Debate Teams Win At Two Universities

UK debate teams won tournaments at the University of South Carolina and the University of Cincinnati last weekend.

The varsity team, participating in the South Carolina tournament, won three of the four trophies given. They received the first place trophy, the trophy for the best negative team, and the individual speaker's trophy.

The speaker's trophy went to Deno Curris, a member of the negative team. Those attending the tournament were Betty Choate, and Warren Scoville for the affirmative and Deno Curris and Ben Wright for the negative.

In the Tau Kappa Alpha regional tournament at the University of Cincinnati, the varsity and novice teams placed first. Tau Kappa Alpha is the national speech honorary.

The varsity, composed of Kathy Cannon and Phil Grogan for the affirmative and Paul Chelgren and Earl Oremus for the negative, were undefeated in the tournament. The novice team included Julia Blyton and Eberhard Zopp for the affirmative and Paul Osborne and Don Clapp for the negative.

Miss Cannon was elected president of the Ohio-Kentucky region of Tau Kappa Alpha at the tournament.

The debate topic was Resolved: That Labor Organizations should be Under the Jurisdiction of Anti-trust Legislation.

Popcorn Popper Burns In Safety Officer's Room

A popcorn popper caught fire Sunday night in the room of a Jewell Hall student safety official and brought five fire trucks to the women's dormitory.

The small blaze, which scorched a few books and some clothing, started in the room of Harriet Smith, disaster chairman of Jewell Hall.

One of Miss Smith's jobs as disaster chairman is to see that women in Jewell Hall escape safely from the building in case of fire.

But the disaster chairman was at a nearby restaurant when the blaze began.

Women in Jewell Hall, however, did not need a safety official to tell them to leave the dormitory. Clad in raincoats, they gathered outside the building to greet firemen.

But firemen arrived only to find that a few enterprising students had already extinguished the blaze.

Mrs. Marian Aylward, head resident of Jewell Hall, said Miss Smith was not responsible for the fire.

It was Miss Smith's popcorn popper, but an unidentified student had used it in her absence and left it plugged into an electrical outlet, Mrs. Aylward said.

Fire Department officials estimated the loss at approximately $30.

Faculty OK's Calendar For '61-'62; Changes Commencement Date

By ELDON PHILLIPS
Kernel Associate Editor

The 1962-63 University calendar was finally approved yesterday by the University Faculty after a heated discussion which lasted 35 minutes.

The calendar was passed by voice vote after an amendment was approved cutting the days between final examinations and commencement exercises.

The amendment was suggested after several faculty members objected to the inconvenience caused the seniors and their families by the proposed nine-day delay between the examinations and commencement.

Dr. Arthur Cooke, professor of English, made a motion to change the dates for baccalaureate services to Sunday, June 2, and commencement on Wednesday, June 5. This amendment moved commencement five days closer to the end of the examination period.

The original proposal placed baccalaureate services on Sunday, June 8, and commencement exercises on Monday, June 10. Examinations are to end on Friday, May 31.

The Alumni Day also was changed from Saturday, June 8 to Saturday, June 1.

The calendar presented at the University Faculty meeting yesterday was a revision of the proposed calendar presented at the last meeting in October.

The calendar was rejected at that meeting because of objections to the nine-day delay between final examinations and commencement exercises.

Also, Dr. L. L. Martin, dean of men, objected to the full week allowed for Welcome Week in the fall. He said the entire week was not needed because orientation activities are held in the summer for freshmen.

The approved calendar allows four days for orientation activities and registration of new students. Classes begin on Sept. 15 for the fall semester and Feb. 2 for the spring semester.

Dr. Charles F. Elton, dean of admissions and registrar, said his office could process the grades in the limited time. Several faculty members objected to the "short" time allowed for them to grade examinations—two days.

Dean W. L. Matthews, of the College of Law, said two days would not allow the College of Law faculty enough time to prepare its grades.

During the course of the discussion several objections were raised to the calendar. One member proposed 2½ days be taken from the spring vacation and added to the teaching days of the spring semester. That amendment was defeated.

The discussion concerning the number of days allowed between examinations and commencement began after Vice President Leo M. Chamberlain, presiding in the absence of University President Frank G. Dickey, read a letter from Dr. Dickey to the schedule committee. In the letter Dr. Dickey objected to the length of time allowed before commencement began.

Student Congress representatives to the University Faculty were introduced to the members. They are Ann Evans, Jim Daniel, and David Graham.

The calendar was approved after the commencement dates were changed by a vote of 31 to 28.

The Faculty approved a recommendation by Student Congress for Governor Bert Combs to hold a convocation here Dec. 13. They also approved the dismissal of 10 a.m. classes for students to attend the convocation.

Former Owner Returns Furniture To Spindletop

Spindletop Hall's former owner, Pansy Yount, recently returned $61,330 worth of furniture to be used in the mansion when it opens next spring as the University faculty-alumni-staff center.

The furniture includes several pieces which were built to order for the manor house upon its completion in 1937. For five years it has been stored at Mrs. Yount's home in Beaumont, Texas.

Use of Spindletop Hall was offered to the Carnahan House organization by the Kentucky Research Foundation, which purchased Spindletop Farm for $850,000 in 1959. The 40 - room mansion alone is valued at $1 million.

Much of the furniture in the shipment was designed for use in the oak-paneled Saddle Room, which is expected to be the hub of social activity when the Carnahan

House organization moves to Spindletop.

Mrs. Yount also returned the following articles for the first-floor rooms:

Two chippendale settees and a handcarved grandfather's clock for the foyer, a 24 feet by 36 feet Czechoslovakian-made carpet for the dining room, a massive hand-carved table and two Chinese vases for the Elizabethan Room (drawing room), a large mahogany desk for the library, and two early 16th century Flemish tapestries.

Carnahan House is a self-supporting enterprise — no tax money is used in its operation.

Junior High Athletics Popularity Increases

A study by a University graduate student shows that 96 percent of Kentucky's public schools support programs of interscholastic athletics at the junior high school level.

Terry L. Cummins, now director of pupil personnel in Pendleton County, made the report while he was a graduate student in the College of Education.

In the school systems having interscholastic athletic programs in junior high, all have basketball, 39 percent have football teams, and 20 percent have other types of sports.

Kentucky History Is Needed

Recently, Dr. Amry Vandenbosch, director of the Patterson School of Diplomacy, called for an end to teaching Kentucky history in elementary and secondary schools. We concede Dr. Vandenbosch's expert rank and sincerity as an educator, but we feel Kentucky history should not be removed from our schools.

Even in our time of the "one world" organization, the United Nations, which deals with "world" crises, most of us have a tendency to think of ourselves first as citizens of Kentucky. Nationality and national pride involves a certain provincialism. Our sense of oneness must first develop on native ground before we can develop a cosmic attitude toward the rest of the world.

Your Greatest Enemy

It is interesting to notice the far-reaching effects of a tragedy such as the death of the Transylvania coed. For example, additional lighting on the UK campus previously sought is suddenly announced. Furthermore, great precautions are presently being taken by normally careless individuals about going out at night alone. One exaggerated rumor reportedly stated that Transy men chased a prowler four blocks across the campus one night only to discover it was a Great Dane. This is only illustrative of the city and state wide alarm aroused.

But, who is your greatest enemy? Thousands more lives are lost through careless neglect of commonly known safety rules. The recent incidents of a college student's fatal but avoidable automobile accident and a young boy's death from carbon monoxide fumes, resulting from a faulty muffler system on the car, received little attention and were quickly forgotten by the general public.

The greatest enemy to your physical survival is yourself. If some tardy student tries to prove right-of-way precedence over a car while crossing Rose Street and becomes eternally late for class, who is to blame? If some coed's big date is prematurely climaxed by a fatal fall in the shower, who goes on trial? Supposing she made the date and while she and her lover are conducting field work in Astronomy they fall into a permanent sleep from carbon monoxide, who will be punished?

The law of averages shows us the killer may not be in the bushes, but in the dormitory, on the crowded street, or in the car. The murderer may not use a gun or other weapon but you may lose your life in a moment of haste, indecision, or thoughtlessness. Never forget that even though the headlines carry the murders and these make the greatest impact upon the mind, statistically speaking, YOU are your worst enemy.

Hopefully, by this method, Kentucky history and United States history could have more meaning; both could be crystallized in the minds of the pupils.

Asks Student Support

To The Editor:

The World University Service helps the student help himself. This is its purpose and it is by no means an attempt to send a student through college with every necessity. WUS aids the student in one area and it is up to him to get what else he needs on his own.

In India, some students did not have textbooks so they made their own. WUS provided them with mimeograph machines and they collected the notes of their teachers. The students bound the notes into books which they sold for 40 percent of the regular cost. In Greece, students can eat three meals a day for 23 cents.

WUS is not limited to the foreign student, but all students who are in need of scholarships, dormitories, medical, clinics, and school supplies receive aid. After the Hungarian revolt, many young men and women found themselves in the United States without homes. Least of all, they never considered going to college. This is where the World University Service offered its assistance.

The apportioning of the money is determined by the WUS convention which is held in Geneva, Switzerland every two years. The statutes of the convention state that 50 percent of the convention must be students. WUS is represented in 40 different countries and each of these sends a committee to the convention.

In the words of President Kennedy, "It's not what your country can do for you, but what you can do for your country."

U.N. — A Going Concern

Modes Of Actions Replace Failing Functions

By MIKE FEARING
Kernel Daily Editor

The attitude of the American people toward the United Nations could be labeled as a particular problem that plagues the international organization.

One gentleman has called it "just a bunch of little boys who can't make up their mind," but a student who attended the U.N. seminar recently seemed to answer this comment when she pointed out one factor:

"We only see the results; if everyone could experience the U.N., experience the effort being put forth, there wouldn't be so much ridicule of it."

It is certainly true that the tumult of problems within an organization would be felt as weaknesses on the outside, but the U.N. has been called a going concern. It has acquired modes of action to take the place of failing functions.

Until 1950 the veto power within the Security Council, whose primary function is to promote international security, has crippled the action of the council.

Under the U.N. charter, a majority vote with all five permanent members voting affirmative had to be taken before action on procedural matters could be approved. Many times it appeared the veto power was being abused and important action detained.

Under the Uniting-for-Peace plan, presented by the United States delegation, action in the Security Council on procedural matters could be moved to the General Assembly after a simple majority of the council—all affirmative votes of the permanent members or not.

This is a good example of the organization's self-generating powers even though much has been written on the legality of the "peace plan."

Another problem within the U.N. which has arisen is not a direct result of the charter but seems to be a result of the physical organization itself.

First is the concept of the neutralism of many member states. One authority described it as the states' willingness to stand aside when Russia and the United States come up on opposite sides. This definitely makes it diplomatically harder to come to a mutual ground.

Another aspect is the fact that the majority of the smaller, inexperienced nations look to the United States for leadership. But this is only natural since we are larger and more able to look deeper into many matters.

Briefly stated, another problem which is beginning to grow more apparent is the voting in the 103-member General Assembly. Much has been said about the long diplomatic hours spent to support the sway of each individual vote. Or how one vote could represent the international opinion of the millions of people that are found in India, for example.

Financially, the U.N. is at low ebb and it is all because the member nations are not kicking in their individual assessments for the upkeep and security functions of the organization. The Congo situation alone cost the United States $120,000,000 while it had only budgeted $70,000,000 for it.

The catch comes in realizing the United States dropped less than $60,000,000 into this fund when it was only assessed 32 percent of the original $70,000,000.

It has been pointed out America cannot always pick up the tab when the financial funds of the organization fail. Member states probably begin to wonder whose running the show.

Several reasons prevail when a state is unable to pay his assessment. One, the country itself is not rich; and two, the nation did not know before it requested membership the various expenses that would be entailed.

Algeria Students eat in an Algerian student restaurant located in the courtyard of one of their dormitories. The single course meals consist largely of an olive oil stew base, served two times a day. Meat weighing 2.82 ounces is served twice a week to students.

Dr. Frank G. Dickey, University president, has said, "Although we are called upon frequently to participate in and to contribute to worthy causes, I can think of none more important than the World University Service drive. Please be as generous as possible in your contribution to this worthy organization."

Indonesia

Students can buy mimeographed textbooks and lecture notes at reduced prices because of the mimeographing services of World University Service. An Indonesian student looks over the selection of WUS books.

India

In India learning is not hampered by poverty or lack of housing. This Indian student uses his cot for a chair and his chair for a desk. Some of his luckier classmates are housed by World University Service, made possible by funds from American students.

Africa

Community development programs are also an important part of the World University Service's activities. African university students help improve living conditions in small village communities by participating in projects such as this one.

Students all over the world, including those at UK, are asked every year to contribute to World University Service and help their fellow students in foreign lands receive a needed education

Burma

Ten students share this small room in a dormitory at the University of Rangoon in Rangoon, Burma. To help relieve this crowded situation, World University Service is seeking to develop cooperative student dormitories.

India

Laboratory equipment for use in chemistry classes is supplied to university centers throughout India by World University Service. A chemistry student is using some of the equipment at the University of Punjab in Punjab.

Rampulla Leads Cats Over Vanderbilt, 16-3

John Rampulla made good on his first starting assignment Saturday as he quarterbacked Kentucky to a 16-3 victory over Vanderbilt in Nashville, Tenn., the first Wildcat win there since 1953.

The outcome sent 23,000 homecoming fans away disappointed since Jerry Woolum's injury was supposed to have made the game a sure win for the Commodores.

But Vanderbilt fumbled four times and alert Kentucky graciously accepted this gesture of hospitality.

Tommy Brush recovered the first miscue on the Vanderbilt 45 in the second quarter. Rampulla then passed 21 yards to Tom Simpson and 29 yards to Tom Hutchinson to set up the one-yard plunge by Gary Steward. That, coupled with Clarke Mayfield's conversion, put the Cats ahead 7-0.

All went well until the third quarter when the Commodores drove to the Kentucky one-yard line. At this point Tom Hutchinson recovered another fumble and Kentucky immediately let Darrel Cox punt out of danger, but Vandy drove 34 yards in eight plays to set up a field goal from the 27-yard line which Wade Grady kicked. This made it 7-3.

Early in the fourth quarter the Wildcats drove 20 yards in six plays to reach the Vanderbilt 27-yard line. Perky Bryant cut wide through right guard and raced the remaining distance for the second touchdown and with Mayfield's successful conversion Kentucky led 14-3.

The final tally occurred in the closing second as a Cox punt put the Commodores deep in their own territory. Three plays later the Vanderbilt quarterback was tackled by Junior Hawthorne for the two-point safety that completed the scoring at 16-3.

A last minute safety also featured in a victory for Xaveir, the opponent Kentucky will face this week at Stoll Field. The Xavier quarterback deliberately ran the ball back to his own end zone and downed it for a safety rather than risk a fumble when the Musketeers led by 3-0 with only seconds left. This gave them a 3-2 win over Marshall and means that win or lose this week Xavier will have their first winning season since 1956.

A salute to Coach Bob Johnson and his Wildcat cross country team!

No, we doubt that Johnson is a genius. He may not even be inimitable. But he is a pretty darn good track and cross country man who loves the sport and has instilled into his fine team that same love of the game.

The UK runners brought their 1961 regular season dual-meet season to a close Saturday with easy wins over Eastern (20-39) and Morehead (19-38) for a 6-2 record in Johnson's first year of collegiate coaching of a varsity cross country unit.

The grind isn't over yet, however, as the men of Coach Johnson aspire for high placements in the South-eastern Conference meet at Atlanta, Ga., next Monday and the annual Shamrock Run at Louisville, Nov. 25.

JOHNSON

The six UK cross country victories this fall came over Indiana Central (21-36), Hanover (15-48), Berea (15-50), Tennessee (20-43) and Eastern and Morehead.

The 15 points scored against Hanover and Berea were "perfect" scores. That is, Kentucky took the first five places 1-2-3-4-5 equals 15.

In cross country, the low score wins.

Miami of Ohio (25-30), Cincinnati (27-28) and Mississippi State (21-35) defeated the Cats.

In addition to their nine-meet dual-competition card, the UK harriers also competed against a field of the nation's top cross country teams in the classy Notre Dame Invitational. The Wildcats took sixth place at South Bend and picked up a wealth of experience in competition with the likes of Western Michigan, Ohio University, Notre Dame, Central Michnens to their best times of the city.

The fast company of the ND Invitational pushed five UK runners to their best times of the season.

Junior Keith Locke established the best Wildcat time of the season over the standard four-mile course—a 20:51 clocking at Notre Dame and also at Cincinnati.

Owen Basham actually posted the team's lowest figure—a 20:13—but that came over a 3.6-mile course at Hanover.

RUSS MIRACLE
Scores Kitten TD

Unlike Varsity Football Team, Frosh Have Tennessee Woes

It looks like Kentucky freshmen footballers are going to have to take some lessons in "Tennesseeology" from their varsity big brothers.

For the third straight year Tennessee's Baby Vols have taken the measure of the Kittens, their latest conquest of the UK frosh coming last Friday on Stoll Field by a 14-7 count.

Coach Blanton Collier, who might do well to generate some of his mystic powers to the Kittens contingent, has not allowed his Wildcats to lose a game to the Vols since 1956.

A fourth-quarter pass from tailback Wayne Bush to wingback pass-receiving fool Don Henson was the difference in Friday's 27th meeting between Kittens and Baby Vols. The fourth-and-four pass play from the UK seven-yard line gave the Tennesseans their 15th victory in the 41-year old rivalry.

Kentucky had gone seven points up on the Baby Vols on the first play of the second quarter when quarterback Mike Minix hit halfback Russ Miracle in the end zone for a four-yard TD play and halfback Charlie Young kicked the extra point.

Quarterback Bill Jenkins had engineered most of the 63-yard scoring march with his 24-yard toss to end Jim Overman being the big play of the drive.

With only 2:32 to go in the half, Tennessee gathered in a third-down Minix punt at its own 48-yard marker and moved to a deadlocking one-yard scoring plunge by Bush and Ray Hand's PAT boot in seven plays.

Only 27 seconds remained in the half when UK scored.

The two clubs played a stand-off third period before Tennessee's Bush-to-Henson combination, which accounted for all of the Baby Vol's five pass completions and 88 yards, gave the visitors the verdict.

Kentucky picked up only 70 yards on the ground compared

The loss gave the UK freshmen a 1-2 record for 1961. Tennessee finished with a 2-1 mark.

Intramural Basketball Play Begins

Intramural basketball slipped on the scene last week, close on the heels of a successful flag football season.

Action included wins by Sigma Chi, Phi Delta Theta, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Kappa Sigma, and Lambda Chi Alpha.

In the season opener, Sigma Chi held Phi Kappa Tau to a five-point first half and eight in the second session, while tallying a total of 35 themselves.

Phi Delta Theta, fresh from a flag football championship, started on the win trail in roundball with a 34-20 shellacking of Alpha Gamma Rho. Brad Arterburn, Phi Delta pivot man, was high for the game with 9 points.

In a high-scoring battle, the Sig Ep's took the measure of Phi Sigma Kappa, 54-36. Tom Cooper paced the Sig Ep's with 23 points, and was top-scorer for the game.

21:08. Forno Cawood's a 21:31, John Baxter's a 21:43, and Allen Cleaver's a 22:16—all at Notre Dame.

Dave Cliness' best effort was a 22:01 recorded only last Saturday against Eastern and Morehead.

Baxter and Cliness made the greatest gains this fall in lowering their times. Baxter came from a 5:59 average per mile to a 5:27 average. Cliness dropped from a 5:42.3 average to under 5:25.

Although the task is a man-sized one, Johnson is prepping his squad now for a strong showing in the SEC. What makes the job so difficult is that defending league champion Mississippi State returns as powerful as ever and appears virtually "unbeatable." At least that's the word out of Dixie.

The Bulldogs (they changed their nicknames from Maroons this year) are undefeated this season. The perfect slate includes that 21-35 upending of Kentucky.

The Wildcats have come a long way this year and have the fortitude to mix it up with the best on a given day. UK teams have been especially successful in previous SEC meets, winning the league crown in 1958 and 1959.

Coach Johnson has conceded nothing. He thinks his boys have a chance to pull the upset.

That would be the perfect ending to an already outstanding season.
