CLASSIC GREEK DANCES.

Presented on Natural Stage by Co-Eds
in Ancient Greek Costumes.

After the Mechanical Base Ball last Friday was concluded, the numerous spectators journeyed to the South-western corner of the campus and assembled themselves around the close-mown, rectangular grass stage. This well selected place, with its low bowing trees and shrubbery, furnished a beautiful scene, while the natural amphitheatre, carpeted with tall, waving blue grass, afforded the spectators an excellent view of the dancers.

The orchestra's sweet strains floated gently on the breeze, while the thirteen classic dancers, together with their efficient instructor, Mrs. F. O. Stout, danced on the grass plot.

The dancers were clad in white flowing robes and white sandals. Each wore white bands on her hair.

The dances were very artistic, and were the very embodiment of grace and beauty. The rendition of the program was well responded to by a very appreciative audience. Several encores were given, among which Misses Marschal and Chenault, who showed their ability in the ancient Greek art.

Among the dancers were Mrs. F. O. Stout, Mrs. W. M. Irvin, Misses Williams, Rodes, Marschal, Parker, Ginn, Fried, Stivers, Cramer, E. am, Chenault, Des Cognets, Armstrong and Fullenlove.

The program was as follows:
Classic Dance.....Mandalane
Classic Dance.....Bavarian Princess Classic Dance.....Spanish Gypsy
Classic Dance.....Folk Dances of Tyrolese
Classic Dance.....Maid of the Mist
Classic Dance.....Supplication

THE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION.

Will End the Season with No Debt or No Balance.

Having lost on the basket ball, base ball, and two hundred and fifty dollars lost in track meets, and with sweaters to be bought for the track and base ball teams, there will remain very little money in the treasury of the Athletic Association at the close of school.

In order to start foot ball next year, the money that is taken in on Athletic Association tickets then, will have to be used. The tickets next year will be different from those formerly used. A book of numbered coupons, good for six dollars in admission to foot ball, basket ball, and base ball games, and track meets, will be sold for five dollars cash; or five dollars and seventy-five cents worth will be sold for five dollars deposit. These tickets are legal tender at all games; they may be used one at a time or all at once.

The Athletic Association has spent a great deal of money for coaching this year, both in foot ball and base ball, but especially in the former. Mr. Sweetland was brought here last year, and thru his efforts there was developed a high-class football team that fought and won for itself a high position among the teams of the several universities. It would have been folly to gain a position in this high class of foot ball and then to have let Mr. Sweetland go, and with a comparatively poor coach, drop back to the mediocre again. For this reason, and because the students demanded that he be retained, the Athlete Committee formed a three-year contract with Mr. Sweetland.

When every student re-enters the University next September, it will be his duty to become a member of the Athletic Association. In order to have a good foot ball team, we must have some money to start on.

CENTRAL SHUT OUT.

BEST GAME OF SEASON ENDS,
STATE 4; C. U. 0.

With a perfect baseball day, a good umpire, few errors, and plenty of enthusiasm, the students of the University and the Lexington fans were given an exhibition of high-class baseball last Saturday. Many persons expressed their opinion that the game was one of the best amateur games they had ever witnessed.

Central was somewhat handicapped by the loss of their star pitcher, Webber, who broke his thumb a day or two before the game; but both teams played league ball and the game was a glorious ending of the Kentucky Intercollegiate baseball season.

Duffy played a good game at third for Central. He is fast and sure, and above all, uses his head at critical moments.

Louis Seelbach played center field in league style.

"Gilse" Meadows played a star game for State. He played in his usual manner, without any too much hurry, and as usual never lost his head. He knocked a clean home run far over the right field fence, and trotted around the bases while the entire student body rose upon its hind legs and yelled for him.

"Hilly" at third outclassed his usual brilliant playing. "Hilly" is undoubtedly the best all-round player that State has ever had. His fielding, his throwing to first, his batting, all show him to be one of the best of players.

Johnston covered himself with glory at short. He scooped up hot grounders that were labeled "Hits" and shot them across to first with perfect accuracy.

"Spot" played first like he had never played anywhere else but that position. His dainty and graceful touching of the sack with his toe to put a man out was one of the features of the game.

All of the rest of the team gave excellent support to Meadows, and the team plainly demonstrated to the fans that, although Central is the State Champion in base ball, State clearly outclasses the Cardinal and Blue by a whole "row of apple trees."

The results of the game are about as follows:

U. of K.—	AB	R	H	PO	A	E

Plummer, cf	4	0	0	0	0	0

NO MORE ISSUES UNTIL SEPTEMBER.

The following members of The Idea Syndicate will issue next week's paper:

S. C. Ebbert, J. O. Lewis, O. H. Baird.

We wish to express our appreciation of the interest the members of this year's Idea Staff have shown. Although the staff of a college paper never receives any reward other than the knowledge of helping the University, still the time is not all wasted, for in this capacity one becomes thoroughly acquainted with college life and college people.

We have issued the Idea through a year of college activities and due to our efforts, perhaps, some one has derived some benefit or pleasure from the paper.

We thank you very sincerely for the assistance you have given.

This issue ends the existence of the Idea Syndicate. The year is past and we are no longer editors. The Idea will start in next year with a new staff and new officers, and we are confident will be many times better than this year's Idea has been. Our old blue pencil fall to the floor as unless, a year's work is finished.

A SACRED HERITAGE

A FAREWELL EDITORIAL BY PERRY CASSIDY

We have heard from early childhood of the Civil War. Many times have we stopped our play to listen with breathless wonder and awe while our mother or father told of those bloody days in sixty-one and sixty-five, when they were children; when the hosts from the North swept down upon us carrying fire and destruction with them.

Perhaps we have climbed on grandfather's knee to hear the story of how his company routed a battalion at Manassas, or how later in the war he won his commission as colonel by leading his regiment's charge through a hail of grape and cannister and capturing the enemy's guns, after his superiors had fallen. The very names: Shiloh, Fredericksburg, Gettysburg, Cold Harbor, bring to our imagination the whistle of the "Minnie ball," the purr of shells, the flash of charging bayonets, the shrieks of dying horses or men, and the terrible "Rebel yell."

We heard of the suffering, of the fight for existence, near the end of the war. Our grandmother has told us of the times when all but one or two faithful servants had left the plantation, and the place swept clean of live stock by the contending armies. We have listened in round-eyed wonder while she told of the women folk left on the place living on black-eyed peas and cornbread, while they tore up the remaining linen to make lint and bandages to send to the front.

And then the climax of Appomattox. The ending of a fearful struggle, and the beginning of another one equally as hard. The dark and fearsome days of the reconstruction period. Ah, those were the days when the metal of a man was tested to the limit.

It is needless for us to describe the reconstruction of the South, for it has been told to us in every detail by our parents. They point with pride to the New South that has risen from the ashes of the old, and is it not wonderful, this noble self-sacrifice, this undaunted courage?

Today the Fourth of July orator, pointing to the waving bunting declaims with eloquent pride, "There is no North, no South, no East, no West!"

But, fellows, notwithstanding these patriotic speeches, and noble sentiments, there is a North, there is a South. The Mason and Dixon line stands today a division mark between two great people, who though loyal to one government, yet differ from each other as the poles of a magnet. In wealth, in politics, in industries, in nearly every phase of life the two are different.

The North contains and controls the wealth and government of the nation to the exclusion of the South. The industries of one are unlike those of the other, and the interests of the two are very different. There is still a feeling of antagonism between the Northerner and the Southerner. We see traces of it in the school room, in the papers, in public opinion.

It is the duty of the present generation, it is our duty, to break down this barrier, to remove this feeling of resistance and opposition and to place the South on an equal footing with the North. Our fore fathers have left us a precious heritage which we must not neglect. The spirit which quickened them to action at the end of the war, must never die until its purpose and mission is accomplished. The Mason and Dixon line must sink in the misty depths of history as a curiosity which once existed but which became extinct.

And how are we to finish this task handed down to us by our fathers? How are we to remove this feeling of antagonism which exists between the North and the South?

First we must find the cause and then remedy it.

One of the first laws of nature is that the strongest shall rule, and it is natural that the ruler should feel contempt for and strive to subordinate the ruled. It is true of both a man and a nation, that as long as it is possible for either to subservise a weaker one, it will be done.

At the present time the South is dependent upon and ruled by the North. Let us see why. The government at Washington is the all-powerful factor in the affairs of the nation. What controls the government necessarily controls the nation. As our government is primarily a democracy, it is controlled to some extent by the majority of the population, and partly by financial interests. Now those who have interests in common are going to join forces to protect them, and the most influential combination is going to gain control.

There is no doubt but what the North controls the government of the United States. The North has a greater population than the South, and is much more wealthy. Let us see why the North contains the money of the nation. The main reason is that the chief industries of America are located in the North. The iron, the steel, the manufacturing industries are Northern. Due to the improved and efficient transportation facilities of the North—both railroad and water ways—and the large and well made harbors, the foreign commerce, both export and import, centers in the North. Other things being equal, the raw material is sent to the factory which is the easiest accessible, and therefore flows to the North in a steady stream. The transportation in the South is very poor. Railroads are few, and competition in this line is therefore small. The water ways of the South are undeveloped and poorly utilized.

Money stays where it may be best protected, that is where the condition of law and order is good. The South is famous for its lawlessness and tendency to mob violence. The North is very much better in this respect than the South.

The education of the children of all classes, and consequently the condition of the poor is better in the North than in the South. The value of education as an asset in the welfare of the nation is realized and made use of by the Northern people. The percentage of illiteracy in the South is great.

To carry out the intentions of our fathers and make the United States a homegenous and inseparable unit, we must place the South on an equal footing with the North, and by making the Southern states equally as important and influential as the Northern ones, by making the interest of the two the same, the North and South will work for the same results, and will find it impossible to exist without each other.

The South must be developed. It is the tendency for the college graduate, especially technically trained ones, to seek positions in the North. The college men of the South, her chief asset, must realize the fact that their duty, our duty, is to stay in the South. The South needs us and offers rich inducements to us if we will only do our duty.

The vast, undeveloped resources of the South are priceless. In the mountainous and other regions of the South are millions upon millions of tons of valuable ore and coal that await the mining engineer. The mechanical and electrical engineer is needed to build the furnaces, the mills, the foundries, the manufacturing plants necessary to utilize this coal and convert the ores into useful articles of commerce. The civil engineer is required for the purpose of building suitable railroads to carry all this business to the consumer.

The Panama Canal, when completed, will open up countless fields of commerce for the Southern ports. The harbors of the South must be enlarged and improved to meet these new demands. The Mississippi river and its numerous tributaries afford an invaluable connection to the interior of the South, and to utilize this great system it is only necessary that suitable and capacious vessels be built, and that the river cities furnish themselves with wharfs of up-to-date construction and capable of handling efficiently the freighted articles of commerce.

The South needs the graduates of the scientific agricultural college to show the Southern farmers how to make the best of the land and how to use it without destroying its usefulness. He must be taught how systematic and scientific farming will double his profits.

As Southerners, and due to the sacred heritage left us by our fathers, we must do these things. When steel is welded, a flux must be used to destroy and disintegrate the skin of oxide which forms on the surface of the metal, and which makes the perfect union of the two pieces of steel impossible.

The great American nation is still unfinished. The states which go to make up this nation must be welded together and made as one. We of the coming generation must be the forgers of this magnificent union. The difference in purpose and interests must be removed by an equality of importance and position. If the forger waits too long, the metal becomes cool and no amount of fluk will help.

The government is controlled by the moneyed interests of the North. The South has no power. Give the South the influence of wealth, and the North must take heed.

There is much talk today of "Universal Peace." This is a perfectly ideal state or condition. War is the most natural and primal instinct of man, it is his last resource. The necessity of fighting, the struggle for existence, came before anything else. However far evolution may carry man in the scale of civilization the tendency to "reversal of type" will have a strong influence. When man ceases to love, when all his natural instincts are forgotten, then perhaps may war cease.

The foreign nations view our rapidly increasing size and importance with envy. National jealousy is strong. If it is better that the several states of a nation should be under one government, for the good of each, then it is also true that the nations of the world should be ruled and controlled by one government. It is inevitable that the time will come when this condition will exist. It is the natural result of evolution.

When the titanic struggle and upheaval comes that will result in this world empire, America must be ready. When that time comes, the largest, and richest, and most virile nation will take the lead in the formation of the new government.

Out of that tremendous and mighty melee, the nation with the largest resources will come forth victorious.

Think of that great day when the world empire shall exist! When that day comes shall it be that the flag of our country, that glorious emblem of justice and liberty, will stand, not alone as the banner of the United States but as the ganfalon of the United Nations of the world, the great World Empire?

Then get ye to your posts, sons of the South! Prepare ye for the task set by the example of your fathers. The fond memories of the South, its death, and phoenix like re-birth, will ever be dear to us.

But America, our America, pray God that the time will come when you shall reign supreme the acme of unity and perfection. Oh America, gladly would our life blood, given by a Southern father and nourished by a Southern mother, be given to blot out the line that separates the North and South.

TO THE STUDENT BODY

Editor Elect O. E. Baird Appreciates
The Honor Given Him.

For the appreciation of the honor you have bestowed upon me by electing me Editor-in-Chief of the Idea for next year, I wish to extend to you my most grateful thanks. But realizing the responsibility resting upon me as head of the editorial staff, I appeal to each of you for your earnest support in order to make the Idea a success next year.

However enterprising and energetic the staff may be, the publication cannot be a success without your support. Not only should your support be a good wish for a successful year, but also financially and with liberal contributions of your literary talent.

In addition to the weekly college news there will be published once a month a literary paper or magazine, edited by the faculty, students, and alumni of the University. The purpose of this issue is to afford an opportunity for those who are literary inclined to develop that talent.

Why cannot State University edit

a monthly literary magazine as well as Central, Georgetown and Transylvania? Have we not the ability? Have we not the college spirit? We have the ability and we have the college spirit when it comes to athletics, why not manifest it toward literary work, is it not a part of the University, will it not accomplish as much for us after life as being a member of an athletic team? True, manly, college spirit is the spirit that shows itself toward every enterprise that pertains to the welfare of the University and student life.

The Idea has been successfully published for the last two years. It was better this year than last. This was due to the persistent and zealous efforts of its editor and his associates. It should be better next year than it was this, for we have had another year of experience. If we do not profit by our experiences and by the experiences of others it is useless to strive for success. Three things are necessary to make this paper successful next year. First, it must be successfully managed; second, it must be ably written, and third, but not by far the least, it must be supported by the student body. These three things accomplished and we will have the best college weekly in the South.

Yours for a successful Idea next year,

O. E. BAIRD.

BUSINESS STAFF SELECTED

Idea Business Department In Good Hands Next Year.

Mr. Sprig Ebbert has announced the advertising and circulating managers for next year as Mr. Theo. Slade and Virgil Downing.

Mr. Slade is well qualified to fill the position of advertising manager, for his home is in Lexington and he is thoroughly acquainted with the business firms and business men of Lexington. He is a junior mechanical, and will work hard for the success of the Idea next year.

Mr. Downing is one of the "charter members" of the Idea Staff. He has served two years on the staff, as assistant business manager, and as an associate editor. The circulating department of a paper is a very important one, and requires very careful handling. When Mr. Downing starts to do anything he usually does it, and as he intends running the circulating department as well as Mr. Prewitt has done this year—and Mr. Prewitt has run it very well indeed—he will of course do it.

The Alpha Gamma Delta Sorority held their annual banquet at the Phoenix Hotel last Friday evening. The toasts introduced by Miss Marietta Cassidy were:

"First Impression"—Miss Anna Hawkins.

"Our Patronesses"—Miss Gretchen Hayden.

"The Big Four"—Miss Cleo Gillis.

"Our Absent Ones"—Miss Lily Park.
"Messages From Afar"—Miss Alma Faulkner.

"Our Future"—Miss Mary Belle Pence

Mr. Guy Taylor, of the DuPont Powder Co., Chester Pa., is home on a short visit to his parents and friends.

JOY RIDERS!

Prof. "Josh" Reese's new "Cadillac 30" has arrived, and all Calculus "Fizz-Outs" that are paid up are entitled to a free ride. Tough luck, Ernest!

SENTIMENTS OF BUSINESS DEPARTMENT.

Those who have been far-seeing enough to do things for their own advantage, I am commending for their good judgment. Those who have been connected with The Idea either as subscribers or as advertisers, I am heartily thanking, and hope you will lend your support to the new management as loyally as you have to the old. To each and every one who have been well disposed to us we are grateful, but to those who are ill disposed our sentiments are: "Go to h—ll and be d—d."

—Halemb Hudson.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT.

The James E. Hughes Company has printed the Idea for the last two years, and the greater part of the Idea's success has been due to the care and interest this firm has shown it. We wish to especially thank Mr. Clarence Egbert for the kindness he has shown and for the good advice and guidance he has given. The student body has done its part toward issuing a good paper, but Mr. Egbert and his assistants have done more than their share. We thank them.

—The Editor.

'07 RE-UNION.—OLD MEN BACK AGAIN.

The class of 1907, noted as one of the most spirited classes of the University, have this week returned to their alma mater to gather together and talk of the old times and to tell what has happened in the three years that has passed since the class of '07 left State.

The "07 or Bust" Banquet, given at the Country Club on Tuesday afternoon was enjoyed by all.

The arrangement committee, composed of L. E. Hillenmeyer, Hal D.
Spears and W. S. Hamilton, prepared an interesting program for the week.

The program for the banquet was:
"07 or Bust."

SENIOR MECHANICALS WIN.

Defeat Junior M. E's in Base Ball Game

The Juniors were ahead until the sixth, when the Seniors found the combination to Needy's curves and ran in eight runs.

The game was a roaring success from start to finish, both teams playing classy ball all the way through.

Mr. Joe Dicker took the position of "Umps" to the satisfaction of all.
Tom Hayes and "Fatty" Clark played the best game of the season for the Seniors, while all the Juniors played good ball.

The batteries were; for the Seniors:
Shelby Shanklin and "Hoss" Hall;
while the Juniors had Needy-Lurtey, and Moore-Cary.

The score—Seniors 12; Juniors 6. The line-up during the game was:

Seniors	Juniors
S. Shanklin . . . . . p	Needy-Moore
Hoss Hall . . . . . c	Lurtey-Cary
Ben Logan . . . . . 1st	Downing

The feature of the game was "Fatty"
Clark's base running. He stole third.

You can't fool Mr. Dicker on a ball or a strike.

BASE BALL CHAMPIONSHIP.

Central Comes Out in the Lead.

The Kentucky Interecollegiate Base Ball Championship has been won by Central this season. Some people say that as State beat Central two games out of three, Georgetown defeated State two out of three, and Central beat Georgetown three games straight, that the title of "Champ" is tied for.

The Championship, however, is based only on percentage, and is clearly won by Central; and although it seems unreasonable, still it is the case. The result of the season's games is:

	Won	Lost	Per Ct.
Central . . . . .	4	2	.666
State . . . . .	3	3	.500
Georgetown . . . . .	2	4	.333

The ball given by the Senior Class last Monday evening was a beautiful affair of the numerous commencement festivities. It was given in the gymnasium, which was brilliant with lights and decorated beautifully with red and black, the class colors, and at the ends of the balcony completing the pretty scene, were "10-11" in electric lights. The walls were hung with black and red and garlands of red carnations, the class flower. There were pretty plants everywhere, and along the balcony, the colors red and black, were also carried out in the graceful festooning. A beautiful program of music was played by Saxton & Trost's orchestra, and the dance opened with a graceful march led by Mr.
R. A. Edwards, president of the class, and Miss Sarah Marshall, the vice-president. Twenty-four dances followed, the programs being beautiful souvenirs in tan leather, with the college seal in gold on the cover, and the class officers, committees and patronesses on the inner leaves. Penora was served throughout the evening, and there were several hundred guests present to enjoy the charming evening.

The Alpha Tau Omega fraternity entertained with an enjoyable picnic at Camp Nelson on Monday. The trip was made in wagonettes, and both hosts and guests spent a very pleasant day.

JUDGE BARKER ACCEPTS.

Became President at Board Meeting, Wednesday.

After much uncertainty, and many rumors to the contrary, Judge Henry S. Barker has at last accepted the Presidency of the University of Kentucky.

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees Wednesday morning, Judge Barker formally accepted the honor bestowed upon him. He will not enter upon his duties until January 1st, 1911, because of the fact that his term of office as Justice of the Court of Appeals does not expire until then.

CLASS DAY.

A Closing Scene of the College Year.

The Class Day exercises of the graduating class of 1910 were held in a large tent on the campus, Wednesday, beginning at ten o'clock.

Many alumni were present, the '07 class having a special section reserved. A large crowd was present to enjoy the occasion, and received each speaker with pleased applause.

Music was furnished by the Opera House Orchestra, which played some excellent selections.

The class marched in at ten o'clock, led by President R. A. Edwards and Vice-President Miss Sarah Marshall. The program follows:

"Yesterday's address of President R. A. Edwards, of the Senior Class, was the most ridiculous piece of sounness that was ever uttered at the University. "Fraternalities," he said, "sometimes do good, but they often contain many snobs."

tried to convey was that he was bitterly opposed to fraternities. Indeed, he has a right to be. Sometimes in the late fall, a few of his friends, who regretted his swell head, attempted to reduce it by a practical joke.

Mr. Edwards received a letter from New York asking him to become a charter member of a certain fraternity, and requesting that he establish a chapter at the University. The conceited one bit; he asked one other Senior to join him and then found out that he had been duped. Why shouldn't he be sore? Respectfully, —A Senior.

PHILOSOPHIAN RECEPTION AND DANCE.

The young ladies of the Philosopher Society of State University entertained last evening with a beautiful reception and dance for the faculty, students and friends. It was given in their attractive rooms in the gymnasium building and in the gymnasium hall, where dancing was enjoyed. The society colors are black and red, and were carried out effectively in the decorations of festooning flowers and plants. An orchestra furnished the music, opening with a grand march, followed by 24 dances, the programs being pretty souvenirs of the occasion.

Fruit frappe was served throughout the evening, and there were about 200 guests to enjoy the delightful hours. The society entertains each year at the close of college, and the event is among the most enjoyed of the numerous affairs given. The hostesses were Misses Katherine Shumaker, Arleen Cruickshank, Cora Creekmore, Virginia McClure, Ruby Marcum, Irene Hughes, Viola Gregg, Margaret Buchignani.

The Class of '07 gave a Reunion banquet at Hughes Cafe, Wednesday evening. Many of themembers of the class are back for Commencement Week.
