PREFACE.

PROMPTED by a feeling that the Alumni of Kentucky University have long desired that something be done to draw them into a closer relationship, and that some means was needed whereby they could trace each other through the ever-changing scenes of life since leaving their Alma Mater, I have compiled this little volume, with the hope that it will, in a measure, satisfy these wants. More than this, it seems to me that the graduates of Kentucky University should have their names inscribed in a common book, to which present and future children of their Alma Mater may turn and draw therefrom some valuable lessons, and gather inspiration from the records of those whose success in life shall beckon them on to better and nobler deeds.

The task of gathering the data herein contained has been laborious. I have flooded the mails for long, weary months with inquiries regarding date of birth, present and past occupation, etc., etc. Some have been put to dire discomfort searching faded records to unearth the long-forgotten dates of their entrance into the world; some in youthful modesty have apologized for their dearth of years and some have even endeavored to ward off the blade of Father Time by refusing to name a date so ancient. Some have told me the story of their lives in few words, while others grew eloquent and passionate in a series of biographical sketches that would bankrupt a syndicate to publish. Still others have filed my letters away, leaving me with no alternative save to write their name and address as an epitaph upon these pages.

This book then is far from the ideal, yet in its imperfect form it is presented to you as the best my efforts can make it now. If it gives you pleasure to read these sketches which I have been compelled to abbreviate, then am I satisfied.

HISTORICAL SKETCH.

BACON COLLEGE, the earliest literary institution of its grade established by the Disciples of Christ, began its first session in Georgetown, Ky., November 7, 1836. Its charter granted at the next session of the Legislature was approved February 23, 1837. In the summer of 1839 the institution was removed to Harrodsburg, Ky. Beginning its first session in that place September 2, 1839, it was conducted there until insufficient means led to its suspension in the summer of 1850. In the winter of 1856 John B. Bowman of Mercer county, entered on the work of founding a university which should be the successor of Bacon College. His appeals for financial aid were successful beyond expectation, and the preparatory department was opened September 21, 1857.

An amended charter, approved January 15, 1858, in which the provisions of the first charter were greatly extended, and the name of the institution changed to Kentucky University, was accepted by the trustees of Bacon College, February 2, 1858. The collegiate department was opened September 19, 1859, under the Presidency of Robert Milligan, and was conducted in Harrodsburg until the summer of 1865, when, after the destruction of the college building by fire, the University was removed to Lexington, Ky., where it succeeded to the property of Transylvania University.

Transylvania Seminary was chartered by the Legislature of Virginia in May, 1783. The first meeting of its trustees was held November 10, 1783, near Danville, Ky. Its first session began February 1, 1785. After a few years the Seminary was removed to Lexington, Ky. Its first session in this place began June 1, 1789. By an act of the General Assembly of Kentucky, approved December 22, 1798, Transylvania Seminary and Kentucky Academy were united January 1, 1799, under the name of Transylvania University. After an existence of sixty-six years, Transylvania University was consolidated with Kentucky University by an act of the Legislature, approved February 28, 1865, and accepted by the Curators of Kentucky University June 20, 1865.

The first session of Kentucky University in Lexington began October 2, 1865. To the College of Liberal Arts and the Academy, which had been conducted at Harrodsburg, the College of the Bible and the College of Law were now added. The office of Regent of the University was created July 17, 1865. John B. Bowman, the founder of the University, was elected Regent, which office he held until June, 1878.

COLLEGE OF LIBERAL ARTS.

In the summer of 1878 the last session of the College of the Bible under the charter of Kentucky University closed, and the new College of the Bible, which had been established in 1877, took its place. This college, organized under its own charter and in administration and control entirely independent of the University, is conducted in connection with it.

The office of Regent was discontinued June 12, 1878, at which time Henry H. White was elected President of the University. He filled this office until, on his voluntary resignation of the Presidency in June, 1880, Charles Louis Loos was elected President, which position he still occupies.

In 1889, the University contributed to the educational exhibit that was sent by the Government of the United States to the Exposition Universelle, in Paris, and in 1893 to the Kentucky exhibit in the Liberal Arts department of the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago. Both of these contributions were honored with awards,
