Another day dawns as the sun shines on one of UK's most recognizable icons, Memorial Hall. Memorial Hall was completed in 1929 as a memorial to those who had died in World War I. The clock of the building is the original having been placed inside the building on October 24, 1928.

Little maintenance is needed to keep the clock in top condition. However, when the power goes out, the clocks must be reset. This process takes about 30 minutes to complete. The hands of the clock are made of wood and have been replaced throughout the years. Another distinguishing characteristic of Memorial Hall are the bells, which are not really bells at all.

They were originally chimes that replicated the sound of Carillon Bells. The chimes were installed in 1943. In 1964, a reel to reel tape system was used. Unfortunately, it encountered many problems.

Jeff Biddle, electronics tech for the UK Physical Plant Division, recalls hearing stories about going up to the belfry and seeing the tape scattered in a pile on the floor.

"With the last system the tape would jam and all the tape would end up in the floor," he said.

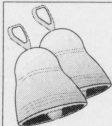

In another instance, somebody had complained about the noise and they had discovered that a student had gotten access to the tower.

The student had spliced the tape of the reel-to-reel and replaced the regular tape with Steppenwolf playing the song "Born to be Wild."

The current tape system they use is similar to a person's home stereo, using regular cassette tapes.

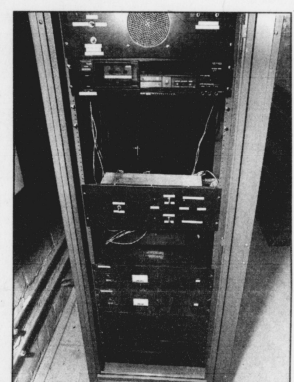

Is it possible for students to hear "Stairway to Heaven" or "Let it Be?" "There are certainly ways in which a person could do that," said Richard McClure of the electronics division of PPD.

"However the (speakers) are more on the high end and the bass would not be picked up very well. The Carillon Bells are programmed by the Electric Shop and are played five minutes between classes approximately five intervals a day. But don't get your hopes up because the speakers

Kappa Sigma fate in hands of appeals board

By Brenna Reilly
News Editor

The fate of Kappa Sigma social fraternity has been turned over to the University Appeals Board and Elisabeth Zinser, chancellor for the Lexington Campus.

Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs James Kuder ruled Feb. 13 to uphold the Dean of Students Office decision, suspending the fraternity from campus for three years.

Kappa Sig was charged with hazing last October and found guilty by the Dean of Students Office. The fraternity allegedly held morning clean up sessions, used derogatory names toward pledges and allowed underage drinking in the house.

Kappa Sig submitted a 27-page appeal in which the fraternity refutes the charge of using derogatory names.

They also argued that the hazing allegations did not involve underage drinking in the house. Kappa

Sig admitted to some of the charges including, holding morning clean up sessions and having late night meetings.

Letters from individuals supporting the fraternity accompanied the appeal. One letter from former Interfraternity Council President Todd Fisher pleaded with Kuder to allow Kappa Sig to remain at UK; it was signed by 18 fraternity presidents.

Kuder said he reviewed all the material and met with fraternity members and the Dean of Students Office before making the decision.

"Based on all the evidence I found no reason to overturn the decision," Kuder said.

"All hazing, major or minor is hazing and any group that hazes will be treated the same."

In a letter to former Kappa Sig President Matt

Mauler, Kuder said he commends the fraternity from their proactive stance in dealing with the charges and hopes the fraternity will return to campus after the three year separation.

The case automatically goes to the University Appeals Board which will hold a hearing. The board is made up of three students, six faculty members and the chairman.

The board makes a recommendation to Zinser who makes the final decision.

Kappa Sigma President Tony Zechella said the fraternity is now directing its efforts toward the Appeals Board.

Zechella also said the date for the hearing has not been set.

The fraternity does not have to leave campus until the appeals process is finished.

The Beta Nu chapter of Kappa Sig has been at UK since 1901.

Based on all the evidence I found no reason to overturn the decision.

Rape signs bother UK fraternity

By Brenna Reilly
News Editor
and Alison Knight
Executive Editor

In a week designed to educate the campus about rape prevention, unidentified people put sexually explicit signs all over campus Monday night that made light of Rape Awareness Week and the crime of rape.

Sigma Chi social fraternity, one of the co-sponsors of the week, was featured in the signs that listed several phrases depicting rape.

The fier read: "Sigma Chi presents the Brotherhood Rape Awareness Checklist."

Matt Grunkemeyer, Sigma Chi president, said someone taped signs all over the Sigma Chi house Monday at about 1 a.m.

"We are in the process of figuring out who did it," Grunkemeyer said. "They are so vulgar and so disgusting."

Grunkemeyer said after the signs were discovered in the fraternity house, a friend informed the chapter that the signs were up all over campus. About 1:30 a.m., members went and tore the signs off the White Hall Classroom Building, the Margaret I. King Library and several residence halls, Grunkemeyer said.

Sigma Chi and Delta Delta Delta social sorority are co-sponsoring Rape Awareness Week and providing several activities for UK students to educate them about rape prevention.

Grunkemeyer said he called UK Police and filed a complaint about the incident. UK Police confirmed last night that a complaint had been filed.

"I don't know who would do it, it really bothers all of us," Grunkemeyer said. "We tried to do something positive and we are really upset that somebody would do that."

Kerrie Coughlin, a member of Tri-Delta, said that her sorority was shocked when they heard about the signs.

"We were really discouraged and disappointed that somebody could do that," Coughlin said. "Both our sorority and their fraternity were very upset about it."

Coughlin said she thought the signs showed a lack of respect on the part of whoever put them up.

"For just about anybody to do this displays a lack of respect for just about anything," she said. As part of Rape Awareness Week, a guest panel of professionals will answer questions and discuss rape tonight at 8:30 at the Tri-Delta house. All students are welcome.

NATION Arizona serves as primary battleground

Pat Buchanan and Steve Forbes were in a tight battle yesterday in Arizona's winner-take-all primary, reaching for coveted momentum in the Republican presidential race. Sen. Bob Dole was a disappointing third in the night's showcase contest, but took some solace in winning North and South Dakota.

Lamar Alexander appeared little more than a dim afterthought on the first multi-state primary day of the muddled GOP campaign.

When the Arizona results were in, either Forbes or Buchanan would be the improbable, if early, leader in the hunt for the 996 delegates needed to win the nomination. Just six states into the contest, there was already talk in Republican circles yesterday of a contested convention.

Reeves says he is ready for a child

LOS ANGELES — He can't move his limbs and is still working on breathing on his own, but Christopher Reeve is ready to do one thing: produce another baby.

"We plan to, we do. It (conceiving a child) is not exactly the same, but it can be done. We just want to pick the right time," the actor's wife, Dana, told TV's "Extra" in an interview for broadcast yesterday. They already have a 3-year-old son, Will, and Christopher Reeve has two children from a previous relationship.

Pharmacy professor, 33, dies at UK

Staff report

An associate professor in the UK College of Pharmacy died yesterday at UK Hospital.

Michael P. Gosland, 33, was also an associate professor at the UK College of Medicine and at the UK Graduate Center for Toxicology. He held an appointment as clinical specialist in oncology in the department of pharmacy at UK Hospital.

"Mike was one of the finest young faculty I have ever had the pleasure of working with," said Dr. Kenneth Foon, director of UK's Markey Cancer Center and chief of hematology and oncology in the College of Medicine's department of medicine.

"He was enthusiastic, energetic, and worked well with everyone at the University and the Cancer Center. He also was one of the kindest human beings I have ever known and he will be greatly missed by all."

Gosland received an associates degree in chemistry from Sierra College in Rockland, Ca. in 1983 and a doctor of pharmacy degree from the University of Pacific School of Pharmacy in Stockton, Ca. in 1987, where he graduated summa cum laude.

Gosland completed a clinical pharmacy residency at Veterans Administration Medical Center in Palo Alto, Ca. in 1988 and a postdoctoral fellowship in oncology and cancer pharmacology at Stanford University School of Medicine in Stanford, Ca. in 1991.

Prior to joining the faculty at UK in 1991, Gosland was also a clinical pharmacy specialist in oncology and an adjunct professor at the University of the Pacific.

Gosland was nationally known for research in cancer drug therapy, said Dr. Robert Rapp, a professor and the director of the division of pharmacy practice and science in the College of Pharmacy.

He studied the multi-drug resistant cancer gene and concentrated on ways to reverse drug resistance in specific types of cancer.

Gosland also was a specialist in the area of pharmacokinetics, or the absorption, metabolism, distribution and excretion of drugs, and pharmacodynamics, or how drugs act in tissues, of cancer drugs.

"Mike will be terribly missed," said Dr. Michael Doukas, an associate professor of medicine in the division of hematology and oncology at the College of Medicine. "He was a close colleague and one of the kindest, nicest people to work with. This was a tragic loss."

Memorial's chimes are really cassettes

In 1993, the process of making the tapes was taken over by UK alumnus Perry Ryan. About 24 tapes are available to be played within a school year. The tapes also vary with the season. Ryan has made tapes for Christmas, Thanksgiving and patriotic holidays.

The bells of Memorial Hall mean different things to each student. "The bells bring a consistency to my life that helps me get through the day," said John Roberts, an electrical engineering junior.

For others though it means their class is about to begin.

"Honestly, they mean that I have five minutes to get to class," said Linette Pounds, a dietetics junior.

Others say it is a distraction. "I wish sometimes on Tuesdays and Thursdays they didn't play it because you're in class (in the Civil Engineering Building) and you can hear that noise," said Joe Eaton, an electrical engineering junior.

Festival brings cultures to campus

By Tiffany Gilmarlin
Staff Writer

If students could resist the multi-colored balloons lining the walkways leading to the Student Center, then the aromas floating down from the Grand Ballroom were there to try and snag them.

Students followed their noses to the eighth incarceration of Celebrating Diversity: a Festival of Life's "Taste of the World" held yesterday afternoon.

Crowds were treated to sights, smells and tasty treats native to the each region represented. Tickets outside the ballroom were sold for 25 cents, allowing students to purchase yumies from each of the five continents represented.

This year more traditional foods were encouraged, getting away from the snow cones and pizza from year's past, said Chairman of the Cultural Diversity Festival Randy Gonzalez.

The money raised from the event will be used to off-set the costs.

Gonzalez said he expects the event to only break even.

Albinus Saw, an electrical engineering senior and president of the International Student Council, said that all the souvenirs shown were brought personally by international students.

"We want a lot of UK students to get involved, to come by and look at the exhibits and share our culture," Saw said.

Mona Silseth, a marketing senior, was garbed in traditional Norwegian dress to celebrate the occasion.

Her handmade wool dress, dated back to the 18th century, is used for many occasions and is special to the region from which her grandfather emigrated.

Entertainment was provided by the UK Percussion and Steel Drum Ensembles and dancing children from Play and Learn Day Care.

Play and Learn Day Care owner Cecelia Stokes-Rankins said she has been bringing the children for the past four years, missing only last year.

"I think it's important to show children regardless of age, respect for all people regardless of color or religion," Stokes-Rankins said.

The percussion ensemble led the children in a march around the ballroom and played a variety of tunes including a rendition of "Bingo" and "Sesame Street" for the young guests.

This year's event has been scaled back to only one day and event coordinators said that they did not actively encourage high schools to attend this year, instead focusing on UK students.

Past events have drawn participants in the thousands, but Nina Rotter from the Office of International Affairs said she did not think many would turn out this year.

Also, tomorrow night the International Night of Student Entertainment will be held at 7 p.m. in Memorial Hall.

Procedure For Recommending Revisions Of Student Code

Pursuant to the Code of Student Conduct, Article VII, the Student Code Committee will accept and review recommendations from UK students, faculty and staff regarding proposed revisions of the Code. Such recommendations must be in writing, should be as explicit as possible, and be addressed to the Committee, Office of the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs, Lexington Campus, 529 Patterson Office Tower, 0027. Recommendations should include the name of the proposing individual or organization, mailing address and telephone number. Recommended revision should be submitted by March 6, 1996, and preferably earlier than that date. The code is published as Part 1, pages 1-27, of the document entitled STUDENT RIGHTS AND RESPONSIBILITIES dated August 16, 1994.

Aja/Guyer: First ticket in SGA race

By Gary Wull
Staff Writer

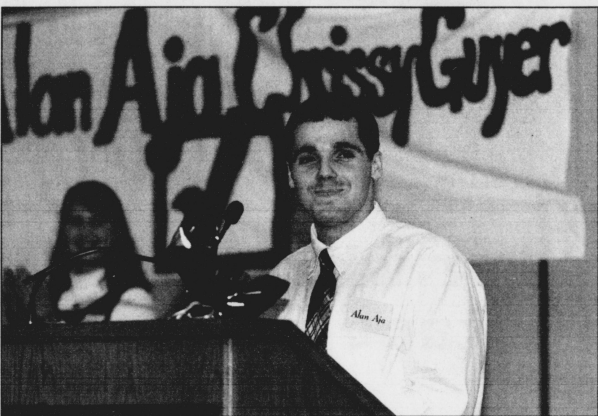

... And they're off. The first of the Student Government Association presidential and vice presidential candidates, Alan Aja and Chrissy Guyer, announced their candidacy last night in the Small Ballroom of the Student Center.

Aja, an SGA Senator at Large, and Guyer, an English junior, presided over a crowd of about 130.

Guyer, who has never been involved in SGA, defended her inexperience in student government saying: "If I am elected I will bring new ideas and new people to SGA. In addition, my freshness combined with Alan's experience will provide the necessary qualities to formulate an innovative and effective administration."

There are several areas Aja and Guyer have outlined in their platform. Some of them include strengthening SGA's roles in academic affairs, in financial services and in health and safety concerns. The duo also aims to increase SGA's involvement in the campus and community.

Guyer said the team wants to maintain programs like tutoring and legal services.

STEPHANIE CORBLE Kernel staff

READY TO GO Senator at Large Alan Aja and Chrissy Guyer (background) announce their intentions to run for the top spots in student government last night.

She also said they would like to expand services to include a campus-wide study fee, increase voter registration, educate women about health and safety issues, and create alcohol awareness programs.

"SGA's future should be in deepening and developing communications between SGA officers, students and student organizations," Guyer said.

Aja began his speech quoting Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

"The ultimate value of a person is not where they stand but where they stand in times of challenge and controversy."

Aja said he spoke about King because of his belief that people can live and work together peacefully with a common purpose in mind.

Next, Aja pointed out the obstacles that keep students from working toward completing their goals.

Some of these include: insufficient student aid, tuition increases, bad counseling and unsafe campus areas.

"If we are going to work together, we should not point our fingers at the administration, but rather we should be pointing fingers at ourselves," he said. "We both know we will face times of challenge and controversy, but if we didn't think we could face these times and be measured by you, the student body, we wouldn't be up here at all."

Panel to talk about Afro-Hispanic culture

By Allison Carmichael
Contributing Writer

The department of Spanish and Italian will feature a panel to discuss the contributions of the African-Hispanic culture to Latin America on Wednesday.

Thomas Edison, a professor in the Spanish and Italian department, is in charge of the panel. He said he is interested in educating the public about "the other African-American."

"In the spirit of Black History Month, I just want to bring light to the fact that Africans are spread all over," Edison said. "Many people don't know that Africa extends through Northern, Central, and Southern America too."

The studies will reflect that there has always been a very general African presence in Latin America, even before America was discovered.

"In the United States, there was a movement that started in the '40s in which people were studying what it's like to be black," Edison said.

"What many people don't realize is that there were similar movements all over the world as well."

Four graduate students in the Spanish department will make their presentations.

Linda Collins, the first presenter, will direct her discussion on Juan Latino, a Latin humanist.

Latino was one of the earliest African-Hispanic speakers in Spain.

Martha Ojeda de Serio, Jorge Medina and Benita Clarke will discuss their work on African-Hispanic writers including Nicomedes Santa Cruz, Blas Jimenez and various Afro-Costa Rican writers.

"They will talk about how this general African presence comes across through Afro-Latino Literature," Edison said.

Edison will be the last featured guest. His presentation is based on the origin and technique of Afro-Hispanic music, otherwise known as "son." Edison will conclude with a musical performance.

Edison said the panel shows a multifaceted look at the African-Hispanic culture, including its music, literature and even its mentality.

"I think it's interesting to see how those things are affected by being an African-Hispanic," Edison said.

The panel will meet on Wednesday from 3 to 4:30 p.m. in 111 Student Center.

A reception will be held immediately following in the Martin Luther King Jr. Cultural Center.

IFC creating two new awards

Staff report

The Interfraternity Council is giving out two new awards this semester. The Outstanding Executive Officer award initiated in 1994 is being renamed the Bryan Clark Outstanding Officer award.

Clark, former Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity president, died last weekend in a car accident. Clark was the first recipient of the Outstanding Executive Officer award.

Fraternities can nominate one person who was an executive officer during this school year. After the fraternities have nominated a candidate, the full IFC will vote on them.

Bill Brassine, IFC president, said the candidates will be judged on their contributions to chapters.

Another new award is the IFC Outstanding Professor award. Brassine said the award is an effort to improve Greek relations with the faculty.

Each fraternity can nominate one professor. The member who nominates the professor must write a 100-word essay about what that teacher has contributed to the classroom and to the community.

Brassine said that chapters should contact the professor they are nominating because the winning professor will be asked to give a 15 minute speech at the banquet.

Applications for both awards are available in the Greek Affairs Office, they are due March 22.

Amos tickets go on sale Saturday

By Robert Duffy

Tori Amos will be making one of her first stops during her American tour in support of her new album Boys for Pele at the Otis A. Singsletary Center for the Arts on April 20.

Amos gained critical acclaim for her first two albums, Little Earthquakes and Under the Pink.

Tickets will go on sale Saturday at the Student Center Ticket Master.

There will be a ticket lottery starting at 8:30 a.m. to determine tickets, so camping out for a good spot is not encouraged.

Tickets will be $22.50.

Only six tickets can be purchased from each student and they must be bought with cash.

"It's going to be a great show," Megan Saynisch, Student Activity Board concert committee co-chair, said.

"Ticket prices for the show are relatively low compared to her other prices, so I think it's a real honor for UK to have gotten her for such a low price."

After Saturday, tickets will be able to be purchased at all TicketMaster outlets.

The announcement of the concert also comes at a time where SAB is gaining a lot of criticism for not bringing events that the majority of the students are interested in.

"Hopefully the show will give the SAB Concert Committee a little better name in the community," Saynisch said.

UK survives test at Auburn

By Ty Halpin
Senior Staff Writer

AUBURN, Ala. — Auburn had all the incidents: An ESPN television audience, senior night, a raucous, sold-out crowd and a hungry team trying to land a spot in the NCAA Tournament.

What they didn't have — a team capable of handling No. 1 UK's all-out pressure for 40 minutes — negated the off-the-court factors.

The Cats continued their torrid March, winning 88-73. The victory pushed UK's winning streak to 24 straight.

Being the top-ranked team added to UK's already-marked status.

From the start, UK (25-1, 15-0) had its hands full. Auburn's crowd of 10,108 at Beard-Eaves Memorial Coliseum was a mass hysteria of screaming and pom-pom waving.

Three straight dunks by Pat Burke riled the Tiger crowd so much that geologists on the Auburn campus reported slight seismograph activity.

UK coach Rick Pitino clearly had trouble yelling instructions on numerous occasions.

"When you have an off-night and still win by 15 in this type of environment, you've got a hell of a good team," Pitino said.

Auburn (18-10, 6-9) kept it close by fueling the fired-up crowd.

The Tigers broke the UK press early, getting open threes and easy layups. Auburn seemed up to the challenge in the first half, running to a 12-5 lead, putting UK on its heels.

UK was poised though, not allowing Auburn to expend its lead, and finally responded with a trademark run (this one being 17-5) to take a 41-32 halftime lead.

An early second half run of 11-2 extended UK's lead to 56-38.

From there, UK traded baskets with Auburn, pushing an up-tempo style to create fast-break opportunities.

The Tigers couldn't control the ball, committing 18 turnovers, which UK turned into 29 points.

The Tigers self-destructed each time they would mount a surge, making careless passes against UK's press.

"We were determined that they weren't going to come into our house and beat us," Auburn senior Lance Weems said.

"Our crowd was great. Being senior night, everyone knew what the game meant."

The Wildcats, trying to complete a perfect SEC season, survived an "off-night," according to Pitino.

"Everyone is due for an off-night, but we never wilted. We never let them have the run they were looking for," Pitino said.

Guard Tony Delk led five UK players in double figures with 15. Sophomore forward Antonio Walker also had a strong night, scoring 11 points and grabbing a career-high 13 rebounds.

Seniors Weems and Ray Donald, both playing their last home game at Auburn, were contained by UK's perimeter pressure.

The two combined for just 9 points on 1-of-7 shooting from three-point range.

"I never thought we were out of it, no matter how far we got behind," Weems said. "Tonight, we showed heart."

Auburn needed more than heart to beat UK. Nonetheless, the Cats faced one of their toughest assignments of the season at Auburn and passed with flying colors.

UK players were flying everywhere last night, extending for every loose ball and for every rebound.

One glimmer of blue, UK senior Walter McCarty made the play of the night late in the game on the fast break when freshman Ron Mercer took and missed an open three.

The rebound bounced just in front of the rim; McCarty jumped over Auburn forward Franklin Williams for the one-handed dunk.

The stunned crowd and the Tigers never recovered.

Wake Forest adds to UNC's struggles

By Joe Macenka
Associated Press

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. — Tony Rutland and Jerry Braswell resurrected Wake Forest's long-range shooting with a first-half barrage that sent the 13th-ranked Demon Deacons to an 84-60 victory over No. 19 North Carolina on last night.

Rutland finished with 22 points and Braswell had 12 as Wake Forest, coming off its worst 3-point shooting performance of the season three nights earlier, matched their season high with 12 3s.

Eight came in the first half, when the Demon Deacons raced to a 21-point lead on the way to extending their school record for consecutive home victories to 19.

WFO (19-5, 11-4 Atlantic Coast Conference) moved within a half game of league-leading Georgia Tech (18-10, 11-3). The Demon Deacons' last game is Saturday at North Carolina State.

UNC's Dante Calabria had 13 points and Antawn Jamison scored eight of his 12 points in the second half as the Tar Heels (19-9, 9-6) lost for the fifth time in eight games.

UNC cannot get a seed higher than third for next week's conference tournament, even if the Tar Heels win their final regular-season game Sunday at Duke.

Against the Tar Heels, Wake Forest needed only three minutes to make a trio of 3-pointers. Wake hit seven of its first 13 from long range on the way to building a 39-18 lead.

Braswell made all three of his 3-point attempts during the surge, and Rutland made three of five.

Wake Forest missed its next four 3-pointers, but by then, the damage had already been done.

UNC, which put up four 3-pointers during the run and made two, got no closer than 16.

Wake closed out its highest-scoring first half of the season on two baskets by Rutland to take a 52-28 lead at the break.

North Carolina, which has won five games this season by rallying in the second half, did not cut its deficit below 17 points in the final 20 minutes.

Sophomore comes up big as UK beats ECU on Senior Night

By Rob Herbst
Staff Writer

Although it was senior night for the UK women's basketball team yesterday, it was a sophomore who brought the Cats a victory.

Shaunda Roberts scored 25 points and grabbed eight rebounds as UK nabbed a 68-62 victory over Eastern Kentucky University, who were led by Laphelia Doss' 25 points.

The Cats (8-18) now head down to Chattanooga, Tenn., this weekend to participate in the Southeastern Conference "Tournament." UK will face Auburn in the first round game Friday at 6 p.m.

The Tigers crushed the Cats 88-46 in Auburn earlier this month.

Last night was the final home game for Christina Jansen and Julie Swarens-Beickman. Even though it was their night, the duo combined for only nine points.

It was a close game in the first half, with the lead going back and forth. After 20 minutes, the game was dead-locked at 29-29.

UK held the lead throughout the second half until the 5:10 mark when Samantha Young hit a three-pointer to tie the game at 56-56.

That is when Roberts took control for the Cats. She proceeded to score the next 11 points for UK. But appropriately, it was a senior who clinched the victory for the Cats.

Jansen hit the first of two free throws to give the Cats a four point lead at 66-62 with only 20 seconds left. The lead was too much for the Lady Colonels (10-15) to overcome.

"That was the only time I've been on the line like that," Jansen said. "I just told myself to arch the ball and follow through and maybe have a little luck too."

Before the tip-off, the seniors were presented game balls for their efforts. The emotion of the moment seemed to carry over into the start of the game.

Both came out tense in the early moments of the contest.

"When coach handed me the ball at half court, I said, 'Coach, I'm shaking,'" Jansen said. "I thought I was gonna drop that ball, and I came out (to start the game) the same way."

The seniors weren't the only ones to feel the nervousness. Both Coach Bernadette Locke-Mattox and her squad seemed to also display the emotion of the evening.

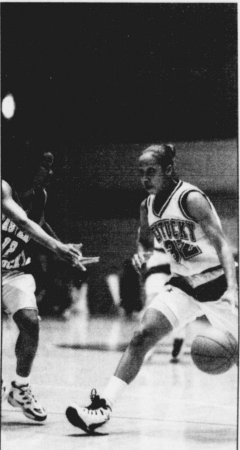

"Obviously we didn't come out like I would have wanted us to," Locke-Mattox said. "We came out a little sluggish, but that is from senior night. It was special night for our seniors and the players wanted to join in with them too."

The memories of the past season filled Roberts' mind as the seniors were honored.

"For me, I could've cried too," Roberts said. "Just looking back on the season how the team has come close, it really got to me."

Team Awards
The two seniors were not the only players to receive awards on the night. After the victory, Locke-Mattox presented team awards in front of the fans.

Co-MVP's were Swarens-Beickman and Roberts. Kim Denkins received the award for top team rebounder and Jansen earned the assists award. Freshman Shawn Manning earned the most improved player award.

The UK rifle team scored 2,330 points in the small bore and 1,556 in the air rifle for a combined 3,886 to win the Western Conference title this weekend in Columbus, Ohio.

The Cats, ranked No. 1 in the country, were led by Mary Elsass who won the small bore with 586 points and tied for the overall high in the air rifle with 391 points.

Four UK shooters also qualified for a chance at an individual title at the NCAA Championships March 7-10 in Colorado Springs, Colo.

They were Elsass, Mike Boggs, Owen Blakemore and Nancy Napolski.

Classic plays spoofed at Actors' Guild

By Tara Anderson
Staff Writer

We've all yawned through Shakespeare in high school, trying to interpret that antiquated language, that lofty speech, and those far-fetched plots that would obviously never happen in real life.

However, a local theater company is trying to take Shakespeare to a new level.

"The Complete Works of William Shakespeare (abridged)" opens tomorrow night at Actors' Guild of Lexington, and is a crash course in all 37 of the Bard's plays, presented in two hours by three actors.

The cast includes three Lexington actors: Billy Breed, most recently seen in "Marisol" at Actors' Guild; Henry K. Haggard, one of Actors' Guild's original actors; and Robert Parks Johnson, the technical coordinator at Actors' Guild.

The show is a fast-paced comedy, originally put together by three men who call themselves the Reduced Shakespeare Company. Obviously, some material is cut from each play — often all but one or two lines — but each play is at least touched on briefly.

The histories are all combined into a huge football game for the English crown, and all 16 comedies are combined into "The Love Boat Goes to Verona" because, well, they all use the same gimmicks anyway.

"Troilus and Cressida" is presented as a piece of performance art with an interpretive dance, and "Titus Andronicus" is a grisly cooking show featuring a wacked-out Julia Child

BE TO NOT OR BE TO Actors gear up for the upcoming production of "The Complete Works of William Shakespeare (abridged)." The first show will be tomorrow night.

who's missing a hand. The presentation of "Macbeth" is in a thick, almost unintelligible Scottish accent, making it difficult to understand, (not a new Shakespeare experience for most of us.)

After quickly knocking out the majority of Shakespeare's work, the show focuses on "Romeo and Juliet" with all the parts being played by two actors, and then "Hamlet," which is done fast, faster and then finally backwards, with the immortal words: "Be to not or be to."

The actors have to change costume pieces and keep track of different props in order to portray several characters in one scene.

Breed, for example, plays Gertrude, Claudius, the ghost of Hamlet's father, and Ophelia in the production of "Hamlet" and has to continually be wearing a crown or a wig or a white sheet with eyeholes (to be the ghost, of course), depending on who he is at the moment.

With every actor running around trying to play several different characters at once, it's been difficult to set the pace while making everything understandable.

"We're keeping it fast, but not out of control," Director Vic Chaney said.

Chaney said he hopes that the slight exposure that the audience will have to some of Shakespeare's lesser known works will encourage them to explore further.

"There are plays that I'm looking forward to reading," Chaney said. "I hope that's what the audience gets."

This show was a last minute replacement for "Before It Hits Home," the originally scheduled play for this part of the season. Unfortunately, two of the actors had to drop out after the show was already in rehearsal.

"The Complete Works of William Shakespeare (abridged)" runs each weekend until the end of March. Call (606) 233-0663 for tickets and information.

WHAT'S your sign?

By John Abbott

Aries (March 21-April 19) Unbeknownst to you, someone photographed you as you were breaking into cars last week, removing hang tags. He, along with a group of people whose cars you victimized, assaults you in a dark alley and shoves carrot sticks up your nose. Raw carrot sticks.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) You receive a desperate call from your parents. It seems that their house has been blown up. Damn, you think, they weren't at home when the bomb went off — now I'm going to have to pay a hit man to kill them, and hit men are really expensive.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) You have an extremely enjoyable week. Cancer (June 21-July 22) You roommate's teeth to give to the Tooth Fairy, your vengeful roommate ties you up, drains seven pints of blood from your body, and sells it.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Dinner costs 20 bucks. You pay the bill entirely with pennies. The cashier grudgingly accepts your unusual payment. Later that night, you are pulled from your bed by ski mask-clad weirdos who lock you in a basement and beat you repeatedly with a sack filled with 2,000 pennies. That'll show you, you big jerk.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You receive a knock on your door. When you open it, you see three people you've never seen in your entire life.

The elder two claim that they are your parents, and the younger says that she is your sister. You invite them in, whistling the theme from "The Twilight Zone" all along.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You become wildly obsessed with fish. You build a shrine in your room to the God of Fish, and begin worshipping him daily.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You read a story in the newspaper about some 7-year-old prodigy who plays the violin like a genius and speaks five languages. You become really depressed because this kid has accomplished 10 times what you have, and you're over twice his age. You realize your life has been a waste.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) You find it impossible to concentrate on the material being taught in class because the person next to you is being loud and disruptive. You turn to him, inform him menacingly that "I am trying to learn here!", then jab a taser in his back until he's unconscious. Then you shock him again, because it's so much fun watching his limbs flail about.

Crone to lecture on writing, fiction

By Karen Waddle
Contributing Writer

Prize-winning southern author Moira Crone will be on campus today and tomorrow as part of the UK Spring Visiting Writer Series.

The first reading her work will happen at 4 p.m. in 230 Student Center. Her visit is sponsored by the UK Department of English and the College of Arts and Sciences.

Crone, an English professor at Louisiana State University and a successful southern writer, will spend her first day on campus reading some of her works.

Some publishers on her hefty resumé include such renowned magazines as The Missouri Review, Washington Review for the Arts, The Southern Review and New Yorker. Crone has four different anthologies in print.

In 1982 she published her first book, The Winchago Mysteries and Other Stories. Andrei Codrescu, author and National Public Radio commentator described her first book as "unsentimental, hard hitting and charged, this is language at work."

Crone's latest novella, Deaching State, won the 1993 Pirates Alley

Faulkner Prize. Gary Krist of the New York Times Book Review found that "Dream State" successfully presents a fresh version of the Deep South, one that is exciting without being either grotesque or romanticized."

Her short stories broach subjects of which most Southerners do not speak.

In fact, she deals on the toughest subjects with a harsh directness and realism in I Am Eleven.

Within a span of 10 pages Crone creates a lasting identification with a young girl losing the innocent love most women have for their fathers at some point.

Crone will discuss the short story as a literary genre and the creative writing process tomorrow.

In a former interview with Eric Kinman during the Third International Conference on the Short Story in English, she was quoted as saying:

"As a writer, I'm stuck with a certain subject matter, which comes out of my experience. I can't help that. Where there's room for growth is the exploration of form or shape. Like anybody, I'm interested in teaching the things I'm still learning."

Fu Manchu, Hammerhead offer energy

Hammerhead
Dub, the big city
AmRep Records

The release of Dub, the big city, has Hammerhead fans happy about their punk rock success with the 1994 monster album Into the Vortex.

"City dwellers are urged to run for cover" is the way in which Hammerhead describes their sound in a U.S. Rocker article. But I was kind of leery of their style when listening to "Earth," the first song of Dub. But as the CD played, their melodic but complex style got grooving, like on "Monkey Mountain."

Hammerhead also tries for a live sound — evident on Dub, the big city. The two original members, Paul Erickson on bass vocals and Jeff Moridian on drums, have evolved from their Into the Vortex sound with additional member Craig Klaus, the group's new guitarist.

What was said of Into the Vortex can also be said of pounding, relentless and unstoppable.

But on its new release, the experimental quality goes much further.

The bass' distortion constantly is moved from guitar-like to subsonically low. The drums are tuned to sound even more loud and resonant.

Hammerhead is also known for extremely violent live shows — one to mention is Cleveland where Gibby Haynes of the Butthole Surfers showed up and bounced people around like basketballs by their belts.

So, if you scream for bands with punk rock appeal and sound

Fu Manchu
In Search Of...
Mammoth Records

In Search Of... The name of Fu Manchu's new album makes you wonder exactly what the band is searching for — because they already got it all.

The album is perfect for partying or just listening to, but taking you back to the psychedelic seventies groove with fuzzy guitars and heavy drums.

Mammoth Records refers to them as "Igy Pop if he's been wired on acid instead of smack." My roommate thought of the group's sound as more Black Sabbath.

I thought the music definitely wants you to get out of the nineties attitude of lounging in your comfy chair, playing with your new CD-Rom and listening to the same old rhythms.

In Search Of... makes your body crave growing out long hair, putting on your flyest purple shades, and buying a VW van. And all while dancing barefoot in the daisies.

The group's quickly changing guitar riffs and absurd lyrics dealing with its love and fascination for television in "Land of the Lost" draws even the biggest seventies haters to their knees.

"Strato Streak," is a prime example. Eddie Glass' drawn out lead guitar sound is powerful but acid-like. Scott Hill's vocals and smoother guitar sound go perfectly with his crazy lyrics.

The other two members, Ruben Romano on drums, and bassist Brad Davis keep their upbeat rhythm but heavy sound between constantly evolving, catchy tunes. Definitely a band not to miss.

Nack's trash job on Pitino belongs on grocery stand

Sports Illustrated has stooped to new lows in journalism

I'm assuming that by now all the blue-bleeders in the state have had an opportunity to pick up the latest issue of Sports Illustrated. I'm also guessing that many of those blue-bleeders were as infuriated as I was by William Nack's article on Coach Rick Pitino titled, "A Man Possessed."

David Royse
Kernel Columnist

I pulled the article off CompuServe the night before it hit the newsstands. And while I was pretty happy about screwing the SI people out of $2.95, the article screwed me out of a night of sleep. Yes, after finally reading the last words, and looking at the last kindergartenesque illustration, I was so infuriated, that I could not sleep a wink.

The first problem that I had with this article was that it appeared in Sports Illustrated. What does it have to do with sports? Do the folks at SI really expect us to believe that in possibly the best season in the history of Kentucky Basketball, the most newsworthy story in the entire program is a description of how Coach Pitino hangs the shirts in his closet?!

And by the way, when did William Nack get a doctoral degree in psychology? I have always been under the impression that the people who write for SI are men and women who follow the world of sports. Their experience is in the field of sports reporting, and that is what they are paid to do. What I did not know was that SI reporters are apparently also marital counselors, coaching consultants, psychologists, sociologists and who knows what else.

Nack's article is an attempt to make Pitino out to be some kind of raving mad control-freak in a state full of raving-mad basketball freaks. And while the latter is 100 percent correct, I refuse to believe the former.

Yes, I refuse to believe that a man who devotes his life to taking 17 and 18 year old boys and making them into dedicated, devoted young men, has such a tragic character flaw himself. I have a hard time believing that a man who is able to teach 12 boys not only how to be enormously successful but also to be responsible, is such a terrible monster himself.

Now there is no doubt that Coach Pitino is intense. There is no doubt that he gets very fired up in practice and in games. There is no doubt that he is a scrappy recruiter and a cunning salesman. But if Coach Pitino did not have these qualities, he would not have been offered the head-coaching job at the greatest college basketball program in the history of the world. These are qualities that we demand. These are not, however, qualities which make you "a man possessed," "laboring in a cross between a madhouse and a sweatshop."

And finally, who in the hell does William Nack think he is to delve into the personal relationship between Coach Pitino and his wife of nearly 20 years? I do not read Sports Illustrated to hear stories about spats between husbands and wives.

Moreover, Nack's discussion of how Joanne Pitino fits into the scheme of this national championship season at UK is like discussing how Barbara Bush fit into the scheme of the U.S. attacking Iraq. I do not want to hear, nor is it any of my business to hear what goes on behind closed doors when Joanne is Mrs. Pitino, the wife of Mr. Pitino and mother of the Pitino children.

Mr. Nack's article has proven only one thing. It has proven that we, as American consumers, can no longer take enjoyment from reading about personal successes, and human spirit. No, we will only buy the tabloid rags which tell us how Madonna last slept with and how many times Elvis has been resurrected. And Sports Illustrated has finally descended to this same grocery store aisle with all the others.

Staff Columnist David Royse is a first-year law student.

... who in the hell does William Nack think he is to delve into the personal relationship between Coach Pitino and his wife of nearly 20 years?

Smoke screen

The construction going on in the Student Center food court may be for a new smoking lounge in the building, but the reasoning behind the new room has a smoke screen in front of it.

UK really had no choice in this matter so the administration can't really be blamed. The state now says that smoking rooms have to be placed in state buildings where there are high concentrations of people. The Student Center, as well as a couple of other campus buildings, are being renovated to include the new areas.

The process is time-consuming and expensive for UK, and the school, as well as others around the state, has been treated unfairly in the process.

Here's the big problem: The state provided no funding to help convert the necessary barriers and ventilation to help finish the project.

This law is nothing more than an unfunded mandate handed down from the state government, and UK is forced to deal with the consequences, no matter the cost.

While the University is already struggling with trying to pay for more class sections, more professors and instructors and more parking on campus, they now have the burden of setting up these rooms for smokers.

We're not making a statement against smokers, but it seems like the University could find something better to spend its money on.

Unfortunately, they don't have that opportunity.

The state legislature is in session now, and the state has a huge surplus to work with. There is enough money in Frankfort now to do away with unfunded mandates to state agencies.

They should find a way to help schools pay for state-mandated projects, or leave it to the school to decide whether they have to resources to do the job.

Check your history

In Boyce Watkins' editorial in Monday's Kernel, he states that blacks are affiliated with the Republican party "because they don't understand history." I think it would benefit Mr. Watkins to study history and discover which party put forth the soldiers who fought and died so he could walk the streets of Lexington a free man. I have to wonder if Mr. Watkins supports the Democratic Party, which instituted the black codes and Jim Crow laws.

I have studied my history, Mr. Watkins, and your hatred toward the party that worked so hard to free your ancestors confuses me.

Felice's heroes are all like Hitler

To the editor:

Matt Felice is right on target in choosing the causes he praises. Last semester he championed the Civil War as a cause for state's rights. Early this semester he honored Richard Nixon as a hero. And on Feb. 21, he drew a political cartoon depicting the moral values of Pat Buchanan.

But what surprises me is that Felice has not yet praised Hitler for his very noble cause in the years 1938-44. Let's look at the parallels:

First, Felice writes that the Civil War was fought to protect state's rights rather than preserve slavery, and as proof he points out that the average soldier who fought did not own a slave. Likewise, Hitler did not fight World War II to establish a master race, but for what he told his people, namely the three K's — Kuche, Kirche and Kinder (the home, the church, the children.) Proof that the war was not waged to exterminate Jews lies in the fact that the average German soldier did not kill a Jew.

Second, Felice views Nixon as a hero because he tried hard at sports. I agree. We should ignore his extensive record as a war criminal in Vietnam, his illegal bombing of Cambodia, and his subversion of the election process in this country. Likewise, we should dismiss Hitler's atrocities. After all, he struggled hard as a painter in his youth, didn't he?

Third, Felice praises Buchanan for not wavering from his values. True, Buchanan never wavered in his support for apartheid, his condemnation of the one-man-one-vote system, and his denunciation of the U.S.'s trying to find the last

Buchanan's associations speak louder than words

Shortly after the last vote was tallied in the New Hampshire primary, news cameras rushed to the candidates' camps to document their reactions. The cameras went straight to Pat Buchanan. Yuck, I thought to myself, this little imp actually won. As he stood before the cheering crowd and despite my own jeers, Buchanan addressed his followers in a spirited and excited fashion. As he patting himself on the back and expressed his pure joy for capturing a win, I was startled by some of the things he said. He told the crowd to be proud of themselves and of his vision of America as united under God.

He also said something to the effect that they were the sons and daughters of the great founders of the United States. I doubt most people picked up on that sentence, but I did. In saying that, he was essentially addressing white people as the sons and daughters of men like Thomas Jefferson and Alexander Hamilton. Technically speaking, that must be true because as I recall, slaves weren't born of white people. (They may have had white fathers, but that didn't earn them any rights or favors.)

I think I was most upset by these comments because they demonstrated such a complete lack of respect for other people. Little comments like that reveal a great deal about people, especially if they think in terms of one race inhabiting America.

The press hasn't been easy on Buchanan these past few weeks, and for good reason. Not only are they searching for juicy stories, but they're using their journalistic license to dig up the dirt, so to speak.

Just a week before the New Hampshire primary, Buchanan's relationship with his campaign co-chairman, Larry Pratt, was highlighted. Pratt leads Gun Owners of America and has spoken before white supremacist and militia groups in the past. Many people have questioned the motivations of Pratt and Buchanan alike in light of these findings. In Pratt's defense, the question arose of whether or not Pratt knew who he was addressing, and perhaps he was speaking on a topic unrelated to race and militias. Regardless of the content of the speech, I wonder why these offensive, right-wing groups asked him to speak in the first place.

The most recent controversy involves Buchanan's involvement with a southern, pro-Confederacy magazine called Southern Partisan. Buchanan's name has been on the masthead since 1990 and has been asked to serve as a senior adviser for the publication. The magazine refers to Lincoln as "a consummate conniver, manipulator, and liar" it also calls African-Americans, "Negroes" and refers to the South as the C.S.A. (Confederate States of America). The magazine says it honors the South and the bravery of southern men in the fight against the "Yankee invaders" and the North's aggression. On its pages, a reader finds conservative Republican politics and defensive stances on the South's role in the Civil War.

It defends the flying of the Confederate flag while glorifying Southern leaders. While it claims to be anti-racist, its actions become quite contradictory. On the surface, the magazine denounces the KKK, but entertains the rantings of such clearly racist people like Samuel Francis. Francis, using the Christian Bible, defends slavery as there "is no indication that slavery is contrary to Christian ethics." Francis, a close friend of Buchanan's, writes articles that are clearly defamatory regarding blacks. Francis opposed the Arthur Ashe memorial in Richmond, Virginia, saying that the debate over the statue was a precursor to the second civil war. Francis believes that this "second civil war" will be about "which race — and which race's myths — will prevail in the future."

The idea of secession seems, at least to me, to be in direct conflict with a person who aspires to the Office of President of the United States, not the confederate states. If this is a country, united by the laws of the federal government, then secession is obsolete and serves no purpose, except of course to give a few bored people something to do. But, this isn't a harmless pastime for these people. They are reverting back to a time in history when women had basically no rights and black people were slaves.

Buchanan may not be racist as there are many reasons to express pride in the old South. After all, he is a Southerner and his forebears fought in the civil war. I simply question the underlying motives that he lacks the audacity to express blatantly and openly. The subtle clues are the most impressive.

His associations, his friends, and his comments are quite questionable. It would be unfair to condemn him through these associations, but if he is called on it and confronted with it, the truth will come out. Buchanan does not stand for unity and equality for all. If the words and speeches he rehearses fail to prove it, then maybe we should let his actions speak for him. In fact, they already have.

PC upsets Georgetown

By Frank Baker
Associated Press

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Austin Croshere scored 18 points to lead five Providence players in double figures as the Friars upset No. 8 Georgetown 84-77 last night.

In an emotion-packed final home game of the season that saw GU coach John Thompson ejected, PC (16-9, 9-8 Big East) sprinted to an 11-1 lead and never trailed. The Hoyas (23-6, 12-5) Georgetown 84-77 last night.

The Friars then hit eight of 10 foul shots over the last 51 seconds to seal the victory.

Allen Iverson led GU with 34 points, while Victor Page added 15, all on 3-pointers. Othella Harrington added 14 points and 11 rebounds, but fouled out with 6:29 to play.

Providence got 15 points from Michael Brown, 13 each from Jamel Thomas and Shamgod, and 11 from Derrick Brown.

The Friars, winners of seven of nine games, needed a victory to improve their chances of receiving an at-large bid to the NCAA tour-namment. They were aggressive from the outset, playing a stifling defense that, coupled with the Hoyas early shooting woes, helped them to the early 10-point lead.

GU, who shot 36 percent in the first half, scored only 10 points in the first 10 1/2 minutes and trailed 22-10.

PC had a chance to increase its lead, but Derrick Brown missed a fast-break dunk. Thomas grabbed the rebound, elbowed Godwin Owine and was given a technical foul. Harrington hit both free throws to cut the lead to 22-12, but any momentum GU gained was short-lived as PC's Jason Murdock hit a driving layup.

GU got as close as 32-27 at 1:51 on the second of Iverson's consecutive 3-pointers from deep in the left corner, but a short jumper by Michael Brown and a free throw by Shamgod gave the Friars a 35-27 halftime cushion.

GU opened the second half with five straight points, and cut the deficit to 45-43 on Iverson's 3-pointer with 14:05 to play. But Thompson got his first technical a minute later and Providence went on an 8-1 run to go up 53-44.

Crum gives team passing grade after road tests

By Mike Emry

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — After road tests at Cincinnati and Memphis last week, Louisville coach Denny Crum gave a passing grade to his No. 21 Cardinals.

U of L (19-8, 10-2 Conference USA) upset No. 7 UC 72-66 and lost 57-54 to No. 14 U of M. They close out the regular season at home against Marquette (18-6, 8-4) tonight and No. 2 UMass on Saturday.

"I said going in that the one thing I knew would happen would be that we'd find out how good we are and if we're competitive with these top teams," said Crum. "I feel a lot better about our team than I did going in last week."

U of L committed 46 turnovers in the two games, including a season-high 26 at Cincinnati, after making just 18 turnovers in its previous two games.

The Cardinals, ranked second in the nation in field-goal shooting at 49.9 percent, shot just 39.7 percent at Memphis and scored a season-low 21 points in the second half.

"We were fortunate in Cincinnati," said Crum, whose team has won nine of its last 11 games. "We made a lot of mistakes but we survived them and played good defense. We played good defense against Memphis. We made a few turnovers and we didn't shoot the ball well."

Much of Louisville's shooting woes can be attributed to guard DeJuan Wheat, who is playing with a jammed middle finger on his shooting hand. The team's leading scorer with 17.9 points a game, he has made just 2-of-25 shots the past two games.

"We don't have anybody else that can do the things he can do offensively," Crum said. "We just have to keep working and get him well."

Crum said he wouldn't have players such as forwards Damion Dantzler and Alvin Sims trying to pick up the slack in 3-point shooting.

"You only want the guys shooting it that shoot it well," he said. "That just beats you. If you don't shoot it well, you're going to lose. Everybody has got to play to their strengths. What we need to do is get DeJuan healthy."

U of L is still awaiting the NCAA to restore of an appeal to the NCAA to restore center Samaki Walker's eligibility. He is sitting out while the NCAA rules on his father's purchase of an automobile.

Women gearing up for weekend tournament

By Chris Easterling
Assistant Sports Editor

The eyes of women's college basketball will be on Chattanooga, Tenn., this weekend as the South-eastern Conference Tournament starts up Friday.

With seven teams in the latest Top 25 poll, the SEC continues to prove why it is considered the toughest conference in the nation for women's basketball.

With many of the lower teams beating some of the top teams on a consistent basis, the balance in the league has not gone unnoticed in the eyes of the coaches.

"I've never seen the league any more balanced than what it is," Alabama coach Rick Moody said yesterday via teleconference. "And I don't think it's mediocrity either."

Moody's Crimson Tide squad will enter the tournament with a 20-6 record overall, 7-4 in the conference and a 16th ranking in the polls. They are seeded fourth in the tournament, meaning they will get a first round bye and wait to play the winner of the UK (8-18, 2-9) - No. 16 Auburn (19-7, 6-5) game to be played on Friday.

GU opened the second half with five straight points, and cut the deficit to 45-43 on Iverson's 3-pointer with 14:05 to play. But Thompson got his first technical a minute later and Providence went on an 8-1 run to go up 53-44.

No. 2 Georgia (23-3, 10-1) will be the number one seed when the tournament opens up, and like Alabama, will have a bye on Friday. The Lady Bulldogs will play either LSU or Mississippi State Saturday at 1 p.m.

UGA coach Andy Landers said he sees advantages to getting a first round bye, particularly in a tournament with this many outstanding teams in it.

"There are a surprising number of teams in the lower division who concern me if I had to play them," Landers said.

Both LSU and MSU have quality wins over some of the SEC's top teams. The Tigers (17-9, 4-7) defeated No. 23 Ole Miss (19-7, 6-5) in Baton Rouge by 15. The Lady Bulldogs (13-13, 4-7) own a three point home win over the tournament's number three seed, Vanderbilt (20-6, 7-4).

The number two seed in the tournament, No. 5 Tennessee (23-4, 9-2), will face off Saturday against the winner of the Ole Miss-Arkansas game. Either one of UT's likely opponents have a lot riding on its tournament run.

For the Rebels, it means possibly improving their seeding in the NCAA Tournament. For the Razorbacks (20-10, 3-8), they could be fighting for a bid in the NCAAs.
