

Museum Curator Will Address First Convocation Of Term

All Third Hour Classes Dismissed Tuesday, March 30

Dr. Charles Russell, Curator of Conservation and Chairman of the Department of Education at the American Museum of Natural History, will speak at the first spring convocation at 10:30 a. m., Tuesday, March 30, in Memorial Hall. All third hour classes will be dismissed, and for all of the publications and staff that plans, manufactures and distributes photographs, sound and silent motion pictures, slides, diagrams, etched collections and specimens, all to the number of more than a million shipments annually, and for all of the possible programs of the museum such as radio programs, guiding, information, lectures, press relations, and many others. Dr. Russell, who also acts as Executive Curator of Forestry and Conservation at the museum, has very little spare time; however, in the course of a year he and his staff deal directly with enough children to make a connected human chain reaching across the entire state of Kansas.

ARMY TRAINEES TO GET CREDIT FOR WORK HERE

Files Arranged To Keep Progress Of Each Student

Soldiers who will be assigned to the University for training in the army's specialized training program will be eligible to receive college credit for school work completed while here. Dr. Leo M. Chamberlain, University dean and registrar, has announced.

Separate files have been arranged where the progress of each soldier-student may be kept apart from the University regular student files. At the end of the year, the army men who have taken courses at the University may obtain college credit upon application if they certify they were graduates of an accredited high school at the time the course was taken.

Dr. James Burt Miner Succumbs Wednesday

Psychology Head, Staff Member For 22 Years

Dr. Miner had been a member of the University staff for 22 years, having been appointed in 1921. He was connected with a number of leading colleges in the country before coming here. He was an instructor at the University of Illinois, University of Iowa, University of Minnesota, and the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

Surviving are his wife, the former Jessie L. Schmitt, a son, Capt. Horace Mitchell Miner, serving with the army in North Africa; and a grandson, Stanley Miner.

His books include "Three Motor Visual and Applied Rhythms," "Delicacy and Delinquency," "Developmental Principles of Experimental Psychology," and "International Library of Psychology, Philosophy and Scientific Thought."

He organized the first psychological clinic west of Chicago at the University of Minnesota in 1908; was consultant for the Solsman Retal Training at Carnegie Institute of Technology in 1918; and was co-author of the Psychological Exchange.

Dr. Miner served as associate editor of the "Journal of Educational Psychology" and co-operating editor of the "Psychological Exchange."

In addition to his duties at the University and several others, he was for the Civil Service Board of Lexington and was a member of the Psychological Society and a former vice-president of the Psychological Association, Southern Society of Philosophy and Psychological Corporation, Sigma Xi, Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Delta Kappa, Delta Sigma Rho, and Alpha Delta Sigma.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. today at the First Methodist church. Burial will be in the Mt. Vernon cemetery.

NAVAL RESERVES TO REPORT FOR PHYSICAL EXAM

16 University Men Affected By Order Of Naval Bureau

The sixteen men who were members of the Enlisted Reserve Corps at the University last quarter and who signed their desire to enter the navy rather than the army must report at 9 a. m. March 30 to the Office of Naval Personnel in Cincinnati. For their physical examination, it was announced recently by the Bureau of Naval Personnel.

Each man must take with him his birth certificate, three letters of recommendation as to character and fitness, a 50-word resume of his life history in his own handwriting, and two photographs, 2 1/2 inches square, showing full face view and side view. If the applicant is under the age of eighteen he must bring a written consent by his parents.

If the applicant successfully passes all the requirements for naval enlistment, Colonel B. E. Brewer, who is in charge of the University's ERCC, will give him the army's discharge papers dated the day before acceptance into the navy. This will be the last opportunity for these men to enter the navy rather than the army.

Any of this group who are on the campus and want transportation to Cincinnati are asked to report to Dr. W. S. Webb, head of the physics department, who will obtain government transportation for them.

'WOMAN OF YEAR' BANQUET TITLE

"Woman of the Year" will be the theme of the annual Women's Banquet to be held at 6:30 p. m. Thursday, April 8, in the Bluegrass room of the Union building.

Entertainment for the evening will follow this general theme, and will take the form of a series of entertaining women of the year, both modern and ancient.

Tickets will be one dollar each and will go on sale every next week in the office of the dean of women and at the Union information desk. Tickets will also be distributed in the various security homes. The affair will be formal and open to all University women and their mothers.

Mortar Board Taps . . . Mortar Board, senior women's honorary, will tap pledges, announce the students whose names will be placed on their plaque, and present an award to the freshman member with the highest standing.

Crews, sophomore honorary . . . will also tap pledges, and new members of Alpha Lambda Delta, freshman scholastic honorary, will be announced.

Theta Sigma Phi, journalism honor . . . will present a plaque to the freshman journalism woman having the highest grades for the first two quarters. Phi Beta Kappa will recognize its new members, as well as all students with three standings.

Cap Presented . . . Alpha Gamma Delta will present a cap to the outstanding freshman woman and the Women's Athlete association and Phi Beta, music honorary, will each recognize their most outstanding senior member.

Barbara Rehm, president of the Women's Administrative Council . . . sponsors of the banquet, will set as toastmaster.

Army, Navy Tests Set For April 2

A scholastic aptitude test will be given Friday, April 2, at 9 a. m. in Room 102 of the Hygiene building to applicants for enlistment in Army Class A-12 or Navy V-12.

Dr. M. M. White announced yesterday, candidates selected on the basis of scores on these tests will be placed on active duty at colleges on the Army and Navy lists.

Members of the Enlisted Reserve and others interested should see Dr. White, Personnel Office, for further information.

A Temporary "30"

Private Landrum Reports On Life At Induction Center

Dear Reservists:
This business of being inducted into the Army's active list is one that does not conform to the advance notice that many of us received before leaving Kentucky. There are a few "tips" which I believe will set all the E.R.C. men and which some of us in-the-process with us had known previously. Some of the information is as follows:
1. Bring clothes enough for a week's stay—uniforms not being issued for possibly five days. Bed-room slippers are mighty handy.
2. Have a towel and soap in hand, ready for the dirt that is everywhere.
3. Don't bring an abundant supply of cigarettes for they are 12 cents per pack at the post exchange.
4. Clothes are shipped home free—baggage, camera, etc., excluded.
5. It is a good idea to have a money belt, although one can be purchased on the post. Instead of an overcoat, wear a raincoat plus a hat.
6. Carry a deck of cards, etc., or something for amusement to pass the long hours of waiting.
The stay will seem very long at Fort Hayes in spite of the actual duration; the saying goes around here that all one does is "hurry and wait."
Good luck,
PVT. BOB LANDRUM

Soldier Engineer Is All Out For Kentucky Courtesy

Dear Editor:
We have been here for over six months now, and can say we have enjoyed every minute of it. From the first open house at the Student Union to the latest dance given especially for us.
We think all who have given up evenings to be at our service, especially the co-eds. Many a soldier meets one very nice girl before very long, and then General Sherman's saying about war doesn't hold true.
Many a family has a soldier over for Sunday dinner; and this, in part, reminds him of home. If this is known as Kentucky courtesy, we're for it. We cannot thank you too much.
As most of us have just come out of basic training, this training we are now getting is very tough. But after this we may go right overseas, or stay in the states for five or six months, then overseas duty. So if we forget our manners or don't act as gentlemen at times, don't think too hard of us, as this may be our last stop in the United States.

WISE... and Otherwise

By BOB AMMONS
We strove mightily this week to think up a witty observation to open Wise and Otherwise for our final quarter, hoping it might go down in history with some of the classic phrases of Thomas Paine, Abraham Lincoln, Winston Churchill, or President Roosevelt. But struggle as we might, we could never sum up the spirit of the time in words so definitely tagged for immortality as those of a senior who wandered into Rose Street Tuesday night. Approaching four other male students, he smiled hesitantly and then greeted them:
"I'm a I-F. What are you doing here?"
But of course, war or no war, people will always get confused on registration day. There was, for instance, a sophomore girl who reported at the time when "D through E" was called, because she thought you were supposed to sign up according to your grades for the past quarter.
Over the "vacation"—all two days of it—the agriculture college's Dr. Beers made a talk on the Beveridge plan, which sounds logical to us.
Mrs. Roosevelt, we read, has donated one of her dresses to Russian Relief, in order to help clothe some destitute Russian woman. Now if she would only throw in a couple of those hats, too, she could help raise morale here at home in addition.
In New York a defense worker, logged up from drinking too much absinthe, went home and murdered his wife. Evidently absinthe doesn't make the heart grow fonder.
Major Griffin tells us that an officer should never assign a soldier to a task which he has not done himself, which should prove rather a problem for an instructor of WAACS.
After the Irish potato famine of 1850, we read, a great number of the inhabitants of the Emerald Isle came to the United States, where many of them later became policemen and politicians. That just goes to show the terrible things that can happen when an Irishman runs out of spuds.
We have just finished reading an article on the administration of Herbert Hoover, and have come to the conclusion that the round Herbie was America's original boogie-woogie bungle boy.

Goodbye To Tuesday's Kernel

Tuesday's Kernel has gone to war.
The Board of Publications has yielded to the press of wartime conditions and recommended that only one edition of the student paper be published each week.
It had been the hope of The Kernel staff and the journalism department that the handwriting on the wall could be ignored for the remainder of the year. But a careful consideration of the facts has made us realize that the move is necessary immediately if The Kernel is to remain on a sound financial basis.
Along with the problems of finance occasioned by the loss in circulation and resultant loss in advertising revenue comes a state of emergency in the print shop. The Kernel print shop has maintained a policy of employing students. Almost all of these students have already received calls to the armed forces. It has been found impossible to hire sufficient mechanical workers to replace them.

The idea of putting out two smaller papers, tabloids, each week was given much thought, but mechanical difficulties vetoed the plan.
The Kernel has for a long time dreamed of the day when it could take its place in the ranks of schools publishing a daily newspaper. The fulfillment of this dream was not far off when war broke out.
When the war is over and the campus is back to normal we look forward to the return of Tuesday's Kernel and the possible birth of Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday editions.

And The War Fund Comes To Life

The University Student War Fund has finally come to life. After a year of the obscurity which only projects themselves with enthusiasm by the students and then forgotten can know, the Student War Fund has been given a life-giving shot in the arm.
Several weeks ago an investigation was made into the status of the Fund. The history of the Fund from its birth in a Kernel editorial to its recognition by an SGA bill establishing a committee to administer it was traced.
The Fund was to be the answer to University students' desire to make an important contribution to the war effort. The money in the fund was to be placed in defense bonds and held for the duration. After the war, the money from the sale of the bonds was to be used as an assistance fund for students wishing to return to the University for study.
Organizations were to give affairs "for the War Fund."
We brought these facts to life then and do so again today to remind the students that such a thing as the Student War Fund exists. Our last effort met with little success. We pointed out that the students of the University had failed again. The students agreed by their silence that they had.

The proceeds from The Kernel scrap drive of last fall have been lying in a safe for months waiting to be contributed to the War Fund. The money was never put into the Fund because we could never locate it. The SGA president reported no knowledge of money in the Fund. The Comptroller had no record of the Fund.
In a last determined effort to make the University Student War Fund a living project, The Kernel has taken the $47.71 which it realized from the scrap drive to the Comptroller's office and, on its own initiative, opened an account in the name of the Fund.
The necessity for such a fund has been brought home to us in the past few weeks with the departure of a great part of the male enrollment for the armed forces. Some of these men will be unable to continue their education after the war unless a full-blown Student War Fund is at hand to help out.
Certainly we who are left behind could do this little bit for those who have gone to fight for all of us. The Kernel has made the first move. It is up to the students of the University to keep the ball rolling.

What Goes On There

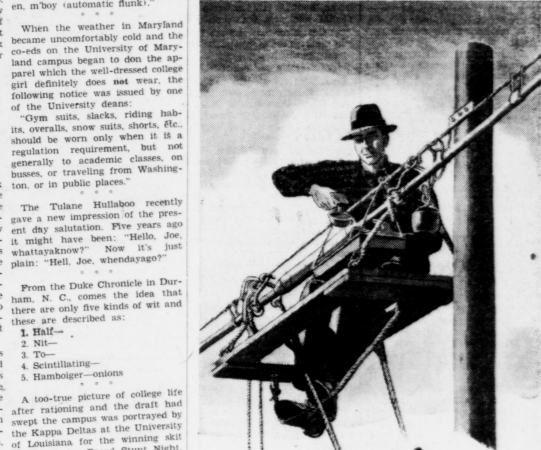

By JANET EDWARDS
From Temple University in Philadelphia comes the report that one of the professors skipped classes too much. One of the students of the class chalked up this message on the board for him: "Sorry, Prof. We couldn't wait! That makes seven, m'boy (automatic flunk)."
When the weather in Maryland became uncomfortably cold and the co-eds on the University of Maryland campus began to don the apparel which the well-dressed college girl definitely does not wear, the following notice was issued by one of the University deans:
"Coat suits, slacks, riding habits, overalls, snow suits, shorts, etc., should be worn only when it is a general to academic classes, on buses, or traveling from Washington, or in public places."
The Tulane Hullabaloo recently gave an impression of the present day salutation. Five years ago it might have been: "Hello, Joe, whattaya'ya' do?" Now it's just plain: "Hell, Joe, whattaya'ya' do?"
From the Duke Chronicle in Durham, N. C., comes the idea that there are only five kinds of wit and these are described as:
1. Half-
2. To-
3. To-
4. Scintillating-
5. Hamboogie-onions

A Second Chance Comes For The United States

EDITOR'S NOTE:—This is the first half of an article on "My Plan for the Post-War World" which was the subject of the Literary Society price of $200, on the evening of March 15, 1943, at the University of Kentucky. The successful contestant, Bob Landrum, is a former editor of The Kernel and a senior in the ROTC.
It is a rare occasion in history when a nation—and especially when the world as a whole—is given a second chance. It is a rare and remarkable privilege for a nation to be able to turn back in its footsteps and correct the errors of its past.
Today that second chance has come for the United States.
We are living in a sick world. Something has gone wrong — I don't see how anyone can deny it. Even before this last war started, the cops were slipping; things were beginning to crack up.
As I read, and as I look around me, I can't help but feel that things are out of joint, that the world is staggering under in the dark looking for something it can't find. I can't help but feel that something is basically wrong with a world which is steep within 25 years of the greatest war in its history, that a depression which three large groups of people and nations into poverty for ten years, and then a second war of such proportions that the first looks like a back-yard snow fight in comparison.
These three catastrophes were not caused by any natural disaster, such as a famine or drought, but by men and the systems that men have organized.
Peace Not Inevitable
I have no illusions that things are going to change for the better at the close of the present war. I have no reason to believe that even an Allied victory in the present war necessarily means the end of the trouble. I have no reason to hope for peace and security in my time just because my country and her allies manage to defeat the forces of dictatorship on the battlefield.
I can not forget that once before the nations of the world had an opportunity to work together and solve the problems that faced them — and they failed. I can not forget that the United States once before had an opportunity to take the leadership to bring some sort of order out of the chaos which reigned — for the first time in history.

But also I can not forget that we have been given another chance.
At a tremendous price—a price almost beyond belief—we are purchasing a reprieve. We have stepped with heads up into a war which is bound to throw this nation into chaos and turmoil for years after it is over, and we have mortgaged the nation for a generation—all for this second chance.
I join the forces of the nations of the world to work together with each other instead of against each other. If we fail this time, I am afraid it may be the last.
World Already Unified
It is absurd to talk about whether we want a unified world or not—we've already got it. It is useless to argue whether the world should be closely knit together—it is. Advances in technology have brought about a dependence between nations for their very livelihood, which is beyond any changing now.
If we are to have anything short of chaos from now on, it must be through order. The only choice for us now is to choose what kind of an order we want.
The Fascist nations want a world order, but they want one based on suppression of all individuality to support that order. I believe it is possible to attain an order based—not on suppression—but on fairness, freedom, and opportunity for all.
A Fascist victory in this war, I believe, will mean a blind, unjust control of the war effort. I do not believe that an Allied victory in it, itself means a world of security, liberty, and opportunity.
Still A Possibility
I believe the United Nations can win this war, and I believe that after the war the world can be organized in a manner consistent with the democratic ideals of this nation and of myself. Even today, I am beginning to lose hope that it will happen. In addition to the war, a statement would have, it would also serve as a guide post for the days of confusion after the war.

Among the points which I believe must be included are the following:
Supra-National Authority
First, I believe there must be some form of supra-national authority. The era of the sovereign nation-state came to a close in 1929, that is, the principle of international anarchy—in which every nation had the right to pursue whatever policy was best for it, regardless of the effect on other nations—collapsed in the rubble of the Great Depression. The principle of non-interference, which was rampant in the 1920's, the welter of competing national interests — the Me First attitude — were all very mean when a nation was a unit unto itself. But the confusion that resulted just couldn't mix with the economically unified world we have now. No longer can the British Empire sit aloof from the rest of the world, grasping for markets and thumbing her nose when her colonies plead for industries of their own, no longer can Italy consider Ethiopia "her market," nor can the United States tuck South America under her wing as her own little chick! The Dutch can't reserve the East Indies for their own bailiwick.
Forces greater than nations — greater than agreements or constitutions — are at work. A growing, expanding world can not be hemmed in by treaties and scraps of paper. The seams have burst three times in 25 years, and another attempt to sew them up can only mean that they will burst again.
I do not mean that I want an international bazaar-free. We must have an open world trade, but it must be planned; not a haphazard, pot-luck, come-what-may free-for-all of competition, but a trade plan for the whole world, for balance and cooperation.
The second principle on which the world must be based, I propose, is what President Roosevelt has called "freedom from want" for every man in every nation. The President set his goal at "a healthy peacetime life." Vice President Saved! Tons of tin!

For years telephone cables have been spliced in a very satisfactory way. But the solder joint contained 40 per cent war-walnut tin.
So Bell System men devised a new type of joint which saves up to 80 per cent of the solder. A "Victory Joint" they called it.
The new technique has been adopted throughout the System with the result that 600,000 pounds of tin and an even greater amount of lead can be saved in a normal year's construction.
This is another example of the nation-wide cooperation of Bell System people in fulfilling their ideal—service to the nation in peace or war.

Crowd Of 4,000 Jams Alumni Gym To Honor Men Leaving University

Approximately 4,000 students, faculty members, and parents thronged Alumni gymnasium March 12 to honor and recognize the 800 men who were leaving the University for active service. In the school's first two-hour convocation.

Following the regimental parade in which all members of the ROTC and other men who left at the end of the winter quarter participated, the entire group assembled in the gymnasium. During the course of the program, they were recognized by President Herman L. Donovan for the University. Governor Keen Johnson for the state and board of trustees. Dr. W. S. Webb for the faculty. Col. E. E. Brewer for the armed forces, and Robert H. Hillenmeyer for the students.

The benediction was pronounced by Dr. Jesse Hermann, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church. "America the Beautiful," "Oward Christian Soldiers," "On, On, On, K.," and "The Star Spangled Banner" were sung by the congregation. Miss Mildred Lewis and accompanied by the University Little Symphony under the direction of Alexander Caparus.

Anita Roos . . . is the newly elected president of Phi Beta.

Anita Roos Elected To Head Phi Beta

Anita Roos, junior music major from Lexington, has been elected president of Phi Beta, national honorary and professional music, dramatic, and dance fraternity for women. She succeeds Wanda Austin, Miami, Fla.

Other officers chosen were: President, Mabel Gumm, Lexington, secretary, Kathleen Hagan, Ft. Mitchell, treasurer, Anne Carter Pells, Russellville, assistant treasurer, Helen Lipscomb, Lexington, historian, Ruth Pace, Ridgeway, Va., door-keeper.

The new officers will be inducted by the retiring president at an installation meeting at 8 p. m., Monday, at the Union building.

The flag, which now hangs in the Great Hall of the Union building, contains a star and the number 3852 which represents former students now in service. A large gold star with the number 32 indicates those killed in active duty. The numerals will be changed periodically so that the flag may be kept up to date.

"You are in a crusade, a crusade for freedom," Dr. Donovan added. "Half a million men will go out to defend their country and it is spiritual movement designed to bring forth a better world."

Governor Speaks For State
Governor Johnson expressed the pride of the state in the men who were leaving and in their "fine attitude." "You have a rendezvous duty, a blind date with destiny, and as you depart you are prepared to offer your life as a sacrifice," he said.

Expressing the theme of several of the speeches, he declared, "Only those who are not afraid to die are fit to live."

"You bear with you the best wishes of the faculty. They will follow you in your further achievements; they will pray for your success; and they will welcome you back when the war is over," Dr. Webb stated.

His closing words, which he described as "rite but sincerely expressive," occasioned the greatest ovation of the entire program. He said simply but effectively, "God-speed, and may you ever have His blessing."

Men Informed About Orders
Colonel Brewer informed the military students that he had learned by long-distance telephone that they would receive their orders in a week or ten days. These orders will be sent to the students' homes, he said.

"Every nation must at some time defend itself against outlaw nations," he remarked. "However horrible war is, we, the American people, prefer it to slavery and having our acts dictated by foreign rulers."

He urged the men to learn and practice the ethical code of the armed forces, to learn all that is about modern military science, and to never make the mistake of underestimating an enemy.

"Happy Landings!"

"Happy landings! And when you are over Tokyo or Berlin drop a block buster for your old PMS!" he concluded, "and don't forget to get a military haircut before you report."

Rupp Predicts Basketball Team To Survive War

Basketball will probably survive war shortages in spite of the fact that only one "veteran" of this year's team will be in school next season. Coach Adolph Rupp has predicted.

Wilbur Schu, who as a freshman saw some service as a reserve, will return next year. He reported for military service but was rejected because of defective hearing and was reclassified as 4-F. All other members of the 1943 squad are now in active service.

Rupp revealed that several high school players under military age have indicated they would like to enter the University and that a team could be built around them.

TEN RUPPMEN GIVEN LETTERS AT DINNER

Coach Says That 1943 Team Was One Of His Best

Ten members of the Wildcat basketball team were awarded letters recently at a dinner given in their honor by the Alumni association.

Those awarded K's by Bernie Shively, athletic director, were Marvin Akers, Jeffersonville, Ind.; Bill Barlow, North Vernon, Ind.; Melvin Brewer, New Albany, Ind.; Mulford Davis, Orestes, Ind.; Ed Lander, Lexington; Paul Noel, Midway; Clyde Parker, Christy; Kenneth Rollins, Wickliffe; Milton Tico, Bristol, Va.; and Carl Althaus, Louisville, since Althaus is now with the Army Air corps, the letter was awarded in absentia.

Reward Managers
Robert Landrum, manager, and E. S. Penick, junior manager, were also awarded letters. Freshman Managers Robert Hays and Roy Wallace were awarded numerals.

Coach Adolph Rupp declared that this year's team was one of the best he had ever coached but that injuries and bad luck kept it from going through the season undefeated.

Noel Praised
He praised Paul Noel as being the best freshman eager he had ever coached and ranked him next to Leroy Edwards as the most gifted player ever to grace the Wildcat hardwood.

US's UKs
John Calvin Cook, Frankfort, recently received his second lieutenant's commission and the wings of a bombardier at Maxwell Army Flying school, Rowlett, N. M. The lieutenant's commission is the result of a comprehensive course in bombing and aerial tactics. He will be assigned to another post for further duty.

Lieut. David A. Brown, Paducah, and Capt. Tom R. Taylor, Morgantown, have completed a nine week pre-flight training course in four and a half weeks at San Antonio Aviation Cadet center, Texas. These

Six Fencers Chosen To Receive Athletic Awards

Six members of the Wildcat fencing team were chosen by the University athletic committee to receive small K's, the award given for participation in minor sports.

Those who received the letters were Dee Akers, Carrollton; William Carroll, Port Chester, N. Y.; John Hubbard, Louisville; Seymour Pudding, Bronx, N. Y.; John Swift, Lexington; and Friber Thompson, Kings.

14 FARMERS FINISH COURSE Relief Provided Labor Shortage

Fourteen more Kentucky farmers will finish a short course at the University College of Agriculture this week, in the third course given by the college this year to help relieve farm labor shortage. The men are from Russell, Laurel, Whitley, and Clay counties.

Their training included modern dairying, such as the operation of milking machines, the production of clean milk and the care and feeding of cows and calves. Only one man in the group had ever used a milking machine, but all will have learned how to use them in the course.

Another phase of the training included the operation, maintenance and repair of farm machinery. Riding plows, grain drills, side-draw rakes, mowers, and engine-driven cutters were among the equipment used in the course. All will learn how to drive tractors.

Since most of the men will seek work on general farms, the short course gives training in handling beef cattle, sheep, hogs and poultry.

Officers have already won their commissions in the air corps or other branches of the army. They qualified for pilot training and were sent from their former posts to the center for classification and pre-flight training.

Alie C. Peed, Jr., Flemingsburg, has been recommended to the Commanding General, Camp Crowder, Missouri, for consideration for Signal Corps Officers Candidate school, by the commanding officer of the Lexington Signal depot.

Radio, photography, and flying are Peed's hobbies. He played in the University band. Prior to the time he entered Signal Corps radio training, he was a "ham" operator. He enrolled in the basic Mechanic Learner course at Lafayette Trade school, Lexington, March 13, 1942, and has recently completed the advanced training at the signal depot.

Private Larry Brannon, graduate of the department of journalism in June, 1942, visited in Lexington last week. He has just returned from desert maneuvers in California and is on his way to Camp San Luis Obispo.

His address is: Pfc. Larry Brannon, Hq. Btry, 53rd. F. A. Bn, Camp San Luis Obispo, California.

Lieut. Charles Edward Robinson, Lexington, has been on duty in North Africa since November, according to word received yesterday.

Lieutenant Robinson received his commission at the University in 1941 and graduated in mechanical engineering in 1942. He entered active service in July, 1942.

Bryon H. Pumphrey has been assigned as an Assistant Red Cross Field director at Muroc Bomb and Gunnery range, Muroc Lake, Calif., according to a recent announcement.

Pumphrey received his LL. B. degree from the University in 1933. He assumes his new duties after an intensive training course in Washington, D. C., and an internship at the Presidio of San Francisco.

KERNEL SPORTS

The Sporting Way

By ROY STEINFORT

Big leaguers are being troubled somewhat by the draft and what-not, but you should hear Bernie Shively's tales of woe concerning the baseball Wildcats who start the spring grind this afternoon.

A la war style, the spring sports program moves into what might be a very faltering high gear when the baseballers and tracksters start to uncoil their muscles on Stoll Field.

At 3:15, towering Bernie Shively will move his candidates onto the muddy diamond for their first session of the season, and shortly thereafter Ab Kirwan will don the cinders with his thinnies.

Both Shively and Kirwan ask any students who have any talent in baseball or track to report this afternoon.

Baseball at the present seems destined to carry on, but track is still a question mark. Coach Shively is in fair shape. He has a catcher, Bob Herbert, and a veteran infield to start with, but the track story is different. Kirwan hasn't many men back from last season's squad.

Besides Backstopper Herbert, Shively has Milt Tico at first base, Frank "Piggy" Bauer at the keystone, Phil Catchin at short, and Noah Mullins at the third base corner.

In the outfield, he has Gus Green, a letterman from last season's nine. Several other students have announced that they will participate, so the horseshoe situation could be much worse than it is.

Ed Lander, a pitcher from last season's club, is in school, but he's nursing a bad leg received in baseball. So that leaves him out of the picture for a while.

The baseball schedule hasn't been announced as yet, but the tentative program calls for a game the second week in April against a Southeastern Conference foe. This means the 'Cats will have to hustle.

Dean Alvin E. Evans Writes Lead Article In Law Journal

Dr. Alvin E. Evans, dean of this college, is the author of the leading article in a book review in the March issue of the Kentucky Law Journal, now off the press.

Mary Barton Jackson, who received an LL. B. degree from that college in 1942, and Glenn D. Morrow, research assistant in the University Bureau of Business Research, are contributors of featured articles.

John Yeager, second year law student from Newport; Carlton Davis, second year law student from Lexington; and Henry Bramble, third year law student from Carlisle, wrote shorter articles. Helen Stephenson, Danville; Robert Sprague, Lebanon; John Howe, Alexandria; and Robert Hammond, Lexington, have written notes and comments.

The Kentucky Law Journal is published quarterly by the law college. Heading the editorial board are Roy Moreland, faculty editor; Robert Sprague, editor-in-chief; Robert Hammond, associate editor;

in Curling, As in Bowling, Twist Of Wrist Makes the Difference

"Drawing" her along when she's "dying."

BY ART BRONSON
ONE thought, when we get one, turn right into another, and ever since they clamped down on bobby pins, we've been thinking about curling, a game that's pretty neglected by the public-humoring press.

A game of skill and science, it is, dating from around 1511, when a group of kill-cold Scots tossed stones around on the frozen lochs.

You've got four men on a team. The captain is called a skip. Each man throws—except is really the word—two stones down a 45-foot lane of ice toward a tee of concentric circles in the center of which is a sort of bull's-eye under the ice, called a ditch.

As the player throws, he gives his wrist a twist, thus making the stone spin. Experts can make them curl—get it?—at just about any point they please. Say you've got to bypass a guarding stone to knock a second one out of the tee area and you can see only about two inches of the second stone. That's where that twist is important.

After the throw, one member of the team will jig along ahead of the scoring stone, sweeping like mad to remove ice particles and so draw the stone in one direction or the other. That's the part that's hard to believe in.

After the two opposing pairs of players at each end have made their two throws apiece, the number of stones of one team closer to the ditch than the closest stone of the other team becomes the score.

THE game takes time. Bobby Jones never lined up a game with greater deliberation than a curler about to curl.

Canada counts her curlers in tens of thousands. In the United States they're in lesser numbers, abounding mostly in the border states. In the international bonspiels, Canada, as you might guess, outclasses us most of the time.

The stones are of a certain type of ocean granite found off the coast of Scotland.

About a thousand government employees turn out a million War Bonds a day to meet your demand.

The Marines have just established a new feminine auxiliary. Somewhat revolutionary is the fact that the auxiliary is called the "Marines."
