dorothy Birkfield of New York City and their daughter Stephanie, will move to Pittsburgh in July.

The following is Dean Stahr's letter of resignation to President Dickey:

Washington, D. C.
February 25, 1957

President Frank G. Dickey,
University of Kentucky,
Lexington, Kentucky.

My dear President Dickey:

It is with a genuine emotional wrench that I submit my resignation as Dean and Professor of Law and Provost of the University.

As I told you recently, a particularly challenging assignment in another institution was offered me some time ago. I have deferred acting upon that offer not only because the thought of leaving Kentucky was hard to accept but also in order that my name might continue to be connected with the University of Kentucky as long as possible during my work as Executive Director of the President's Committee on Education Beyond the High School, which will continue until July 1. However, in fairness to the University and to the other institution involved, I feel that a decision should no longer be postponed.

As a native of Kentucky, an alumnus of the University, a member of the faculty for nearly ten years and of the administration for more than eight, I have very deep-rooted loyalties which make this decision a difficult one.

I have refused even to consider a number of opportunities to go to other institutions in the past several years, or to Government, business or professional jobs, but I feel that I cannot refuse this one. It will involve responsibility for eight professional schools in a major university which has exciting plans and great resources for the future. It will also involve an initial salary of $25,000 per year, a consideration which I am just not in a position to take lightly, particularly since I shall still be in the field of education, which I love.

It is particularly sad for me to contemplate leaving the splendid Law School and Law faculty at Kentucky. I shall always treasure many warm and close associations throughout the University faculty and Lexington community, and with the University alumni and the bar throughout the State. These have made my years at UK consistently happy ones. I have also enjoyed working with you personally for the past several years, and I know the University will continue to move forward under your leadership. I hope there will be many opportunities for me to serve our Uni-

Cain was employed by Armco's Columbus division in 1923, after graduating from the University of Kentucky with a degree in metallurgical engineering. He served two years as an inspector at the Armco Coal Mines at Nellis, W. Va., and became a time study man in 1925. In 1926, he was transferred to the Ashland, Ky., Works' production standards department.

In 1929, he moved to the company's Butler, Pa., Works as supervisor of production standards. In 1932 and 1933, he spent fifteen months in England on special assignment for Armco International Corporation. Old Kentucky Lives In New Havana, Cuba

by Lawrence S. Thompson, Director
University of Kentucky Libraries

Far removed from the noisy night spots of Havana's Calle Neptuno is a bit of old Kentucky in a suburb of Cuba's capital city. Isabel Pruna, '47, who learned her library science on the third floor of the King Library, is the director of a distinguished public library named for the two most famous sons of her two homes, Jose Marti of Cuba and Abraham Lincoln of Kentucky. The Biblioteca Publica Marti-Lincoln, located in Havana's beautiful Vedado, has become a major cultural force in Cuba during more than a decade of service under Miss Pruna's direction.

Founded in 1943 by the Instituto Cultural Cubano-Norteamericano to demonstrate the North American public library and its ideals of service, the Marti-Lincoln quickly earned a place

The occasion of his retirement from active teaching and his many contributions in the field of heat transfer are the incentives for the tribute.

Dr. McAdams' sister, Mrs. Anne McAdams Clemmons, an alumna of UK, is assistant professor of home economics here.

New UK Museum To Feature Kentucky Life

Dr. Hambleton Tapp
To Be Its Director

DR. HAMBLETON TAPP

A Museum of Kentucky Life and Labor has been established at the University of Kentucky. Dr. Hambleton Tapp, assistant to the president at UK for the past eight years, is director of the new museum.

In recommending formation of the museum, President Frank G. Dickey declared that "such museums help not only to attract many visitors, including elementary and secondary pupils, but add to the enrichment of the curriculum as well. For several reasons a need seems to exist here for a historical museum . . . emphasizing certain major phases of Kentucky life and labor."

According to President Dickey, the museum will strengthen relations between "gown and town" and, at the same time, have an important teaching function. Such a center also will make possible the collection and preservation of virtually priceless historical material that might be irreparably lost, he said.

Basic subjects already under consideration for inclusion in the museum's collections are Kentucky agriculture, transportation, coal mining, oil industry, business developments,

Plans Made To Enlarge Scope Of Moral, Spiritual Workshop

Plans have been completed to enlarge the scope of the University of Kentucky summer Workshop in Moral and Spiritual Values in Education, which is held annually in the College of Education, to include several College of Arts and Sciences courses in the field of religion.

Dr. James W. Gladden, associate professor of sociology and chairman of the University planning committee, announced that the theme of the new program will be "Home, Church and School Cooperating in Teaching Moral and Spiritual Values." Four courses will be added to the summer workshop—two four-week classes and two summer-long offerings. They are Philosophy 120 (Great Religions), English 127 (Literature of the Bible), Sociology 129 (Religion and Culture), and Sociology 109a (Sociology of the Family).

Arrangements have been made for a graduate student to be able to earn a maximum of nine semester hours. Students who prefer to take less than the maximum load may elect one or two courses. The summer schedule for these classes will make it possible for a student to combine, without conflict in hours, any set of offerings he may choose. Full-time students also have the option of auditing courses with permission of the instructor.

The various class and workshop groups will meet in general sessions weekly, and special dinners and other highlights have been planned through-evolution of dress, and period relics of pioneer and Civil War periods. University officials plan to explore the possibilities of eventually obtaining a building for the museum. At present, facilities at Coldstream Farm are being considered as a temporary location for the museum.

In addition to directing the new museum, Dr. Tapp will serve as assistant professor of history. During his period of service as assistant to the president, he also was director of the Placement Service and coordinator of the Summer Session.

The regular Workshop on Moral and Spiritual Values in Education will be held on the campus for the ninth consecutive year. In addition, nine extension classes of this type have been held in various parts of the state. The four-week program will be held from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. daily, beginning June 10 and ending July 5.

Lectures, discussion groups, consultants, films and committee work are planned for during the four weeks. The primary purposes of the workshop are:

To orient school and lay persons interested in public education to the problems and needs for teaching moral and spiritual values; to explore sound democratic policy pertaining to the problem — responsibility of public schools in the overall community; to develop basic concepts and principles pertinent to an effective program of emphasis in the schools; to review significant approach programs used by educators to provide appropriate illustrative efforts, and to develop plans for effective emphasis in the schools represented in the workshop.

Additional information regarding the summer program should be directed to Dr. Ellis Hartford, UK College of Education.

SEC Outlines New Recruiting Rules

UK Alumni Asked To Read, Cooperate

Bernie Moore, Southeastern Conference athletic commissioner, has sent a directive to all member-schools, outlining the recruiting rule passed this year at the conference meeting.

The rule says: "The traveling expenses of a prospective student athlete for any purpose shall not be furnished by a member institution or by anyone other than those on whom he is legally dependent, prior to the last day of classes of his junior year in high school."

Commissioner Moore states: "I wish to remind you that both the institution and prospective student may be penalized for violation of this rule—ineligibility for the prospect at that institution and a fine or other penalty for the institution."

He further states that since the new Constitution and By-Laws is in the process of being published, and will be distributed at a later date, this rule may have been violated, particularly by alumni and friends of the institution.

This information is being published at this time in the KENTUCKY ALUMNUS to prevent such violation by friends and alumni of the University of Kentucky.

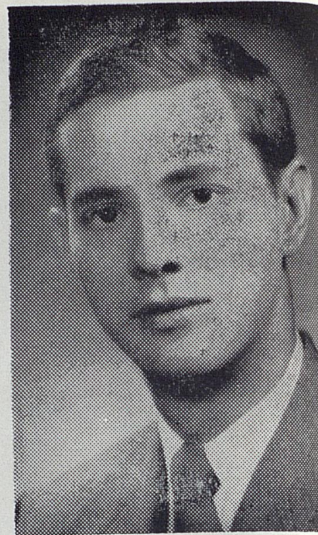

The University of Kentucky Press is the recipient of a $4,100 grant from the Ford Foundation which is to be used to stimulate the publication of scholarly books in the humanities and social sciences. Under terms of the grant, the University Press will be awarded the $4,100 for the current year, and will be eligible to receive similar amounts in each of four subsequent years.

Among stipulations of the gift is the requirement that the UK Press spend at least half of the funds on books written by scholars outside those academic institutions sharing in the Ford program.

The Little Kentucky Derby Week

SPONSORED BY STUDENT-ALUMNI

HOW IT BEGAN

Last year in April I met with the Student Government Association to talk about our alumni program. The group selected representatives from each college to help in setting up meetings for the purpose of informing the graduating seniors about the alumni program.

We had our meetings as had been the custom for several years, but these student representatives had a new idea. They said, "Let's do something to let everybody on the campus know about the alumni program—let's include the freshmen, sophomores and juniors." Someone said, "Why not have a Student-Alumni Club since we are all interested in the same things." Well, that was the beginning!

These wonderfully enthusiastic, hard-working students met each week for six weeks to discuss, to study and to create ideas that could be incorporated into a plan that would accomplish their purpose.

Faculty members and alumni were asked to contribute their ideas. Then Dr. L. L. Martin, Dean of Men, told us of a plan that had worked at the University of Indiana. They called it "The Little 500"—a bicycle race patterned after the famous Indianapolis Speedway Race, put on by the students at I.U.

Fundamentally, it did what the Student-Alumni Club wanted to do at U.K. It promoted a spirit, developed a loyalty, provided entertainment for all, and provided funds for a student scholarship program.

HOW IT DEVELOPED

In September, 1956, they elected officers, organized committees, and continued to push forward. After a number of visits with Mr. William S. Armstrong, director of the program at Indiana University, and meetings here on the campus with representatives of groups of students, faculty, administrative officers and alumni, we launched our program.

It was a natural—"The Little Kentucky Derby" patterned after the world-famous Kentucky Derby loved by millions, steeped in the history of the Bluegrass country of Kentucky, a colorful and exciting event where the best come to be tested to the finish.

Bicycles will replace thoroughbreds, the horse shows of roses will give way to a new theme, that of establishing and supporting a student scholarship program. What could be more fitting than that the event be held in Lexington, home of the Keeneland Race Course and center of the thoroughbred breeding industry.

The purpose of "The Little Kentucky Derby" is

1. To provide a colorful and exciting event for those who attend.
2. To unite the students, the faculty, the administration, the alumni, and friends of the University.
3. To establish and support a student scholarship program.
4. To supply aid for worthy students.
5. To develop a strong and loyal student body from which will emerge a strong, loyal and supporting alumni group.

Master Plan To Determine Appearance Of UK Campus

A contract for the development of a master campus plan for the University of Kentucky has been approved by the Board of Trustees. Hare and Hare, Kansas City, Mo., planning firm, was awarded the contract.

Under terms of the agreement, the planning work will be undertaken in two phases. For the first phase, the University will compile a map showing the location of existing buildings, roads, walks, trees, service areas, utility lines, and heating tunnels, and complete topographical information for the entire campus. This plan will be used as a basis for all future planning.

The University also will make a study of present teaching facilities and student enrollment, and will calculate expansion needs for ten or fifteen years to meet future enrollments in various departments.

Hare and Hare will prepare preliminary studies for the arrangement of future buildings, drives, walks, parking areas, etc., based on information provided by the University, and will draw up a master plan and report together with an estimate of the costs involved.

Under Phase II, the planning firm, if requested by the University, will prepare detail plans for the site development of new buildings recommended in the master plan at the time such buildings are being planned. This planning, done in collaboration with the architect employed by the University, would determine the exact location of each new building, grading and planting, and location of walks, drives, and parking.

Phase I is to be completed by next fall. Preliminary work is under way on the project.

William Swinford, '47, of Lexington, has been elected president of the Fayette County Bar Association.

Ray Fulton Is Hero On "The Big Story"

Ray Fulton, '49, a former managing editor of the Kentucky Kernel and now a reporter on the Sharon, Pa., Herald, was the hero last January of a national TV program, "The Big Story."

The drama told the story of Fulton's help as a Sharon Herald reporter, in gaining the acquittal of an innocent man charged with robbing at gunpoint, the Warren National Bank of $11,000. The name of the play was "Face Of The Thief."

The University of Kentucky Department of Agricultural Engineering organized last semester under the rectorship of the Colleges of Engineering and Agriculture and Home Economics, began a full program in agricultural engineering this semester.

Producers of "The Big Story" cited Fulton's handling of the case for its dramatic elements and because of the significant role of the Herald's staff in establishing the innocence of the accused man.

After his UK graduation, Fulton worked as a Lexington Herald reporter. He later went to the Herald Daily Enterprise. He joined the Sharon newspaper staff in December, 1948, after service in the Navy.

A native of Pennsylvania, he is married to the former Miss Wilma T. of Lexington. They have a son, Jr.

Ashland, Harlan Want UK Centers

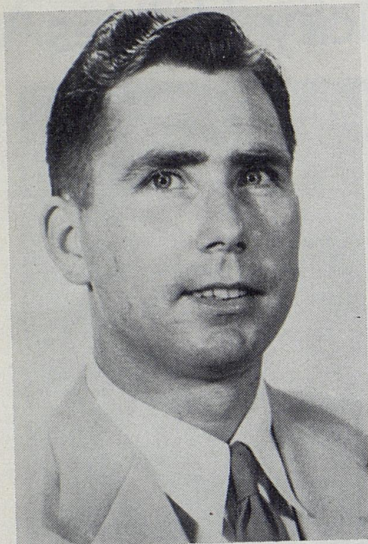

A proposal to convert Ashland Junior College to a branch of the University of Kentucky was discussed last January when members of the Ashland Junior College board met with President Frank G. Dickey and officials of the University.

The Ashland Junior College board members said the college needs a broader engineering program to meet expanding industrial needs.

In March a delegation from Harlan county called at Governor A. B. Chandler's office to ask the state to help in a drive to obtain a junior college or University of Kentucky Extension Center in Harlan. The group visited with President Dickey on their way to Frankfort. The Harlan group said International Harvester Company was prepared to offer without obligation a large tract of land, worth $50,000 to $75,000 as the site of a school in Harlan county.

Alumni Honor Fighting Wildcats

Basketball 'Cats Hear Ecton Speak

The 1956-57 edition of the varsity and freshmen basketball teams and their coaches were honored guests at the Alumni Association's annual basketball banquet last March 25 in the Student Union ballroom.

Penrose T. Ecton, '29, Lexington businessman and well-known public speaker, gave the address.

Although more than 300 players, faculty members, students and fans attended the affair, a touch of sadness was prevalent in the remarks of each program participant, because of the death and burial the preceding week-end of Mrs. Billie Beck, wife of Kentucky's junior center, who had been suffering for the past 18 months with Hodgkins disease.

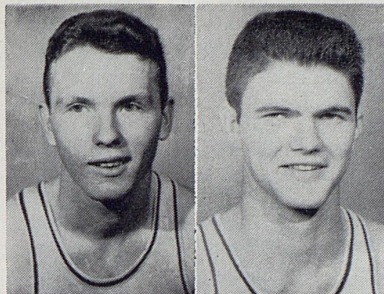

Coach Rupp, who, with Athletic Director B. S. Shively, the banquet's toastmaster, had just returned from Mrs. Beck's funeral services in Ft. Valley, Ga., prefaced his remarks by asserting "no one would buy much stock in me as a sentimentalist," but declared that Kentucky's basketball success last season could be credited greatly to "a little girl down in Georgia."

Beck was absent from the banquet, as was Gerry Calvert, little red-headed senior guard, but this did not prevent their receiving the two fine trophies which are handed out annually at the affair.

Beck was the recipient of the Radio Station WVLK trophy for sportsmanship, leadership and athletic ability, which the station gives annually in honor of Governor Albert Benjamin Chandler, and the Governor was at the banquet to make the presentation.

Calvert was the recipient of the Jerome Lederer trophy given each year to the team member voted "most valuable" by his teammates. Mr. Shively made that presentation in the absence of Mr. Lederer, Lexington businessman who was out of town. The team also voted the selection of Beck and Calvert as honorary co-captains for the season.

President Frank G. Dickey and

GERRY CALVERT ED BECK

Freshman Coach Harry C. Lancaster made brief talks and Coach Lancaster introduced the undefeated freshman team and announced the numeral winners. Mr. Shively announced the lettermen who had been recommended for "K's" by Coach Rupp.

Vernon Hatton, Lexington, junior guard on the team, gave the invocation and Mr. Shively presented the graduating seniors, Calvert, John Brewer, Ray Mills and Manager Ken Lehkamp with watches as gifts of alumni and friends.

Calvert's absence from the banquet was necessitated because he was playing that night on the East All-Star team in Kansas City for the benefit of the Shrine.

'57 Wildcats Enjoy Phenominal Success

by Ken Kuhn
Sports Publicity Director

Adolph Rupp, the colorful baron of basketball at Kentucky whose amazing success story in 27 seasons with the Wildcats would fill a book, can't help smiling a bit while shaking his head in amazement at the feats of the 1956-57 Kentuckians.

The smile isn't born of smugness at the Wildcats' record of ranking as the nation's third best team at season's end. True enough, he had reason to smile at their accomplishments in gaining an unprecedented 17th Southeastern Conference championship, taking titles in two regular season tournaments—the U.K. Invitational and Sugar Bowl, and coming close to picking up a fourth national title in a record ninth appearance in the NCAA Tournament. The 23-5 record should bring smiles to any coach's countenance.

However, the veteran coach's smile and head shaking is brought about as he reflects on his pre-season estimate that put on record his fears that "this could possibly be the weakest Kentucky team in the past 15 years."

Although he has posted an amazing winning average of better than 85 percent during his 27 years at Kentucky, Rupp rarely has resorted to "playing the team down" to gain the underdog role coveted by members of his profession. He honestly believed at the time, and swears he would repeat the statement anytime on the same evidence, that the problems were so sizeable that the 1956-57 campaign would have to be spent in re-building. And he envisioned a record even poorer than the 20-6 mark posted the season before to rank as the worst won-lost percentage since 1943.

Were Not Favorites

Opposing coaches and veteran news-men lent support to Rupp's beliefs as they failed for the first time in the memory of many observers to establish Kentucky as the pre-season favorite to win the Southeastern title.

Briefly, the problems that confronted Rupp at the outset revolved around the graduation of three tall and talented regulars along with the scholastic ineligibility of a fourth man who was being counted on to step in as a starter. Furthermore, only one sophomore of any consequence—6-4 forward Johnny Cox—came up from the freshman ranks.

The story of how Kentucky overcame its pre-season personnel problems without the help of a single man good enough to make All-America and seemingly thrived on further adversity that dogged them throughout the season is told in one word: "Desire." Or call it "pride in a winning tradition."

With a comparatively young and inexperienced team that boasted no one great scoring star to carry the load, the Wildcats posted a record in the first month of the season that amazed not only their coach but also the entire country. Relying on blistering speed that many opposing coaches deemed to be the fastest fast break in history, the Ruppmen raced through 10 games against top-flight competition with only a pair of one-point setbacks at the hands of St. Louis and Duke to mar an outstanding achievement.

Season's Peak

High spot of the period came as they shocked the nation in upsetting previously undefeated powerhouse Southern Methodist and Illinois on successive nights to cop the title in their own U.K. Invitational Tournament and followed up with a clean sweep to the championship of the Sugar Bowl Tournament for the fourth time.

Swinging into the conference campaign after the new year without the services of All-America candidate Vernon Hatton, stellar guard who was sidelined after the Sugar Bowl with an emergency appendectomy, Kentucky found the going rougher than it had ever been. The time was when their fellow habitues of the Dixie loop would simply roll over and play dead when a game with the Wildcats was on tap. But, just as Baron Rupp had been predicting for years, Southern basketball is on the upswing and the opposition encountered by Kentucky in its own backyard this season was the toughest ever. Even though they went into virtually every game as the favorite and lost only twice—eight point decisions to Tulane and Mississippi State—victory did not come easy.

Many "know-it-alls" figured Uncle Adolph had pulled a fast one and would be a shoo-in favorite to get to the national finals when the Midwest Regional of the NCAA Tournament was played on Kentucky's home floor in mid-March. However, they failed to realize that Coach Rupp had nothing to say about where the tour-namment was to be played—the NCAA picked the site a year ago—and reckoned without the possibility of fate intervening when they predicted UK would waltz through the regional play in Memorial Coliseum.

Pittsburgh, an At-Large pick with only a mediocre record, provided the first night opposition for the Wildcats and went down to eventual defeat just like the book said except that the 98-92 final score was a little too close for comfort. With what many thought a bad game out of their systems, the Ruppmen tackled powerful Big 10 champ Michigan State in the regional title bout.

Lose To Mich. State

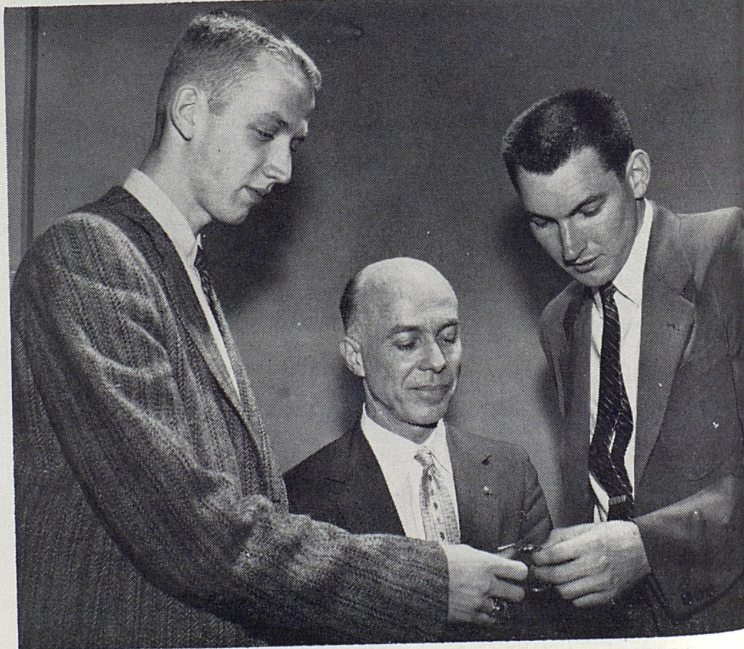

Exactly what happened in that contest, few experts or fans professed to know. The final score was 80-68 in the Spartans' favor, but that matter of the fifth defeat at home for Kentucky since 1943 hardly revealed the story of the game. Admittedly still off form, the Wildcats nevertheless had established a comfortable working margin of a 12-point lead at halftime in the championship contest and seemed to be home free midway of the final period when State's sensational Negro center John Green fouled out. However, UK's Cox soon followed and, coupled with poor success on their shots, the end result saw the halftime lead disappear as they were outscored 24 points in the final 10 minutes—probably the first time this has happened to a Wildcat team in 10 years or more.

The Wildcats sorely missed the height and scoring-rebounding punch of their graduated regulars. Only center Ed Beck, at 6-7, had the height considered necessary to make the modern-day team go and his effectiveness was impaired all season long by the knowledge that his wife lay seriously ill in a Georgia hospital. As a substitute for what he lacked in height, Coach Rupp utilized speed and instilled a burning desire to win.

He used no less than six different opening lineup combinations in a successful attempt to get the most of the material available and keep his charges from losing their poise in the tight games. With Hatton out of action for a month in mid-season and never completely up to par again,

Reynolds Gets High Award For Service

H. LESTER REYNOLDS

H. Lester Reynolds, BS.C.E. '39, of Lake Bluff, Ill., has received the highest combination award ever given an employee of the District Public Works office at Great Lakes, where he is director of the Utilities division.

Mr. Reynolds received the Meritorious Civilian Service award, which is the second highest honorary award given for civilian service. The award was due partially to his direction of the Navy's Utility Procurement program for the Ninth Naval District, consisting of 13 north central states. He has managed this work in a way which has saved the taxpayers one and one-half million dollars during the past seven years.

He was given a lapel pin, a certificate and a cash award for outstanding work performance during a rating period that ended on April 1, 1956. This is his second award of this type.

Mr. Reynolds completed 20 years of Federal Civil Service last March and was nominated for the "Civil Servant of the Year" by the District Public Works Office. Nominees of all government agencies in the Chicago area will be reviewed and the outstanding "Civil Servant of the Year" was to be selected in April.

Prior to his Navy employment he was sophomore forward Cox who paced the Cats in scoring with a 19.4 average as they outscored the opposition by an average margin of 15 points.

Top Sophomore

Johnny was widely recognized as one of the top sophomores in the Southeastern and named to every All-SEC team picked by the press and coaches as well as getting considerable attention from the All-America selectors. The United Press put Cox on the third team and classed him with Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain as one of the nation's top sophs.

Just how far this ball club could have gone had they not had the bad night against State is difficult to say. Many coaches watching Kansas and North Carolina in the national championship game openly declared their belief that "Adolph's team, when they are right, could beat either one of these clubs."

About the only thing certain is that the "maker of champions," Coach Rupp, and his able assistant, Harry Lancaster, produced one of the greatest coaching efforts in a long time in bringing the 1957 Kentucky team to the enviable position it occupied.

KIRWAN BOOK NAMED TO COMMITTEE LIST

A book edited by Dr. A. B. Kirwan, '26, professor of history at the University of Kentucky, has been selected by the Southern Books Committee of the Southeastern Library Association as one of 25 southern books of the year.

The book was published by the UK Press and is entitled, "Johnny Green."

Twenty-three southern publishers and printers submitted about 80 of their best books for the competition, and 17 were represented on the select list. Selections were based on excellence of design and format, with content being considered only insofar as the design reflected the subject.

One of the four books placed in the top 25 by the University of Oklahoma Press was "Travels in the Old South," a series edited by Dr. Thomas D. Clark, '29, head of the UK department of history.

USAF GIVES $14,451 TO AERONAUTICS LAB

The United States Air Force has selected the UK Aeronautical Research Laboratory for another series of oil tests for aircraft engines under a new research contract made public last February.

The present contract for $14,451 brings the total cost of aircraft lubricant research in the laboratory to nearly $100,000. Engineers will expand research operations which were begun four years ago.

The grant will be administered by the Kentucky Research Foundation through the Engineering Experiment Station.

Dr. Karl Lange, who directs operation of the laboratory, said that the new assignment is a part of the Air Force's constant search to develop more efficient oils to use in U. S. aircraft.

Dr. H. Alex Romanowitz, head of UK's department of electrical engineering, is the author of a trilogy of books on electronics which were released last January 8. The series includes a textbook, a laboratory manual and an instructor's handbook.

Lefler To Direct Atomic Energy Division

JULIAN T. LEFLER

Julian T. Lefler has been promoted to Director of the Engineering and Construction Division of the Atomic Energy Commission's Albuquerque Operations.

Mr. Lefler, formerly chief of the Division's Engineering Branch, has moved to the position vacated by the death last December of the former director, Henry L. Johnson.

Ralph P. Johnson, ALO Assistant Manager for Engineering, Construction, and Test Operations, said Mr. Lefler will direct the engineering phases of project planning and site selection, construction real estate, and community and camp management and operation. He also will supervise related planning, budgeting, design, and contract administration matters.

Born in Maysville, Ky., Mr. Lefler was educated there and at the University of Kentucky's College of Engineering (B.S. in Engineering, 1936, and Graduate Study in Telephone Engineering). He entered Federal service in 1937 with the Bureau of Indian Affairs, and became Chief of the Utilities Branch of the Bureau's Window Rock (Arizona) Area Office. He moved with his office to Albuquerque in 1950, and in April 1952 transferred to the Atomic Energy Commission as chief of the Communications Branch in the Albuquerque Operations office. He was promoted to chief of the Engineering Branch in July 1955.

UK MEDICAL CENTER IS AWARDED GRANT

The University of Kentucky's long-range planning program for the new Medical Center received a boost recently with the awarding of a $73,400 grant by the Commonwealth Foundation. A series of planning surveys will be made possible through the grant, according to UK President Frank Dickey.

University officials explained that the $73,400 cannot be used for positions considered essential to the administration and operation of the Medical Center program, but can be used to employ supplementary staff members for planning studies.

Included in the surveys will be studies on patient care, health service needs, and sociological factors related to health and the patterns of response to illness. In addition, a portion of the grant will assist in planning programs for dentistry and nursing in the University's Medical Center.

Miss Pruna and the Marti-Lincoln. The shelves were even more crowded than those of the King Library, and the reading rooms were jammed to the limit. However there was an atmosphere of creative activity, of eagerness for books, that would be a credit to the most effective library administration anywhere. And all of it is the work of one dedicated Cuban woman who inherited Jose Marti's devotion to books and learned to put it to practical use from her studies in Lexington.

Last winter the Marti-Lincoln moved into spacious new quarters, a fitting tribute to the life work of Isabel Pruna in building a great public library. Here the finest cultural traditions of two great commonwealths, Cuba and Kentucky, are brought together in an institution that is generally recognized as one of Cuba's leading public libraries and cultural centers.

THE U. K. ALUMNI FUND FOR 1956-57

If you were one of the Five Thousand who contributed $5.00 or more to the Alumni Fund in 1956-57, ~~this is~~ what your money did—You maintained an Alumni Program which rendered the following service ~~to the~~ Alumni and to the University:

Sent folders, bulletins, and other communiques to the 25,000 alumni for whom we have names and current addresses, regarding matters of importance to the alumni.

Mailed the Kentucky Alumnus quarterly to all active alumni—carrying the summary of important events at the University, personal accomplishments of the students, the faculty and the alumni.

Maintained a bureau of records on former students—containing data which is clipped from news publications or obtained through personal contact with alumni.

Made visits to as many alumni clubs, both in Kentucky and out-of-state, as time and funds would permit.

Made arrangements at commencement time for class reunions, held open house for returning alumni and graduating seniors, put on the annual alumni banquet.

Welcomed alumni at Homecoming game and gave a Homecoming luncheon and dance.

Sent out ballots in order that alumni could have a voice in selecting members for the Board of Trustees and officers of the Alumni Association.

Maintained a most important contact between the public and the University through this alumni program.

Served as your representative organization in matters pertaining to the alumni at the University. The University looks to you for strength, for support, and for constructive contributions to its program.

ALUMNI SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM—Many of our alumni made an additional contribution to the Alumni Scholarship Fund for 1956-57. This $2800 scholarship is regarded by the University as the best scholarship of its kind awarded to high school seniors. Your continued support is very necessary. The Alumni Office sent out information folders and application forms pertaining to this scholarship, and accepted more than 200 applications for this year's award.

ALUMNI-FACULTY HOUSE—In 1956-57 Mr. J. W. Carnahan made a contribution to this fund of $15,000. This year alumni contributions amounted to approximately $2,000 additional. Although the total fund does not amount to a great deal of money at this time it has been a stimulus which created much interest among University officials and faculty members. This was one of the important factors in the University's decision to offer the $250,000 home loan on the newly-purchased Coldstream farm to the alumni and faculty for their

The U. K. Alumni Fund For 1957-'58 Depends On You

ATTITUDES ABOUT GIVING

There's the one who always gives, "What I gave last year," without regard for circumstances.

There's the one who sends the same nominal amount to any appeal, regardless of his ability to give, or the relative merits of the organization.

There's the one who gives nothing, reasoning, "My few dollars won't help."

Finally, there's the alumnus who estimates what his total giving should be and allots the University of Kentucky its proportionate share.

ANNUAL GIVING IS IMPORTANT

Annual Giving by the alumni is important. The Alumni Fund is not a capital gifts program, but there is no other type of gift as important as those made by the alumni. Alumni giving sets the pace. If the University's graduates have a generous giving attitude toward the school, the contributions from corporations, foundations, and individuals of means will follow.

This is why Annual Giving is essential, why every dollar given counts in a large way, why there is no substitute for alumni support.
