Black class of 2000 welcomed

By Shaun Burns
Contributing Writer

Tension, isolation and the struggle to find a place where they are welcome are the problems every freshman faces.

The transition from high school to the college is often not an easy one.

Yesterday, in Worsham Theater, the Office of Minority Affairs held the first annual African American Student Convocation Ceremony to remind the incoming freshmen that they are not alone on this big campus.

"I came here for a sense of unity among the minority of a primarily white campus," said Janelle Carree, a pharmacy student.

"This is a big place," said Chester Grundy, director of African American student affairs.

"It is very easy for students to come here and feel alienation, loneliness and disconnection. And you can compound that many, many times when you factor in race."

The convocation began with the procession of the black class of 2000. They were followed by a procession of academic deans, administration, and support staff.

A brief statement was given by Grundy in which he indicated his support for this year's freshmen class.

Lauretta Byars, vice-chancellor of minority affairs, welcomed students and pointed out the number of mentors and faculty that were there to help them during their college career.

Following her welcome, the ancient African ritual of "Liberation" was performed by Nashid Fakhriddin of the office of minority affairs.

This ritual is the practice of pouring water or spirits on the ground as a "wake up call" to ones ancestors.

Kim Burse, the former secretary of the Kentucky Revenue Cabinet and a Gatton Business College Hall of Famer was the keynote speaker.

CHECK IT OUT Chemical engineering student Tya Thomas picks up materials at "Striving for Excellence Without Excuse: Welcome to the Class of 2000," a convocation to welcome new students to UK.

She was president of the class of 1976 and is now the chief executive of the Louisville Development Bancorp Holding company.

Burse said she overcame adversity, criticism, and racism to be a very successful businesswoman in Kentucky.

Burse spoke about the constant state of learning that it takes to stay ahead of the game at a university. She explained this concept using the fable of the Lion and the Gazelle.

"Every morning in Africa, the gazelle wakes up knowing that it must run faster than the fastest lion or be killed," Burse said. "And every morning in Africa, a lion wakes knowing that it must out run the quickest gazelle or starve to death."

"So it does not matter if you are a lion or a gazelle, when the sun comes up you had better be running."

SGA approves funds for RTNDA travels

By Mal Herron
Contributing Writer

It wasn't exactly the Spanish Inquisition, but for nearly an hour, Carrie Sterling Wilder, a communications senior and treasurer of the Radio Television News Directors' Association and Jessie Sanders, RTNDA president stood at the podium in the Student Center Ballroom while Student Government Association officers debated the validity and purpose of a $1,975 trip to Los Angeles.

The verdict $1300 for the six members and seven non-members of the organization to cover registration fees at the conference Oct. 9-12.

"We're very happy we got the support from the Student Government Association," said Wilder, current paid SGA executive director of Student Services.

"We're paying nearly $1,000 out of our own pockets, so every little bit helps."

Senior Will Terwort, member of the SGA Activities and Recreation committee, countered, saying the association should not use valuable funds on conferences.

"A vote against this bill is a vote for the students," he said.

Siding with RTNDA were senator and education senior Jenny Miller and journalism senior Adam Wilhelm.

Both justified the trip as a valuable experience for students affiliated and unaffiliated with the communications' college.

"A vote against this bill is an insult to my college," Wilhelm said.

Jenny Baker, a former senator-at-large, announced her formal resignation from student government at the meeting; Baker has been offered a job in St. Louis.

Also during the meeting, SGA President Alan Aja said UK has been removed from the list of schools for the 1996 MTV "Choose or Lose" tour.

After working all summer to bring the Dole-Clinton debate to campus, MTV sources notified Aja today that candidates are heading to California instead.

"The University is still on a list," Aja said, but the likelihood of hosting the debate is unclear.

Despite moral opposition, the creation of a lesbian-gay concerns committee was approved, which will be chaired by sophomore Diana Ramsey.

Ramsey said she will ask for SGA assistance in sponsoring a National "Coming-Out" Day on campus.

An environmental concerns committee was also created, which will be chaired by junior Trista Claxon and co-chaired by Gottlieb Duwan, a geography junior.

Duwan was also a member of the now-defunct Students Against Violation of the Environment.

Claxon said she plans to organize health fairs, benefits and enlist environmentalists to speak to classes.

We're paying nearly $1,000 out of our own pockets so every little bit helps.

Phon-a-thon rings up big money

By Kajan Nielson
Contributing Writer

UK received a record amount of gifts during the 1995-96 fiscal year.

A grand total of $39,024.88 was donated by alumni, friends, corporations, foundations, trusts and associations of the university.

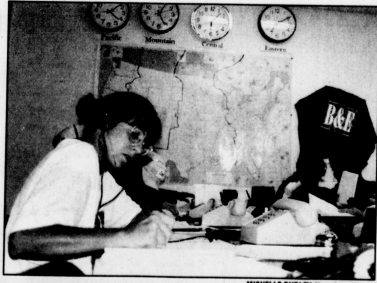

According to Terry Mobley, director of UK's development office, the record donor base of more than 43,000 people is even more important than the total amount donated last year.

"Most people don't start off with big gifts to their university," Mobley said.

Often, new alumni can only afford to donate $25 or $30.

What is more important is that they start giving because, "once they start off with small gifts and then the gifts get bigger," Mobley said.

Gifts to the University don't necessarily come in the form of money. Often "gifts in kind" are donated in the form of a computer, research equipment or medical equipment for the hospital. These gifts to the university are collected from a variety of people.

The development office not only collects for UK's Lexington campus, it also collects for the Chandler Medical Center, as well as from and for UK's community colleges.

According to Kathy Farrar, director of UK's annual fund, alumni donors increased from 24,847, an increase of more than 1,800 people.

"What the annual fund seeks to do is to contact alumni," Farrah said. "Not only to ask them for money but to keep in contact with our alumni, to see if they would like to receive updated information from their university and to express a sincere interest in how they are doing."

The fund accomplishes this through direct mailings, as well as a phone-a-thon held throughout each semester.

Students call alumni from the various colleges, as well as parents association.

Last year, 55,414 alumni were contacted with 30 percent of them giving some form of donation to the University.

Cigar bar, new trend, comes to Lexington

By Lindsay Hendrix
Features Editor

The FDA may soon be regulating tobacco and its advertising. Restaurants and malls are rapidly changing to no-smoking, and research continues to show a link between smoking and cancer.

In that case, was DeSha's restaurant actually moving backwards when it came up with the idea of a cigar bar?

"There's a cigar bar big time in New York, and there's some opening in Cincinnati," said Dave Young, head of operations. "This may be new to this area, but it's really been a big trend over the last two or three years."

Nicholson's Cigar Bar, which is set to open Sept. 15, will be attached to DeSha's restaurant downtown. All the same, the bar's concept will be unique to Lexington, and the entire theme will be different from that of the restaurant.

In Nicholson's there will be leather couches and fireplaces, which they are hoping will help create a dark, yet relaxed atmosphere. The accessories also add to the old-time, hunting-lodge effect.

"We've got the biggest, baddest moose head you'll ever see," Young said.

Cigar-enthusiasts will be pleased to find that Nicholson's will offer between 12 and 15 premium cigars, ranging in price from $4 to $12 each.

Since the cigars will cost so much, Young doesn't expect to see many college students in the bar, although they are welcome.

"It's probably going to be an older crowd," he said.

He expects professionals and business people to frequent Nicholson's, mostly in the 25-40 year

LOCAL Man charged in stabbing death

A Lexington man has been arrested on murder charges in connection with the stabbing of his brother in a dispute yesterday.

Police charged Ronald Hugh Moore, 28, with murder.

He was scheduled to be arraigned this morning in Fayette District Court.

Michael Scott Moore, 26, of Cincinnati, Ohio, died of multiple stab wounds, the Fayette County Coroner's office said.

A statement from Lexington police said the two brothers were apparently involved in a verbal and physical altercation when police were called to Ronald Moore's house early yesterday morning.

Police said when they arrived, they found Michael Moore already dead from stab wounds.

Ronald Moore and another woman who was present, Kimberly Wilson, suffered minor injuries. Wilson was not charged.

Anne Rice: Queen of the Damned

By Suzanne Raffeld Staff Writer and Robert Duffy Arts Editor

During the hot summer eve, Babylonians danced their sacred dances, a small court of musicians played their tune of enchantment and Marduk, the golden god who built Babylon with his hands, watched as a large crowd gathered to rejoice the coming of their own personal goddess.

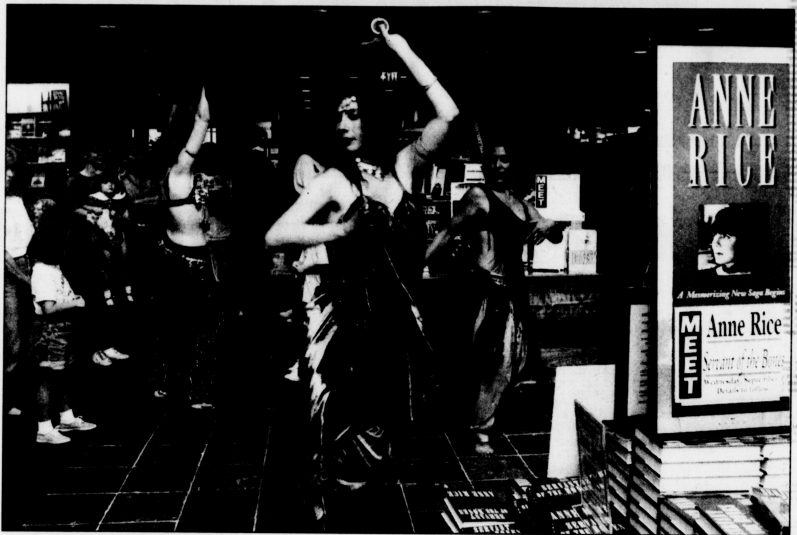

Finally, The Witching Hour was upon us, and her chariot arrived. As she stepped out to meet her adoring public, the drum beat quickened, the energy of the crowd intensified and a woman threw rose petals at her feet to mark her sacred path.

It has been a little more than a year since Anne Rice visited Lexington's Joseph-Beth Booksellers, and the crowd was more anxious than ever.

Rice fans were almost giddy with anticipation at the prospect of meeting "Dracula's Daughter."

Kim Davis, of Lexington, brought her 3-year-old daughter, Cheyenne, to the book signing. Davis, like many Rice fans attending, was dressed in black and carried red roses for the author. Cheyenne was also dressed appropriately in a small black vampire costume.

"All her books are just absolutely fascinating. I saw her last year when she was here," Davis said. "We stood in the pouring rain for about an hour, but it was worth it. Last year I dressed as Anne Rice. She dresses in a lot of black skirts and frilly blouses, and I wore that and I got a compliment from her, so that meant a lot."

Kim Rummel, 28, drove from Cincinnati to see her hero. "Her books help me look inside myself, at the mystery and the darkness, but also the beauty ... This sounds strange, but it helps me be more me, and it helps me feel better about myself," she said.

Tom Doddson, a junior marketing major, was also on hand to welcome Rice.

When asked what it is about Rice that captivates so many readers, Doddson answered, "She's phenomenal. Her books are so vivid."

"You are there. You are part of everything that takes place. I lose myself in them. I would love to be a vampire."

Doddson's appreciation for Rice didn't stop there. "Let me tell you, after reading Interview With The Vampire, I was ready to sell my soul," he said. "I would give anything to be a vampire."

Several people shared Doddson's fascination with vampires.

Stacey Maliongas, 31, of Lexington, said, "She has touched a different way of thinking toward vampires. She makes them out almost like real people, where you can really associate yourself with them and understand where they're coming from, and how they feel. I wouldn't be scared to meet her vampires. She gives them a personality ... They're able to think, they have feelings."

As soon as Rice showed up, the crowd had no desire to say what they felt about their hero. Instead, they listened to what Rice had to say to them.

"I'm overjoyed," Rice said, while surveying the crowd. "I want to take all of these people back on the bus with me."

She then shared stories of her obsession with Antonio Banderas, phone calls with Tom Cruise and the new vampire-inspired cafe she plans to open in New Orleans.

Even after selling more than 100 million books, it was obvious she loved the fans that always put her on the best selling lists.

"I'm just so grateful," Rice said. "I just keep looking forward."

After answering several questions from local newspapers, radio and television stations, Rice turned the table on the press.

"I've got a question for all of you in the press," Rice said. "What makes a good movie? No one in New York knows."

Even one of the world's most prominent authors has to ask questions.

And while the press vampires flew away, and the true fans started to form their line of homage (between 900 and 1000 line numbers were given out), the Queen of the Damned had one last thing to say to the crowd: "Vote for Clinton-Gore!"

HER MAJESTY AND HER ROYAL COURT Hundreds of fans waiting for the arrival of Anne Rice passed the time by watching the belly dancers, musicians and assorted characters provided by Joseph-Beth Booksellers. The store itself was also decorated with coffins, gargoyles and other assorted gothic materials to make Rice feel at home.

UK Theatre opens with doubleheader

By Tiffany Bryant
Contributing Writer

Students who are on a tight budget and in need of an entertainment fix need to look no further than the UK Studio Theater.

The theater will put on two plays beginning tonight.

Students spent weeks preparing for the first performance of the two new plays, "Vivien" and "For Whom the Southern Belle Tolls." Most importantly, the directors needed to find a cast that could perform the diverse roles that the scripts demanded.

Director Michael Sheron hand-picked those who bring "For Whom the Southern Belle Tolls" to life, while Kim Dixon, director of "Vivien," chose to hold auditions to see who could fill the shoes of the Howards and Miss Tendesco. After seeing both performances, it was apparent that both directors had chosen wisely.

When Dixon and Sheron were asked about the relationship between themselves and the cast, Sheron said that it wasn't always easy.

"Directing your peers can be hard at times," Dixon said.

"Vivien" is a highly emotional drama, portraying the relationship between a son, Paul, and his father, Vivien. Tension is immediately felt when it is revealed that Vivien has been absent from his son's life for several years.

"Anyone who has a parent can relate to 'Vivien,'" said Micah Logsdon who portrays Paul Howard.

This play has a serious setting, but laughter takes over by the end of the night. Sheron commented on the second, more light-hearted stage production. "I think that 'For Whom the Southern Belle Tolls' is a comedy that people will really laugh at."

It doesn't matter if you are laughing at the script, the screaming, or the pajamas; something will have you chuckling before you leave.

In addition to Logsdon, "Vivien" features a cast comprised of Tim Huesman as Vivien Howard and Heather Stevens as Miss Tendesco with Dixon in the director's chair.

"For Whom the Southern Belle Tolls," directed by Sheron, has a cast made up of Noel Harrison as Tom, Melanie-sha Onkst as Amanda, and Kim Dixon as Virginia.

Heather Stevens was the assistant director for both plays.

For those stuck in their rooms, with no place to go, the UK Theatre provides an environment for self-indulgence. Both "Vivien" and "For Whom the Southern Belle Tolls" offer an escape from the mundane world of lifeless movies and the same old bars.

Internships available through UK programs

By Kevin McAllister
 Contributing Writer

The definition of experiential education is "learning through experience." The UK Career Center and the Office for Experiential Education are both dedicated to offering that experience to students.

Internships and cooperative education programs are offered to all students in all majors.

These opportunities combine classroom theories with "hands-on" experience and are easy ways to gain professional experience and make important contacts in UK students chosen field.

Students who wish to become involved with these programs must attend one of the mandatory orientation sessions, which are held periodically at the Student Center.

The next session is Friday, Oct. 4, in Room 111 of the Student Center.

Part-time and full-time, paid and unpaid positions are available. The Office of Experiential Education describes the internships and cooperative education programs as "semester-based, for credit, hands-on, professional level, pre-planned learning experiences in the workplace, under the guidance of a UK faculty member."

For students who only want to experience what it's like in their intended career for a short time, the Office of Experiential Education allows students to "shadow" someone in their intended career for one day to get a feel for what they do in a day's work.

The Career Center offers many programs to help students build their resumes, polish their interviewing skills, get summer jobs, and help decide what career is right for them.

The Career Center also helps students land jobs after they graduate by bringing employers to UK for on-campus recruiting.

Diane Kohler, senior associate director of the Career Center, urges any student within two semesters of graduation to start the interviewing process as soon as possible.

"Freshmen should start working on their resumes the first day of school and decide what they want to accomplish before they graduate," Kohler said.

Students who want to drop in for career assistance or questions can do so. Just stop by Room 206 of the Matthews Building between 3 p.m. and 4 p.m. or make an appointment for more in-depth counseling. Kohler said the Career Center also has job fairs and workshops throughout the year. The workshops cover anything from writing resumes to business etiquette. Dates and times of the workshops are available by calling the Career Center at 257-2746.

The Wildcat Jobline is another resource students can use to access career opportunities in their intended field. Students can call 257-8324 to hear a list of available jobs.

Because the bar will also be serving alcohol, people under 21 will not be allowed to take part in the cigar festivities. In addition to offering premium cigars, Nicholson's will also have ultra premium bourbon and the premium single-malt scotches.

Of course, guests who wish to partake of these treats will have to stop by an ATM on their way — a single shot of 25-year-old scotch will cost between $15 and $20.

For those who want more than cigars and drinks, there will be a small dining room adjacent to the bar. Here guests will be able to eat dinner while enjoying the unique atmosphere. Although it's not in the current plans, Young also expects that they may serve desserts in the future.

DeSha's has only two more weeks, and then it can test out this new idea on the Lexington population. Young is hoping that it will survive longer than most trends.

"Hopefully it will be around for a couple of years," Young said.

WSU blanks Cats in season opener

By Jill Erwin
Staff Writer

Due to an overturned cement truck on Alumni Drive, traffic out-side of Cage Field last night was at a standstill, and it seemed as if the Wildcats were stuck in cement as well.

UK came into its game against Wright State knowing that WSU's defense had not allowed a goal in their previous two games this season.

Make that three games. After UK's 1-0 loss to the Raiders, head coach Ian Collins was thoroughly disappointed in his team's offensive output.

"Out of ten corner kicks, you've got to do something worthwhile, and three shots is not even enough to score," Collins said.

Both teams were held scoreless in the first half, and UK had trouble controlling the ball. The Cats didn't get off a shot in the first half.

"In the first half, we played scared," Collins said.

"It was like a chess game in the first half. The first half looked like a non-contact exercise for everybody."

The Cats did come out decidedly more physical in the second half. Unfortunately, before UK could settle into a game plan, Wright State struck.

Just 17 seconds into the half, Brian Seely knocked the ball in from 10 feet out. Jamie Schuer tapped the ball back towards the UK goal, but Seely stepped in.

After Greg Lobring attempted to steal the ball back, goalkeeper David Muse came out after it.

By that time, Seely had gone past him and scored with his left foot.

"It was a goal we shouldn't have given away," Collins said. "At this level, you should not lose games like that. There's no 'good try' this, 'good try' that, we gave them the game, and that disappoints me."

According to Collins and Muse, the breakdown of the game happened because of the lack of communication between the players.

"We need to work on talking to each other as a team and getting rid of mistakes," Muse said.

Collins backed that up, "We lost the game on a goal we shouldn't have given up," he said.

"We weren't authoritative. This is the first game of the season, and I don't want everybody to think this is the end of the world."

The Wildcats did come out more physical in the second half, and after the first 17 seconds, held their own against the pressuring defense of Wright State.

Both teams were more physical, as evidenced by the three yellow cards in the second half. There were a total of 25 fouls called in the game.

"We knew we had to step up in the second half," UK forward Sean Mondelli said.

"We just couldn't pull it out, even though we stepped things up."

Wright State goalkeeper Dan Cwiklik turned in his third shutout of the season, and fifth in five games. The Wildcats had eight corner kicks in the first half, none of which went near the goal. All three of Cwiklik's saves came late in the second half. UK's record in season opening games fell to 2-3-1.

Haskins remains the starter at QB as Wildcats head toward Cincinnati

By Chris Easterling
Sports Editor

UK coach Bill Curry's decision to keep Billy Jack Haskins as the starting quarterback for the Cats remains unchanged as they head into this Saturday's game at Cincinnati.

Curry gave Haskins the vote of confidence in his weekly press conference on Tuesday. He also said that freshman Tim Couch would see some playing time Saturday.

"Billy Jack is the starter based on grading and knowing the checks," he said. "But Couch deserves to play. Just how and when he'll play, we'll decide closer to game time."

There had been talk, mainly by members of the media, that Curry would make the change and go with Couch. But with the coaching staff expecting to face a heavy-blitzing Bearcat defense — coached by Rex Ryan, son of former NFL defensive guru Buddy Ryan — Curry didn't want the freshman to have to face that type of defense right from the start.

Changes on the line

Following last Saturday's game, UK offensive coordinator Elliot Uzelac said that changes were likely along the offensive line before the Cincinnati game. With three practices under the team's belt since the 38-14 loss to Louisville, Uzelac said that things still need to be fine-tuned in order to reach the level he wants.

"We got a little better (this week)," Uzelac said yesterday. "We're making some changes. I think it helps us, but I don't think we're where I want to be yet. We have some work to do yet, there's no question about it."

The line could get a boost with the return of John Schlarman from a torn anterior cruciate ligament. Schlarman had been out since the end of spring practice with the injury, which is the second of his career.

"As of (yesterday), I think I will get some playing time," Schlarman said. "How much probably depends on how I do (in practice this week)."

UC trying to break record

Cincinnati will be trying to set a new school record in attendance for consecutive games when UK visits Nippert Stadium on Saturday.

A total of 26,493 people came out last Friday to watch UC lose to Tulane in the first-ever Conference-USA football game. The UK game only needs to draw 22,602 to break the record.

The old mark, 49,094, was set in 1987 for games against Rutgers and Miami (Ohio).

ViewPOINT

Computer changes a necessary evil

In our roles at UK we have to provide an ever-increasing number of services to the University community on limited resources.

Therefore, we understand and appreciate the concern for students' budgets expressed in the Kentucky Kernel's editorial of Aug. 29 regarding the charge for printing in the library microlabs. Today, the charge is being implemented and we would like to take this opportunity to reiterate the reasons that necessitated the imposition of this charge and to correct one inaccuracy in the Kernel's editorial.

After careful thought with the senior administrators of the University, we chose the latter.

While these were not the deciding considerations in the choice to charge for printing, there are a number of corollary benefits that arise from that decision.

We are now, for the first time, able to make color printing available to students. Also, we will have all new printers in the Microlabs, guaranteeing the reliability and quality of printing. In addition, students will no longer be subsidizing the printing done by non-student patrons of the library.

The new system will be much more environmentally sound, reducing the previous waste of paper.

Because there will be less waste printing, students will not have to wait so long for their important output while unused material is being printed.

Students will now enjoy better access to PLUS account services via the three new locations for adding funds to their accounts.

Any money saved on printing because of this system will be applied to improving computing services for students. And, finally, the per-page charge for printing from the full-text journal services in the libraries will be reduced from 25 to 10 cents, a significant benefit to those students who need journal articles for their research.

The correction that we would like to make concerns the inaccurate characterization of our dedicated student consultants. Our lab assistants start at $5 per hour, with incremental raises based on a merit evaluation.

The "Tech Team" students who handle hardware and software installations and repairs earn $6 per hour. Our Lab Managers earn $6.50 per hour. No one earns close to $8 per hour. Furthermore, all of our student workers undergo extensive training with particular emphasis on their attitude, public service and approach to helping clients.

Consultants, like any other University employee, are held accountable for their actions and behavior. If a complaint is received regarding a consultant, it is treated with the utmost seriousness, investigated fully and appropriate action taken, including possibly reassigning the consultant. If there are complaints regarding consultants, we would appreciate hearing them immediately, so that we can continue to provide the best possible service.

Next time you walk through a building on campus, try to find a campus phone in a hallway.

In fact, imagine being in one of these buildings, or venturing through the UK campus, late at night and trying to summon help.

Or an escort, for that matter.

Unless you're at the library or the Student Center, it looks like you're out of luck, because those are the only two locations on campus with "public" campus phones.

And unless you've got a quarter, you're still in bad shape if you happen to be in a building with a pay phone. Unless you're calling 911, you've got to shell out a coin.

Staff Writer Jay G. Tate brought this idea to the table in July but no one wanted to listen. So we're going to say it again:

Why not install "public" campus phones in campus buildings for use by students and staff at night?

While you're at it, why not post the campus emergency number, escort service number and other important phone numbers nearby?

If the possible abuse of the phone privileges is a concern, then block certain calls.

Block long distance calls or block off campus calls.

Even if the phones are vandalized, the one time that the phone is needed, all these minor difficulties will be forgotten.

So if there is someone out there listening to this time, lets get going on this improvement to campus-wide communication.

According to our sources, SGA takes care of the phones at the aforementioned locations. Maybe they could take the initiative and lobby to get "public" campus phones installed in more buildings around UK.

We're not looking for a big, ugly blue phones scattered across campus, just a few more standard-issue phones in buildings.

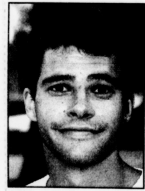

In fact, they might even be able to get UK's Communications and Networking department to help with the installation.

No matter who does the job, someone needs to take the next step for student and staff safety on campus.

Though it might seem like a small step, it's a step in the right direction.

Musings from the right side of the fence

If Steve Martin combined the brains of Rush Limbaugh and Howard Stern, he would have the power to create "The Man With One Twisted Brain."

Well, this may not be the movies, but I know someone that comes pretty close. I do. I am going to do my best to spread a little cheer and goodwill toward mankind, specifically this campus and the readers of its newspaper.

Whether you enjoy my column or you find it more suitable to line bird cages, read it anyway and live through a return to the right way of thinking.

Though on the edge, some think my insights are politically incorrect, unfair, down right wrong, humorous or maybe even correct. (Gasp) You be the judge.

Is it just me or does el presidente need to nickname his shadow "Scandal" because everywhere Clinton goes, scandal follows.

My personal favorite is the FBI file controversy. Most of you will remember only what most of the FBI seemed to have forgotten. Who hired Craig Livingston?

Well this question was answered when the name of the late Vince Foster kept popping up. They are going to have to exhumate his body to put him on trial.

How convenient that the only man that can't possibly give testimony committed suicide many months ago.

Though his death was ruled a suicide I am from the school that has a hard time believing that Foster actually killed himself.

Just last week Clinton denied $1 billion in aid to Farakhan's American "Nation of Islam" from our friends in Libya. Farakhan promises a retaliation led by a gathering larger than imaginable by his followers. Boy, I hope he holds up to his end of the bargain, I was rather disappointed in the 400,000 Man March.

By the way, does anyone know how many bows tie $1 billion will buy?

Well, it was business as usual as the phrase "wait until basketball season" was echoed throughout Commonwealth Stadium after the loss to the 'Ville. When will C.M. Newton come to grips with Bill Curry's inadequate coaching abilities and hire someone capable of rebuilding this football program?

Ben Rich

Bill Curry is too soft. UK needs a "rip off their heads..." kind of guy. The other problem most have with Curry is his inability to recruit large linemen instead of small ones.

I am not harping on the players, they played with heart, but an extra 30 pounds a piece wouldn't hurt either.

Maybe by the time this weekend game rolls around, we will have someone that can punt the ball further than the distance between the New and the Old Student Center.

I would like to propose a solution to the tiff between the administration, the bikers and those who use their boots for walking.

Anyone caught riding their bike in an unauthorized area will be drawn and quartered during halftime of the next football game.

Anyone caught walking in the bicycle lanes will be forced to eat one of the quarters as punishment for their offense.

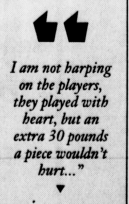

This punishment does not include students from Milwaukee. They will just have to sit back and pray for rain.

While on the topic of glowing night skies, it looks as though the United States is going to butt heads with Saddam Hussein again. George Bush failed to capitalize on Desert Storm in the 1992 election. His broken promise of no new taxes has already been duplicated by the current president. Maybe big Bill will screw up and loose the election just like ol' George managed to do.

Chelsea and Millie are almost alike, physically anyway. That would make for three things that Bill and George have in common. Maybe, the "Draft Dodger-In-Chief" can lead our boys to a victory over them bad Iraqis.

Only time will tell, but you can bet Bob Dole would give his left arm to have the chance to battle Saddam as President of these United States.
