March On City Building

Concerned students and Lexington residents, 150 strong, marched to the Municipal Building Thursday to attend a meeting of the Board of City Commissioners and show their support for Rev. Craig Frederickson's "Statement Concerning Repression in Lexington." See Page 3 for some of the personalities involved.

Rev. Frederickson Optimistic After Municipal Meeting

By LARRY DALE KEELING
Assistant Managing Editor

Optimism about the suggested reforms in the Lexington Police Department was expressed last night by Rev. Craig Frederickson after he and a group of delegates from the community met in closed session with the Board of City Commissioners yesterday.

Rev. Frederickson, who presented a set of recommendations to the Board at its regular session Thursday, said he thought they were "open to listen to our suggestions."

"They promised that they each would read our statement and try to understand it," he added.

He said the group of delegates are supposed to meet again sometime next week and some local police officials will probably be present.

"The basic problem is that they don't understand what we're trying to get over to them. All our points are founded on peace and justice and building up, instead of breaking down."

Approximately 150 people crowded into the commissioners' chamber as Rev. Frederickson read his "Statement Concerning Repression in Lexington."

The statement, made "in behalf of many concerned citizens of Lexington," deplored the fact that "white hysteria exists today in Lexington."

"The voices of white extremists are being heard and followed," the statement said. "Some of the Lexington police and extremist groups are stirring up the racial tensions, while the white community is 'armed to the teeth.'"

"This escalating demand for law and order via military and legal repression has outflanked the forces of law and justice."

In order to remedy this situation, the statement recommended, among other things, that Police Chief E. C. Hale be retired; that money being put into riot control equipment and training be channeled into constructive community programs; that a civilian police review board be established, and that the Commissioners revoke local ordinances and urge the removal of state riot statutes.

"These recommendations are not unreasonable," the statement concluded, "they are ones which, if not adopted and immediately implemented, will cause Lexington to lose its right to be called a free and democratic community."

Rev. Frederickson made it clear that he was making this statement as a private citizen and not as a member of any organization, as had been implied by the "local press."

"An earnest attempt by a group of concerned citizens has been turned into a mockery by the local press," he said.

Political Scientist Views Convention

By REBECCA WESTERFIELD
Kernel Staff Writer

"Whenever there is a controversy, both sides are partly wrong," said Prof. Jack Reeves during a lecture in the Taylor Education Building yesterday morning.

Reeves, a recently retired member of UK's political science department, came to this conclusion after seeing both sides of the Chicago battle while attending the Democratic Convention. According to Reeves there were definitely some revolutionaries and militants who were antagonizing police and causing trouble during the peace demonstrations.

"However," Reeves continued, "most of the demonstrators were good, decent kids who cared about their country and its policies." The former professor explained that it was a few unruly revolutionaries who caused law enforcers to overreact.

Reeves was confronted with this "overreaction" inside the convention halls. A McCarthy floor coordinator gave Reeves material on the Vietnam peace plank to distribute.

Reeves took the material onto the convention floor and made it halfway back to his Kentucky delegation when a security guard jabbed his knuckles into Reeves' back and dragged him off the floor.

"On the floor it was one unholy mess," Reeves said. "Of course, most conventions have not been the most orderly."

Reeves believes "all recent conventions have indicated desirability for reform in choosing candidates." He sees four methods for such reform.

One is a national primary. This, however, according to Reeves, would unduly tax presidential hopefuls who would have to campaign throughout the nation at great financial and personal expense.

A second area for reform is in choosing delegates. The method in which delegates are chosen should be "democratized," Reeves said—to have delegates elected by their fellow party members, thereby enabling the public to participate meaningfully in the nomination of their candidates.

Reeves' third suggestion was to reduce the number of delegates, eliminating a lot of the "mess" in conventions.

Reeves also sees a very real need for reforming convention procedure. "Parliamentary rules should be followed," Reeves said, noting that they obviously were not followed in Chicago.

Coroner Rules Freshman Died Of Heart Disorder

Fayette County Coroner Chester Hager said Thursday that the death of a UK coed who died Sunday was caused by a heart disorder.

The autopsy report indicated that Jane Harty, a freshman from Ft. Knox, Ky., died after suffering a ventricular fibrillation, which Hager described as "a type of heart murmur or mis-beat."

Hager said the affliction was "very unusual in young people." He indicated the death was even more unusual in that Miss Harty had no past record of heart trouble.

He also said a physical examination required of all entering students and conducted only one week before classes began showed that Miss Harty had a healthy circulatory system.

The autopsy report was released late Thursday afternoon. The release date was originally scheduled for Wednesday, but the report was delayed for further tests.

Hager said five days were needed to complete the report in order to check out rumors on the death. He said among the rumors concerning the cause of death were drugs, liquor and a medication.

Hager said all of these were ruled out by tests and that the coed died only from natural causes.

Miss Harty was found nauseated and in a semiconscious state in a Blanding Tower room at approximately 7 p.m. Saturday—after she had returned from a party at the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity house.

She was taken to the Medical Center and died at 12:55 a.m. Sunday.

Funeral services were conducted at Hyannis, Mass., yesterday.

Miss Harty, the reigning Hardin County Junior Miss, was the daughter of Col. and Mrs. William O. Harty. Col. Harty is awaiting transfer for duty in Vietnam.

More Profs Sign Boycott

Twenty-five members of the English department have signed a petition drawn up by Dr. Joseph Gardner to change the site of the 1969 Annual Meeting of the Modern Language Association of America. The convention is scheduled to be held in Chicago.

According to Dr. Gardner, the petition has met with sympathy in each of the various foreign language departments on campus, where it still is circulating.

In addition, approximately 85 copies of Dr. Gardner's petition are now circulating in language departments of colleges throughout the nation.

The petition opposes holding the convention in Chicago on grounds that the city has "an atmosphere of brutal suppression and gestapo-like tactics" which endangers the values to which the members of the M.L.A. are dedicated.

"We therefore urgently request," the petition concludes, "that all plans to hold the 1969 Annual Meeting of the M.L.A. in Chicago be cancelled and a search begun for an alternate site."

Earlier this week, 15 out of 18 members of the political science department signed a similar petition to ban Chicago as the site of a scheduled political science convention.

STUDENT ATHLETICS COMMITTEE

The STUDENT ATHLETICS COMMITTEE, in an effort to promote pride and enthusiasm in the Athletic events at the University of Kentucky, has established several committees that will allow more student participation in the Intercollegiate Athletics programs. . . . By working in close coordination with the coaches and players, it is hoped that the S.A.C. will revive enthusiasm at UK that will measure up to and surpass that shown on rival campuses. In order to implement this plan, the following special committees have been organized:

QB TIPOFF CLUB

Chairman Keith Simmons

An organization which will meet weekly during football and basketball seasons in the Student Center. The luncheon meeting will consist of highlights of previous and forthcoming games as explained by members of the coaching staff, recognition of outstanding players, and a question and answer period.

CARD SECTION

Chairman Gale Phillips

A group of 600-800 students to perform at half-time at the football games. Participation will be on a first come first serve game-to-game basis.

RECRUITING

Co-chairmen Gary Noll and Nancy Underwood

A group of students who will work closely with coaches in recruiting promising high school prospects.

PEP CLUB

Chairman Betty Helburn

A voluntary group of students formed to promote any athletic function at UK, primarily by participating in all S.A.C. activities.

PUBLICITY

Chairman Rosemary Cox

A committee whose purpose is to promote UK athletics on the campus, local, and state-wide basis.

KENTUCKY BELLES

Chairman Linda Lennon

A carefully screened contingent of UK coeds who will aid the coaches in introducing recruits to campus life.

Students interested in further information concerning these committees should contact Student Athletics Office in Memorial Coliseum, ext. 2332.

Rev. Frederickson Still Hopeful

Following the statement, Mayor Charles Wylie read a statement on behalf of the Board of Commissioners, answering last week's request by Rev. Frederickson for a civilian review board.

"The Board of Commissioners of the City of Lexington has never imposed upon the citizens of Lexington any limitations upon freedom of assembly," the statement said. "To the contrary, the city has in many, many instances protected citizens who were expressing their right of freedom of assembly and protest."

Rev. Wayne Smith, foreman of the April grand jury, then rose to compliment the actions of the city and Chief Hale.

"We have good colored folk in our church," he added and drew a round of "oh's" and applause from the audience.

"I'm not colored," replied Jim Sleet, an independent Black organizer. "I'm black and proud of it."

Turning to the commissioners, he added, "If you want to work with us, now is your chance. If you don't, we'll have to work alone."

Meg Tassie read a statement from the Community Alliance for Responsible Social Action (CARSA) that supported Rev. Frederickson's statement. The 50 students who marched on city hall prior to the meeting were members of CARSA. They will meet in the Student Center Theater this afternoon at 5 p.m. to discuss further action.

Editorials represent the opinions of the Editors, not of the University.

Lee B. Becker, Editor-in-Chief

Listen, Lexington

Following the campus to city hall march Thursday the Rev. Craig Frederickson, "in behalf of many concerned citizens of Lexington," made a statement of recommendations to the Lexington City Commission. The Commission would do well to heed the notice. Moderate in tone, the statement calls for many programs that could go a long way toward improving community relations in Lexington.

Centering on the Lexington Police Department, the statement calls for establishment of a community selection committee, representative of all segments of our community, to find a qualified Chief of Police. Establishment of a citizen review board for police activity is also recommended to the Commission. Both are ways in which the community can aid and control a police force employed by their tax dollars.

The Rev. Frederickson also recommends an increase in salaries and fringe benefits at all levels of police service "in order to encourage the best qualified men to be recruited." The starting police salary in Lexington, $428 a month, could certainly use some beefing up. The statement also calls for an extensive recruitment program to employ black policemen in black neighborhoods. While 30 per cent of Lexington's community is black, only 11 per cent of the policemen patrolling their streets are of the black race. And only about nine of all patrolmen are working foot beats which better enable them to communicate with the people.

The City Commissioners would do well to read with care the final lines of the Rev. Frederickson's statement.

"These recommendations are not only reasonable," it reads. "They are the ones which, if not adopted and immediately implemented, will cause Lexington to lose its right to be called a free and democratic community."

The City Commission must act.

Disappointing Statements

During a televised debate on WHAS (Louisville) Tuesday night Democrat Katherine Peden and Republican Marlow W. Cook, candidates for the United States Senate, gave Kentucky voters an inkling as to where they stand on the Vietnam War. Both views were disappointing.

Judge Cook's statement that this country isn't going to "win a thing until we get tough" in the Paris negotiations and other war policies reflects a basic misjudgment about this country's involvement in the Vietnam war.

Miss Peden, former state commerce commissioner, in giving her "strong support (to) the negotiations in Paris" and to the policies of the present administration, displayed an equally harmful short-sightedness.

Both candidates have ignored the facts that this country is indeed the aggressor in the war in that small Southeast Asian country, and that it is up to the United States to take action to end the violence. Both candidates seem far too concerned with victory and face saving to realize that lives, both American and Vietnamese, are being lost daily. Both candidates seemed to have ignored the immorality of the American involvement there.

Kentucky voters deserve a better choice. Perhaps both Miss Peden and Judge Cook would do well to consider the position taken by their predecessor, Republican Sen. Thurston Morton, a staunch dove. He recognized the recklessness of our present course, a recognition which Kentucky deserves from its representatives.

Atlanta Constitution

"Course I'm For Law And Order. I Lay Down The Law And You Take The Orders."

Keeping Academic Freedom

Before it recessed for the presidential nominating conventions, the House of Representatives struck a serious blow to the academic community through an amendment to the omnibus higher education bill. The House voted to make it mandatory for colleges and universities to cut off U.S. Office of Education loans, grants, fellowships and loan guarantees to students who willfully disobey campus rules and regulations.

While the intent of the bill, now being studied in conference with the Senate, is clearly seen to be to punish campus protestors, the result is not so easily discernible. The bill gives the federal government power to intervene in the academic community.

Rep. William J. Scherle (Iowa), a member of the labor and Education Committee, stated this clearly when he told the House he wanted to strengthen the amendment "for the simple reason that many administrators of our colleges and universities today do not have the intestinal fortitude that it takes to expel students who have broken the laws of the university or college which he or she attends." The bill gives the federal government power to act.

The House bill, passed 389 to 15, also contains a provision that would bar financial aid for three years after the conviction of a person for activity that disrupted a campus.

In the words of Rep. William F. Ryan (D-N.Y.), the bill "strikes a blow at academic freedom." (Democrat Carl Perkins was the only Kentucky representative to vote against the harmful amendment, which passed 259 to 147.)

Now that the Congress has reconvened, the higher education bill will again come up for consideration. The House version must be killed, as new power for the strengthened hand of federal control is not needed.

CYNIC VIEW

By David Holwerk

For those students who may be new to this campus, what to do with one's time the first weeks of school can be a problem. There are those who are involved in Greek rush, of course, but that in itself may be a problem. At any rate, realizing there is a severe shortage of things to do around here, this corner has taken it upon itself to reveal the high spots of the coming campus social season.

DRINKING: This is always one of the high spots, although the various spots where the activity is conducted range from low to abysmal. Drinking is an integral part of all campus social activities, such as football games, basketball games, concerts and dances. Drinking at football games is a tradition and, in fact, a necessity, for one has to be drunk to sit through the usual UK football game. Drinking at football games has, in recent years, been most undemocratic, for the people in the last few seasons who have most needed a drink have been the players and coaches. They are, for various reasons, not allowed to drink on the playing field, although this is not always apparent from the execution of certain plays, such as the snap from center.

MOVIES: There are several movie theaters in Lexington, all of which at one time or other have a passable movie. Generally, all good films arrive at the same time, so don't waste your money on a flick you don't really want to see. When a good one comes, you'll get to spend plenty of money. The Student Center Board also has various films throughout the year, which range from bad Doris Day to excellent New Wave. They are cheap and generally enjoyable. Drinking before the movie is distinctly advisable, if it stars or even mentions Doris Day.

SPORTS: Sports, as previously mentioned, are large social events. People attend sports largely because the University assumes that everyone wants to go to games and so makes it impossible to get near the campus in a car on the night of any event. There are a lot of people who like to see the basketball team, of course, which is generally one of the finest in the nation. And there are a lot of people who like to see the football team. There are a lot of people who merely welcome these opportunities to flout the Kentucky public drinking statutes, and others who could care less but get caught up in the mob and swept into the stadium. In recent years, several of these latter have been pressed into duty as football players, they being the only people in the stands capable of standing up to be knocked down.

NECKING AND RELATED ACTIVITIES: All of this drinking has some end in mind, of course. Necking is one of these ends. Necking is usually done in parked cars or apartments. Weather permitting, necking is done extensively in the botanical gardens. The porches of girls' domes and sorority houses are especially active on weekend nights. Some people have been known to go to various domes and park their cars in front of the porch just to watch. These people are considerably smarter than those who go to Student Center Doris Day Festivals,

50 Percent More Than Ever Before

Fraternities Pledge Record Number

By TERRY DUNHAM
Assistant Managing Editor

More than 450 freshmen accepted fraternity bids in ceremonies at Memorial Hall last night, forming a pledge group 50 percent larger than any before.

The rush program this fall for the first time permitted first-semester freshmen to rush, and the successful results apparently verified the belief of the Interfraternity Council (IFC) that undelayed rush held the key to more rapid fraternity growth.

"The first semester rush has shown itself to be a tremendous asset," IFC President Barry Ogilbee said after the session last night. "In last year's rush we got about 260 pledges, and the year before that, our best year ever, we got not many more than 300."

"There's an added importance, too," he said, "because now we'll have pledges living in the dorms, and that should help the open rush which begins Monday."

In the past, freshmen were pledged in their second semester, when they were eligible to move into fraternity housing. Most did so, and this minimized their personal contact with those who had not pledged.

The fraternities felt they were disadvantaged because before they could rush a freshman he had lived one semester in dormitories with those who had for various reasons elected not to join a fraternity. They chose to undertake the challenge of offering their arguments for membership concurrent with those the new students received against membership. They believe the number of pledges obtained indicates they met the challenge successfully.

Ogilbee was quick to point out the large return was not due to indiscriminate bidding. Most chapters, he said, issued only a few more bids than in past semesters, when only half as many men were rushing.

The campus' largest chapter, Sigma Chi, received 34 pledges. Pi Kappa Alpha also received this many and Sigma Alpha Epsilon pledged 32.

The first semester rush necessitated changes in the fraternities' methods, most importantly the initiation of summer rush programs. During these, active members visited incoming freshmen in their hometowns throughout the state, encouraging them to join the system when they arrived at the University.

TRANS-ACTION
Lexington Tutorial Program

WHY SHOULD YOU

- Tutor the disadvantaged?
- Assist the poor in Appalachia?
- Help the mentally ill?
- Work with the juvenile delinquent?
- Serve in the neighborhood centers program?

Find the answer through Trans-Action and the Lexington Tutorial Program, student volunteer projects designed to bridge the gap between the privileged and the poor—the advantaged and the disadvantaged—by working with various community social agencies. Under professional guidance you will have the opportunity to gain an intimate insight into the "Other America." You will acquire a realization that you can make a contribution to solving the problems of society. 28,308 Ride Bus

The University bus system lent a helping hand to approximately 28,308 students, faculty, and visitors during its first week in operation.

The number of people riding the buses increased almost ten times from Monday, Aug. 26, with 982 riders, to Friday, Aug. 30, with 9,521 riders.

Traffic and unscheduled stops have been hampering service, however. Paul Nestor, director of business services who has coordinated the new bus system, said only those persons waiting at official bus stops will be allowed to board Monday.

The buses will no longer be stopping at the Complex parking area.

The present bus schedule calls for 74 bus trips each day. So far only 72 trips have been completed in one day. As few as 68 trips were completed on one occasion.

WORLD REPORT

From the Wire of the Associated Press

INTERNATIONAL
UNITED NATIONS - The United States called on the Security Council Thursday to adopt a resolution holding Egypt responsible for the ambush of an Israeli patrol in the Suez Canal area Aug. 26. The Soviet Union indicated it would veto such a resolution.

WASHINGTON - The United States made a pullback in its cultural exchange program with Russia. It cancelled a tour of the Soviet Union by the University of Minnesota Symphonic Band, "in view of Soviet actions in Czechoslovakia and the unsettled situation resulting thereof."

BELGRADE - President Tito of Yugoslavia called for quick withdrawal of Soviet Bloc troops from Czechoslovakia. "These serious and worrying events show how vital it is today that in international relations the right of each people to independence be respected..."

LAGOS, Nigeria - Plans for a daylight mercy airlift to starving civilians in secessionist Biafra verged near collapse Thursday amid controversy over where Red Cross planes could land supplies.

The Red Cross and other welfare organizations have been making unauthorized night flights across Nigerian territory into Biafra, but these fall far short of meeting the needs of thousands of starving Biafrans.

VIETNAM - A total of 27,509 American soldiers have been killed in combat in Vietnam since the start of 1961, the Defense Department reported Thursday. An additional 4,430 men have died from noncombat causes.

A total of 171,809 Americans have been wounded in fighting and an additional 1,197 are missing or captured.

And Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford said Thursday the enemy's "third round offensive" in Vietnam may have begun.

SDS To Try For SG Posts

The Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) decided at a meeting Thursday night to attempt to elect at least five members as Student Government representatives in the off-campus elections.

Besides making SDS "legitimate," members present felt that this move would give them a forum from which they could "make a lot of noise."

Other matters discussed were the formation of a committee to aid in draft counseling and resistance. Additional committees were set up to explore Defense Department grants for biological warfare research at UK, as well as discovering what vested interests local businesses have in the University Board of Trustees.

About 25 people showed up for the meeting. The purpose of the organization was briefly explained to the new members, while the selection of a steering committee was put off until the next meeting.
