TESTIMONIAL—RADIO'S ROLE IN THE FLOOD

The part that radio played in the recent flood is already history. Had it not been for the efficient and continued bulletins that emanated from the stations to relief workers, there seems to be no doubt that chaos would have been the result.

Listeners-in over all the eastern and southern sections of the country kept their dials tuned to the terse and dramatic announcements which were given. Regular entertainment programs were spurned for the human drama that was unfolded through the loud speakers.

In Louisville, where observers say the flood did its worst damage, station WHAS did heroic work in keeping the city organized, enabling it to cope with all the terrors that high waters bring.

Next Thursday, the University is giving a testimonial banquet to the Louisville station in recognition of its work and in appreciation of the cordial relations which have existed between the station and the University during the eight years that the University staff broadcasts have been a part of the daily programs of WHAS.

INTELLIGIBLE OPINION BUT NOT A CROSS SECTION

When this paper asked the student body for its opinion on compulsory military training in the R. O. T. C., our idea was to gain a cross section of student opinion, not the sentiment of a small group.

The first letters to reach this office were without exception written by exponents of optional R. O. T. C. As may be seen by reading the adjoining student opinion columns, they are intelligible, constructive, and tolerant, and show that the writers spent some time in deep and serious thought about the question.

However, we think, there must be someone on this campus who believes that compulsory military training is a great thing, who believes that every lad who comes to college should be compelled to sign up for military for two years. We hardly believe that the letters which are published today represent a cross section, but unless we hear from the other side, we shall be forced to conclude that perhaps they do after all.

STUDENT OPINION First Letters Rap R. O. T. C.

They Urge A Straw Vote

To the Editor of The Kernel: Your editorial, "Awareness Coming to Collegians," appearing in the last issue of The Kernel, raises the question of sentiment on our campus with regard to compulsory R. O. T. C. drill.

It is my opinion that there is more objection to this training than you apparently believe. Furthermore, the opposition to it is not directed at the drilling itself, as it is quite fascinating and attractive at times; the real opposition to compulsory training is based on the opinion that it is not consistent with American ideals of individual liberty and freedom of conscience.

I strongly favor a straw vote on the issue conducted by The Kernel as an impartial agent. May I recommend that you make every effort to obtain such an expression of opinion.

In the meanwhile, I'll cast my vote now against compulsory R. O. T. C. If the military department is really worthy of the salute it is not sending to its own merits?

I sincerely hope the opinion of those who favor the R. O. T. C., if I can not accept their theory.

Tom Spragens, '38

To the Editor of The Kernel: It was refreshing to me to see the Kernel come through on February 12th with their slam-bang editorial, "Awareness Coming to Collegians." I sincerely hope that this editorial was not a flash in the pan which will blow itself out, unnoticed except by a few.

I should like to see The Kernel really worthwhile in the sense it has already made, and conduct a campus-wide straw vote on the questions of compulsory military training and loyalty oaths. The one hundred and ten institutions referred to in The Kernel's editorial represent a fairly accurate sampling of nation-wide student opinion. A straw vote, I feel sure, would show that the students of the University of Kentucky are in agreement with the opinions expressed at other universities.

The future teachers in Kentucky's College of Education are certainly interested in the questions of loyalty oaths, since they will be affected by them in later life. Let's find out how the teachers of tomorrow feel about the legislation of today.

What better student comment than that expressed in a straw vote? What more accurate sampling of student opinion?

Clarence J. Geiger

To the Editor of The Kernel: I should like to congratulate you on the editorial which appeared in the Kernel of February 5, entitled "Awareness Coming to Collegians."

It is very gratifying to find that your paper is willing to open the question of compulsory military training on the campus, and feel that the matter is one of vital importance to all of us and should receive careful consideration.

The effectiveness and accuracy of the straw vote taken by The Kernel shortly before the national election last November seems to indicate that this method would be quite valuable in the determination of student opinion upon the subject of the R. O. T. C. I sincerely hope that such a vote will be taken soon and that your paper will not let this issue drop.

Let's find out whether the student body of the U. of K. is as apathetic as many would have us believe.

J. L. Sherman, '37

To the Editor of The Kernel: With much interest I read your recent editorial in which you ask for student opinion on compulsory military training in our public schools.

You suggested that an expression of general opinion by the students would be more effective than a straw vote. Why not use both methods? After considerable discussion, which would provoke some serious thought on the matter, then conduct a straw vote. Such a vote would better represent the student opinion on the subject.

To me, compulsory military training has its place in our modern program of study. But I can see no more reason for compelling all students to take this training than to compel them all to take Latin, Greek or Archaeology for that matter.

It is argued that military training gives the much desired discipline and self-control. But this is demonstrated that such discipline is carried over into our everyday living? Leading psychologists have generally agreed that transfer of training is valuable only in the point where identical elements are involved. If this training gives students the qualities claimed for it why is not there a marked difference between the conduct of military students and non-military students indicating better conduct among the former group?

It is argued that military training gives the much desired discipline and self-control. But this is demonstrated that such discipline is carried over into our everyday living? Leading psychologists have generally agreed that transfer of training is valuable only in the point where identical elements are involved.

Compare this pittance which is being used to aid needy students and young people seeking an education with the millions of dollars allotted annually for military training in colleges and high schools. Which is more important—to spend these millions of dollars to teach students how to kill one another, or to spend it in giving our youth an education? To ask the question is to answer it. Major General Johnson Hagood, in his book, "We Can Defend America," takes a definite stand against long periods of training and universal military training.

General Hagood cites one instance after another in the infantry, cavalry, field artillery, and coast artillery, in which boys of green were trained by good professional soldiers in an amazingly short time. He recovered sufficiently to resume his studies, which after all, is the only reason he ever had for coming to school. He never complained of such treatment. He was too good a sport.

Since the mathematical law prevails, "given enough time anything can happen," you and your brothers may be sure that some one will trade in his chips if you keep up this un-Godly hell week routine.

It is the queerest sort of love you have for the boys you have pledged to be your "brothers." With heavy, unyielding paddies you wear away at that tender spot until blood bursts through the skin. You let just get the better of your supposedly good senses and subject them to horrors that would cause you even to shudder if you read it yet today, where intelligence is bred, something just as brutal is retained as a form of entertainment for the "sadistic, bloodthirsty actors."

The Bible is filled with many apt and sensible things. Over centuries of time it has been called the finest philosophy for living. It has built consciences in mankind by leading an entire people to check. Christ has been crucified, said, "Forgive them, Father, for they know not what they do." That boy, and that girl, who say that should be done to his death by his loving brothers, may well say the same sort of thing.

Hooley Polloi

By FRANKLIN DRYDEN Dear Frank:

Now don't go drawing your conclusions too early and take this for just another spite letter. It happens that I am one of the 'hoi polloi' with whom your column deals, and feel that we are neglected according to space in your paper. Believe it or not, a lot of us would be satisfied if only you would say that we were seen some place sipping a coke, trading our chewing gum, or, well—just get the best of it. Now take 'Bubba' Boone for instance. This young Sigmachi pledge has the face of an innocent cherub, but 'neath that mask of complacency is a man of no mean ability, in other words a powerhouse.

And then there is Carole Hays. She receives little mention of her activities, yet the exalted feeling that she is undergoing due to the nearness of Joe Goodson these days is one of the seven modern wonders of the world...pure unadulterated contentment.

Offer Congratulations By the way, did you know that it rained in the Lev throughout that Ross Fox, of the 'manhole' incident, is contemplating marriage with Margaret Hamlett, a Centre coed as the silent partner? If true, why don't you offer a few congratulations...And while on the subject of congratulations, don't you dare forget Tridelt Betty Bakhaus, the newly elected sponsor of "the best banquet in Dixie" and the deserved honorable mention that belongs to Marcella Martin who ran Betty such a close second.

Overheard Stan News describing the sports article written by our enthusiastic damnyknee, sorry, keep forgetting they are two words, Ralph Johnson, to one of the Leader's Brain Twizzlers. Stan said that Johnson did have the right idea but that that was no excuse for making us all read the squib over two or three times to figure the true meaning of it.

Boy Meets Girl Before closing after running off at the mouth like I have so far, may I offer this last suggestion? Why not a resume of what boy is going to what girl and vice versa? Take as a basketball game. For example, the Alabama game. Now at that tragic affair we saw the old standbys, Anne Stevenson and Sonny Boland. Also Gladys Dimock and Frankie Dailey, the lucky boy who has superseded the departed Basil Baker. And there was the cute Betty Lou Holstein waiting patiently until the game was over for steady old Jim Goforth. And two more standbys, Louis Hill.

Because of the proximity of hell week and of the things I have heard being planned, I cannot hold my peace. The necessary dignity of an editorial forbids Spencer from saying all of the things that ought to be said. His "sadistic, bloodthirsty activities" just touched on what I think about it. The idiotic things planned and carried out is beyond my feeble comprehension.

Hell Week Outmoded I am sure that among some of the better fraternities there is an attempt being made to do away with custom that is as ancient as the State-Transy feud, as out-moded as bustles, as out of place as an unstreamlined auto.

Among Lexington's "201" there may be a crying need for the antiquated custom. In the high schools one might make excuse for such a practice. But in one of the nation's better institutions of higher learning the whole system should be done away with and for all that the best regulations should be laid down to prevent its happening, just as Spencer has recommended. A check of some other type of service duties should be instituted in its place.

It wasn't so long ago that one of the fraternities associated by the best margin a real tragedy resulting from one of the midnight trips to the country. The whole incident was brushed up, but might have resulted in glaring headlines, to the great discredit of the fraternity and the University.

Near Tragedy Cited A boy, brilliant, not physically strong, had been put through his strenuous hell week exercises. He became exhausted toward the end of the period but the pace was maintained and he was taken "for a

THOUGHTS WHILE BOXING REVEALED BY GOLDEN GLOVER

By a Golden Gloves Champion

"Tape, guaze, the smell of alcohol, and liniment, managers applying wraps to feet and hands, last minute instructions, hastily spoken wishes of 'good luck tonight,' the tying on of gloves and then, I am entering the ring under the glare of the brightest light I've ever seen. Just beyond the ring's edge there is a sea of black, broken by a cigarette smoldering in the hands of some indifferent individual who is present to take joy in seeing two specimens of humanity attempt to batter each other with pieces of padded leather tied to either hand.

Seconds tick soothingly, speaking words I never hear, giving advice I cannot heed. The referee calls a friendly nod to the center. Clapping a friendly hand on a shoulder, he looks on against rabbit punches, wrestling on the ropes, hitting in clinches and other things which are not approved in 'civilized' battle. I look at the opponent. He certainly looks confident. 'Visions' and thoughts run riot through my head. This is the same lad who put that fellow from the COC camp out in the first round. Is it true that they're saying I can't last out one round with him? I wonder if he feels the same as I do? We return to our corners—"Come out Fighting." The bell rings, the fight is on. We advance. What will he do? I must get in the first blow. What will it feel like to get knocked out. He's wide open for a left. Throw the left. Again and again. Wow, that one hurt. I must've dropped by guard. I'll have to clinch. This looks bad, but it's the only way I wonder what he's thinking now. He's rushing in. Meet him with the left. Take it easy, there's two more rounds left. As long as he runs into that left he can do nothing. There's the bell.

One minute's rest. Working feverishly, seconds attempt to pump new energy into tired legs. Water is sloshed over face and neck. Legs are straightened and massaged. The warning signal, seconds leave the ring. "Open up now, carry the fight." There's the bell. We meet with a rush. He must be "opening up" now. His slug, his jab now. A huge roar fills the arena and it seems dimly conscious that the fans are registering their approval. Well this is what they want any way. A clinch halts things for a second but then he is right back again. Will he never tire. He's weaving now. I mustn't let him get set. Throw the left. What's he ever done to me? Why should I be wanting to hit him? He seems like a good boy. Here he comes again. I'll meet him. Another clinch, and there's the bell.

Again seconds do their best to revive warning energy. To put emotion's life back into tired limbs to survive for two more minutes, the longest two minutes there is. The bell again. The fight is even. I must take this round. The referee holds out his hand. My opponent shakes my hand and we grin at each other and again I feel the foolishness of it all. The final is on. At last he's weakening. He's clinching. "Nice fight, kid," some one condescendingly calls. Oh, it was just luck. Just lucky but there's still that jubilant feeling inside.

The most exciting sport in the world to watch, the most grueling for the participants, the most gruelling for the spectators, the most exciting for the boys with a natural love of fighting, some trained, others swinging fists with personal animosity, thrilling, hold up a glove, fighting to win, sometimes losing, but winning even in losing — that's the "Golden Gloves."

Women's Club Will See Comedy Drama

A comedy drama, "Les Jou-Joux," will be presented by Ivan Markov and his group of artists for the Women's club of Central Kentucky at 2:30 p. m. Saturday, Feb. 13, at the Henry Clay high school auditorium.

The Russian Art Theatre novelty, "Les Jou-Joux," which means "The Little Novelty," contains many songs and dances done in brilliant costumes that blend with the natural setting of the play. Students will be admitted to the performance at special rates.

YW SECRETARY LEADS DISCUSSION PROGRAM

Miss Elizabeth Cowan, secretary of the University Y. W. C. A., will be the leader in the second of a series of discussion programs conducted for University students by the young people's organization of First Methodist Church, to be held at 6:30 o'clock Sunday evening in the basement of the church.

Members of the University faculty and Lexington business men are scheduled as leaders of the various groups. Meetings are held weekly, and a social hour precedes each meeting.

UNIVERSITY WOMEN MEET

An exhibit of rare books owned by the Transylvania library will be the feature of the regular meeting of the American Association of University Women which will be held in the Transylvania library this afternoon at 3 o'clock. These books will be observed and then discussed by the members of the association. After this there will be a tea and business meeting of the organization at 4 p. m. at Hamilton hall. Miss Jane Hasen will act as hostess at the tea.

BIG LAUREL GETS 'LISTEN' CENTER

Newest Radio is Installed in Harlan County for Use by Pine Mountain Settlement School

A new radio listening center in the University's system of eastern Kentucky listening points, is being established in Harlan county at Big Laurel, it was announced Saturday. This is the second such center to be established in Harlan county, one at Sampson having been installed a few weeks ago.

Elmer Creech, carrying on work for the medical settlement branch of the Pine Mountain Settlement school, will be in charge of the new center. His community center at Big Laurel is six miles from the nearest improved road. The nearest radio is one mile away, and there are only four radios in a three-mile radius.

The new listening center will be used by all people of the community for the purpose of hearing worthwhile educational, cultural, agricultural, and musical programs. Creech will keep people in his locality informed concerning programs to be presented in which they are likely to be interested, and will encourage them to make the fullest possible use of the center.

Approximately 25 such centers are maintained by the University in various eastern Kentucky counties. Funds for the purchase of sets are supplied by interested individuals and organizations.

Seeing Sport Stuff

By BOB RANKIN

THE basketball game Wednesday night was just another game in the opinion of many of the students and spectators. Others, perhaps were troubled over losing such a closely contested game. Members of the team, no doubt experienced even more feeling over the game, but if you were to put yourself in Coach Rupp's place perhaps you would really know how it is to lose a game. It is at trying times like in the contest Wednesday night, that really shows a coach's job isn't as easy as many would believe.

You can see how difficult it must be to start all over again the next day, after receiving an unexpected setback; to be able to get up enough spirit to rejuvenate your team. It is at times like these that the student body and alumni should stand back of their coach instead of condemning him.

These cold days hardly suggest track or football to anyone but Coach Striplin and Coach Wynne who are keeping these two sports well in mind. Several members of the track team have been working out for some time while a few others have reported just recently. Ben

Willis, the track captain, has been working out daily since the Christmas holidays and has, according to reports from Coach Striplin, been entered in a few of the indoor track meets. Of course the participation in these meets is not certain, as a final ruling must be made by the athletic council.

Most of the football players have been conditioning themselves by daily exercise and have already received their equipment. If the weather permits, football practice should start next Monday.

Many persons think track and field athletics are for the more delicate individuals, but in view of the recent Golden Gloves tournament, this idea has been proven to be contrary. Three of the champions, Paul Durbin, featherweight champ, Dave Rogan, lightweight champ and Joe Moore light heavyweight champ, are members of the track team. Many of the other members have fought in either the Golden Gloves tourney or in some intramural competition.

The Golden Gloves tournament also seemed to prove that science and skill are better ring assets than plain old rough and tumble fighting. Nearly every one of the tournament winners had at some time or other some ring technique taught them.

Captain Dave Randall of the tennis team informed me that the team had a dinner last Friday night to determine who would be on the squad and to talk over what chances the team had for a successful season. Randall said that he had expected them to call on him for a speech, as he had taken public speaking for two semesters just in preparation for it. He wasn't even mentioned, so he claims the dinner was a bust.

Listed below are a few little sport oddities I picked up that might be of some interest to sport fans. There are quite a few basketball sport oddities, among them is the unusual record of Kansas State and Maryville. Kansas State had won 54 consecutive games and they were to meet Maryville who had won only 53 games. Kansas won the game and ran their total to 55, but the next night Maryville got even and also broke Kansas State's record at 55 games and one loss.

There are many odd basketball scores rung up too. Two of Kentucky's high school teams set a new low scoring record as one school beat the other 7 to 5. Each team was held to a field goal with the field goals being made in different halves. On the other extreme one Northern Kentucky team defeated its opponent 103 to 3. An Indiana team even topped this performance, and registered a shut-out victory 29 to 0.

Swinging back to the colleges, Stanford set a new scoring record over the Christmas holidays while on a cross country tour, by making 540 points and winning 10 consecutive games. Down at Auburn their team is to go through eleven games in 17 days.

NATATORS LOSE FIRST MEET TO VOLS

By LOUIS HAYNES
The University of Kentucky swimming team lost to Tennessee 43 to 32 last week but the meet with the University of Tennessee enabled them to get in some practice which should stand them in good stead when they swim their remaining opponents.

The results of the meet are as follows:
100-yard relay—Richardson, Sanford, Work, Tuttle, 1:49.5.
100-yard breast—Hinkbein (Ky.), Morat (Ky.), 1:22.2.
100-yard back—Worthman and Carmichael (Tenn.), 1:14.6.
50-yard dash—Ramey (Ky.), Richardson (Tenn.), 27.
100-yard dash—Ramey (Ky.), Richardson (Tenn.), 1:04.6.
200-yard dash—Lee (Tenn.), Tuttle (Tenn.), 2:30.
150-yard medley—Freeburg, Hinkbein, Morat (Ky.), 1:41.

FOUR DUEL MEETS ARE SCHEDULED FOR TRACKMEN

First Meet To Be With Vanderbilt on April 14

Charles F. Striplin, newly appointed track coach, has scheduled four dual meets for the Kentucky trackmen. The first outdoor meet of the coming season will be with the University of Vanderbilt on April 14.

This meet will be the first to be held on Kentucky's new track. The track is considered one of the best in the South and should cause many old Kentucky track records to be broken when the Cats and Vandy meet in the spring.

Berea College will meet the Wildcats on April 24 and will probably bring their freshman team, which is the annual custom when the two schools meet. On May 1 a strong Tennessee team will furnish opposition for Kentucky. Last year the Blue and White thinsies lost to the Vols by a few points and so will be out to avenge that defeat with a strong team.

Only two out of town meets have been scheduled, one with Hanover College at Hanover, Ind., May 8, and also one in the annual Southeastern Conference tournament held at Birmingham, May 21 and 22.

The coming track season should be one of the best Kentucky has ever had. Captain Ben Willis will set the pace by running both the 100 and 220-yard dash, the 120 high hurdles and 220 low hurdles. Dave Rogan, of Middleboro, holder of the Southeastern Conference mile and half mile records, is expected to again be in his "Iron Man" role of last year and duplicate his performances. He holds the mile record at Stoll Field of 4:21.3 and has even better this time in daily practice sessions.

Other standouts from last year's team are Elmore Simpson, javelin thrower; Cecil Hillard, quarter miler; Ralph Carlisle, high and broad jumper, and Warren Stockmest in the half mile. Coach Striplin also expects good material to show up from last year's freshman team and from other upperclassmen.

INTRAMURAL

By MARVIN N. GAY

Basketball teams are now hard at work getting in condition for the intramural tournament which starts Feb. 16 in the gym annex with the first game scheduled for 7:15 p. m.

Today is the last date on which entries for the tournament will be accepted. All independent teams must hand in a permanent list of ten men including the captain, and after 6 p. m. today the sheet shall not be altered nor shall new men be drafted.

Twenty teams are expected to fight it out for the cage crown as all fraternities, with the exception of Pi Kappa Alpha, have entered teams in the tourney. In addition, three or four independent teams are expected to participate in the championship quest. Definite practice schedules have been assigned to the fires to give each quintet an opportunity to get in the best possible shape.

Freddie Lindstrom, one-time boy wonder, hopes to return to baseball this year. Last year he retired because of injuries, but now he says that he is in perfect condition and wants to come back to the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Badminton, a game that resembles tennis, is a new sport that is rapidly becoming popular with students. This game, one of the most popular in the United States, as it has over 5,000,000 participants, was introduced for the first time this semester.

Because of its growing popularity, a badminton tournament will be started in March in both singles and doubles. The department of physical education invites all those who are interested to check out equipment at the gym annex and try the game for themselves.

Martin Levy, who weighs 625 pounds, is a wrestler who claims the "undisputed championship of the world."

"The Voice of Experience" . . . the man with the million dollar throat insists on a light smoke

"My voice is my career. It has inspired more than five million people to confide in me their personal problems. During 25 years, first on the lecture platform and then on the air, I have never missed a single engagement because of my throat. I am a steady smoker, and because my throat and voice are vital to my career I insist upon a light smoke. In Luckies I find a light smoke plus the enjoyment of fine tobacco . . . and that's why Lucky Strikes have been my choice for 14 years."

FRIEND AND COUNSELOR TO MILLIONS OF RADIO LISTENERS

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

"The Voice of Experience" verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Harry G. Kipkle, University of Michigan football pilot, put to rest rumors that he would be displaced by signing a new contract for next year.

Following in the footsteps of his father who was one of the greatest hockey players of all time young Lynn Patrick is regarded as the most promising youngster in the game today.

Dana X. Bible, ex-Nebraska mentor won 6 out of 8 Big Six grid crowns, has signed to be director of athletics and head football coach for ten years at a salary of $15,000 per annum.

Major Lawrence "Biff" Jones has been named to succeed Dana Bible as head football coach at Nebraska.

Benny Lynch won the world's flyweight championship by out-pointing Small Montana in a 15-round title bout.

Alvin "General" Crowder is considered retiring from major league baseball and is thinking about managing a minor league team next year.

Lou Gehrig is seeking to run his string of 1808 consecutive games to 2500 before turning over the first base duties of the New York Yankees to some other player.

Twice as many colleges now have paid football coaches as compared to three years ago.

Tony Lazzeri was voted "the player of the year" due to his great comeback in the 1936 season by the New York chapter of the Baseball Writers' association. Lazzeri is the second baseman on the world's champion New York Yankees.

New York is to have a "Silver Football game" between two of the best football teams in the country next Dec. 4 at Yankee Stadium. They are going to try and make it an annual event on the first Saturday in December.

Miss Marion Miley of Lexington, is rated the best woman golfer in the U. S. in the National Golf Review.

Charles Grimm, manager of the Chicago Cubs, announced that there would be no cuts from the player's salary, but the bonus clause will not be in the contract. Charles Leo Hartnett, catcher, has been named captain, succeeding Woody English, who was traded to the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The University of Illinois has started a concerted drive to bring better athletic material to the campus.

Jack Torrance, world's shotput record holder, has taken up professional boxing and his first two bouts brought knock-out victories to him.

The St. Louis Cardinals and the St. Louis Browns can not agree as to when to start their night baseball games. The Browns want to play the first night game in St. Louis but do not want to play in May, whereas the Cardinals desire to have their first nocturnal tilt in May. Since they both play in the same park and it is the Browns grounds, the Browns will probably win out in the controversy.
