

Utica Jubilee Singers To Present Concert At First Convo On Friday, July 23

Will Sing Negro Spirituals and Southern Melodies In Memorial Hall

CONVOCATION WILL BE HELD AT 9:50 A. M.

Another Concert To Be Presented At 8 P. M. In Memorial Hall

Negro spirituals and southern songs will be the order of the day when the Utica jubilee singers appear on the first general convocation of the second semester at 9:50 a. m. Friday, July 23, in Memorial hall.

Classes will be dismissed at 9:50 to give the summer session students an opportunity to hear these musicians. There will be no third hour classes.

The Utica jubilee singers are from the Utica normal and industrial institute at Utica, Miss. For the past 20 years the singers have been sent on tour by the school and other groups.

The singers have broadcast numerous times and have presented a great many concerts in Europe. They come to the convocation highly recommended by critics.

Songs by Stephen Collins Foster and negro spirituals will comprise the program to be presented by the singers on the convocation program. They will also give a concert at 8 o'clock Friday night in Memorial hall.

Four general convocations were held during the first semester of the Summer Session. Speakers on these programs included Dr. Frank L. McVey, president of the University; A. B. Chandler, governor of Kentucky; Dr. George Strayer, Columbia university professor, and Dr. Harry E. Barnes, visiting lecturer in history.

Doctor Barnes, in the last convocation of the first semester, spoke on the possibilities of war and the chances of the United States remaining neutral. Predicting war by 1941, Doctor Barnes said, "If war lasts two years it will be almost impossible for the United States to remain neutral." He expressed a belief that a strict neutrality embargo by the United States would cause "an inevitable economic depression."

BUILDING PLAN IS PROGRESSING

Million Dollar Program Is Rapidly Moving Forward As Foundations Are Laid For New Structures

Cranes rattle and riveting machines clatter, indicating that the million dollar building program of the University is moving steadily forward.

Three buildings, the west unit of the Engineering quadrangle, student union building and law building are now under construction and rapidly taking shape. The south and east units of Engineering quadrangle and the central heating plant are complete and ready for use.

Original plans of the biological sciences building have been altered so that three smaller buildings will be erected to effect a saving in the total cost. Unplanned as yet but not unthought of, is the new field house.

More than $1,200,000 is being spent on the building program. Forty-five percent of this amount is Public Works administration grant and the rest is from funds raised through the sale of bonds by the University.

Concrete foundations are being poured for the Engineering west unit, to be named Anderson hall in memory of the late F. Paul Anderson, dean of the college for 43 years. Two stories high, the completed quadrangle will cover 270 by 148 feet and will house all the departments of the College of Engineering.

Skeletal framework of the new $154,000 student union building is near completion. The building is expected to be ready for use by January, 1938. A ball room, great hall, reading and recreation rooms, offices and library rooms will be located in this three story structure which will be 142 by 158 feet in length. Of modern classic design the building will be built of brick, tile and cut stone.

The new law building, an 'L' shaped two story structure, now has its side walls nearly complete. The framework of the building is finished. Covering more than 10,000 square feet, the building will be of brick and steel and will be fireproof. It will house the offices and departments of the College of Law. Approximately 40 campus buildings will be supplied with steam heat and hot water from the new central heating plant, now ready for use. The plant will replace individual heating units located in each building. It will also serve as a laboratory for students of the College of Engineering.

Sixteen Students Make Trip To Robertson Forest For Study

Sixteen students of the engineering college returned Saturday from a survey camp held June 7 to July 17 in the Robertson forest near Noble, Breathitt county.

Attendance in this camp will be required in the future for all majors of mining and civil engineering. This is the first year that such a camp has been held by the college. Robertson forest, site of the camp, is owned by the University and consists of 16,000 acres of wooded mountain land.

All but three members of the camp have passed the aerial survey force requirements and are assisting in mapping agriculture land for the U. S. soil conservation department.

The camp was under the direction of D. V. Terrell, professor of civil engineering; R. E. Shaver, assistant professor of civil engineering; and R. C. Emann, associate professor of mining engineering.

Radio Listening Centers Extended Into New Territory

The expansion of the radio listening group organization service in eastern Kentucky include sixteen of the University of Kentucky's twenty-four remote listening centers, was announced jointly recently by University officials and the National Youth Administration. The latter organization has provided one supervisor for the past two months who has worked in eight of the centers. Since the new supervisor will also handle eight centers, exactly two-thirds of the University's system of centers will be given this service.

Jane Evans, Pikeville, Kentucky, a former University student will be the new supervisor. She will organize radio listening groups and discussion groups in centers in Breathitt, Magaflin, Johnson, Floyd, and Martin counties. Corsia Whitaker, the present supervisor, will continue the same work at centers in Letcher, Letcher, and Knott counties located in Cadwell, Hallie, Vest, Cordia, Elm Rock, Rohn, Wooten, and Moxelle.

Besides providing these supervisors, the National Youth Administration is also cooperating with the University of Kentucky Listening Center system, by permitting each supervisor to add up to three assistants at each point for providing help in listening group organization work.

A program from the University radio studios on Wednesday, 1:15 to 1:45 p. m. C. S. T. presented by John Jacob Niles directly for the University's mountain listening centers, is dedicated each week to a certain center where the supervisor is located that particular week.

Registration Will Continue Until Monday, July 23; Figure Considered Promising

LAST YEAR'S FINAL FIGURE WAS BUT 928

Present Number Is 75 Higher Than During First Two Days Last Summer

A total of 878 students had registered for the second semester of the Summer Session when the bookshes closed at 3:30 p. m. yesterday, according to a statement by the registrar's office.

Registration will continue the remainder of this week, Monday, July 26, being the last date on which a student may sign up for second semester courses.

The number registering for the first two days was considered "good" by the registrar's office. Last year only 803 students signed up the first two days. Encouraged by the 75 increase over last year's number, officials of the office predicted that the number this semester would exceed the second semester of last year. The total number registering for the final term last year was 928.

Six hundred and ninety students signed for the term at the first day of the registration held Monday in Alumni gym. The number of students registering the first day of the second semester last year was 765, which was 70 better than this year's total.

The first semester, one of the most successful in the history of the summer session, saw a record enrollment of 1841, including the short courses. More than 1,500 students signed up the first day of the summer session. This number climbed to 1,797 when the regular deadline was reached and finally to the record of 1841 after the short courses.

UK Dave Ragland Wins Bluegrass Tennis Tournery

Slamming shot after shot to his opponent's backhand, Dave Ragland, University freshman, defeated Walter Botts, University's No. 6 varsity man, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3 to win the Bluegrass tennis tournament Monday on the University courts.

Ragland then teamed with Tommy Rose, Lexington, to win the doubles title from J. T. Daugherty, Morehead, and Omer Ratliff, Sharpshurg. The score was 6-3, 6-1, 7-5.

Showing near perfect control of his service, Ragland made only one double fault during his singles match. In the opening set he spurted to win the first two games but lost the next three to Botts. Ragland then won the next four games taking the set.

At the start of the second set Botts managed to hang up a two game lead. Ragland then won the next four games to get a 4-2 lead. The two boys split the final four games enabling Ragland to take the set 6-4.

Both boys played cautious tennis the third set and tied the score two all. Steady control of his service enabled Ragland to forge ahead 5-2 before Botts could win another game. Ragland then took the title on the ninth game.

Botts, director of the tournament for the Lexington recreation and playground department, announced that the city tournament would begin next Monday.

Welcome Again Summer Students

IT IS AGAIN the pleasure of The Kernel to welcome to the University students enrolled in the Summer Session. To the students of the first term we remarked that the opportunity for knowledge exists on this campus, but that it is entirely up to the student to grasp it. To the enrollees of the second semester we wish to make the same suggestion.

The first summer session was undoubtedly one of the most successful ever held at the University. Filled with an eventful program, students of the first term had the opportunity to absorb a full curriculum of courses, and a balanced social program.

This semester it is again their opportunity to take advantage of the University program. It is the sincere hope of The Kernel that the students profit well from their experiences during the ensuing five weeks.

Why the Lack of Interest in Politics?

OFTEN it has been said that a University is the training ground for future citizens of the country, a training ground not merely for the ordinary citizens, but for the future leaders of the nation.

It is surprising, in view of this fact, that although the greater part of present University students are of voting age, and voting is a prerequisite of good citizenship, fewer than fifty percent of students have registered to vote in the August primary.

The state of Kentucky is well-known for the interest it maintains in political affairs. Students in the regular Fall terms display avid interest in campus politics. True, in many instances this interest manifests itself so deeply that more than the regular precautions must be taken when conducting a campus election. But nevertheless, the interest is there.

What is the answer, then, to the apparent lack of interest in the state elections which are soon to take place? Can it be that the more educated type of education believes it futile to express his opinion? Can it be that he has a difference of opinion and fears to express it? Can it be that he is of the minority and maintains the attitude "I don't agree, but my vote won't change things?"

In the opinion of The Kernel, none of these reasons explain the prevalent attitude. It may be either of two things: the students endorse the present state officials, or they definitely lack interest in the state government. Or perhaps they are merely too lazy to perform their duty. What is the reason?

Since the recent reversals of opinion by the high court, those who would retire the justices because of their slowness are pointing to the fact that it takes them a year or more to change their minds.

Japan has no music, and the first melodies many of the race ever heard, aside from that of the birds, were hymns sung by Christian missionaries. Notwithstanding this, many Japanese have of late years become expert musicians and charming vocalists.

An act of Parliament was passed in the reign of Edward III prohibiting any one from being served at dinner or supper with more than two courses, except on some great holidays specified, on which he might be served with three.

A pet Maltese cat was successfully provided with spectacles by its English owner, to counteract failing eyesight. A picture of a mouse was used by the oculist to test the cat's eyes.

The word "lethal" takes us back to Letha, the river of death, a river in the infernal regions, to drink of whose waters induced forgetfulness of the past.

This Campus and That World

By ROSS J. CHEPELEFF

OFTEN we wonder of the significance of faces. To stop for a moment and think of faces you miss, of new faces you see, of the meaning in the expression in faces, you would realize the true meaning. For instance, as we stroll across the campus now we are greeted by an entirely different group of faces from what we've become acquainted with during the Fall. We are a stranger in our own home. We see different meaning written on countenances.

For a full year we walk to and from class, we visit one hangout and another, and always we see the same faces. During that time we get used to them. It is not long before we nod to them while passing. Then we smile and say "howdy." And still later we begin to talk to them. Then we become old friends.

Then suddenly there is almost a complete turnover. We stroll the campus again. We visit the hangouts again. But now we meet different faces. It is a disappointment. We miss the ones we knew. We must start all over again, nodding, smiling, finally speaking, and then another sudden change. Again we begin to miss the faces we were acquainted with. Again new meaning flashes in the countenance.

And then we go back and think of faces we knew, and we begin to look forward toward seeing them again. And what a joy when we do see them. We walk across the campus again and greet the old faces, most again with new meaning written in their faces. They are a year older. Perhaps a year wiser. You visit the same hangouts, again to see familiar faces. You are glad.

For four years you go to school, with a decided change in faces every year. And then you realize that that more than anything has made your University life interesting. That is a complete education in itself. You have made friends, lasting friends.

And then you graduate and part company and step into a world of entirely different faces. These faces are hardened by life. Time goes by and perhaps you again see a familiar face, one which you knew in college. You are overjoyed, but you scrutinize and notice that their face is different too. New meaning is written on their face.

And you suddenly realize that you too have changed. You look through your album and see yourself as you were in college. Then you look into the mirror, and you realize that you too have changed.

New meaning is written on your face, too.

Columbia U. Adopts New Entrance Plan

New York, N. Y.—To improve the quality of freshmen classes, Columbia College of Columbia University is instituting a "new" entrance plan for use next September.

Although incoming students can make applications for admission under either the old method or the new, as stated in the new Columbia catalogue, speculation has it that the latter plan may supersede the old.

While the old method leans heavily on entrance examinations as one of the chief criteria for college admission, the "new" one relies more on the applicant's grade on the Thorndike Intelligence examination as an index of his fitness. Even though graduation from a secondary school of accredited standing has always been a prerequisite, the "new" plan takes added precaution to keep out incompetents by making sure that the secondary schools are accredited.

Columbia will accept on school ratings are the New England Certificate Board, the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Southern States, the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and the Middle States Association of College and Secondary Schools.

If a student comes from a school outside the observation-territory of these bodies, he may submit the names of leading colleges on whose accepted list his school's name appears. The acceptability of that school will then be determined "for the time being upon the basis thus furnished."—The Torch

N. Y. A. Students Maintain High Grades Survey Shows

A general scholastic standing of 1.4 for approximately 700 University of Kentucky students working on National Youth Administration grants, has been reported by Dr. T. T. Jones, dean of men at the University, and Mrs. Sarah B. Holmes, assistant dean of women, who administered the NYA funds during the school year just closed. The scholastic standing, as well as the number of NYA units allotted to the University, enrollment figures, statistics on work assignments and other data have been compiled by the dean of men and assistant dean of women in a report recently prepared and submitted to the President of the University, and to the state director of educational aid under the NYA.

The report describes the opening of the University in September, following one of the worst droughts in the state's history, and the increase of the University's NYA allotment from 340 units to 500 units to meet the demands due to the drought. It further states that the second term of the school year in February opened following the worst flood in the state's history, and the allotment of 80 more units of aid, due to the flood. "In spite of these two calamities, the enrollment for each semester was the largest the University has ever had, continued the report, citing the registration at 3,455 for the first semester and 3,298 for the second term.

Pointing out that the total NYA payroll for the year was $72,360.97, the report stated that "the University of Kentucky deeply appreciative for this aid, for it enabled us to extend material assistance to approximately 700 deserving students, and to furnish the staff all the student assistance desired."

Student aid by NYA at the University of Kentucky is under the general supervision of President Frank L. McVey, who has appointed an advisory committee, with Dr. E. S. Palmer, chairman, to determine policy and procedure. This committee holds its principal meeting around August 1. The actual administration of the aid is delegated to the dean of men and the assistant dean of women.

In selecting recipients application blanks are sent out to be filled out by three responsible people in the applicant's home community. These are the applicant's need, his character and his ability to do college work. A relief worker, a school principal or superintendent, and a leading business man in the community are preferred as sponsors.

In selecting students an effort is made to give representation of the counties in Kentucky were represented on the NYA allotment list. In closing the report Dean Jones and Dean Holmes commended in high terms Mr. Robert Salyers, deputy state director of N. Y. A. and his assistant, Otis C. Amls. "These men have given me the most sympathetic direction and the utmost consideration in every phase of student aid under NYA," said the report, "and we could not have wished for better cooperation. President McVey has given us perfect freedom of action in administering NYA, and no official relationship could have been more pleasant."

Census Bureau Wants Pitchers With Plenty Of 'Stuff'

A young man who is willing to get in there and pitch and has plenty of stuff on the ball will have no trouble in getting a good job with the Bureau of the Census. The following letter sent to the university employment service proves it. University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Nebraska.

Dear sir: I am desirous of contacting a young man with some educational background for a possible appointment to the Bureau of the Census. As chairman of the softball governing board, I am particularly interested in a chap who is a capable softball pitcher.

The bureau maintains a strong softball league among its divisions and we are short on pitchers. During the next two years the bureau will be adding to its personnel for the next census and if possible we should like to include some softball pitchers in this group. We would insist that the applicant be able to pitch the ball with plenty of speed and good control.

In order to further qualify for any appointment the applicant must also have passed successfully some civil service examination, thus being placed on an eligible role from which the bureau can draw.

If you have anyone registered with you who might be interested in a government appointment and who meets these requirements, I should like to have him communicate with me at once. He may address me as shown below. An early reply will be appreciated.

Yours truly,
