Dr. Scherago Receives $51,176 Research Grant

Two research grants totaling $51,176 have been awarded to Dr. Morris Scherago, head of the Department of Bacteriology at the University of Kentucky.

Announcement of the grants was made today by Dr. N. M. White, Dean of the College of Arts & Sciences, and Dr. Merl Baker, Director of the University's Kentucky Research Foundation.

One of the grants, worth $47,916 study is being made to perfect the over a three-year period, was given by the National finistitute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases of the Unived States Public Health Service.

It calls for the continuation of a study on the sensitivity of leucocytes, or white blood corposales, to the products of micro-organisms.

Scherago and Dr. H. E. Hall, research associates, earlier developed a leucocytic test for diagnosing tuberculosis which they-found to be more reliable than the skin test now in use. The present room 226, Fine Arts Building this afternoon at 4 p.m. Gifford Blyton will coach the UK debate team.

Enrollment Approaches 1957 Total

With 7,392 students registered for classes on the Lexington campus, the University's enrollment appears, likely to level off at a figure not far from last year's record enrollment.

Dr. Charles F. Elton, dean of admissions and registrar, had not received the final enrollment figures from the Covington and Ashland Centers yesterday. These centers had a total enrollment of 1,95 last year. Indications are that the University's total enrollment will pass 8,500 for 1958-59.

The total for 1957-58 was 8,794.
In 1956-57, enrollment was 3,125.

Chamberlain Talks On Aid Program

Dr. Leo Chamberlain, University vice president, explained the two educational projects being carried on in Indonesia by UK to the Chexington Kiwanis Club last week. The Cone of the projects, located in Bandung, deals with science and engineering. The other program, concerning agriculture and veterinary science, is located at Bogor. Dr. Chamberlin said both projects supplement and develop native-faculties.

The University supplies from 30 to 40 professors who usually spend two years in Indonesia with their expenses paid jointly by the U. S. and Indonesian governments.

Each of the professors, an expert in his field, teaches his specialty and helps train the native facul-ties, he said.

Another phase of this program is the training of promising Indonesian students in the United States.

A New Kernel Series

"Let's Talk About"

Dr. Amry Vandenbosch

(This is the first of a series of "Let's Talk About" articles being planned by the Kernel. Each week we shall present a short biographical sketch of some faculty member whose contributions have added to the stature of the University. Any student or faculty member is welcome to submit nominations for these articles, - THE EDITOR).

By JERRY RINGO

Few men in the history of the University of Kentucky, in times of peace and war, have rendered such outstanding service to their country in the fields of international diplomacy and education as Dr. Amry Vandenbosch, director of the new William Kennedy Patterson School of Diplomacy and International Commerce.

Early Life: Dr. Van was born on -a-small farm about 10 miles from Lake Michigan. His parents were farmers and his paternal great-grandfather came to this country from the Netherlands. He vividly recalls the work on the farm with remarks like, "gosh, I'm homesick for it now. Next to teaching I'd rather be a farmer than anything else. We had three Morses and in those days at 12 or 13 years of age we did a hard days work. . . Bet your life I plowed those Personality: Dr. Van, as he is known his associates, students and close friends, is a short, unpretentious appearing gentleman and his quiet, stlest way is the true capsule of his philosophy of life. Being of Dutch antecedents, he is no crusader, but he is persuasive with a knack of appearing unbiased to an extent that it is most difficult at times to discern what his opinion really is. His presence at UK has meant that Kentuckians have received a first-hand schooling in world problems, and this will be even more significant in the new School of Diplomacy. "The school," Dr. Van emphasizes, "will mot be a narrow training ground for foreign service, but will offer some specialization in world politics and economics to go along with a good general education. A bachelors de gree in any of the social studies is the only requirement for entrance.

Academic Career: A Ph.D., from the University of Chicago in 1920; A PhiD., from the University of Chi cago in 1926; instructor in modern history in Pullman School of Manual Training, Chicago, 1920-23; instructor of political science, Iowa State College, 1924-26. University of Kentucky, 1926 and head of Department of Political Science since 1984. Re ceived grants for foreign study, research and advisory-capacity in 1929, 1933, 1937 and returned this spring from a tour as a member of the Brookhaven Mission to Asian countries on the Nuclear Research Center to be located in Manila, Philippines He served as a special lecturer, Institute of Far Eastern Studies, University of Michigan, 1928; Fulbright lecturer last year at Leiden University, oldest in the Netherlands.

Author: Publications and reviews have described Dr. Van as "a brilliant author and authority on politi-cal and social problems of the Dutch East Indies." While in the Netherlands last year he finished a book entitled, "Dutch Foreign Policy Since 1815," a study in small power politics, which will be published about Christmas by a Hague publisher, Martinus Nykoffs. An earlier book, "Neutrality of the Netherlands During the World War" was recognized by the Carnegie Endowment Tor International Peace and 200 copies were purchased by the Endowment for distribution among the foreign offices and leading libraries of the world. Many contributions have been made to such magazines as Foreign Affairs, Current History, Pacific Affairs and others dealing with social and political themes. Last year in collaboration with Richard Butwell he "Southeast Asia Among the World Powers," and the first printing was exhausted in a year. The second printing is just off the press.

Diplomat: In 1941-42 Dr. Van took military leave of absence to serve with the War Department in an advisory capacity and was also deputy chief of the West European Section of the Office of Strategic Services. Coordinator of information was his title at one time in the war years and 1945 found him on a special mission to Ceylon and India. Later that year he was chosen to be the United States representative on the International Secretariat of the United Nations Conference in San Fran-

Family Man: A glow of price was on Dr. Van's face when asked about his family. Mrs. Vandenbosch has served as president of the Lexington branch of the League of Women Voters and state president of the group. She is a curator of Centre College, Danville. They are members of the Hunter Presbyterian Church. A son, Robert, Ph.D. in nuclear chemistry from the University of California at Berkeley, is on the staff of the Argonne National Laboratories near Chicago. A daughter, Margaret, is doing graduate work in sociology at the University of Michigan. Mrs. Van also serves on the Westminster Foundation Board.

Garbage And Fish

To The Editor

I have viewed with amusement the past two issues of your "newspaper." I say amusement because I find no other word appropriate to describe the caliber news you have presented to the University faculty and students.

I had hoped (that) with the new editorial staff we would at least reach the realm of newspaper writing and publica-tion. Unfortunately this is not the case and it seems impossible to even conceive such might take place after the first two

In reference to Albert Lott (Phd) (sic), it is apparent that many of the "in-tellectuals" on the campus feel much as Dr. Lott does, as the many use of the Kernel has been "to wrap up fish, garb age, and to deposit in the local trash if one is handy." It seems very odd that the people that have the least com plain the most. The new dorm of course lacks certain qualities that many people would like to have corrected, however, I feel that we should look into our own affairs before we go condeming (sic) the new dorms.

It has been apparent in the first issues the Kernel that helpful critisum (sic) is not wanted and will be met with only sarcasism (sic) and snide remarks. You pride yourself on being a "free press," but through observations it would seem you are defeating your purpose with your editorials and comments about certain suggestions.

A newspaper should consist of interesting news! By this it is suggested that you take stock of what you could do with the points of interest at the University. Have you any idea what appeal you would have, if for instance, you interview the foreign students on comparisons our country with theirs. I believe this has proven satisfactory for the city news papers-the articles on Africa continued for the University students? This probably is considered too "intellectual" - however. Also the work being done at the different research on the University. It's really a shame half the work on campus is never spoken of. The Aeronautical Research ratory, for instance, deals with over

A Suggestion

To The Editor:
I would like to make a suggestion for an additional feature to the now almost-daily Kernel. My suggestion is that two full columns be devoted to national and international events. I am not suggesting that the Kernel compete with the local and state newspapers, but give briefs on the national and international news.

If anyone today should be well informed on world events, I would say that today's college student should be. I believe that in printing the essential world and national happenings, the Kernel would be performing a valuable service for the students and faculty. think a poll of your readers would show that they would like the suggested addition to the format.

Sincerely

George L. Meyer (We do intend to run the briefs you mentioned, but we cannot plan it regularly because of technical difficulties. The Associated Press wire sometimes is delayed in fifting the news roundup, and we must have it rather early in the afterpoon in orden-to meet press deadline. We will try to include them whenever possible, and we appreciate your suggestion. -THE EDITOR).

have been dangled in front of Mr. Diplomat at UK. When asked about the factors that cause one to set aside monetary values in such a position, he just leans back in his chair and "Oh, I think that is because I like it here. When a man gets his roots in a place he doesn't like to move around." That "grass-roots" philosophy probably goes back to Dr. Van's farming days in Michigan. Rural living gave him an appreciation of "growth through devotion" to the task at hand. Dr. Van is whitehaired, short, modest, but he has been at the top of the list of authorities on Asian-and Netherland affairs for a number of years. He was Distinguished Professor of the Arts and Science College in 1945, voted by fellow faculty members, and the abbreviation of his name to "Dr. Van" points to the affection of associates and students.

To talk about Dr. Amry Vandenbosch is to talk about a prominent political scientist . . . author . . . family man 27. diplomat . . . and director of the William Kennedy Patterson School of Diplomacy and International Commerce. "University" is a proud word. The values and traditions which civilized people prize highly are found there and at Kentucky are made richer because of True, the Wildcats were beaten, but they showed one of the finest teams in the Nation that they had plenty of offensive punch and a never-say-die spirit. Not for one second did the Cats appear to concede defeat.

Kentucky has an open football date Saturday, but it will certainly need the time in preparation for its Oct. 11, clash with the Nation's stringlest football team, the Plainsmen of Auburn. Those of you who saw the Tennessee-Auburn game on TV Saturday know that the Tigers have a great defensive unit. The Tigers have about 1,500 pounds of beef in that forward wall, and its prime cut, a defensive line that held the Vols to a minus 49 yards rushing. Tennessee failed to make a first down against the Tigers, and that, my friend, is defense with a capital D.

The Cat-Tiger scrap shapes up to be a good one. The Wildcats have proven they can run and pass with the best of 'em and they looked pretty sharp on defense quarterback in Lloyd Nix. I firmly believe if the Cats can take Auburn, they will have an excellent chance of bringing the SEC crown
