but it will not be because the art work is not characterized by creative ability.

LIQUOR CONTROL SPEAKER

University students and members of the faculty are fortunate in having the opportunity of hearing an authority on the liquor systems of liquor control. Ben H. Spence, noted journalist, investigator, and speaker of Toronto, Canada, will discuss that subject Tuesday night in Patterson hall.

Mr. Spence is touring the colleges of this country and his revelation on the control of liquor by Canadian provinces has been well received. Here is what Pres. George B. Cowen of Colgate University said: "A very worthwhile address. We were very much pleased with him."

Pres. A. H. Upham of Miami University discloses the ability of Mr. Spence in handling his subject by the following words: "Mr. Spence handled himself with great cleverness and resourcefulness in the give and take of discussion that followed his formal presentation and carried by the plaudits of an admiring auditor: "I did that same thing for 15 years."

The distinguished Canadian is the guest speaker of the Y. M. C. A., W. C. A. and the International Relations group. In bringing Mr. Spence here at a time when such a subject is of paramount issue with thinking persons, these campus organizations have presented the university with a progressive step toward better understanding.

Technically both men are well qualified to fulfill the duties of an art editor. Craddock, senior in the department of journalism, is incumbent art editor of The Kernel and originator of "Quis Vadit?" His work, showing at national exhibitions, has drawn favorable comment from critics throughout the country.

For the last four years, at least, Kentuckian editors have not been qualified for the position either from that of political training. Under the present system of selection the sole requisite of a Kentuckian editor is that he have sufficient political backing to secure the position. But political backing does not imply competence, and as a result, yearbooks have suffered.

Kentuckian art editors receive financial compensation for their efforts. All yearbook posts carry with them the highly prized but intangible something titled "campus honor." Nevertheless it is rare, indeed, that such a luscious "political plum" as a lucrative position is available. Consequently the office of art editor has been offered heretofore only to those persons of the same political faith as that of the donor.

Of all the varied materials going into compilation of voluminous books as the Kentuckian none is so important as the art work. Disregard for grammatical construction of reading matter might be easily overlooked. But crude and inadequate illustrations never escape condemnation. The eyes of a child can discern their worthlessness. Illustrative matter and its arrangement can either embellish a yearbook's appearance or diminish it not utterly destroy, its otherwise pleasing effect. Art work generally employed in Kentuckians has neither been carefully prepared nor suitable. Illustrations that have not been representative of creative abilities available at the university.

Therefore, it is all the more laudable that Kentuckian editors for one year, at least, have discarded political tactics in so far as selection of art editors is concerned. The 1933 Kentuckian may not be the best volume of its kind that has been published at the university,

DOTES AND ANTI-DOTES

By LAWRENCE HERRON

Lucille Myers, junior in the department of art, is bothered about her creative abilities. Painting a campus scene, the lady was interrupted by the plaudits of an admiring auditor: "I did that same thing for 15 years."

William Jackowitz, senior department of hygiene, cast the first ballot last Thursday. He's an Independent.

Election officials determined to prevent noon hour stuffing of the ballot boxes posted themselves in front of the glass-doored office of the dean of men. Watched the boxes but suffered from lack of nourishment. President McVey leaving his office next door ogled them as they munchered their hastily obtained sandwiches.

Although The Kernel representative tried to prevent stuffing of the ballot boxes, he succeeded only in part. One faction adopted the crude method of casting a number of ballots folded inside of another—were discovered. Other faction used more finesse; many eds and etes, would be voters, were turned away from the polls—according to council registration lists their votes had already been cast.

One ette, asked by registration officers to name her college, chirped "I'm an Allagum."

Student Council members for the most part will never be efficient ballot box caretakers. Either from fear of interfering with operations of their own party or of hurting someone's feelings, the eds show a remarkable disinterest in challenging even bulky-looking ballots.

And as Kernel representative, I didn't get along so well with my party affiliations. Brothers didn't appreciate The Kernel's interest in the election.

One ette caught in the act of stuffing the ballot box squealed on her co-workers. Said ettes of a certain sorority had filled out flocks of ballots the night before election day.

Saturday morning, Dellaw Bob Pate received a letter from an admirer—picture cut from Kampus Kat and captioned, "So you was a campus politician, huh?" Although ballot boxes are provided with staples for locking, Thursday found no locks attached. Boxes merely had been wired shut.

I want to know about Guignol. On either side of the stage is a masque; one on right characterizes Tragedy; one on left, Comedy. Printed on the program cover the masques are reversed. Which is correct?

Guignol players are having their troubles. Woodson Knapp, suffering with chronic appendicitis throughout production nights, was operated on Monday. Marian Gallaway contracted a severe cold, and now, come rumors, that George White Pithian also has undergone an operation. Rumors concerning Mr. Pithian also abound, although he did miss his first hour class Monday—sleep, through it.

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes. "It's toasted" That package of mild Luckies

Cosmopolitan Club President Has Had Thrill-filled Career

By FRANK B. BORRIES. Exiled while still a youth, twice shot by Bulgarian soldiers, president of the Bulgarian Society for Prohibition, a speaker whose address incited a riot that almost cost him and his colleagues their lives, and finally driven to flee for his life from political enemies who surrounded his family, confiscated their property and drove them from the country, that is the tale of Twentynedelkoff, student at the university, and incumbent president of the Cosmopolitan club.

In the face of these overwhelming catastrophes, he decided to come to the University of Kentucky, of which he had heard from a colleague. He arrived in Lexington with very little money and few personal possessions, and unable to speak a word of English. The result of his efforts is indicated by the excellent manner in which he is now able to speak and the many important positions he had held as a student in the university. He would rather be a normal boy and mix with the rest of the 'bunch' than anything else he knows of, so he says. His attitude is the same as that of the average student. He is in favor of all fraternities and societies, likes athletics, and is deeply concerned with American politics. His opinion of the moral standard of students is that it is without reproach. Geographical Survey Funds Are Curtailed. U. K. Geology Department Is Expected to Continue Work on $3,000 Per Year.

Nat B. Sewell, state inspector and examiner, in a report to Governor Laffoon, stated that the curtailment of the services of the Kentucky Geographical Survey at the session of the legislature, 'will be a distinct loss to the state.' Mr. Sewell believes that the general assembly acted with customary legislative haste in abolishing the survey, and expressed his belief that reorganization instead of abolition would have been the wiser policy.

The Bureau of Mineral and Topographic survey was created by the same act, at the university with Dr. McFarland of the university as its head. He will take the place of Dr. Willard R. Jilison who resigned as state geologist on February 12, 1932. The geology department of the university was appropriated $3,000 per year, and given the task of performing the duties and functions of the old survey that had been costing between $50,000 and $100,000 yearly. Due to the enforced curtailment of state expenses, this has already been put in effect for a period of two years. Mr. Sewell hopes that in two years the new legislature will be in a position to place the geological functions and duties back into the hands of the active state department of geology.

Relations Club Has Special Program. A program of special interest to all politically inclined students has been arranged for the next meeting of the International Relations Club to be held at 4 p. m. Thursday, November 3, 1932 in Room 204 of the Administration building. A four-sided debate concerning the plank dealing with foreign relations in the platform of each of the four major political parties has been prepared.

It was reported doing nicely by attendants at the St. Joseph's hospital where he underwent an appendicitis operation yesterday morning at 9 a. m. Stage Tradition Is Upheld By Player

One more bit of evidence that Gungul players are genuine 'trouper' was produced when Woodson Knight, a member of the cast of 'Once In A Lifetime,' shown at the Gungul last week, upheld the tradition that the show must go on, and deferred an operation for chronic appendicitis until Monday morning.

What is Cross Blending?

An Artist might explain it this way... Let's say you're painting clouds. You've got your primary colors here on the palette. But you haven't the clouds until you blend certain colors into the special tone you want. This is very much what happens in making a good cigarette. And I gather that what Chesterfield means by Cross-Blending is what an artist does with colors. Their Domestic and Turkish tobaccos—many varieties of each—are the primary colors. They blend and cross-blend these tobaccos until they get the special tone they want—in other words, the Chesterfield flavor. And just as each color you use acts on the others to change and enrich them, so each Chesterfield tobacco partakes of the fine qualities of every other. You 'meld' different kinds to get a better kind. That's Cross-Blending!

ed on to handle it as well as any player in the territory south of the Mason-Dixon line. The other position, left vacant by the failure of Charles Worthington to return to school, will be harder to fill. Coach Rupp plans to drill Yates at this position and if the former center can play the position with the power of Wildcat machine will be increased greatly. Kercheval and Davis are expected to be called on to change to work at this position. Kercheval, while a star of the gridiron, is a newcomer to the position area but Rupp holds high hopes for his development into a great defensive guard. Davis has been a potential threat last season and he should prove a steady and dependable man this year.

If George Yates is chosen to play guard post the attack of the Wildcat machine will be greatly aided and varied. Rupp will be able to interchange Yates, Sale and Demosiey at the center circle, which will result in a much greater and more deceptive offensive play. All three men will be used in the pivot spot as all are experts with the one handed twist shot.

This year the Cats should have a very successful season; they have the material for a fine team and what is more important they have the reserves. Rupp will be able to place two very good teams on the court and with the potential strength revealed in the past they should be good enough for anything on their game card.

This year's schedule calls for twenty-one games, nine of which are to be played at Lexington. The Cats will engage in one international game, and the most dignified and organized conferences. The trips will take the squad from the foothills of the Rocky Mountains in the west. They will pasture on the cold shores of the Great Lakes and in the warm, sultry delta region of the father of waters. They will be attacking one of the nations hardest schedules, and the most difficult one among Southern Conference schools.

The international encounter will be staged in Lexington against the University of Mexico five from Mexico City. These boys are not for the faint hearted, and they will give opponents a battle from start to finish. This is the first time that a Kentucky team has scheduled a battle with a team from outside our own national boundaries.

Besides Southern Conference foes, Kentucky will chose its opponents from the S. I. A., the West Virginia Conference, the Big Ten, and the Missouri Valley Conference. Georgetown, coached by the former Kentucky star, Carey Spicer, will be the S. I. A. team that the Cats meet. The West Virginia opponent will be Marshall College of Huntington, W. Va. In the Big Ten the Big Blue will engage the University of Chicago and Ohio State. This is the first time in few years that Big Ten teams have appeared on the Cat card. Creighton will be the Missouri Valley foe.

The Creighton team won the championship of their conference last season, and was rated by the basketball guide as the greatest team in the nation. The Nebraska boys will be equally as strong this year and if the Cats are able to turn the tables over they will be given a high national rating.

The Cats have scheduled nearly all of the important teams in the Southern Conference. They play fourteen conference tilts during the course of the season. The biggest attraction of their conference season will be the two games with Tulane university in New Orleans when they are scheduled to dedicate the new Tulane Field House.

The complete schedule for the coming season is as follows:

'Cats Fall Victims Of Crimson Tide

Ellis Johnson, sent into the game after Ralph Kercheval was injured on the initial kickoff, gave his all in an attempt to rout the ancient jinx. Ellis probably the best game he has ever played since becoming a member of the Wildcats.

The game was almost over and Kentucky received the kickoff, but unable to gain, punted to the Tide. The Tide began another drive that had reached the three-yard line as the game ended. The offense in the game was strictly running plays; the Tide tried four passes, all of which were batted down by the Big Blue, and the Cats tried no passes at all, because in case they were intercepted by any of the fast-tide backs, Chappelle, Walker, Holley or Hughes, it was very likely that these men would go for a score.

The Tide, carrying the major brunt of the offensive activities, gained 22 yards from scrimmage and 60 for the Blue. The Red Elephants made 15 first downs to two for Kentucky. The game was one of the cleanest played this year on Stoll field, with Kentucky receiving only 15 yards of penalties and the Tide 20 yards. Bub Walker, flashing halfback, and Joe Frye, guard, were seriously injured and were removed to the Good Samaritan hospital during the game. Frye suffered a broken rim and Walker a fractured tibia. Both were described by physicians to be in as good condition as possible when the Tide left Lexington late Saturday night.
