U. K. TRUSTEES CONFER DEGREES ON 74 STUDENTS

Sixty-Eight Will Receive Bachelor Diplomas and Six Will Be Made Masters; Five Honor Students Named

NAME BASKETBALL COACH

Board Hears Report on Will of the Late Dr. James K. Patterson

The University Board of Trustees, meeting in session Tuesday, December 13, conferred 74 degrees on recommendation of the university senate. Forty-eight students will receive bachelor degrees and six master degrees. The following students were named: Miss Frieda Heller and Mr. James Long, "with high distinction," and Mr. Gordon Fennbaker and Miss Virginia Estill and Marion Elizabeth Parsons, "with distinction."

At the same meeting the board disposed of considerable other business. The offer of an annual medal from the Southern Society of New York City, to be given to the student who makes the most progress during his college career, was accepted, and the society was voted thanks for its generous gift. The winner of the medal will be chosen from the graduating class each year, and the medal will be presented at commencement.

The board accepted a deed to an abandoned right-of-way on the university's experiment farm in Breathitt county from the Louisville and Nashville Railway Company. The strip of land runs through the Robinson Foundation farm, and was formerly a logging road.

Y. M. - Y. W. TO BE HOSTS TO KIDS

Children of Lincoln School Will Be Guests at Christmas Party on University Campus

BIG TREE 'NEVERTHING'

For the last few years the custom has been observed and will be this year of having a Christmas tree for the students of the university to share their Christmas with the children who have not the opportunity to enjoy the pleasure of Christmas in other ways.

This year the Christmas tree exercises will be held on December 21, at 8 o'clock. The exercises are sponsored by the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. of the University of Kentucky. The first, second, and third grades of the Lincoln school have been selected by the committee as the ones to enjoy with them the Christmas party. Every child's name is procured and suitable gifts are selected for them. In addition each child receives an orange, apple and package of candy. A large tree will be decorated with Christmas emblems and green with incandescent lights of wired and red.

All students are invited to attend this vesper service.

Warning Issued

Registrar Advises Against Missing Classes

Christmas holidays begin Wednesday, December 22, at noon and Tuesday morning, January 4, 1927, according to an announcement made by the registrar's office. Students missing either the last class before or the first class after the holidays will have one-tenth taken off their standings.

Older students at the university are acquainted with this penalty for missing the last class before or first class after the holidays, but this penalty is not always understood by new students. Consequently the registrar's office issues this warning to all students not to miss these classes.

NEW FORGE SHOP TO BE EQUIPPED

Machinery Now Being Manufactured and Will Be Shipped Soon; Be Ready for Use After Holidays

The new forge shop in the College of Engineering, at the university will be completely equipped by the time the students return after the holidays, according to a letter to Dean Anderson from O. K. Dyer, an official of the Buffalo Forge Company, who is a graduate of the college.

Mr. Dyer outlined a description of all the machinery to be placed in the new shop and stated that all of it is now being manufactured and will be shipped soon. The equipment is the gift of Henry W. Wendt, president of the Buffalo Forge Company and friend of the university.

The equipment consists of 24 student forges of the latest type each with a separate motor, so that it will not be necessary to operate the large exhaust fan which is used for general instruction; 25 anvils and 21 complete sets of Atha tools, obtained from the Stanley Rule and Level Company are included.

Other machinery for the shop includes a motor-driven iron worker, a hand punch and shear, and a high speed riveting hammer made by the High Speed Hammer Company of Rochester. A steam hammer, made by the Erie Foundry Company, and a fifty pound electrically operated hammer, completes the hammer equipment.

A complete arbor, with all the tools and accessories to operate it included in the equipment. Two furnaces, one of them gas for tempering (CONTINUED ON PAGE EIGHT)

To Hold Try-outs

Speakers' Bureau Will Select Seven New Members Soon

Tryouts to select seven men to fill vacancies in the Student Speakers' Bureau will be held Friday night, January 7, according to an announcement by W. H. Hanratty, president of the bureau. Candidates must be prepared to give a 10 minute oration on some phase of higher education in Kentucky.

The speakers' bureau was organized several years ago for the purpose of advertising the university. Members of the bureau speak before luncheon clubs and societies in nearby cities, and return immediately to the Kentuckian box. Blanks must be returned before the Christmas holidays if the information is to appear in the yearbook.

Writer Believes Red-Headed Coach Answer to Grid Question

"They're So Dynamic," She Remarks and Then Thrashes Out Football Problem Graciously for Athletic Council; Free Mascot and Cage Team Is Other Suggestion

(By DOROTHY STEBBINS)

In the first place, this is an indignant protest. We are insulted because no one has asked our opinion of the football situation. We have the "right" suggestions right on the tip of our tongues—but nobody has asked us to offer them. Our feelings are grievously wounded, but we console ourselves with the thought that these men are supposed to possess brains and we refuse to be offended, and hasten before the authorities commit some grave error, to submit our proposition in the first place, (only it's really the second), we think that Kentucky should try a red-headed coach for a change. They're so dynamic. And if they'd pick a handsome one who would speedily eliminate the danger of the feminine element demoralizing

YULETIDE GREETINGS

WELFARE WORK TO BE DISCUSSED

Sociology Department of University Sponsor Annual Meeting Which Will Be Held Here Saturday

Important questions of social welfare in Kentucky will be discussed tomorrow at the University of Kentucky, at the second annual meeting of sociologists sponsored by the sociology department. The State Board of Charities and its work will constitute the theme of most of the speeches on the program.

Suggestions and plans for the extension of the work done in charitable institutions and the advisability of creating separate institutions for special types of state patients, furnish the topic of five of the seven speeches scheduled.

The meeting is not an official one and will be in the form of an informal discussion with time allowed for questions and suggestions after each speech.

The speakers are all prominent in social welfare work and include such as: (CONTINUED ON PAGE EIGHT)

ROMANY TICKETS TO BE REDUCED

Double Season Tickets, Admitting Two Persons to Each Performance, Will Be Priced at $5

Because of the increase in capacity of the Romany theater, the Romany, during the season ticket campaign which begins January 4 and continues until February 1, is able to offer substantial reductions on prices of season tickets to all students and faculty members of schools and colleges in Lexington.

The double season ticket, which will admit two to each Romany performance of the season, will be sold for $5. The new tickets will not only admit all subscribers to five plays during the fourth season, but also to the last play of the third season, to be given early in February. This means that 50 per cent of the subscribers to season tickets will be able to attend six performances for $5, thus making the cost of a single admission only 1-3-4 cents more than the admission to a single show.

DELTA TAU DELTA HEADS STANDINGS

Thirty Per Cent of Fraternity Men Make Below One in Last Semester of Year 1925-1926

More than thirty per cent of the fraternity men in the university failed to make their standings in the last semester of 1925-26, according to a report issued from the office of the dean of men, last Saturday. Eight and four-tenths per cent of the fraternity men made standings over 2.2, while 30.8 per cent were above the university average of 1.644.

The list is headed by Delta Tau Delta, with five honor students, and 12 with standings above the general average.

The report is as follows:

Buckeyes Won Ohio Conference Championship Last Spring; Have Already Defeated Berea This Year

TIP-OFF AT 8:00 O'CLOCK

Wildcats Will Meet University of Indiana Team Tuesday Night

(By WARREN A. PRICE)

Basketball will be of paramount interest in Lexington tomorrow night, when the strong University of Cincinnati quint will play the Wildcats in the opening game of the season at the new gym. The contest will be called at 8:00 o'clock.

The Cincinnati artists, who won the Ohio Conference basketball championship last year with one of the best teams in the North, have already set sail for another championship season. Last Saturday night they quelled the strong Berea College outfit by a 75 to 26 count, while two weeks before their practice periods have been spent intermittently in beating strong independent teams around Cincinnati.

Although the Wildcats have not received the opportunity of demonstrating their wares in a real game, they have shown to good advantage in practice sessions, but they will have to improve appreciably by tomorrow night, if they expect to equal Cincinnati with the freshmen. The Wildcats are unable to hold their own consistently, but in shooting and passing they are the best in the conference. In scrimmages with the freshmen, the Wildcats are unable to hold their own consistently, but in shooting and passing they are the best in the conference. PHILHARMONIC CONCERT SUNDAY

University of Kentucky Orchestra Will Give the First of a Series of Programs in New Gymnasium

MISS SCOTT TO BE SOLOIST

The Philharmonic Orchestra of the university will give the first of a series of concert Sunday afternoon, December 19, at 3 o'clock in the new gymnasium. Miss Mary Campbell is scheduled to give a recital with a Juillard Musical foundation, will appear as soprano soloist.

Miss Scott received her degree from the vocal school of New York, and specialized in pedagogy and harmony. She is a pupil of Adelaide Gehrhardt. She appeared in a recital in one of the New York concert halls where she was well received.

While in New York Miss Scott conducted classes in vocal training and had charge of the Girls Glee club of more than fifty voices. This club gave a very successful program in New York city.

Miss Scott will select her own program. The program to be given by the orchestra follows: (CONTINUED ON PAGE EIGHT)

Roland Hayes To Give Recital December 30

Famous Negro Tenor Will Appear at Woodland Auditorium During Holidays

Roland Hayes, a negro singer, and reputed to be one of the world's greatest lyric tenors, will give a recital Thursday, December 30, at the Woodland Auditorium under the auspices of the Lexington College of Music, which Miss Anna Chandler Goff is director. A nominal fee is charged for such practice and all that is necessary to be allowed such privilege is to apply to the department in its building on Winslow street.

Hayes procured his education at Fisk university, studying music in Boston and abroad, and making his debut four years ago in London, where his success was immediately assured. He possesses a lyric voice of great quality and beauty with a scholarly understanding of music and literature. A master of eight languages, a gracious and compelling interpreter, a great artist he is hailed by two continents. His program includes the old classics, modern English, and a group of Negro Spirituals.

The program will begin at 8:15 o'clock. Tickets, ranging in price from $2.75 to $1.10, are now on sale at the Lexington College of Music.

SNAPSHOTS WANTED

The Kentuckian is offering a prize of $1 this week for the best snapshots of campus scenes or pictures of university students or faculty members. Pictures should be turned in at once to Fred Conn at the Kentuckian office in the Armory.

"WHO'S WHO" PROVES CASE FOR EDUCATION

The new edition of "Who's Who in America" contains in its introduction some vastly interesting statistics proving the value of a college education. There are 23,915 persons recorded in the 1925 edition as being of sufficient outstanding importance in the United States to be given a place in this standard publication.

Of this number, only 388 who were self-educated, or privately educated, "made" the listing. Those who furnished no educational data at all numbered 1,814. Those with only a common school education came to a total of only 1,880. Those who finished high school, but went no farther, numbered 2,756. The number attending college but not graduated is 3,022.

The number of college graduates is 14,065. It cannot be coincidence, or chance, that this overwhelming number of men and women of affairs were college graduates. It is a complete demonstration of cause and effect.

By reason of the college training these individuals have been so completely prepared, or developed, that they have been able to utilize to the utmost their talents with which they were endowed, and thus they have gone far and achieved eminence in almost every line of human endeavor.

It is strong evidence that education "pays." The 43.7 per cent are offered as Exhibit A in the argument. And it is fair to assume that the balance, who, however, managed to achieve success in spite of education or developmental handicaps, had they seen given the same equipment as the college graduates, would not, perhaps, have had so hard a time of it, and possibly would have traveled farther along the road to fame, riches, eminence and usefulness.—Exchange.

CHRISTMAS

"The time draws near the birth of Christ: The moon is hid; the night is still; The Christmas bells from hill to hill Answer each other in the midst."—Tennyson

One week from tonight the whole world will prepare to observe the greatest festival in the ecclesiastical and secular calendar year. Business will be forgotten, courts will be closed, quarrels adjusted, feuds forgotten; peace and good will shall fill every heart as the brotherhood of man celebrates the nativity of the Christ-Child.

Nations have their red-letter days, their carnivals and festivals, but once in a year and only once, the whole world stands still to celebrate the advent of a single life. It is a journey from the frozen north of the midnight sun to the evergreen south of perpetual summer, but in all that expanse there is found no land where the Christmas festival is not celebrated.

As all nations celebrate the birth of Jesus, so do all peoples of these nations. Young and old, good and bad, rich and poor, wise and ignorant, healthy and sick—the festival whose chief charm is its simplicity, appeals to everyone because everyone can understand it. There is no need for learned scholars or noted theologians to attempt to explain it—its message is readily understood by a little child.

There are those today who question the Master's virgin birth; the miracles of his life; his very existence itself. There are those who claim that Christmas is but a revival of the festival of the winter solstice observed by pagan Egypt, Greece, and Rome. They say that our holly and mistletoe are survivals of ancient Druidical worship; that our Christmas carols are a new birth of the hymns of the Saturnalia; that our Christmas banquet is a reminiscence of feasts given in honor of ancient gods and goddesses.

With such persons we have no quarrel for we believe that Christmas is a spirit; not a physical reality. It is not an element to be analyzed in the laboratory nor a formula to be proved by mathematical science. But it is a message of love, of hope, of "peace on earth, good will toward man" which implants itself in the hearts of all men and enriches immeasurably the lives of those who accept its universal truth.

UNIVERSITY CULTURE

Is the acquirement of culture—knowledge for knowledge's sake, refined manners, appreciation of the finer things of life—a primary object of a university education? The answer derived from a consideration of the historical development of the university would seem to be in the negative.

Originally colleges were groups of scholars gathered together for the sole purpose of teaching about the world and the universe in which we live. Always poor, the members of such colleges were vastly more interested in abstract principles of philosophy, astronomy, and other sciences than they were in learning how they might procure for themselves the necessities of life.

Slowly the whole system of advanced education suffered a decided evolution until the climax was reached in the American university system, the patron deity of which is the nation's household god Mammon. On all sides today the cry goes up from great thinkers and educators that universities like Judas have betrayed their trust for pieces of gold. These authorities maintain that the chief purpose of today's educational institutions is to train young men and women to make more money; that the principal purpose students have in coming to college is no longer to acquire knowledge or culture but simply to study methods for gaining wealth.

In a state of affairs such as this it is pleasing to note that gradually but surely there is taking place a reaction which will eventually bring about equipoise between the materialism of the present and the culture of the past. That this balance is being slowly gained in the University of Kentucky is shown by a consideration of two of the recent outstanding developments of the university.

The one, the College of Commerce, founded last year, begins its second year of existence with an enrollment increased 100 per cent. This new college is performing a notable service for the state in affording opportunities for its young men to obtain knowledge which they will later put to use in developing the potential but as yet undeveloped resources of the state. The other development, especially gratifying to those who advocate the cause of culture, is the enlargement of the curriculum, the increase in interest, and the greatly enlarged enrollment in the departments of music and art. And situated in their own ample and modern quarters on Winslow street these two departments are in a position to serve the university now as never before.

CHRISTMAS

Gift. The glow of fresh and brilliant color on a cracked and fading canvas, for awhile at least. Life made briefly resplendent with the goodly things that earth can offer. An old, old world romanticized again as another year is about to join the countless retrogressive ranks.

Silent night. A people waiting breathless for a message of hope. A people listening attentively to a pretty myth, the cynic says. Myth or history—what matters?—if only it is pretty. Mysticism made sublime, beautiful, as beautiful as an icon wrought by the hand of a medieval artisan.

The homely crackle of huge logs burning. Soft glow of candle-light. Exotic green of holly. Fir trees decked out in timorred barbaric splendor. The clear notes of the minstrel's singing carol. The savour of spiced meats and smoking pastries.

Santa Claus. A corpulent old gentleman with rosy cheeks. All the goodness of the earth personified. The most genuine of characters, for he is accepted by the most persistent sceptics? Young children all believe in him. Santa Claus, the first and the most beautiful illusion. Ironically, the first illusion to be destroyed. Exquisite Dresden china breaks most easily.

Christmas. Old surfaces re-gilded. Sordidness obscured. Sophistries forgotten. Old and dingy things made to shine with a brave new lustre.

COMPARATIVE SUPERSTITION

"This Believing World" By Lewis Browne
 New York 1926. The MacMillan Company.
 Price $3.50 net.

"In the beginning was fear." Well, from this beginning has sprung a numerous progeny, until every far flung corner, every habitable bit of land in this believing world, is dominated by this or that god, devil, or djinn, each of whom is a lineal descendant of that beginning; no smallest bit of earth is without the special and unique protection of one or another of the One True Gods.

In the pages of "This Believing World," one glimpses a part—only a part—of the unbelievably long procession of the religions that men, at one time or another, have held as immortal, and which are now, mostly, dead. From the crude animism of the savage, the fetishism of the barbarian, up through the struggling of the Druids, of Bel-Marduk, of the priests of Amon and Ptah, one sees this procession wind, blindly, groping, pulled about by charlatan and demagogue, until, after a long development, it reaches the more commonly known religions. Then Jain and Buddha, Vishnu and Shiva, Confucius and Tao, Zoroaster and Yahveh, and the procession has reached modern times, for these religions are, as yet, still alive.

From the first, following Browne's tracing, there has been a curious unanimity, hidden by superficial details, perhaps, but none the less real. The problems of man, everywhere, have been very much the same—"religion is the technique wherewith man seeks to conquer his environment"—so all religions, at bottom, are much alike. Thus Buddha and Zoroaster were born of virgin mothers, the Persian prophet, Mani, was crucified, Vishnu assumed human form to redeem his creatures, and Zoroaster was tempted by the devil. Then, too the miraculous birth of Krishna was attended only by a few shepherds, bearing gifts, who had come from afar, and the sins of the followers of Cybele were washed away by blood—washed in the blood of the bull—in that most monstrous rite, which history records as the Turobolium. The founders of these religions, Buddha, Confucius, Tao, Zoroaster—each has rebelled against the orthodox, and each has been calmly defied, after his death, and incorporated into the religion he tried to demolish, in order that the priests or shamans or druids or brahmins, might continue in power. Few religions, before Christ of course, kept the spirit of their originator for more than a century.

Christianity has been touched with a sparkling hand in this book wherein so many other religions have been explained away. The conception, as it has been shown, was adopted from the Persians; baptism, argument and all, seems to have come from the lustral waters of the Greeks, while the trinity appears to be a contribution from India, but beyond this, and a few details, such as the debate of Christ in the temple, which come from a legend, probably spurious, of Zoroaster, and the second judgment, which is so old as to be untraceable, Browne has been very moderate. There is, of course, the incarnation of Vishnu in the reform of Krishna—or Christa—and the idea of a personal devil, creation of the Babylonians, and the metamorphosis of Yahveh from the local deity of a desert volcano to an omnipotent god, to be explained, while original sin, and some other dogmas, seem to be relics of tribal taboos, but in the main, the tenets of Christianity have been undisturbed. On the contrary, Christianity may congratulate itself, for all other religions have lost the spirit of their founders under masses of unintelligible theology; all other religions have sacrificed their pristine simplicity for vast organization and elaborate ceremony; all other religions have broken up into dozens and hundreds of rival sects.

Behind all this creation, behind the evolution of one hardly knows how many religions, Browne finds a common psychology. Religion, in every case, appears as a cordial for his unhappiness. Finding his universe uncomfortable, man has created for himself a future where-in pain and stress are strangers, and in which all his enemies, and those who differ from him in politics, theology or morality, may be burned eternally in fire. In the effort, however, to gain this "prophet's paradise to come," man has checked his congenial impulses toward murder and lechery and thievery, so that, in any case, the religions of this believing world have resulted in clear gain. The book is well written, not as technical as "The Golden Bough" and while not as deep, is more intelligible to an average reader. For the amateur of religions, the dilettante in divinity, "This Believing World" is perhaps the most readable work of its kind that has appeared in a decade.

CHRISTMAS

What the birth of Christ means to the World.—Luke 2:8-20.

Let him who can answer. In the realm of theology one meets many answers as there are combinations on the radio dial; each tuning in for his own desired Christmas music.

To the Scripture the "Birth of Christ" means the fulfillment of prophecy. The initial one is found in Gen. 3:15 that the seed of woman should bruise the serpent's head but that was indefinite. In Gen. 12:3 we have the Abrahamic promise "in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed" turning the stream of Messianic prophecy into one family channel but still remaining indefinite.

When we come to Jacob's blessing his sons in Egypt, Gen. 49:10, we find the first distinct promise centering into one person—"the scepter shall not depart from Judah until Shiloh come." This was 1700 years before Christ. Isaiah's prophecy given nearly a thousand years later, Isaiah 7:12, gives a sign—"a Virgin shall conceive and bear a son." About the same date the prophet Micah 5:2 gives the place of the Messiah's birth—"out of Bethlehem shall come Israel's ruler." A century and a half later Dan. 9:25 in his seventy weeks Messianic prophecy fixes the time of the Messiah's birth. To summarize we have the lineage, sign, place and time foretold many centuries before. It means the fulfilling of a long cherished hope of the Nations.

Persia, Chaldea, Egypt, Greece and Rome had enjoyed wonderful civilizations affluent of genius but their civilizations lacked permanency and the lips of the earth had cried to heaven for a savior.

His birth was the answer and in it was all the blessings that can come to man—moral, intellectual and spiritual. The genius of the twentieth century: acknowledge the genius born of this event.

In art we have Leonardo da Vinci, Madama, Marillio's Holy Family, Correggio's Holy Night, while Titan the Italian, Rubens the German, Murillo the Spaniard and Reynolds the Englishman have given to the world national madonnas.

Passing from the realm of art to that of poetry we have a vast field in which to glean. I shock a few

He had always wanted a business of his own —and now, while he doesn't own the business, he's got what he had hoped for in a business of his own. He's gained the opportunity to bring out the best there is in human effort—to handle men rather than materials.

That's what Howard D. Ege had in mind during the time of his early schooling at Grand Island College. It was actively developed during 1919-21 when he worked nights in a Lawrence power plant while completing the work for his B. S. in Engineering at Kansas University.

Ege doesn't scorn the well-known dictum of Socrates—"Know thyself." But he gets more of a kick out of the practical application of "Know others."

Today—five years after enrolling in the Westinghouse Graduate Students' Course—he directly controls a staff of fifty persons. And he's responsible for coordinating the efforts of 1500 employees—half of them men and half of them women—on the production floor.

Ege is Production Supervisor in the Coils and Insulation Department at the East Pittsburgh Works. He is the link between the entire Westinghouse organization and thirteen foremen who directly supervise the work of hundreds of employees. He is engaged in a production job which turns out finished parts with a shop value of more than $1,000,000 a year.

How Westinghouse offers opportunity to engineers differing widely in outlook is demonstrated again in Ege's case. From the time he conceived his ambition to work with men his path has followed a straight line. His training course at East Pittsburgh was in Works Management. This lasted about a year. Then he became Chief Clerk in the Coils and Insulation Department. Only one year later he became Supervisor, reporting directly to the Works Superintendent of Production.

To the man who wants to work with men rather than with materials, Westinghouse offers promising opportunities.

THE SAME OLD YARN

Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

As I was tellin' Akkie, "Who wouldn't believe in Santa Claus at this here to factory. Why, the way the profs keep givin' us term papers and book reports and quizzes, one just naturally couldn't help but believe there was a good old Saint Nick whose "little round belly shook like a bowl full of jelly." Yes, sir, the profs sure do believe in the Xmas spirit of giving. Never did I see such big-heartedness.

Now that I've told you what a tremendous amount of givin' the profs are doing (which you already knew, 'bout my telling you) I want every one of you to sit down P.D.Q., copy this letter, and mail it to Santa Claus, "Dear Santa,

"On your hurried and hurried trip over the world on the night of December the twenty-fourth, please don't forget the University of Kentucky. We need blackboards, so the profs can draw pretty pictures on them for us. Your forever, Akkie and Ikkie."

Don't sign yours like that. Sign your own name. I know ours would have more weight but learn one of life's most important lessons right now, "Advertise yours truly."

Course, I could have written for desks and more room for cramps, feet and about a thousand and other things, but I thought Santa Claus would rather bring us blackboards. He'd think what good children we were.

And say, boys, have you done your shoppin' for your particular dream girl? Course, I know many of you have fussed with her or will fuss with her so as not to be under obligations, but the ones who really want to buy their little girl friends something "fitting to me my children, and you shall hear" of two stores in Lexington which contain all the treasures Captain Kidd buried years ago. The name of one of these "Seven Wonders of the World" is Woolworth's, and the other goes by the name of Kresges'. Why, you can get her bracelets, ear rings, hankies, perfume (French), dainties, rings (even a solitaire—very solitaire) and if you want to go that far, a wedding ring—all for ten cents. Now, what more can you ask? I can hear you blessing me already for solving the Sphinx of Xmas, the gift problem.

And, girls, Akkie says never give one of your "answers to a maiden's prayer" a tie. He'll cease lovin' you on the spot. Now you know what Cleopatra Akkie is. Well, she give one to one of her lovers last Xmas, and he ain't never spoke to her since. Giving a boy a tie for Xmas, is just like waving a red flag in front of a bull.

Oh heck, I have to go open one of my Xmas, present—a term paper, and brings Akkie and I have talked the matter over, we decided to wish you a merry Christmas and a happy New Year. As Ring Lardner says, "How utterly ridiculous you'd feel, if you sent a card to us and we sent a present to you." In order that no such thing will happen to you, this is all you'll get from Akkie and Ikkie.

PREVIEWS OF LOCAL SHOWS KENTUCKY THEATER

"OBEY THE LAW"

In order that he might make a vaudeville tour of the country in the Lambs Gambol playlet "The Valiant," Bert Lytell, the Columbia star, has been temporarily released from his long term contract. He will return to the Columbia studios when the Lambs Club production closes.

In the meanwhile, Lytell's latest production from Columbia is "Obey the Law," the super-crook drama which is now playing at the Kentucky Theater. In this picture, Lytell appears as a gentlemanly crook, wise in the ways of the world and the underworld.

"MY OFFICIAL WIFE" In "My Official Wife," Warners latest production, Conway Tearle, who is married with Irene Rich, appears as Sascha, son of a Grand Duke.

After the bloody days of the Revolution, when his father has been killed and the vast estates confiscated, he is forced to take a job as a waiter in a Viennese cabaret. Here, in the startling beauty of a dancing girl (played by Irene Rich) Sascha finds the former Countess Orloff, whom he has wronged, and who had sought him for years, to make him pay the long past debt. It is a rushing, dark, glittering, brutal, tender story of an all-conquering love.

Others in the company are Sidney Bracey, John Miljan, Jane Winston, Emile Chautard, Gustav Von Seyffertitz, Milla Davenport, Will Hall, Russel Ritchie, Tom Costello and Michael Fleischhoff. The film is an adaptation by Graham Baker from Archibald C. Gunter's story, and was directed by Paul Smith. The celebrated Austrian, "My Official Wife," comes to the Kentucky Theater Sunday for a run of three days.

"THE BETTER MAN"

A fabric woven of comedy, romance and action—a delightful tale of an English Lord and an American girl—a film in which adventures, daring acts and hilarious situations are mixed in a joyous ocean of entertainment—such a picture is "The Better Man," Richard Talman's latest release for F.O.B., coming to the Strand Theater on Saturday. The authors, Clifford Howard and Burke Jenkins, have written a sparkling story abounding in clever situations, and Scott Dunlap, the director, has handled it to the utmost advantage.

Eva Gregory, whom critics hail as a second Lillian Gish, makes a very lovely and appealing heroine. John Sheppling, Margaret Campbell, Charles Hill Hailes, Herbert Prior and Percy Williams do excellent work in the supporting cast, and Arthur Statter, the scenarist, has treated the complicated story with great skill and finesse.

"GIGOLO"

Maxim's of Paris, the famous Cafe Marigny, a steel mill, a convent hidden behind the front in France, and the engine room of a trans-Atlantic liner, are a few of the interesting and widely diversified "locations" which William K. Howard has utilized in filming "Gigolo," which stars Rod La Rocque and which comes to the Strand Theater on Sunday for three days run.

The story of a wealthy American boy and his European-complexed mother, "Gigolo" was adapted for the screen by Garrett Fort from the story by Edna Ferber. The mother is portrayed by Louise Dresser, while the "girl" is played by petite Jobyna Ralston. In addition to Miss Dresser and Miss Ralston, Cyril Chadwick and George Nichols are in the cast.

Colorado newspapers had given wide publicity to the fact that Mix was on his way and as many Coloradans as could get away on vacations had timed their Royal Gorge tours to coincide with Mix' arrival.

The crowds, unintentionally and purely from anxiety to see the famous star performer, before the camera, delayed the work, making it necessary for Lew Seiler, the director and Wynn Mace, his assistant, to modify their shooting locations, returning later to complete their work at the original location.

Similar interest was found in Canyon City and at Colorado Springs where other sequences were made.

"A TRIP TO CHINATOWN"

"A Trip to Chinatown," Fox Films version of Charles A. Hoyt's original comedy featuring Margaret Livingston, Earle Foxe and J. Farrell McDonald is now showing at the Ben Ali theater.

Directed by Robert P. Kerr, and boasting one of the most pretentious casts ever assembled for a comedy, this five-reel feature is said to be the best offering of its kind ever brought to this city. It was produced at the expense of over $100,000 under the direct supervision of George E. Marshall, one of the shrewdest financiers in America.

Three acts of vodvil will also be given.

"THE MAN UPSTAIRS"

"The Man Upstairs," the Warner Bros. Classic of the screen, starring Monte Blue, will be shown at the Ben Ali Theater Sunday. The mystery drama is based on "The Agony Column," written by Earl Derr Biggers, and is said to be even more riotous fun than "The Keys to Baldpate," the famous success of the same author.

Monte Blue plays a young man alone in London who is in search of romance. Dorothy Devore plays the pretty girl with whom he falls in love and who by sending him a series of thrilling letters to satisfy her craving for adventure. Heinie Conklin plays a colored servant, Helen Dunbar, Miss Devore's aunt, and John Roche an army officer who helps give Monte some of the thrills which his imaginary murder provided for Dorothy Devore.

Roy Del Ruth directed "The Man Upstairs," for which E. T. Lowe, Jr., wrote the scenario. Under the direction of three acts of vodvil will complete the program.

"THE LILY"

Belle Bennett, who gained world renown by her portrayal of the mother in "Stella Dallas," gives the greatest performance of her career in "The Lily," Fox Films stirring picture of David Belasco's stage hit, which will be at the Ben Ali Theater Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week.

Miss Bennett plays a woman who unbending father's selfishness. She has sacrificed love on the altar of a rise to great heights in the scenes where she denounces her parent for placing the love of her younger sister in jeopardy.

BENNETT'S BAND

The House of David band will be at the Ben Ali Theater on Sunday December 26 as a special feature. The orchestra will make appearance at 3, 5, 7 and 9 o'clock. The band is under the direction of "Cookie" Hannaford.

In music and song, Handel's Messiah will thrill the ages yet unborn, while hearts will ever find comfort in Lyte's "Abide With Me," Crosby's "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," Wesley's "Jesus Lover of My Soul," Toplady's "Rock of Ages" and others too numerous to mention.

It means that on the rock of the Divine incarnation rests the whole grand edifice of the restoration of the human race.

CHARLEY WERT ELECTED CAT GRID CAPTAIN

JOE HOLTON IS NAMED 1927 MANAGER

The annual football banquet of the University of Kentucky was held Saturday night at 6:30 in the ballroom at the Lafayette hotel. Charles Wert was elected captain of the Wildcats for next year and the names of the men making varsity letters and freshman numerals were read.

This banquet is one of the biggest events of the year for the football team. The election of a captain for the coming season was held and Charles Wert was chosen. During the whole season "Wertie" was a mountain of strength in the line, a real fighter, scratchin' Wildcat. He is a junior in the College of Engineering, president of the junior class, and a member of the Phi Kappa Tau fraternity.

Joe Holton, of Cincinnati, was elected to succeed Dick Conn, of Lexington, as student manager.

Twenty-one varsity players were awarded letters at the banquet. They are: Ellis, Smith, Ott, Ross, Jenkins, Mohney, A. Portwood, H. Portwood, DeHaven, Creech, Phipps, Wert, Scott, Bell, Pence, Dees, Schulte, Gibb, Waddill, Franklin, Edwards, and Mgr. Conn.

Alabama Represents South In Tournament Of Roses Game

News that the officials of the Southern Conference had given unanimous permission to play Stanford University was received by the student body and faculty of the University of Kentucky last week with great jubilation. This is the greatest honor that any team could have bestowed upon them and everyone unites in saying that this school richly deserves the selection.

As everyone now knows the annual Tournament of Roses is held at Pasadena, California on New Year's day when a team from the Pacific Coast and another from some other section of the country which is selected from the outstanding teams of the country meet to decide the uncrowned football champion of the world. Last year the University of Washington met and lost to the University of Alabama by the score of 20-19 in one of the closest and most exciting contests of the season.

Alabama is one of the best and most deserving schools of the South and is fully aware of the great honor of being selected as one of the participants in the Tournament of the Roses for the second consecutive year.

The South has ceased being against Alabama because of the defeats handed them year after year and are wholly for the Crimson Tide, for every man in the South fully realizes what this means to them and knows that it will put the heretofore almost unknown football teams of Dixie before the eyes of the nation. If Alabama should defeat Stanford as everyone has all the hope in the world that they will, it will surely shake the country that the South is on the map, real and properly. After those stars like Brown, Hubert, and all the rest graduated last year, the South's other championship eleven were seemingly weak and the other schools who were defeated so decisively last year, hoped that chance to even up old scores had come but the wonder coach Wallace Wade conjured up even a more brilliant team which has swept everything before them thus far this season and bid fair to swamp Stanford.

Stanford will have something to say about that themselves with two All-American selections and a really great team which at the same time is one of the most versatile organizations on the coast. Alabama is sure to have her hands full.

SEEN FROM

By Hoover

the PRESSBOX

A crowd of some 200 persons filled the ball room of the Lafayette hotel to capacity last Saturday night and saw Kentucky's Wildcats battle a five course turkey dinner off its feet in one of the most thrilling post-season affairs that's been held anywhere this year.

It was the first time that the fans ever saw the whole squad in action at the same time, all previous performances having been confined to 11 men only. Twenty-five or 30 of the Cats played on the line at a table arranged for them. They were arranged so that every play they made could be followed in detail by the spectators.

The men were shifted about considerably and the fans saw a pretty completely revamped lineup. Jimmie Pence held down one end of the table and Frank Smith was moved over to Jimmie's old place at center. Fred Murphy, along with some of the other coaches, a sports writer or two, Dr. Funkhouser and Professor Grehan of the athletic council, and others sort of filled in where they were needed.

The rest of the gang played as a secondary defense at a different table. The style of play was mostly of the plunging style through the line, opened up a bit to receive a pun now and then when they were placed in places in the center of the table. Penalties for off-side were not as numerous as might be expected considering the nearness of the men's plates to one another. There was a bit of rough play noticeable now and then in the way of using elbows against ribs.

One of the features of the whole affair was the spirited duel between Norris Royden and John Ross, playing opposite each other. John, during the first half, ate four big salads that Mrs. Lafayette put down before him, leaving Norris in the background. However, the sports writer retourelled late in the second half by devouring three big desserts and came near overcoming John's big early lead.

It was one of the most decisive defeats ever handed an opponent by the Wildcats—we started to say this year. When the final whistle blew the dinner was completely riddled by the savage attack of the team, while the Wildcats seemed only to be getting started.

There were some pretty good speeches, but none was more interesting than Dr. Funkhouser's. The professor named a long list of things that the athletic board, of which he is chairman, is in the habit of doing when it meets. He pointed with pride to the fact that the board

Morganfield Team, Coach Are Guests Of Boles, University

Coach Clements and his champion football team of Morganfield, Ky., were guests of the University of Kentucky Saturday afternoon as they passed through Lexington enroute to Ashland where they played a post-season game to settle the championship of Kentucky Monday afternoon.

The impressive squad and their leader, Coach Clements, who was formerly a university star player, arrived at 12:10 o'clock, and after lunch, they were taken on a sightseeing tour of the campus by S. A. "Daddy" Boles, director of athletics.

At 2:30 the visitors began a short practice on Stall Field. Their work-out was watched by about 100 football fans. After the scrimmage the boys went to the gymnasium where they watched the daily battle between the varsity and freshmen basketball teams. Saturday night they were guests of the university at the annual football banquet at the Lafayette hotel.

The Morganfield men left Lexington Saturday night at 8:50 o'clock for Ashland. They were accompanied by Mr. Boles, who went along at the invitation of Coach Clements.

The Morganfield Kiwanis club sent two cars of supporters who passed through Lexington Sunday evening to aid the team in its quest of laurels, and who carried several of the Morganfield co-eds who are students here with them to add beauty to the display of skill.

The game ended in a 0 to 0 tie.

MANY TEAMS TO PLAY I-M. B. B.

The intra-mural basketball league is getting under full speed, M. E. Potter announced early this week. Up to date there are 14 fraternity teams and four independent teams entered. Company basketball will also be a feature of a scheduled contest. The league will be divided into three classes, fraternity, company, and independent, the winners of each class will play for the championship of the school.

An entry fee of $2 will be charged in order to help in the purchasing of trophies for the winners of each division, and to assist in lessening the chances of teams not appearing on the night of a scheduled contest. The league will be divided into three classes, fraternity, company, and independent, the winners of each class will play for the championship of the school.

The games will not start until after the holidays, but the gym will be available for practice immediately. The entries will close this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The fraternities who have entered teams are Pi Kappa Alpha, Alpha Gamma Epsilon, Phi Kappa Tau, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Phi Sigma Kappa, Alpha Gamma Rho, Alpha Sigma Phi, Sigma Chi, Delta Chi, Alpha Tau Omega, Sigma Beta Xi, Kappa Sigma, Sigma Nu, and the Triangles.

Dr. Funkhouser Will Go With Crimson Tide

Accepts Invitation of Coach Wade of Alabama for New Year's Game

Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, chairman of the athletic council of the University of Kentucky, and secretary of the Southern Conference, received an invitation last week from Coach Wallace Wade of the University of Alabama to accompany the Crimson Tide team on their trip to Pasadena, Calif., when they play Stanford University for the national championship in the annual Tournament of Roses New Year's Day.

Dr. Funkhouser stated that he will leave Monday with his wife for Birmingham where he will join Coach Wade and charges. Two other Kentuckians, Bruce Dudley, sports writer of the Courier-Journal, and Ed Dan-members seldom disagreed on any matter and that their votes nearly always were unanimous on any question.

Dr. Funkhouser pointed out that "we would have a REAL coach and a man size schedule next year," all of which brought various and sundry cheers from the spectators. Fred Murphy was one of the spectators and he cheered lustily. Professor Grehan tried to talk while chewing on a leg of turkey and finally put over the point he was trying to make.

Sam Walton was referee—I came near forgetting that.

Conference Adopts Few Changes in Rules For Next Year

Many improvements were made in collegiate football by the Southern Conference held in Jacksonville, Fla., last week. Officiating at football games was discussed and plans were made to improve this phase of the game. The gridiron season was lengthened by adding the first Saturday in December to Southern Conference football. Unanimous permission was given the University of Alabama to journey to Pasadena, Calif., to play Stanford University on New Year's day. Conference teams will also be allowed to play in post season games with the consent of the Conference.

DEAN C. R. MELCHER

Nineteen years ago Dean C. R. Melcher came to the university as an instructor of modern languages. During these 19 years of service he has advanced from the position of teacher through that of assistant professor, associate professor, professor, and finally to the position of Dean of Men, serving under four executives of the university. Although these years of rapid movement by the university have imposed new and increased duties on Dean Melcher, he has never been too busy to be a friend of the students, interested in all their activities, and a promoter of all that is good at the university.

Dean Melcher was born in Vevay, Ind., April 7, 1863, the son of John and Elizabeth Melcher. In 1886 he was graduated from Hanover College with an A. B. degree. During the year following his graduation from Hanover he served as principal of the high school in Vevay, the city of his birth. In 1886 he went abroad to study, attending the universities of Munich and Leipzig, but three years later returned to accept the position of superintendent of schools at Carrollton, Ky., and served in that capacity until 1895 when he decided to attend the University of Louisville. He was graduated from that institution with the degree of LL. B. and attended the University of Chicago during the years 1900-01. During the years that followed Mr. Melcher was principal of Reynolds Presbyterian Academy, at Albany, Texas, and professor of ancient and modern languages at Hanover College. In 1907 he came to the University of Kentucky. Dean Melcher is Chairman of Chapel Exercises, Chairman of Student Social Affairs, member of the Student Council, member of the rules committee, the Committee of Scholarship and attendance, the Student Welfare Committee, and of the Social Hygiene Committee. Among the educational organizations of which he is a member are the Kentucky Academy of Sciences, Educational Association of University Professors, the Modern Language Association of America, and the Conference of Deans of Men, of which he is president.

Dean Melcher is a member of the Presbyterian church, of Delta Tau Delta, social fraternity, and of the Masonic Lodge.

into shape mostly through their practice games with the varsity. This has left little time to McFarland's progress for practice in perfecting their own play, although they have been running of some plays in preparation for their own conflicts lately.

The Green and White has shown up remarkably well in their meeting, thus far. In Jeffries, Lyons and Millard, they have three of the best shots seen around here for years. The above three, with Adams at running guard, and Leonard Miller at back guard, comprise a temporary first team. However, Bob Miller, who sprained his wrist last week, and who is resting at the present time, "Doc" Myers, McBrayer, McClane, Combs and Howard are running the first named team very close opposition for places. Seventeen men comprise the frosh team at present, and each man is given ample opportunity to show his skill in the daily practice with the varsity quintet. "Spooks" Milward has proved a veritable tower of strength at center, while Irvine Jeffries, former Manual satellite, is living up to his reputation as a crack basketballer.

From the first McFarland has been working on teamwork, stressing fundamentals.

persons as Dr. George W. Sprague, of the High Oaks Sanatorium; Paul L. Benjamin, secretary of the Family Welfare organization in Louisville; Dr. F. G. LaRue, superintendent of the Eastern State hospital.

The first session will meet in White hall on the university campus at 10 o'clock where the entire morning session will be held. However, the afternoon session will be held at the Phoenix hotel beginning at 2 o'clock. A similar meeting was held here last year and a great deal of interest in the welfare problems of the state was evinced. The problems to be discussed Saturday are of interest to the people of Kentucky at the present time, though no recommendations will be made.

Dr. Best to Preside
Dr. Harry Best, head of the department of sociology, will preside at the two sessions. Subjects to be presented to the meeting are as follows:

"Should the State Board of Charities Have the Power of Inspection of Institutions or Agencies Dealing With Any of the Dependent, Defective or Delinquent Classes?" Dr. George W. Sprague, High Oaks Sanatorium, Lexington.

"Should Kentucky Adopt a Mother's Pension Law?"—Paul L. Benjamin general secretary, Family Welfare Organization, Louisville.

"Should Kentucky Create a Special Institute for the Criminal Inmate?"—Dr. F. G. LaRue, superintendent of Eastern Kentucky hospital.

"What Does Kentucky Yet Need in Its Compulsory Education Laws?" O. J. Jones, assistant superintendent of public instruction, Frankfort.

"Should Kentucky Have Special Prison for Its Women Prisoners?" Mrs. Cleo Dawson Smith, student in the graduate school, University of Kentucky.

"Should Kentucky Create a Special Institution for the Epileptic?"—Dr. A. S. Keefe, from the People hospital, Louisville.

"How May the State Board of Charities Be of Greater Service to the People of Kentucky?"—Milton F. Conley, commissioner of institutions, State Board of Charities, or Miss Linda Neville, member of the State Board of Charities, Frankfort.

Both sessions of the conference are open to the public.

Kernel Will Give Theater Pass Free Each Week

Someone once said, "it pays to advertise," all of which may be all right so far as we are concerned. The Kernel wishes to say, however, that "it will pay someone to read the Kernel advertisements." The lucky one's name will be printed in an ad on one of the pages of the Kernel each week and if, on discovering his name, he (or she) will call at the Kern-theater he will be presented a double pass to the Kentucky Theater to be used as he sees best. You may be the ticket winner this week, or perhaps next week—just read The Kernel ads, and make the Goats do it.

WRITER SOLVES COACH PROBLEM FOR SCHOOL

And while we're on the subject, we're just going to ask if it might not be better to free the Mascot and cage his namesakes. We could put the squad in a special dorm, under military discipline, let them have visiting hours when the co-ed could come out and entertain them. They'd have to have preferred bidding, of course, to avoid the rush. An unbiased committee might send out invitations each week to a selected group of females. A lot more women, better material 'n everything, would go out for girls' glee club, too, if they knew they'd get to serenade the squad in his bowser—or tower. Now, I ask you, could anything be nicer? Of course the dorm would have to have a house mother, else the girls couldn't call, but that wouldn't be so bad. The team would be sure of good food—as well as loving care and solicitude when any of its members broke their necks or swallowed a bone from that same locality in the anatomy of a chicken. And then, in order not to overdo the good thing, it should be arranged in shifts, football squad moving out as the "net" men come in, and so on. Why we'd draw recruits from all over everywhere and lead the sporting world within a year.

Now, I ask you, wouldn't it have been terrible if we hadn't overcome our personal peevish? Think of the pitfalls the coach might have stepped into but for our timely words of advice.

KENTUCKY OPENS BASKET SEASON

varsity, Dees, Glibb, Phipps, Helm, Farmer, Ropke, Jenkins and Ellis appear as the most likely material to get first call this season. The starting line-up for tomorrow night will be selected from this aggregation. "Doggy" Helm seems to be a fixture at the center position, with Farmer a close second. Helm was a member of the national champion Blue Devil team in 1922, and the following year, played a guard on the Southern championship freshman net team at the university. This will be the first year that Farmer has ever stepped on a floor in the garb of a Blue and White uniform. Dees, Glibb, and Phipps will hold down guard positions this year, while Captain Jenkins, Ropke and Ellis will act as forwards.

On next Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock Captain Jenkins and his cohorts will engage the University of Indiana five in the new gym. Advance reports say that the Hoosiers have an unusually strong aggregation this year, and the game should contain plenty of thrills, according to sport critics.

LOCHINVAR AND LOVE PART WAYS

being good and unselfish is at once fashionable and as pleasant as the moralizers would have us believe it is. Christmas emphasizes all the niceties and polite considerations of campus life. Collegiates can get out old ideals long since fallen into disuse and revamp them into something new and usable. Christmas time is heart cleaning time. We'll forget for once all the financial complications of gift-giving, all the careless inebriation of preceding holidays, and wish each other the jolliest of festive seasons.
