

UK Library Has Abe's Marriage License

By ED VAN HOOK

Would you like to see the marriage license of Abraham Lincoln and Lexington's Mary Todd today, the 151st birthday anniversary of Mr. Lincoln? You need not leave the campus if you are so inclined.

Go to the Margaret I. King Library, climb to the top floor to the UK Archives Department and ask to be shown the document and soon you will be examining a framed paper, under glass, which salutes you:

"Know ye, that License and Permission has been granted to any Minister of the Gospel . . ." and ends by authorizing the "marriage of Abraham Lincoln and Mary Todd."

The document in the UK Archives is something of a prize since it is an authorized and contemporary copy issued sometime during the 1840's at the time of the settlement of the estate of Mary Todd's father.

On the back of the UK copy is a letter from W. H. Herndon, one of Lincoln's early law partners. The letter, datgd Aug. 17, 1866, explains that the certificate was found among Herndon's collection of old Lincoln papers.

The certificate was presented to Herndon by Adam Grigsby in 1866. Grigsby was a companion and old friend of Lincoln's.

Abraham Lincoln and Mary Todd were married in Sangamon County, Springfield, Ill., on Nov. 4, 1842, according to the document.

Also to be seen in the Lincoln papers in the Archives is a letter written by H. Robinson, governor of Kentucky, and dated March, 1863.

The letter introduces a Mr. Edward S. Theobald to President Lincoln . . . as the governor's personal agent and attorney for settling claims with the U.S. government."

An original signature by Lincoln, dated March 19, 1863, is preserved on an envelope, which Lincoln used to refer Theobald to Secretary of War, Edward M. Stanton.

Stanton, on the same envelope, refers Theobald to a Brig. Gen. Ketchum. The envelope also bears the signature of Secretary Stanton.

The Lincolns remained in Springfield, Ill., until 1861, when he went to Washington as President of the United States.

Four boys were born to Abe and Mary and only Robert Todd Lincoln lived to maturity. Robert died on July 26, 1926, after having lived a life filled with his own political ventures. He once served as secretary of war and also as minister to England.

The Lincoln family story is filled with tragedy. One son, Willie, died in 1862 while the family lived in the White House. President Lincoln was assassinated by John Wilkes Booth in 1865 just after the close of the Civil War, and Tad (Thomas) Lincoln, another son died in 1871.

Apparently all this was too much for the president's widow, for a certain mental instability soon became more pronounced. She was adjudged insane and spent some months in a private sanitarium at Batavia, Ill., in 1875.

After this, she was declared on a second trial to be sane and again capable of managing her estate.

ID Cards

Full time students who have not received their ID cards for the second semester should report to the University Photographer's office on the second floor of the Journalism Building during office hours Friday.

Serkin To Play Chopin Preludes In Piano Concert Here Monday

Rudolf Serkin, pianist, will feature 24 of Chopin's Preludes in a concert starting at 8:15 Monday night in Memorial Coliseum.

Serkin, sponsored by the Central Kentucky Concert and Lecture Series, is an American citizen, but his background makes him seem like a citizen of many countries.

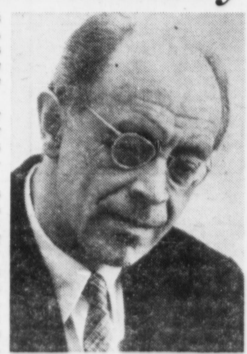

The program will include "Sonata in E-Flat Major" by Josef Haydn and "Sonata in C Minor" by Ludwig Beethoven.

Of Russian parentage, he was born in 1903 in Eger, Bohemia (now Czechoslovakia). He was educated in Vienna and at the age of 12 made his debut with the Vienna Symphony.

He began his professional career in his mid-teens in Berlin under the guidance of the late violinist Adolf Busch, whose daughter Serkin later married.

The pianist is head of the Curtis Institute piano department in Philadelphia and is artistic director of the Marlboro School of Music.

Serkin concentrates his concert activities in North America and Europe, although he has played in South America, Iceland, Israel, and India and has more than 30 Columbia Masterworks records to his credit.

Gilliam Is Selected Rex Of Mardi Gras

Dr. R. D. Gilliam of the College of Law was selected as the most popular professor on campus and rex of the thirteenth annual Mardi Gras Dance.

Dr. Gilliam, who was selected in an open election held Monday and Tuesday, will crown the Mardi Gras Queen at the dance following the Notre Dame game.

Dr. Maurice A. Hatch of the English department took second place in the professorial popularity contest.

Queen of the Mardi Gras will be selected from five finalists chosen in an all campus election Wednesday and Thursday.

The names of the finalists in the Mardi Gras queen contest were released by the Newman Club late last night.

They are Cynthia Beadell, sponsored by Alpha Gamma Rho; Betty

Hall, Alpha Delta Pi; Barbara Harkey, Chi Omega; June Moore, Tau Kappa Epsilon; and Nancy Clay, Kappa Alpha Theta.

The Mardi Gras, sponsored by the Newman Club, will be held from 9 to 12 p.m. and the music will be provided by the 12-piece orchestra of Ray Rector.

The candidates, in evening gowns, will appear before a panel of judges Saturday morning and be evaluated on poise, personality, beauty, and general appearance.

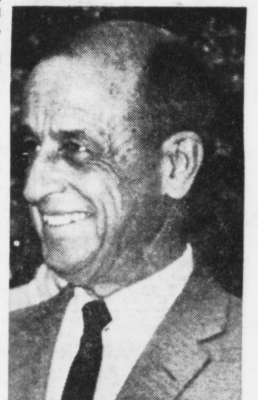

Winner of the five finalists will be presented as queen Saturday night and crowned by the rex during intermission.

Also during intermission the costume contest will be presented. The theme of the contest is TV Personalities and the participants will be sororities, fraternities, dorms, and independents.

Entrants in the costume contest are asked to be at the SUB by 10:30 p.m.

The dance's theme will be Shari-La, which will be carried out in a far eastern atmosphere of the symbols that bring that part of the world to mind.

Tickets may be purchased at the door.

Grades May Help Choose Car Permits

The Student Congress Judiciary Committee is studying the feasibility of putting car registration privileges on a pre-determined scholastic standing, Dean L. L. Martin said yesterday.

The study, still in the planning stages, is part of a program being set up to help students help themselves scholastically.

A standing would be set, and students not attaining this standing could not have an automobile. Possible exceptions to the ruling would be married students or students living in Lexington, or those commuting from surrounding areas.

If this new ruling goes into effect it may be the incentive needed for some students to raise their standings, Dean Martin stated.

At present, any student on probation is not allowed to have an automobile.

Old Valentine Card Sentiments Are Real Eyebrow Raisers

By TONI LENNOS

Maybe you are raising an eyebrow over some of the Valentine sentiments you are reading on current cards available for your approval and selection.

Well, hold it Buster. You should see some of the suggestions on the cards dating back some 75 years ago as revealed in the collection in the Archives Department of the Margaret I. King Library.

Take this verse for example: "I can't help thinking 'How nice it would be If you would only let me!'" This breath-taking little puzzler is printed on a card which is about as pictured a handsome gentleman the size of a playing card. On it who apparently ambling through a garden.

The girl? Not one in sight so far as the illustrations go, but inside there is a covey of cupids buzzing around and sniffing flowers. Next time you are home ask your great grandmother to reveal some of the details of these 19th century Valentines. There might be quite a story to be told.

How did all this Valentine business get started anyhow?

The reference books in the library offer a number of suggestions, but the most acceptable one goes back to a very fine gentleman known as Valentine, or Valentinus, or maybe St. Valentine.

Anyhow, Mr. V's insistence on giving aid and comfort to Christians who were not especially favored in his time brought him to prison under a sentence of death by beheading.

Now Mr. Valentine wasn't one to let time drag, so while he was waiting his date with the executioner he "began a friendship with the jailer's daughter (the book says)." Finally, on the eve of the execution he wrote a farewell note to the jailer's daughter, signing it "from your Valentine."

And there you are. Valentines have been around and about almost ever since.

Six Pages Of Color To Adorn Year Book

By CHRISTA FINLEY
A new phase has been added to this year's Kentuckian in the form of six complete pages in color.

Except in 1958, when the Kyian Queen and her court were pictured in color on one page, this is the first time such a thing has been attempted in a UK yearbook.

For many years, Kentuckian staffs have tried to include color in the make up of the yearbook, but because of the high cost involved, have been unable to do so.

Without raising the price of the yearbook, this year's staff found it could have six pages, consisting of fifteen pictures, in color and still stay within their budget.

The cost of one page in regular black and white is approximately $100. The cost of the same page in color would be about $360.

The four-color process involved is supposed to have a full color range resulting in the feeling of reality. It consists of the colors black, red, blue, and yellow.

Using a three-color process would have been cheaper, but would have looked more artificial, a spokesman said.

The staff is anticipating color as a major aspect of the yearbook from now on, according to editor-in-chief Donna Lawson.

The six pages in color will feature six campus scenes, two of Herrington Lake, three of Lexington horse farms, three state park scenes, and one of Keeneland race track. These will cover all four seasons.

The scenes around campus will include a spring and fall picture of botanical gardens, one of UK football players in the stadium, a fall scene of the Patterson statue, one of a group of students changing classes, and a fall nature scene.

Besides the high cost, one of the main problems in using color, according to a staff spokesman, is that much of UK's campus is not good subject matter for color pictures.

"The reason for using color," explains Perry Ashley, faculty advisor, "is that it makes the yearbook more attractive in the first place, and we're trying to keep up with the trend of other colleges and universities."

The University of Colorado uses about sixteen pages of color, Auburn uses eight pages of water-color pictures, and Indiana University has about ten pictures in color per yearbook.

Marshall College in West Virginia uses color only in its division pages. Other colleges and universities use only one page of color pictures in various spots throughout their particular yearbooks.

Also found in this year's Kentuckian is an expanded section on the various phases of student life. This expansion will try to represent all of the student's college activities as accurately as possible.

The organization section will feature approximately 100 different groups, including all but the Greeks, who have a section of their own.

The yearbook will go to press about the middle of March, to the binders the middle of April, and should be ready for distribution around May 15.

This year's staff consists of 22 members including journalism faculty members. The students are those regularly enrolled in the yearbook practicum and other who are interested in this type of work. Donna Lawson is editor-in-chief and Bob Orndorff is managing editor of this year's Kentuckian.

Usually there is a problem in recruiting a staff. Ashley believes this may be due to the fact that many students don't realize that they can work on the yearbook even if they aren't journalism majors.

"Although all the positions are filled for this year, we'll be needing many interested students to work on the staff next fall," he continued.

The yearbook annually sponsors the Kyian Queen contest, which will be held this year on March 11. The winner will again be UK's representative in the Mountain Laurel Festival in May.

New Hope For SC

Student Congress is reorganizing. It is revising its constitution. It will spend the greater part of the semester regaining its prestige.

SC is rising to its feet after the political earthquake last spring bereft it of virtually all authority and stability. It is making a recognizable attempt to reassert itself.

In revising its constitution, the congress plans to make student government more representative, to give students a stronger voice in their own affairs, and to provide a closer contact with the administration. A major revision of the constitution will concern the election of officers, who will be chosen by the congress rather than by the student body.

It is an interesting paradox, however, that SC proposes to become more representative of the students by actually depriving them of direct participation in campus politics. It might seem that SC plans to merge with the faculty in controlling student affairs rather than representing student interests. Formerly there was a narrow channel of communication between the students and the faculty.

Now there will be a direct channel of communication between the faculty and SC, which will consist of faculty-inspired representatives.

There are obvious advantages to the proposed system—eliminating the exhausting campaign, minimizing the popularity element, and erasing the chance of fraud. But, even though existing student apathy has necessitated the introduction of a new election system, we question presently whether it will really be a "government by the people." It may work quite differently in actual operation.

Whatever the implications, it is with relief that we see SC making an effort at rejuvenation. In its most crucial phase of existence it has heard the call of duty and is responding. Slowly the veil of lethargy is being lifted, exposing the first active trace of enthusiasm.

It is about time SC, which once voted to meet every other week because of a "dearth of business," began concerning itself with planning a better student government. It is a healthy sign which we applaud.

Anything would be an improvement.

Money Problems

To The Editor:

Yesterday I was a student, today I am not. And if you don't believe me, you can ask the University. Last semester, since I took nine hours of course work, I was a fulltime graduate student. Since I am only taking seven hours this time, my identity as a student is gone. My ID card wasn't stamped and so I won't be able to attend the rest of the concert series or any more basketball games.

The explanation is known to us all. I didn't pay for enough hours. From each fee the University receives, it sets aside a certain amount for the Athletic Department and another amount for the concert series. Only those students who pay the full fee are allowed to see the basketball games or go to the concerts. Yet some of the money I pay in goes for this purpose so well as for the one who pays some more.

The Athletic Department needs all the money it can get, I guess, and so does the concert series. The whole University is run on a sort of profit motive. I also don't get the services of the infirmary, either, I have been informed.

There are several students here on campus, not me alone, who are in this predicament. Anyone who has a good deal of work to do, whether it be research, to trying to make enough money just to live on while going to school is very likely not carrying a full load of classwork.

Yet these people who would most enjoy the concert series or the basketball games aren't allowed to go. The division of students in this fashion is arbitrary and unfair.

Students, especially graduate students, aren't here so that they will make a lot of money. Anyone who spends years in the Physics Department or math or chemistry or biology knows that he isn't going to make a fortune from his labor. Economically, it isn't worthwhile to go on for any advanced degree. And for the time they are here, it is a hardship to live on the money they make.

I don't recommend anyone trying to tell this to the Athletic Department nor to the administration. The matter of the ID cards is just one of the little annoyances perpetrated by the administration. The Cooperstown and Shawneetown rents were raised, after, as I got it, they had been promised to be lowered. The Student Union food prices are too high for me to eat there. And I had three books out of the library four days overdue which cost me the ridiculous sum of 60 cents. Dean Martin's office says it needs to charge $5 for a student's car found parked on campus at the wrong time. Now I'm not in favor of abolishing these fines, but they could be more moderate.

In short, the University administration regards it as a favor to let the students come here, a rather expensive favor.

In all fairness, I know it costs a lot of money to run the University and that most of it doesn't come from the students. Yet it is no favor to the student to let him come here. It is to everyone's ultimate advantage that there be higher education for those who can take advantage of it.

The University administration has a big problem in getting a decent amount of money from a reluctant Legislature. But I don't think that the student who is spending his whole effort toward getting an education should be penalized in these rather unique ways.

Piano Player Needed

To The Editor:

At the last two basketball games no one said a prayer. Is the person who says them on scholastic probation?

It would be a good idea if a piano player was kept dressed for the games in case the IBM machine declares the organist ineligible.

Library Problem

Where To Sit

Psychologists have made it quite clear in our society that the most effective and rewarding studying is done when the student is in a relaxed state. Periodic breaks from the normal study grind, they point out, help to keep the student alert.

But periodic breaks, if done in an atmosphere of boisterousness and on a hard seat, are not so conducive to scholarship. We refer specifically to the University's Margaret I. King Library and the congregation of students who so often gather in the foyer between study sessions.

The most logical lounging spot in the lobby happens to be the steps and students naturally take advantage of them. It is a common sight to see the steps loaded with buzzing, smoking, and sprawling students. But this is not to criticize them. They naturally need the break and the steps afford the only place to relax.

The fact that most students go to the UK Library for study at least two to four hours means that the average student will take a short break every hour to forget his lessons.

Unfortunately, the group creates an adverse impression on any first-time visitors to the library, especially if the visitor attempts to push his way through the crowd to reach the steps.

The sensible answer is to provide a few sofas, benches, or chairs in the lobby of the library so that the students will not clutter up the stairs and so that the visitors will not eye the UK Library discreditably.

That the library will be expanded under the new building program should not be an adequate excuse for ignoring a request for seats. Although the library suffers from a lack of space already, two or three seats would not appreciably jam the lobby or block any of the displays. And the cost would be negligible.

Two Queens To Be Crowned This Week

By ALICE AKIN
Kernel Society Editor

Two big queens will come forth out of the weekend.

Some lucky coed will reign tonight at the Dance of the Toy Soldiers, otherwise known as the Military Ball. This is the one where all the boys you see dressed in blue, etc. get demerits if they don't attend.

Then tomorrow night after the game there will probably be a frantic race by a few to go over to the Mardi Gras Dance where another queen will be crowned along with the Most Popular Professor. (I didn't know that any of the professors were especially popular, but if the Newman Club says so, it's all right with me!)

And in case you haven't heard, that is just about all that is happening this cold February weekend! Safe to say that Danceland will be packed tonight and some of the other Lexington establishments will have their fill of University students by the time the weekend's o'er.

(Don't you think that was a nice subtle way of saying that everybody just might go bar hopping?)
Hooley for Sunday and Valenline's Day! The book stores have been running over with contemporary cards for the holiday and, like idiots, everyone has spent several dollars on them.

Well, fraternity rush is about over and a relief for the smiling boys with the paddles and beer mugs! There will probably be some serious celebrating Sunday after the boys are pledged, as if there isn't serious celebrating all the time!

I'm angry with all you naughty little boys who didn't do your homework, got the fraternity on probation, and made this column almost impossible to write.

The only fraternity news I have this week is that the Sig Ep pledges painted the ping pong room at the house a notorious red with purple trim and a baby blue ceiling!

I see on the social calendar where this thing called Greek Week is coming up with all the exchange dinners, etc. These are supposed to be affairs where all the pigs gather round the trough and eat slop together in fellowship.

Well, now that I've gotten in one good slam I'll quit for another week. See you next Friday.

Sailors Ask UK Coeds For Letters

U.S. sailors stationed in the Straits of Formosa have called for the aid of UK coeds in a contest which may prove their prowess in the traditional Navy art of amour.

To help relieve the monotony of sea duty, nine crew members of the USS Kearsarge, an anti-submarine aircraft carrier in the Seventh Fleet, planned a little diversion.

They challenged the crew of the USS Essex to a contest to see which ship can get 800 letters from college coeds in the United States first.

The Phi Beta Kappa chapter here got a letter from the Kearsarge crew asking that UK coeds send letters or postcards to them. The letter was passed to Dean Seward who in turn sent it to Panhellenic.

The sororities each selected one of the nine sailors and are now sending letters and cards to them to help fill their quota.

Firm Asks Assistance Of Students

"The men will not become involved in the matter," a truck company spokesman said about two unidentified UK students who saw an accident involving one of the company's truck drivers.

Safety Supervisor Rodney V. Ahles of the Dixie Ohio Express, Inc. said, "all that is wanted from them is a court reporter's statement of what occurred that night."

Ahles made this request of Dean of Men Leslie L. Martin and the Kernel to find the two students who saw the accident, but refused to give their names.

The accident occurred Jan. 31, two miles south of Dobbins Air Force Base near Marietta, Ga.

Clyde Childers, driver for the truck company, stated he was driving south on U.S. 41, a four-lane, divided highway, when the accident occurred.

He said a northbound, blue 1956 Ford, driven by Thomas D. Perry Jr., crossed the five-foot dividing island and spun in front of his tractor-trailer.

The automobile was struck on the left front door with both vehicles careening over the right embankment. Sylvania Honey, a passenger, was thrown from the car and killed instantly.

Perry died later at a hospital.

Childers said as soon as he realized what had happened, he grabbed a flare from the truck and started towards the road, but was unable to reach it.

Four or five minutes later, he added, two men came by who said they had seen the accident. They told him they had been following the other car and it was responsible for the accident.

When the driver asked the men their names, they said they were UK students, but they would rather not become involved in the matter.

Ahles asked that the students in question contact the Kernel for further information.

Fitz's Facts

By John Fitzwater

The man of the hour for the past three weeks has been the "Brooklyn Bombshell," Sid Cohen. The 6-2 senior guard, has been the No. one crowd pleaser and "destructive force" for the Wildcats since he regained his starting role.

A large number of University student basketball followers feel the cage fortunes of the Cats might have been different this season if Cohen had been a starter all along.

Long set shots and "do-or-die" drives to the basket have made Cohen a thorn in the sides of the opposition in the last two games, when Kentucky had to crack the zone defense.

With Cohen and Dickie "Pixie" Parsons in backcourt, Coach Adolph Rupp seems to have found the guard combination that he has been seeking since early December.

Last season Sid was named to the Jewish All-American team and was named the nation's outstanding Zeta Beta Tau fraternity athlete, as well as being mentioned to several other national squads.

This writer feels that Sid is one of the best guards in the country and with almost every shot in the book, he would be a ready made package for the professional basketball leagues.

Wes Stader, formerly the sports director for University radio station WBKY, has been promoted to station manager.

Wes was a basketball candidate for "Uncle" Ed Diddle at Western Kentucky State College before transferring to UK. He is from Glasgow.

Congratulations, Wes.

Dr. William McCubbin, director of men's intramurals, released points that had been acquired in I-M during the first semester and announced the schedule of coming events.

Delta Tau Delta has 232 points for a foothold on first place. SAE is in second with 210 and Kappa Sigma, Phi Delta Theta, and ZBT are the three in nearest contention.

In the Independent division, the Baptist Student Union has a solid lead with 234 points. The Deacons hold second with 84 points and the Tappa Kegs are third with 37.

The only I-M activity that is under way this semester, according to McCubbin, is ping pong doubles. On Feb. 15 six-man volleyball and four-man team bowling gets underway. March 4 will be the deadline for entering badminton doubles.

High School Grid Star May Be Greatest Ever

KENEDY, Texas (AP) — He's only a high school sophomore, but those who came from all over south Texas to see him play football call him the Galloping Ghost of Escondido Creek.

How good Kenedy High School halfback James (Bear) Brown will be by the time he plays college football is anybody's guess.

Brown, only 15 but already 6 feet tall, weighs 180 pounds. All he did last season was score 210 points on 32 touchdowns and 18 extra points as he led the Kenedy Lions to the quarter finals of the Class A Texas state tournament.

"He's a great crowd pleaser. He is a great change of pace runner with natural ability and swivel hips," says Chuck Martin, news director of radio station KAML. "Only someone who has seen him run can believe it," Martain said.

Cats To Get Stiff Test As Notre Dame Moves In

By JOHNNY FITZWATER

"We don't have time to rest until the season ends." This is the way Coach Adolph Rupp looks on the remainder of his basketball campaign and the Notre Dame game tomorrow night.

The Wildcats, who have had two easy games in the past week against competition from Mississippi schools, may find the going rougher with the Irish invading Memorial Coliseum.

Coach Rupp said this week that he had no doubts about the Irish using a zone defense, and added that he found it amusing to see "Irish pro-zone."

The Wildcats will be led into the game by Sid Cohen and Dickie Parsons, hot-shot guards. The terrible twosome have been riding on a hot streak since the loss to Georgia Tech and have directed the attack with on-target outside shooting.

Benny Coffman, former starter, is expected to see some action in a relief roll, along with sophomore Larry Pursiful.

Don Mills and Ned Jennings, who thrilled the crowd Monday with great hook shots, will supply the punch under the boards along with Jimmy McDonald, Carroll Burchett, and Billy Lickert in relief roles.

Lickert saw limited action against Mississippi State Monday, but showed signs of being tired and off-pace. Coach Rupp said that he felt Billy Ray could go full strength if he got back in shape.

There has been considerable talk about Rupp using Roger Newman, ineligible in conference play, for the Notre Dame game. Rupp failed to make a definite comment on using Newman, but did say that "we would be glad to have him in there. He could help us."

Basketball followers expected

Notre Dame to be weak this season, but Coach Johnny Jordan tried to ignore the departure of All-American Tom Hawkins and built a new team from sophomores and two regulars. John Tully, 6-5 center, and Mike Graney, 6-5 forward, give Jordan and the Irish power under the boards and in the scoring column.

Last season Billy Lickert turned in an outstanding performance as the Cats roled to a 71-52 victory.

Notre Dame is one of the few schools in the nation that holds a cage edge on the Wildcats, winning 11 of 20 games.

Richards Clears 15 Feet In Pole Vault, Apologizes

CHICAGO (AP)—The Rev. Bob Richards pole vaults himself right into the heart of his audience.

At least that's what he did on State Street in the midst of Chicago's business district. He cleared the bar at 15 feet during a sports demonstration in which 22 athletes participated.

Richards was trying for 15 feet, 6 inches, a mark he had set at the Milrose games in Madison Square Garden a few years ago.

"I'm sorry I let you down," Richards said when he missed clearing 15 feet, 4 inches.

However, the odds were all against him at the improvised session. At 33 he took a body beating by fearlessly falling in some hard sawdust bags which resembled a pit. But he always came up smiling.

Richards usually requires a run of 125 feet for his pole vaulting but in this makeshift setup he had only 95 feet in which to get up speed on a board stage set up for the show.

Trackmen, Swimmers Plan Full Weekend

A home swimming match and participation in one of the country's outstanding indoor track meets highlights this weekend's University of Kentucky minor sports menu.

Five trackmen will make the trip this year to compete in one of the biggest indoor meets of the early season at East Lansing, Mich.

Making the trip this year are E. G. Plummer, who will defend his title in the 1000-yard run; Dave Franta, pole vault and sprints; Buddy Gum, will run the 600; Press Whelan, the mile; and John Baxter, the two-mile.

In their only previous outing this year, the Wildcat track team finished second in a triangular meet at Columbus, Ohio. Ohio State won, with Memphis State College finishing in third place.

E. G. Plummer and Buddy Gum captured first places at Ohio State. Plummer won the 800 in a time of 1:56.5 and Gum coasted to victory in the 440 with a time of 50.5 seconds.

Press Whelan was nipped at the tape by Bill Massel of Ohio State with Massey being clocked in 4:19.6 and Whelan in 4:19.7. Dave Franta and Jerry McAtee, both of UK, finished in a five-way tie for second in the pole vault. They both cleared 12 feet 7 inches. McAtee is a sophomore from Ft. Thomas.

Football Clinics Growing Each Year

The Coatesville, Pa. dentist who had a flair for football really started something in 1948 when he decided to back a football clinic in his town.

Today Dr. Harry G. Scott is the guiding hand behind the National Football Clinic, held annually in Atlantic City's Convention Hall.

"We had Fritz Vrisle and Jock Sutherland at our first clinic," says Scott. "That was in 1948 when Crisler was coaching Michigan and Sutherland was coaching the Brooklyn football Dodgers.

"We had 47 coaches and eight exhibitors and for four days the visitors lived in classrooms at Scott Senior High. We used hospital cots, placing 12 to a room."

This year—March 28-31—Scott expects about 900 high school football coaches to enroll in his 13th annual clinic. At $30 for each registration the four-day instruction course by some of the nation's top college coaches runs into high figures, but Dr. Scott says he breaks about even because football takes him away quite frequently from three dental chairs.

At the 1960 clinic, Ben Schwartzwalder, coach of the unbeaten and untied Syracuse team, will be featured opening day. Schwartzwalder will lecture for almost three hours on his team's high scoring offense, drills used to create line backers and the practical concepts of a sound defense.

Paul Dietzel of LSU, Ben Martin of the Air Force Academy, Phil Dickens of Indiana, Milt Bruhn of Wisconsin, Darrell Royal of Texas and Joe Kuharich of Notre Dame are other head coaches who will work the clinic.

Some of the coaches draw as much as $500 and expenses. Most of the high school coaches pay their own enrollment fee but in some cases their schools foot the bill.

The young coaches, many of them just out of teachers college, sit four days diagramming plays in huge Convention Hall. When they finish they have a fair idea of what to plan for the next football season.

"I've been to a number of clinics," says Al Donofrio, Huntington, N. Y., High coach. "I go to two every year and the National at Atlantic City is a must. It's the best. You see and hear how the top college coaches teach their kids. In the end it makes the game easier for the high school coach."

Bear is not related to the Jimmy Brown of Syracuse and Cleveland Browns fame but he is just as prolific a scorer.

Irish Setters?

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—Ronald Johnson is a bit concerned about two of the four puppies born to his dog. The pair is light green in color. A veterinarian couldn't explain it, but he said they'd probably grow out of it and be brown and white like their mother.

Language Classes To Remain Open

Late afternoon courses in Latin, Greek, Hebrew, and Arabic, for elementary and high school students remain open at UK.

UK Frosh Lose Thriller To Transy Frosh 74-72

The Kittens dropped a nine-point halftime lead Wednesday night to pick up their fourth loss in nine tries.

The Transylvania Frosh edged the Kittens, 74-72, in a thriller that saw three technical fouls called on Kentucky Coach Harry Lancaster in the second half.

The Transy team hit 53.3 percent of their field tries and turned red-hot in the last minutes to rally ahead.

With 34 seconds remaining in the game Charlie Moore hit a pair of charity tosses for Transy to put their team ahead to stay at 73-72.

The Kittens failed to put their offense in operation as the clock worked against them and Transy added another free throw before the game ended for the margin.

Prison Has Sports As A Pastime

WOODBRIDGE, N. J. (AP)—A game-winning double smashed the Bullies' hopes of winning the pennant and put the Dodgers into the annual intramural softball world series.

The hero of the game was No. 35652. Like the other players, he is an inmate at the state prison farm here, a maximum security institution.

Behind the 26-foot-high concrete walls, inmates engage in football, basketball, track, handball, volleyball, boxing, and weightlifting. For the less active, there are horseshoes, chess and checkers. But prisoners and guards joke about the one field event that is not allowed. A firm rule prohibits pole vaulting.

Correction

The Kernel wishes to correct errors which were made in a story on Greek Week which appeared in the Thursday edition.

Greek Week will begin on Thursday, Feb. 18, with exchange dinners at 5:30 p.m., and a conocation at 7:30 p.m. Lt. Gov. Wilson W. Wyatt will be the keynote speaker.

Wyatt will speak on the role the new administration will play in raising Kentucky's educational standards.

The Saturday morning workshops will be opened by Dr. Irvin E. Langer, president of Transylvania College.

Honored Invitation

James Irvine, a sophomore, holds an invitation from the White House for the President's conference on safety to be held in Washington, D.C., March 1-3. Irvine spoke before the group in 1958 as a representative of the Boy Scouts of America.

Irvine Receives Invitation To Attend Safety Conference

James Irvine, a sophomore mining engineer major, has received an invitation from the White House to attend the President's conference on safety, March 1-3.

The only way to be safe on the highway is to regard all drivers as idiots, Irvine says.

Irvine, from Collegeville, Pa., represented the Boy Scouts of America at the conference in 1958, and spoke on the Scouts' efforts in traffic and home safety. He says this is the only reason he can think of for being invited to return.

The presence of a person with the status of a student will indeed be a rarity at the conference bringing together some 3,000 leaders from industry, labor, agriculture, government, and other private safety organizations.

Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell will serve as chairman of the three-day meeting being held in Washington, D.C. The purpose of which is to examine problems arising out of new and intensified safety and health hazards in the U. S. economy.

UK Possesses A Replica Of Abe's Marriage License

It was announced in the Chicago Tribune recently that eight letters were written in Chicago by the widow of Abraham Lincoln a year after his assassination.

The letters revealed Mrs. Lincoln and her two remaining sons at that time, Robert and Tad, were living in a boarding house and grieving the loss of the husband and father. She was also dissatisfied with having to live so plainly after their life in the White House.

She expressed her dislike for Springfield to Simon Cameron, Lincoln's first Secretary of War, and her desire never to return there.

"Occupying the same rooms, breathing the air where so many happy years were passed, the contrast without my husband would simply deprive me of my reason," Mrs. Lincoln said in one letter.
