ABOUT THE LIBRARIES

Planning Committee Report - Public Services

(Editor's note: This concludes the four-part series on the Planning Committee Report.)

The Public Services section of the Faculty Planning Report was discussed at the April 2 Faculty meeting. Some areas of discussion were:

- 1) Splitting a position between two people. The advantage is that this allows for more flexibility in matching staffing needs with peak hours. Disadvantages are that the University gives no benefits or salary raise money for part time positions and there are problems with scheduling. A suggestion was made that the Library Faculty pursue the issue of benefits and salary increase money for part time people through a committee.
- 2) More fully utilizing students through better training. One suggestion was that we hire a core of students to work in a public service area for the summer, then send them to various units for the school year; this would give them a good background in total library operations.

3) Combining several student positions to hire one library science intern. It was pointed out that the library has total flexibility in how it decides to spend its personal services money, so we can go ahead and try anything we want. Another suggestion was to make better use of 525 students.

PHOTOCOPYING AND THE COPYRIGHT LAW: THE COURTS

(Editor's note: Bill James has prepared a short series of articles on the recent copyright law controversy.)

Of particular interest to scholars, researchers, and librarians a few years ago was the Williams and Wilkins Case. The case arose from an action by a leading United States publisher of scholarly periodicals against the National Library of Medicine and the National Institute of Health for alleged unauthorized photocopying of copyrighted materials during the course of performing ordinary library reference work. On appeal, the U.S. Court of Claims held that there was no breach of copyright within the factual circumstances presented in this case. On appeal by the publisher from the Court of Claims to the Supreme Court of the United States, four judges decided in favor of the appeal and four judges upheld the decision of the Court of Claims. Therefore, pursuant to the rules of appellate procedure, the decision of the Court of Claims was affirmed because of the technicality of having a split vote. Accordingly, a clear ruling of law on the subject of photocopying copyrighted material in libraries was not reached.

The Williams and Wilkins Case is important because of adopting the concept of "fair use" which permits individuals and institutions other than the copyright owner to use the copyrighted material in a reasonable manner without the owner's consent.

The controversy of the Copyright Law has now shifted from the courts to the Congress where a revision of the Copyright Law is in progress.

Next week, the Copyright Bill in Congress.

BLUEGRASS LIBRARIANS MEET

The Bluegrass Librarians' Association will present a program dealing with ERIC, the abstracting and report service for educational research. To be held on Monday, April 19, at 7:30 in the Gallery of M.I. King Library, the meeting will feature Jane White, U.K.'s Education librarian, along with Joe Forsee of the State Archives and Public Library department, Dennis Swanson and Anne Hamilton of the State Department of Education. The panel will discuss the helpfulness of ERIC to students, to educators, to librarians in all areas, as well as to the layman. The meeting is open to all and is free.
