Tight Large field promises tough mayoral race

By STEVE BALLINGER
Copy Editor

Lexington voters will not elect a new mayor until November, but four candidates are already in contention, preparing campaigns which could make this race one of the most hard-fought ever.

Three announced candidates are well-known local political figures; James Amato, Scotty Baesler and Joe Graves.

The fourth, Nick Martin, describes himself as a concerned citizen frustrated with city government. Another possible candidate, Urban county councilman Don Blevins has indicated he may enter the race.

The two leading vote-getters of the May 24 primary will face each other in the Nov. 8 election. If the race is closer than the one in 1973, it will be a tight contest indeed. Mayor Foster Pettit defeated Amato four years ago by a 54 vote margin.

By law, the mayoral race is nonpartisan, with party affiliation not given at the polls. Here is a look at the candidates, in alphabetical order, and the issues they've emphasized:

James Amato

Amato, 43, has called for leadership in city government and says the lack of direction is "more critical" than in his last campaign.

Scotty Baesler

Of all the candidates, Baesler has perhaps the best recognition factor, the advantage of being a UK basketball player in the early 1960s.

SCOTTY BAESLER
...plans expensive campaign

JOE GRAVES
...the lone Republican

NICHOLAS MARTIN
...youngest of the candidates

...second time around

A trim 35, he became vice mayor of Lexington by collecting more votes than any other councilman in winning his at-large seat.

Although that election was his first political contest, Baesler is not worried about charges of inexperience. "I have more experience in local government, especially in the merged government," Baesler said of his opponent.

He and Pettit have proposed a citizens' task force, to be assisted by an outside expert, to develop a comprehensive growth plan for Lexington.

That plan is, more or less, the present administration's answer to the accusations and criticism of poor community design and traffic congestion. Pettit described it as the most important local proposal during his term as mayor.

Baesler said the most important "issue" to the voters would be how they thought could generate public confidence and trust in government. He expects to conduct an extensive advertising campaign, reportedly planning to spend more than $50,000 for the primary alone.

Joe Graves

A veteran of local and state government, Graves, 46, has a lengthy political background and is involved in various civic activities.

Carter message urges 'new faith'

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

Ford left the White House for the last time to escort Carter to the Capitol.

WASHINGTON—Jimmy Carter, an outsider no more, was inaugurated president of the United States yesterday, urging everyone to have fresh faith and a new commitment to "the bold and brilliant dream" of America.

Then, hand in hand with his wife, Rosalyn, the new President walked near the head of his own parade.

Three minutes past a sunny, icy noon, Carter concluded the oath of office that ended the 29-month appointed presidency of Gerald R. Ford.

And the first words he spoke as President were words of thanks to the departing Ford "for all he has done to heal our land."

His inaugural address was a 12-minute summons of hope, not an agenda or blueprint, if slogan there was, it was a simple one. He promised an administration of quiet strength.

It was at once an hour of renewal and farewell, this solemn, peaceful transition of awesome power amid rites and pageantry as old as the Republic.

A crowd of about 150,000 people assembled in the Capitol plaza to watch as Carter became the 39th president, and to salute the 38th.

Carter said, "Let us create together a new national spirit of unity and trust. Your strength can compensate for my weakness, and your wisdom can help to minimize my mistakes."

Tears had glistened in Ford's eyes as he said his goodby to about 75 of his closest aides and advisers at a White House breakfast.

By Carter's decree, it was a people's inaugural. By Carter's decision, the crowd of 150,000 lining Pennsylvania Avenue for the inaugural parade saw their new President march by, smiling and waving.

The temperature was in the upper 20's, and it was weather for mufflers and stocking caps along with the ruffles and flourishes. Carter shunned coat or hat, despite the chill.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale was sworn in first, by House Speaker Thomas W. O'Neill.

Then Carter stepped solemnly to his place, and Mrs. Carter held a family Bible.

The cannon salute punctuated the strains of "Hail to the Chief," and Jimmy Carter stood alone, in power, his long quest behind, the challenge of office ahead.

SG legal counselor provides free advice

By KIM YELTON
Kernel Staff Writer

Chester Care, a Lexington attorney, sets up shop in the Student Government (SG) office every Wednesday morning from 9-11:30. SG hired Care to advise students free of charge about answers to their legal problems.

Care, who practices by himself in his own firm, is not there to represent students in their cases, he contends. SG hired him last semester to tell students where to go with their legal problems. If they consult him, he directs them to lawyers who will handle their problems.

Most of the cases he handles are divorces and landlord-tenant cases, he said. Many people involved in a divorce have misconceptions about the no-fault divorce laws. Before Kentucky legislature passed the law, a person had to accuse their spouse of some wrong doing such as mental cruelty. "With no-fault you don't have to allege wrongdoing or give specific reasons," he said.

The cases Care says he doesn't enjoy are landlord-tenant problems. "They're very frustrating. There don't seem to be any winners in them. Everybody is pointing a finger at the other guy. It becomes a personal thing between the two parties," he said. "Usually fault lies a little bit with both sides."

Roommates who split up are also a common problem he sees. Care said that sometimes when roommates get mad at each other, they will leave and refuse to pay the rent for the rest of the lease.

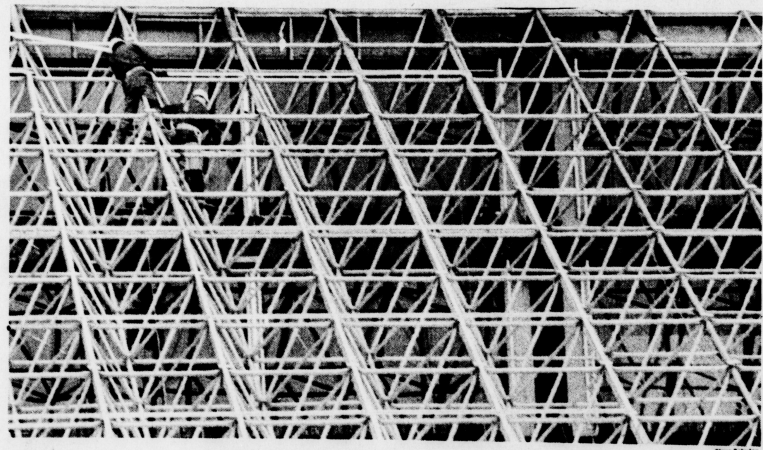

Care said he knew of one girl who told her roommate that she would hold her TV until the girl paid the rent. "It may sound reasonable," he said, "but it's very risky business."

The girl's roommate issued a warrant for her arrest. Care explained. The police then arrested her and she went to court. The judge explained to her that there are laws to sue for rent but it's illegal to confiscate another person's property.

"People should be very conscious of the fact that they are 18 years old and whatever they sign they are obligated to," Care said.

Some people who come to see him do not actually have legal problems, he said. Sometimes they just need

It has long been assumed that kidneys could not be transplanted successfully from son to father because it was thought the recipient would tend to reject the transplanted organ. ## Inauguration marks new national spirit

In a fleeting, wind-swept moment, America transferred the awesome mantle of power from one man to another. It was a simple ceremony that changed President Ford into Mr. Jerry Ford and transformed citizen Jimmy Carter into President James Earl Carter, the new leader of the western world.

James Strout, of The New Republic, once likened the ceremony to America's middle way between a coronation and a coup d'etat. Of course, the Inauguration is not quite so dramatic as these events, but true to its root word, augury, the ceremony is often a portent of things to come. If nothing else, the newly installed President's address sets the mood of the incoming administration for the next four years.

Unlike Kennedy or Nixon

Unlike Kennedy and his platitudes or Nixon and his austere, well modulated promulgations, Carter chose to deliver a brief statement on the country's direction.

Carter said he had no new dream to put before the American people but urged "a fresh faith in the old dream." It's probably just as well because after the death of Camelot, the crumbling of the Great Society and the nightmare of Watergate, America no longer needs grandiose illusions.

Like the stroll afterward, Carter's speech probably epitomizes the naturalness and unpretentiousness of his new administration. The speech was eloquent without being verbose, the message simple: his election "marks a new beginning, a new dedication within our government and a new spirit among us all."

It is a spirit this country needs badly. Carter's Inauguration marks the end of a 29-month, caretaker government that was, for the first time in history, installed without the voters' approval.

A spirit badly needed

Nearly 200 years ago another caretaker government, the Continental Congress, was struggling for existence while 100 years ago a new administration, accused of stealing the election, was coming into power. Both events marked a new era in American history. Perhaps Carter will also herald in a new epoch.

If his campaign and Inauguration are any indication, America's third century could signal a return to basics—simple decency in government.

Church leads opposition

Abortion battle continues

By MARGARET KELLEY.

Jan. 22 will be the fourth anniversary of the Supreme Court decision which ruled abortion legal in the United States. In 1973 the court ruled that in the early stages of pregnancy the decision to have an abortion must be left entirely to a woman and her doctor.

In lieu of the above legislation, many persons interested in women's rights might understandably question the time and energy still being expended on the pro-abortion rights issue especially with the ratification of the ERA hardly under our belt.

Because of this I will try to show why I strongly believe that women's assistance in the first year after birth.

Without Medicaid support for women who choose abortion there would be an estimated 125-250 deaths annually from illegal and self-induced abortions as well as 1,200 to 2,500 complications requiring hospitalization according to HEW. At the National Conference of Catholic Bishops which met in Washington D.C. on Nov. 17, 1976, the 250 Bishops at the meeting were presented a program that called for a massive lobbying effort to secure a constitutional amendment against abortion.

In addition to lobbying Congress, other tactics are used. The Bishops are also instructed to encourage lawyers and law professors to write articles for law journals attacking the philosophical basis of abortion. All dioceses are urged to increase contacts with Congressmen "urging positive support for a human life amendment."

Where does the money come from to fund this huge operation? Since 1974 the Catholic Church has poured more than $415,000 into its lobbying

The Commission stated, "So long as the question of when life begins is a matter of religious controversy and no choice can be rationalized on a purely secular premise, the would be establishing one religious view and thus inhibiting the free exercise of religion of others."

Now abortions performed in the first trimester of pregnancy are seven times safer than childbirth. Women who seek later abortions are usually those without adequate access to medical services; the young, the poor and those living in rural areas. Nearly two-thirds of the world's people live in countries where legal abortion is liberally available. No democracy which has liberalized its abortion laws has reversed them. Abortion is usually free in England, Sweden, Eastern Europe, Soviet Union and China. In many other countries abortion costs are subsidized by the government.

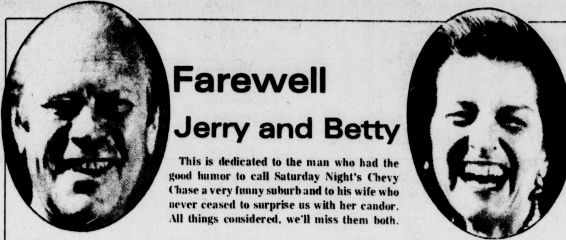

Last Jan. 22 was observed as the third anniversary of the Supreme Court decision on abortion by anti-abortion groups around the country. In Frankfurt, the Kentucky Right to Life Association held a rally attended by 1,500 to 2,000 people from around the state.

The rally began with an invocation by Rev. Morton Oliver of the Mt. Vernon Baptist Church in Versailles. He made several remarks about the selfishness and promiscuity of women who seek abortion, and prayed that God would make them see the error of their ways.

Meanwhile the pro-abortion rights movement has been less active. This Jan. 22 I would like to suggest that we join together and show our strong support of the Jan. 22, 1973 pro-abortion rights Supreme Court decision.

There will be an anniversary vigil Saturday at 3 p.m. at the Courthouse in downtown Lexington. Many groups are sponsoring this vigil including Planned Parenthood, Reproductive Freedom League, Alternative's for Women, Era-Campus Alliance and Council on Women's Concerns to name a few. Help make this vigil into a strong pro-choice for women movement.

Freezing death unnecessary tragedy

Have you ever noticed how much people have been pulling together lately? You see it all over the place; one person is stuck in the snow and three others are pushing. Or people jumping each other's batteries. Maybe it's the feeling that we're all in this together, and, who knows, maybe it'll help next time. One person who didn't get help when he needed it was Eugene J.

bruce w. singleton

Kuhn. Ten days ago, Kuhn was found frozen in his bed. The temperature was nine degrees in his bedroom, a situation brought on by the lack of electricity which had been turned off by Ohio Edison eight days before.

Kuhn had not paid his Mansfield, Ohio electric bill since September, but had accumulated only an $18.34 bill in the interim. The electric company sent him two bills, then tacked the third on his door. When payment wasn't received, the company turned off the electricity.

Kuhn's home was heated by a forced air gas furnace. But, even with a gas heater, electricity is necessary to operate the thermostat and the fans which distribute the warm air. So, cutting off the juice meant cutting off the heat.

The reason the 74-year-old retired factory worker didn't pay his bill isn't clear. It may have been because of lack of funds or because he was simply too sick to get out of bed.

His death, however, may have been what was needed to bring his kind of problem to our attention.

The billing system of a public utility does not have to be impersonal and incapable of tailoring to an individual situation. Sure, a lot of bills are run by computer today, and trying to look at one problem among thousands of customers might be a little rough, but it's really not impossible.

Some public officials have already begun moves to minimize the possibility of a death like Kuhn's from happening again. One Ohio state senator has urged the Public Utilities Commission to order all the state's utilities not to cut off service to a person who is too poor or too sick to pay his bill.

In Kentucky, similar action has been taken. Newly appointed Secretary for Human Resources Peter Conn has sent a telegram to all the utilities in Kentucky asking them to help out.

"There are many people on fixed incomes, some of whom receive public assistance, who might have difficulty paying their utility bills on time," Conn said. "So, what we did was ask them to continue service even though some of them aren't paying their bills on a timely basis."

Kentucky Utilities Vice President Lynwood Schrader expressed his concern over such a situation as Ohio Edison faced "We have always attempted to have procedures to keep this kind of thing from happening," he said.

"We normally send out a past-due notice. Later, we'll send out a cut-off notice. Then, we'll tie a cut-off notice to the door. If the notice has been removed from the door when we go back, we assume the customer was notified of our intentions."

"What we think we have, is a system encompassing every possible attempt to communicate with that customer to tell him that his electrical service should be paid.

I just wish that when those kinds of things happen that someone close to that person would let us know about his situations," Schrader said. "One consideration, of course, is that public utilities, like any business, are there to make money. If they do not make money, they can't provide service."

Secretary Conn said he has spoken with Commissioner of Social Insurance Gail Hacker about public assistance in paying utility bills of those people already on the welfare rolls.

"We're still looking at some ideas and, hopefully, we'll be able to come up with something," Conn said.

In light of other public reactions, lately, it's easy to be optimistic. Look at the recent appeals by the gas and electric companies asking customers to curtail usage as much as possible when the energy demand was at its greatest.

"We made the public appeal for voluntary reduction shortly after 10 am on Jan. 11. Our meter readings at 11 am were still on the rise. By noon, the meter readings started to nose dive, and this continued on as long as we had the appeal to the public going," Schrader said. "It was obvious that the public responded."

What happened to Eugene Kuhn shouldn't happen anywhere in the United States. Electricity is now as much as necessity of life as food or anything else. We've had public assistance for food costs, i.e. food stamps, for years.

It just seems a shame that it takes letting someone freeze to death before we realize the need for subsidy in other areas, too.

Europe can be yours with special program

BY PATTY ROMERO
Kernel Reporter

You don't need a rich relative to dish out dough for your education in Europe. In fact, you don't have to be rich at all.

If you are a graduate or undergraduate in good standing or even a graduating high school senior, for that matter, then you are eligible to apply for admission to the Kentucky Institute for European Studies.

The Office of International Programs will present a study abroad program on Feb. 1 at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Center, room 214. The presentation will focus on Germany and Austria.

Alba Orsi, an adviser for study abroad said, "this program will help UK students requesting information about foreign countries. It gives them an orientation."

The session includes a panel of students from Germany and Austria to answer your questions on study, work, and travel in those countries. Slides will also be shown and a Murray State University professor will discuss the summer program in Bregenz, Austria. According to Orsi, your dreams of working, visiting, or studying in Europe could come true through your attendance at this session. She will be there to help with general information and to make appointments for individual study abroad counseling. Charter flight information will also be available.

The session is free and open to the public and coffee will be served. Any further information about international programs and foreign countries can be sought at the Office for International Programs. The office is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Fire at Research Center

A fire partially gutted the interior of the UK research center on Washington Street at about 4 p.m. yesterday. Metro firemen quickly extinguished the blaze, but damage estimates and the cause of the fire are unknown.

SC mystery alarm solved

Firemen and police officers responded to a mysterious fire alarm at the Student Center (SC) yesterday afternoon, but in the end, it was an electrician who solved the problem.

SC Director Mary Jo Mertens said she had checked the fire alarm box by the time firemen arrived and she found that no one had pulled it. "We called the firemen (back), but they were already coming because of the fire signal," she said.

"We think it's the heat sensor that set off the alarm," a policeman said. But a quick check of the instrument showed that it was not the cause, and the noise continued.

Thirty minutes later, an electrician discovered an overheated transformer in the alarm box. The mystery was solved.

"The insulator melted down," said a policeman, "but the electricians will have it fixed by tomorrow."

We goofed

Because of a reporting error, a story on yesterday's front page ("Housing study recommends construction of new units") incorrectly stated that the university's 4,735 undergraduate housing units accommodated "85 percent of the total student population."

The sentence should have read: "...the University had accommodations for 4,735 undergraduates, which accounted for 85 percent of its total housing capacity."

Concern group will meet today

The Kentucky's Children: United Concern group will meet today from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in room 339 in the Lexington Technical Institute.

According to Ruth Fitzpatrick, publicity committee chairperson, the organization's first planning session was a success although the bad weather hampered attendance.

Those attending the meeting are urged to bring their lunch or rely on the vending machines.

The Kentucky Kernel, 114 Journalism Building, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Kentucky, 40506, is mailed five times weekly during the year except holidays and exam periods, and twice weekly during the summer session. Third class postage paid at Lexington, Kentucky, 40511. Subscription rates are mailed $2 per year, or one cent per year non-mailing.

Higgs and Macklin come home and they could give the Cats problems

By DOUG GAVIN
 Kernel Reporter

The Kentucky Wildcats, fresh from back-to-back road victories against Auburn and Florida, are host to the LSU Tigers Saturday night at Rupp Arena (7:30).

Kentucky basketball fans will be very familiar with the Tigers, who are 10-5 overall and 2-3 in SEC play. A trio of Kentuckians will pose headaches for coach Joe Hall's team.

The Tigers are lead in scoring by Kenny Higgs, a 6-4 guard from Owensboro, at 19.1 clip. But perhaps most impressive of Higgs' stats is his 10.1 assists per game. He was second team all-SEC last year, and all defensive team.

Another Kentucky product is Durand Macklin, a 6-7 freshman forward from Louisville. Shawnee, who leads the league in rebounding at 13.3 a game. He averages 17.6, making him one of the better players in the SEC. He recently scored 40 points against Tennessee and 29 against Georgia.

The last of the trio is assistant coach Ron Abernathy. He coached for four years at Shawnee where Macklin was his gem.

LSU recently lost to Tennessee 108-102, as did Kentucky. LSU is a tall and physical team that prompted head coach Dale Brown to say, "We may get outplayed, but we will never be out-physical."

Brown, you will recall, did a semi-strip in a loss to UK last March at Memorial Coliseum. The even-tempered coach (ha!) accidentally lost his cool and fired his sportcoat to the floor.

The tremendous size of LSU (seven players over 6-6) is a problem according to Hall because, "Not only are they big, but they have a lot of depth inside."

Kentucky has been suffering from lachuster performances since trouncing Notre Dame last December. Hall attributed the slide to lack of emotion and not playing with intensity. However, things may be redeveloping for the Cats.

"We had a good practice on Wednesday, we were very spirited, we worked hard and we worked hard on defense," he said.

Kentucky, now 4-1 in the conference, trails unbeaten Tennessee and Alabama. The Cats must play aggressive defense and block out well under the basket to combat Higgs and Macklin.

CINCINNATI [AP]—Dick Baney has been getting a lot of exposure lately. But it's not the kind of publicity he received when he was pitching for the Cincinnati Reds.

Now, Baney is known as the man on the centerfold of Playgirl Magazine, hardly an image which is in keeping with his former status.

Baney recalls the odd circumstances which surrounded his move from the pitcher's mound to the centerfold. It started when he met Rona Barrett, Hollywood gossip columnist.

"You're so handsome, you ought to be in the movies," she told Baney.

The publicity from that remark resulted in a call from Playgirl asking him to appear as a centerfold.

"I turned them down. I did not feel it wise, being a representative of the Reds," explained Baney.

The incident was put aside. Baney had some modest success with the Reds, and then was sent down to Indianapolis where his career came to a screeching halt on July 4, 1975.

"They asked me to warm up in a hurry," Baney recalled. "I guess I wasn't ready when I went in. I threw a pitch and felt something snap. It was like I was shot in the shoulder with a .38. I knew then it was over."

Baney did not realize how badly it was over. He says he has a 70 per cent disability in his pitching arm. It was not helped when he tried playing in Mexico, seeking some quick cash.

He figured his days in the public limelight were over.

"I was walking at Laguna Beach one day when this girl comes up to me and tells me a lady wants to see me. Sure enough under an umbrella, there's this lady," he recalled.

"She says she's from Playgirl and wants to know if I'm interested in posing. She said she didn't know who I was and she was surprised when I told her I had been asked before."

"This time though I was out of baseball. She got me top money. I figured, why not?"

But being a star has its problems such as the other day when Baney walked into a bank.

"I looked at the teller and she was blushing. Seemed like everyone in the bank was whispering. I asked the teller why she was blushing."

"You would ask," she said. "I saw your picture."

Maybe it would have been better for Dick Baney to have gotten exposure in Sports Illustrated.

"Sports Illustrated wasn't interested in pitchers with 5.47 earned run averages," he said.

Take off your shoes.

Hit the deck in shorts and a tee shirt. Or your bikini if you want.

You're on a leisurely cruise to remote islands. With names like Martinique, Grenada, Guadeloupe. Those are the ones you've heard of.

A big, beautiful sailing vessel glides from one breathtaking Caribbean jewel to another. And you're aboard, having the time of your life with an intimate group of lively, fun-loving people. Singles and couples, too. There's good food, "grog," and a few pleasant comforts... but there's little resemblance to a stay at a fancy hotel, and you'll be happy about that.

Spend six days exploring paradise and getting to know congenial people. There's no other vacation like it.

Tower of power!

Now, what guy in his right mind would attempt to stop UK forward James Lee from driving to the basket? Lee and the Cats meet LSU tomorrow night (7:30) at Rupp Arena.

Wheel Kats play twice

UK's wheelchair basketball team (aka Wheel Kats) will play Eastern Kentucky Rehabilitation Center 7:30 Saturday at the Seaton Center. And the two teams will meet 11 a.m. Sunday at Seaton.

Carr looks for first win against Gators

Wrestling coach Fletcher Carr has done well in his three years at Kentucky. Like him an SEC championship and lead his team to an NCAA record 26 wins in one season.

But even Carr has failed at one task. He has never beaten Florida. Anywhere. Ever. Carr gets another chance Saturday night, however, when the Cats meet the Gators in Gainesville.

Then the UK grapplers face Florida State

Sunday at Orlando. Kentucky is 6-3.

Catavolos joins football staff

It didn't take football coach Fran Curcio long to find a replacement for John Cooper, who became the head man at Tulsa University about five weeks ago.

The new kid in town is George Catavolos, 31, who has spent the past six years working with Purdue University's secondary. He won't be doing that here, though. Instead, Catavolos will coach the defensive backs.

And, for you academicians, Catavolos earned his bachelor's degree at Purdue in 1967 and M.A. there in 1969.

saying an Iowa state alumnus offered "to help me get a car if I went there."

The Gazette also said Geiger reported that Purdue, Michigan and Syracuse alumni "called and said they would help me out financially if I signed."

Geiger told the Huntington Herald-Dispatch on Wednesday that "I didn't receive any illegal offers from Michigan, Syracuse or Purdue." I called S. J. Easterling after the story appeared and told him I thought he had misunderstood me.

Graves is a long-time friend of Pettit, and many observers hint that Graves's election would merely extend the present administration.

To counter this, his initial speech criticized Pettit's administration, saying the city has been poorly planned, traffic congestion has been dealt with ineptly, and too much attention has been given to downtown projects, at the expense of out-lying neighborhoods.

Explaining his strategy, Graves said he is "trying to indicate what kind of a mayor I'll be... Mayor Pettit's background is in law, mine is in business," he said.

Graves has pledged to streamline local government and make it more efficient. The 38 per cent increase in the local government budget has not improved the quality and quantity of service, Graves claims.

Graves is a former city commissioner (before the merged government) and has also served as state representative and currently as state senator.

The lone republican in the mayoral race, Graves has a liberal reputation. He worked against local segregation in earlier years and is proud of the fact he hired the first black salesman in a major Kentucky retail store, the family-owned Graves, Cox Co.

Graves also opposed construction of the Red River Dam at the early year of 1968. He was also the only Lexington councilman to oppose a resolution supporting the dam's construction.

Although wealthy, Graves is apprehensive at what could become an expensive campaign for the three major candidates. His expenditures will not be as large as Baesler's, said Graves, and he indicated that Common Cause will soon make an appeal to all candidates to not try and buy the election through advertising.

Nicolas Martin

Martin entered the race this week, in his words, "reluctantly" because he was not "satisfied with the caliber of candidate already seeking the position."

The director of Eugene McCarthy's 1976 Kentucky campaign for president, Martin, 21, is a reporter for radio station WVLC and the youngest candidate in the race.

Although he concedes there are "areas about which I have much to learn," Martin contended in an opening statement that he owes no favors to special interests.

Recently a UK student, Martin pledges action toward campus concerns such as enforcement of apartment safety laws, rent control and no arrests for possession of small amounts of marijuana.

He proposes a 1 per cent cut in government operating expenditures and 3 per cent cut in capital expenses. City workers, he says, should use less office equipment and drive more economical cars.

Martin also proposes the redistribution of payroll taxes "to those who can best afford it."

He criticized the performance of the mayor and county council in general, saying they should not be involved in the daily operation and detail work of government. Those jobs, Martin said, should be left to the Chief Administrative Officer without interference.

Careers

Workshop offers 'identification'

By RUTH MATTINGLY
Kernel Reporter

A Career Planning Workshop will begin Feb. 1 in an effort to help students discover their skills through exercises and group discussion, according to Harry Jones of the Placement Service.

Jones said that self-identification is important when selecting a career. "Really, you're trying to identify what you are and what you are looking for," he said. "When the sessions are over, we recommend that students write their skills in a notebook entitled, 'This is me.'"

The two-hour sessions held at the Koinonia House will include topics such as work values, skill identification and development, information gathering and majors in relation to careers.

"Many skills are transferable from the world of academia to the world of work," Jones said. "We want the participants to get into skills by doing exercises."

One exercise, value identification, requires the participant to identify the source of his or her values, such as the desire for job security, recognition, honesty, respect and independence. The exercise also examines the type of satisfaction the student hopes to get out of work.

Group discussion will also be a major part of the sessions, Jones said. He will provide participants with a set of "Ground Rules for Interaction Among Group Members." These include: one person should never directly evaluate the personal attributes of another;

- any assessment that a person makes about his own attributes is assumed to be right and;

- a group member always has the right to say, "I pass" when they don't want to interact.

advice such as whether to write a letter or what action they should take in certain matters. Mostly it's just clarifying issues for them.

"Lawyers do a lot of psychological counseling," he added. "I get people who need psychological treatment."

"I don't get many criminal cases though," he said. Most of the criminal cases he gets are not felony charges. And he usually does not get many marijuana cases.

Care says a common misconception students have is their rights when they are arrested. "People think if a policeman doesn't tell you your rights, you walk out of court. It doesn't happen like that," he said.

"There is greater chance today of getting arrested because there are more and more people and they are more compacted. Care said he thinks the University needs to hold some seminars informing people what to do if they are arrested. "I'm sure the Public Defender's Office would also be receptive if they have time to answer questions anyone might have," Care said.

Student found dead

Gregory Alan Davis, a freshman mechanical engineering major, died in his room at Haggin Hall yesterday afternoon. He was 18.

A Charleston, W. Va., native, Davis was reportedly found by one of his roommates at approximately 4:30 p.m. An autopsy will be performed this morning to determine the cause of death. Haggin Hall residents have been instructed not to comment on the occurrence.

The only survivors listed by the dean of students' office are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William O. Davis, Jr.

Rumpelstiltskin

At the Opera House
Jan. 21-23

The UK Opera Workshop's presentation of "Rumpelstiltskin" premieres tonight. The opera, written by Joseph Baber and John Gardner, is a delightful adaptation of the German folk tale. Cast members include UK students and talent from the Lexington community. At left are Smith Armstrong, the miller, and Melissa Kelley Baber, as Aurelia, the miller's daughter.

National Company visits Opera House

By NANCY DALY
Arts Editor

Rock 'n roll was king in the 1950s, as this scene from the hit Broadway musical "Grease" shows. "Grease" recreates a typical high school of 1959 and recalls what it was like to be a teenager in those days of Fabian, pegged pants and poodle skirts.

"Grease," the longest-running show currently on Broadway, opens Tuesday at the Opera House for a six-day, eight-performance run.

The musical comedy set in the 50s has run eight nights a week since early 1972, ranking in the top-10 list of longest-running Broadway shows. It exceeds "Sound of Music" and "My Fair Lady" and is expected to surpass "Oklahoma" soon.

"Grease" is billed as having revived the 50s nostalgia craze which popularized "American Graffiti" and "Happy Days." Stars like Adrienne Barbeau and John Travolta are said to have gotten their theatrical starts performing in "Grease."

The National Company coming to Lexington is the third such tour to venture out to major U.S. cities. "Grease" has also been staged in Mexico City where it was called "Vaselino."

"Grease" will be the first National Company ever to play in Lexington. Dick Pardy, Opera House managing director, said the fact that "Grease" is coming here is something of a coup for Lexington.

"Normally National Companies play all the major cities where they're likely to run two-to-eight weeks," Pardy said.

The current "Grease" tour's itinerary—including cities like Boston, Atlanta, St. Louis, Los Angeles, Denver and Philadelphia—points up the unique situation in which Lexington finds itself.

"Many eyes in the industry will watch what happens here with 'Grease,'" Pardy said. "If it doesn't do well there won't be any more (National Companies) in Lexington."

"Grease" is part of the "Broadway Nights" series scheduled at the Opera House. Shows this fall included "Don't Bother Me I Can't Cope" and the "Young Vic" Shakespeare company.

Other shows this spring are "The Belle of Amherst," Julie Harris' one-woman interpretation of Emily Dickinson, and "Absurd Person Singular," a comedy featuring daytime television stars.

Pardy said Opera House officials "encourage everyone to dig into their trunks and wear 50s clothing" to next week's showings of "Grease."

Tickets are available at the Lexington Center ticket office at the Center's High Street entrance and at all 10 Central Bank locations.

Ticket prices for the Friday and Saturday evening shows are $11.50, first floor and part of the balcony; $9.50, rest of first balcony; and $6.50, second balcony.

Regular prices for the Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Sunday and Saturday-Sunday matinees are $10, $8 and $5.

Pardy said unsold tickets for each performance will be sold at the Opera House 90 minutes prior to showtime.

Pardy also said discounts are available for groups of 25 or more by calling 1-800-223-7565, a toll-free number.

Leading Met stars coming for recital

William Walker and John Alexander, leading men of the New York Metropolitan Opera, will present a joint recital at 8:15 p.m., Tuesday, Jan. 25 at Memorial Coliseum.

The program is part of the Central Kentucky Concert and Lecture Series. Admission is free for students with valid UK IDs or CKCLS members.

Walker, the Met's leading baritone, is one of the few opera stars of today who has enlarged his range of performance to include areas such as Broadway and talk shows.

Debuting with the Met in 1962, he has sung leading roles in a wide range of operas in New York, on the road and across the world.

Alexander, recognized as one of the finest tenors in Metropolitan Opera History, joined the Met in 1957 as Alfredo in "La Traviata." He studied at the University of Cincinnati Conservatory of Music and was appointed a distinguished professor of voice and opera there in 1974.

Alexander has sung leading roles in just about every major opera being performed today.

They don't sound like speakers.
They sound like you're there . . .

The company that developed the state of the art Tympani Magneplanar speakers has now developed a less expensive model, the MG-11, which is sold exclusively through Magneplanar dealers.

With 85 square inches of tweeter and 500 square inches of total diaphragm area, this speaker produces a huge true to life sound so real it must be heard to be believed.

$625.00 per matched pair.
