Jackson Is Chosen to Head Men's Council for 1936-37; Date Set for Junior Vote

Sophomore, Freshmen Election Plans Incomplete Pending Confab With President

Laban Jackson, a senior in the College of Agriculture, was chosen to serve as president of the Men's Student Council for the year 1936-37 by members of the group at a meeting held Wednesday afternoon in the office of Dean Men T. T. Jones. Date for the election of officers of the junior class was set for Thursday, November 19.

The new council head is prominent in campus activities and is a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity. Other officers elected at the meeting Wednesday were John McKenney, Alpha Tau Omega, vice-president, and Robert Grace, an independent, secretary-treasurer. A committee to handle plans for the junior election was appointed by the newly-elected president. It is composed of Ike Moore, chairman, Paul Ross and Dan Scott. Petitions of applicants for the various offices must be in the hands of Dean Jones by noon Friday, November 13, the committee announced.

Pending the next meeting of the council, no plans have been made as to when and how the sophomore and freshman class balloting will be handled. A committee was appointed to draw up plans and confer with President McVey over the matter as it constitutes a new departure from University class election custom.

Prof. E. F. Farquhar To Be Speaker At Popularity Clinic

For the second of a series of four meetings of the "Popularity Clinic," sponsored by the Association of Women Students, Prof. E. F. Farquhar of the University English department will speak to women students on "Pleasing Personality and How To Develop It." The meeting will be held at 7:30 o'clock Monday night, Nov. 9, in the recreation room of Patterson Hall. The "Popularity Clinic" is intended to aid women students in becoming more attractive and charming, will have as the topics for the two succeeding meetings "Style and the Hair" and "The Proper Use of Make-up" and "Clothing Styles." At the former meeting, held on Nov. 6, a well-known local hair stylist and a representative from a national cosmetic company have been secured as the principal speakers.

ODK Dance Off

Due to the fact that a contract with Ben Pollack and his orchestra was broken by booking agents and that no other nationally known band is available, members of Omicron Delta Kappa have decided to postpone their dance originally scheduled for Nov. 14, until they are able to obtain a well-known outfit.

Block and Bridle Will Give Dance

Block and Bridle, honorary fraternity in Agriculture, will sponsor a dance from 8 till 10:30 o'clock on Friday night, in the stock judging pavilion. Music will be furnished by Garth House and his orchestra and orchestra. Twenty-five cents per couple. All students of the College of Agriculture are invited.

Forum Tickets on Sale

Tickets for the Lexington public forum are now on sale and can be obtained from Dean Sarah Branding. The price is $1 per ticket. The forums are to be held in the Henry Clay high school auditorium and the speakers will be Nov. 16, Emil Ludwig; Jan. 11, Upton Close; Feb. 19, William LaVare; March 12, Gen. Snoddy Butler and Private Peat in debate.

Kentuckian Sets Picture Deadline

Saturday, Nov. 7, is absolutely the last day on which the Kentuckian pictures can be taken at the Lafayette studio on the corner of Mill and Main streets, according to a statement made by Ernie Shovea, business manager of the yearbook.

Y.M. Discussion Group to Open

Organization of the annual Y. M. C. A. discussion group series, conducted each fall in all fraternity houses, men's residence halls and boarding houses, will be completed this week and some groups are already under way. Bart Peak, secretary of the YMCA, announced yesterday.

This is the 16th year that these groups have been held, and last year more than 400 University men participated in the discussions. The University this year leads all other schools in the country in the number of this phase of activity. The groups continue weekly for six weeks, closing on December 12. The groups are regularly formed groups, anyone wishing to join or form a discussion unit is requested to see Mr. Peak at the YMCA offices.

Topics of the discussions, as announced are: first week, "The Place of Pleasure in Life"; second week, "Social Standards and Ideals"; third week, "What is Success?"; fourth week, "The American Dream"; fifth week, "Crises in Life"; and sixth, "Does the Following of Jesus Make a Difference?"

Dr. Esther Brunauer To Address Cabinet

Dr. Esther Caikin Brunauer, International Relations secretary for the American Association of University Women, will speak to the Y. W. C. A. senior cabinet at 4 p. m. today in the Woman's building. Her topic will be "The Cause and Cure of War."

Having just returned from Europe, Dr. Brunauer has been able to obtain first hand information concerning conditions which seem to make war inevitable. She is addressing various groups in connection with the University during her stay here, including the Kentucky Conference on the Cause and Cure of War, and the international relations class of the Association of University Women.

Material Needed

A request for cartoons, short sketches, jokes, and other material to be used in the November issue of Sour Mash, campus humor publication, has been made by Ross J. Chepelev, editor.

Expo Stock Prepared

The Agricultural Experiment Station is making a flock of sheep and a herd of steers for the International Live Stock Exposition which is to be held at Chicago, Nov. 12-15. The University of Kentucky has long been a winner of high prizes at this big show.

Sulzer Joins Mountain Ballads With Tin Pan Alley in Booklet

A booklet of Kentucky ballads, compiled by Elmer C. Sulzer, director of publicity and radio work at the University, entitled "Twenty-Five Kentucky Folk Ballads," has been published this week. It is a systematic, accurate, and well-edited catalog, containing accompaniments, the various versions of a song, and the names of the Kentucky county where the music was recorded.

For the past four years, Mr. Sulzer's work in connection with the University's Radio Listening Center system has carried him to the most popular music of eastern Kentucky, where he has garnered hundreds of transcriptions of folk songs, and the names of the Kentucky county where the music was recorded.

YM, YW Cabinets To Hear Address By Missionaries

Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Baldwin Will Speak At Meeting Tuesday, Nov. 10

Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt C. Baldwin will speak at a joint open meeting of the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. cabinets at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday, Nov. 10, in Patterson hall, and to various groups on the campus during their stay here. The Baldwins were missionaries to Burma for ten years, and for the past three years have been speaking at college campuses in the northern and western states of America.

Personal interviews with them will be arranged through the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. offices, for Tuesday, Nov. 10, at 10 o'clock. The play, "Ba Thane," which has been produced by numerous groups of colleges and churches, will address members of the World Fellowship group of the Y. W. C. A. at 2 p. m. Tuesday, in the Woman's building, and members of the same group at 4 p. m. in the same building.

HERE SHALL THE KERNEL ALL STUDENT RIGHTS MAINTAIN

CONGRATULATIONS, MR. PRESIDENT!

Election day is over, and The Kernel takes this opportunity to express its congratulations to Franklin Delano Roosevelt, thirty-first president of the United States.

The large number of voters who went to the polls Tuesday indicates the vigorous interest that was taken in the election and the issues contained therein. The landslide in favor of Mr. Roosevelt shows apparent satisfaction with the policies followed in the administration of the New Deal. Such an overwhelming vote was entirely unpredictable in the face of the many vital questions involved.

There is no doubt that millions throughout the country were exuberant over the final results of poll tabulations. However, many others may not have quite the same reaction, since their votes went to Governor Landon or to one of the so-called third-party candidates. Nevertheless, Mr. Roosevelt is our president for the ensuing four years; he has worked for the good of the United States; he has endeavored to the best of his ability to place funds where they will be of the greatest value; he will continue to do so. He is able and conscientious.

We are the people of the United States. We must make it a "united" nation, not only in theory, but in reality. The only way to do this is to fall in behind the policies of the president, regardless of personal opinion, and support him in the same spirit which he has shown us in the past four years. Someone has to lose; someone must be dissatisfied, but the next play for those who voted the opposing ticket is to join the Roosevelt forces. Unity is the single means of success. It is to be remembered that well-worn, but nevertheless wise and pertinent maxim, "A house divided against itself shall not stand," is extremely applicable just at this time.

The following is a quotation from a publication of the Literary Guild, The New Dealer: "The President's relationship to the New Deal is not generally understood. He is its master of ceremonies, not the manager of the theater; its chief trouper, not the owner of the casino. He calls the numbers, guides the play and apportions the winnings and losses. He is not responsible for the run of the luck or for the rules of the game. He is the agent rather than the director of events, the executor rather than the author of destiny."

A point well-taken today is the statement made recently by a well-known publisher: The United States is more important than any man in it.

And so The Kernel says, "Congratulations, Mr. President, we're with you!"

WORK AS A PHILOSOPHY

The other day we read in a leading magazine a letter to the editor from a disillusioned college graduate. He wrote, "My faith in God, my work and my way of life is undermined. I cannot see why people hurry and busy themselves with living. To what end, to what financial goal are they striving?"

This cry of youth is disheartening. We had thought that after receiving a college education one should be firm in his beliefs, educated to enjoy living in this great period of freedom and miracles. Yet this bright youth, whose intelligence was evident in the letter, was the antithesis of everything a college alumnus should be.

Whose fault is it? Is it a natural outcome of this machine age that youth should cry out so bitterly against the primary essentials of a good and happy life? But youth has complained in the stone age, the bronze age and every age since time began. There is no golden age, nor will there ever be one, despite the foolish hope and fanciful imaginings of poets. Is our system of education at fault?

An ultimate conclusion is reached that the fault lies with youth itself. Youth lacks a philosophy to steady and strengthen its new born beliefs. Platiudes have been worn threadbare. Carlyle, Plato, and other philosophers, whose knowledge has put a backbone into a spineless world, have been quoted to death. Youth is tired of such preaching and it has not helped.

The solution lies in work—work that embodies one's creative desires and ideals, work that keeps the mind and body in ceaseless activity. Every one of us is entitled to work. Most of us have creative desires lying dormant within us ready to spring to the surface at the magic word "work." Certainly a college graduate would have such capacities. Only by work and intense concentration can the mind shake off morbid discontent and a person become happy and successful. Work that absorbs the energies of the mind will leave no time for thoughts that poison the soul. Such a philosophy binds the loose, tangled ends of a man's life neatly together and sifts out the impurities and discontentment that breed unhappiness in the heart.

This youth should not try to put before him a tailor-made philosophy, a pattern of beliefs. He should work. He must work! Then some quiet day in the future he will sit down to think and the way will be clear before him.

This Campus and That World

By RALPH E. JOHNSON

Wasn't this an interesting election? Or perhaps you knew it all the time? Yeah. You and Parley knew weeks ago that the Democrats would carry 46 states and Vermont and Maine would alone support the cause of the Grand Old Party. But this election wasn't interesting just because Roosevelt won by such a huge total, but because this election disproved so many of the usual adages.

"As Maine goes, so goes the Nation!" That slogan took an awful wallop on the jaw, perhaps even a death blow. Maine, however, was a state divided against itself for there were those who wanted the Quoddy project completed for it meant huge stores of electricity would be released to them. But others objected to the reciprocal trade agreements with Canada. The potato growers of Aroostook certainly didn't favor Roosevelt, but the city population did, but there is only one real city in the state of Maine. Maine could have gone one way or the other, and with the bonus men behind Roosevelt it is a wonder it too didn't string along.

"The Literary Digest Poll," which for three elections prior to 1936, predicted accurately the outcome of the elections, was so completely wrong for the first time that it is probable that the weekly news digest will never be able to use it as an advertising stunt again. The editor of the magazine was good natured about the whole thing, but you can bet your boots that the entire organization is in a chaotic state over the outcome. It was not just wrong, but people will never have confidence in it again. Just another belief shot.

Many other faiths have been broken. Those countless hundreds in the North and East who have looked forward to the day when Landon would take over the reins have lost faith. I am sure they are a panic-stricken group. I recall the anxiety of many of them before I left the East this fall. They are a group of people with incomes depending on the fluctuations of the stock markets.

I don't believe that Democrats have ever been panic-stricken over the election of a Republican into the White House, perhaps because they became so used to it, but for the same reason the Republicans can't imagine a Democrat doing the job right. Most of these persons, now quaking in their boots, are elderly. This drastic change in things bewilders them. What will happen to us all, now that this "wild man" has his second chance it looks like a case of when an irresistible force meets an immovable object. We may witness fireworks, yet.

It has been the custom of scrawling of this column from past times to bestow all kinds of honors upon the various femmes that have haunted the sorority houses and corridors of our grand old institution, but today we are going to deviate a slight bit. To Neville Tatum, congenial Communist soda jerk, we present the campus hand-shake. His ability to cultivate friends over the fountain is indeed worthy of mention, when we consider the service he gives at the same time.

Did you know that Kentucky's is the only pennant from a southern school, to grace a staff on the horsehoe stadium at Ohio State? Flies between those of Notre Dame and Pittsburgh.

Busiest People On Campus Are Phone Operators

By THELMA TAURMAN

All of us at some time have "raged" we at the advantages of the centipede with its numerous arms. The person who has wished this most consistently must be our University telephone operator. To see her plug in and out so rapidly, you would almost think she did have more than two arms. But on close inspection, you will see that she is just like the rest of us.

She is not only a capable operator, connecting outside lines to every building and professor on the campus and vice versa, but she is also a human encyclopedia. The short time that I was there, she was asked the date of the homecoming game, the time (every other minute), whether it would rain, and the score of the Yankee-Giant baseball game. This kind of information she gives gladly. However, when she is asked the name of the "prof" that lives on Rose street in the white house, or what to do about a snake in the basement, or when to plant grass seed she is "stumped." If possible she connects the questionnaire to the proper authority.

Her pet "trick" is for people to click the receiver in her ear or ask to speak to Bill Jones.

When asked if she ever fulfills calls to awaken people at a certain hour, she said that people didn't ask that of her, but she would be glad to do it.

There are 148 stations connected with the board. Most stations have one or more extension phones, totaling between 225 and 130 phones. In the Administration building alone, are 18 stations and 28 phones. In each of these office buildings with phones, are from 8 to 10 persons whose names must be remembered.

A check is being made at present of dormitory calls outside, dormitory calling university, outside calling dormitory, and university calling dormitory. Each call is tabulated. Then too, this solitary operator takes care of long distance phone calls. If at sometime you think you are too busy, think of the University telephone operator and consider yourself lucky.

Football players never lead a communist parade declared Fred Walker, coach of Wheaton college, recently.

Quigley for she has that look in her eye that spells domination over the one she happens to choose. If she wasn't from New Orleans we would say that she was one of those true western gals "who always gets her man."

We have two new members in our exclusive pinning circle this week. Tommy Marshall, erstwhile bandman, has persuaded Kappa Joste Tunis that she has been free quite long enough. Congrats to you both.

Dorothy Uppike seems to be the official sweatshirt of the Kappa Sigis. She was seen in the dining hall wearing a large safety pin as a symbol of their love.

General open house was held Saturday for the alumnae and friends.

The following alumnae and friends were guests at the house for the week-end: Margaret Allen Smoot, Nancy Costello, Lillian Rash, Josephine Sims, and Mrs. Stewart Swetnam, Covington; Virginia Murrell and Virginia Settle, Somerset; Margaret Bosler, Mrs. W. J. Adams, and Ann Rozan, Louisville.

Dinner guests Sunday were Ruth Bryant, Helen Frye, and Jack Bray. Jessie Wilson left Sunday for a two week's trip in Florida.

Announce Winners In Model Contest
Betty Bewlay, Chi Omega, won first prize of a $5 pair of Connie shoes in the Mitchell, Baker, Smith company's model contest this week.

Her measurements were: height, 5 feet and 4 inches; weight, 120 pounds; waist, 28 inches, and foot, 8A.

Second prize, a beautiful handbag, was won by Doris Cornelia Sickler, Delta Zeta.

The third prize, a pair of chiffon shoes, went to Dorothy Opdyke, residing at Patterson hall, and a member of Kappa Delta.

The model for this week is Joan Bennett, who will appear at the Kentucky theatre with Gary Grant in "Wedding Present." Her measurements were: height 5 feet 4 inches, weight 118 pounds, waist 28 inches, and foot 4 1/2 B.

All girls who have registered to fill out their measurement cards can still do so as this contest will be run periodically. Cards can be secured at the Mitchell, Baker, Smith Shoe department, or from Alfred Vogel.

UNIVERSITY SCOUTS MEET
An organization meeting of Alpha Pi Omega, national fraternity for Eagle Scouts in college, met last Thursday, October 23, at the University Y. M. C. A. headquarters under the direction of Donald Riester and Howard Watters. The aims of the organization were presented at the meeting and the logo of the group, service to the Scout troops of Lexington, was emphasized.

Researches conducted at the University of California have revealed that watermelon seeds are valuable in the treatment of high blood pressure.

W.A.A. News

By ELEANOR SNEDEKER
Flash...no hockey until the weather clears up so we can play outdoors. Imagine playing hockey now; we could use snow for the balls. There are still no more indoor practice so don't report unless the weather is clear and we can play. Hockey will be extended a week or two so you need not worry about getting your points in...Mentioning the weather, riding will be held whenever the weather permits...going back to hockey a minute, I just heard that in about a week, again if the weather is good, we will have two W. A. A. games and one game with a special hockey class. This class has been preparing hard and claims they will take our scraps...but I doubt it...Still on the subject of weather, how it sure can sow things up, the archery tournament has not been completed as yet but as soon as you can, get out there and shoot the rest of your arrows...our membership campaign is still on so hurry up over to the gym and sign up...you sorority pledges that have to have three activities, there's one for you and we do have lots of fun so come over and kill two birds with one stone...oh, I almost forgot, Dotty Wuerlich has me...please tell all you little girls who indulged in tennis this fall to please enter the name of your opponent, the date, and if possible the court you played on. Doty can be found in Patterson hall, once again, and please turn them in, oh yes, in case you don't know how to figure your points, two points are given for every hour you played, no matter with whom or when you played as long as it was this fall and on the U. K. courts. Well, here's hoping the weather will clear up so we can continue with hockey.

Midnight Snacks Are Common Urge
By BOB RANKIN
Hungry? If you're not now, you know you can be, especially on those autumn evenings just before you go to bed. The stomach's contractions of the stomach "chicken in-the-ice box" complex. No matter how sophisticated you are, or how little you become homesick, nothing replaces that old homey custom of asking Mom if there isn't something "left over" in the ice box.

Have you had that midnight urge to go down to the kitchen and fry a couple of eggs or eat a cold roast beef sandwich or even go so far as to make a plate of griddle cakes or waffles? If you haven't you need to be psychoanalyzed.

A college senior can even be "homesick" in this respect, because no matter how old or how grown up we become, we still like to root around in the pantry or refrigerator for a midnight snack. No boarding house, fraternity or dormitory offers such service, but you can with a little resourcefulness and ingenuity make use of a few gadgets to make yourself a late bit to eat.

Keep a few cans of fruit, a bottle of milk, bacon and an egg or two tucked away in the corner of your window sill. If you feel the need for a hurried egg sandwich or omelette, just turn over your electric iron and let it get good and hot; then carefully break an egg on it, you will find that it is one of the best ways you can possibly cook an egg.

Griddle cakes, ham, bacon, and even hamburgers can be cooked in this simple fashion. A cheap coffee pot can make excellent coffee on your gas stove or better yet, purchase one of those cheap grills sold downtown and hook it up to your desk lamp. Your window sill

Attendant Tells Of Experiences In Pat Hall Office
By ELEANOR SNEDEKER
Br-r-r-ring! "Patterson Hall, Miss Smith? Just a minute. Sorry, Miss Smith is not in, will you leave a message?" Have her call 334, alright, thank you.

"Did you want to see some one? No, you just thought that you would like to hang over the window and talk to me. Well, thank you, but I am awfully busy, I think you better find some one else to talk to."

Br-r-r-ring! "Patterson hall, Miss Moore? Just a minute. Here she is."

Saturday night in Patterson Hall office and it is hectic! Someone has asked what does a Patt hall office girl do? Well, plenty. We have two phones to take care of the window where the boys ask for their dates, and the window where the girls ask for the mail. But this wouldn't be so bad if it wasn't for the hundred and one questions one has to answer.

Invariably both phones ring, the doorbell, eyes, some people ring the doorbell rings, and a date appears at the same time. It keeps one running back and forth but then that helps to keep that girlish figure.

There is the boy who comes in with "Please, get me a cute date tonight, a blonde, not very tall, blue eyes, oh someone real cute." Sometimes I wonder if the boys think we run a dating bureau and sometimes I think it might not be a bad idea. Then there is the boy who comes in for his date and is very impatient. He paces back and forth, back and forth and asks me to ring for her several times, commenting on the fact that girls are so slow.

There is the shy freshman who comes in and wanders around in the hall before he gets the nerve to come to the desk and shyly asks if he might see Miss Wright, that is if it isn't too much trouble.

Then there is the man, woman or couple who come in. They ask what room a certain person is in. Very politely I explain that she is not on our list. They insist that she is here. I again tell them they must be mistaken, but no, they insist that she is here; they know she is, because she was operated on last night. Well by that time it dawns on me that they want the Good Samaritan hospital and not the girls' dormitory. How they ever could think this is the hospital is beyond me. The radio is usually going full blast, the boys are standing around, girls running up and down the hall, phones ringing and loud talking can be heard in the halls, oh, it surely doesn't look or sound like a hospital.

About 9:45 two or three boys will come in, "Say do you have any cute little girls left?" They always think it rather funny when I tell them it is rather late to be coming in for someone and really not very complimentary to the girls. For some reason they expect to find the girls in and anxiously waiting for their arrival. Yes, it is rather fun and amusing to be a Patt hall office girl.

Wildcats To Meet Manhattan Eleven

The Cats have been strengthened considerably by the return of Wendell Skaggs, veteran tackle, who has been out of the lineup with an injured back ever since the Georgia Tech game and the squad is in peak condition with the exception of Myers, who received an injured nose in the Alabama game but Gene is expected to be in the starting lineup, despite his ailment. The Wildcats have been handicapped in their drills this week due to the rain and snow. The coaches have spent most of the practice time trying to teach the Cats those two fundamentals of football, blocking and tackling. It was the superior blocking of the Alabama eleven that caused the downfall of the Kentuckians last week.

In Manhattan College, the Wildcats will meet a foe that is not to be taken lightly. While not among the leaders in the East, the Jaspers have a powerful and rugged eleven. So far this season, Coach "Chick" Meahan's lads have won four games while losing two. Manhattan has defeated St. Bonaventure, 32-7, Niagara, 33-7, North Carolina State, 13-6 and C. C. N. Y., 28-7. The Jaspers have been the victims of two powerful elites Holy Cross, 7-13, and Detroit, 9-20.

According to reports from New York, the Jasper line will outweigh the Wildcats' forward wall considerably. Two linemen who weigh more than 225 pounds are included in Manhattan's starting lineup. The Wildcats are expected to open up their attack and attempt to pass the heavier Manhattan eleven off its feet with Johnson and Coleman ready to do most of the tossing for the Kentucky boys.

Engineer Honorary Pledges Eight Men

man statistics, stated that in 1932 ten per cent of the German population, including 6,800,000 men and women, were unemployed and hungry. To these people Hitler offered "work and bread," which explains their support of the dictator, added Doctor Bigge.

He then compared the birth rate of 1900 with that of 1932, revealing a decrease of over 50 per cent. As the general birth rate decreased, however, the birth rate of cripples and mentally incapacitated increased, necessitating extensive institutional provisions, the speaker pointed out.

Doctor Bigge described some of the measures which are being taken by the German government. These measures include the Work Service, which compares in theory to the C. C. C. of this country and occupies 700,000 men and women; sterilization of 400,000 compulsory military service for approximately 500,000 men; provisions for vacations with pay for all employees; system of collecting boys as "Scouts" between ages of 14 and 18, followed by six months compulsory military training and 24 months military service, followed by entrance into military organization until 55 years old.

"You will see from what I have said that Germany is thoroughly organized, which means simply that as a result of this system all professions are closed to you, all government doors are locked to you," said the speaker.

"In short, Germany in my opinion is just a vast machine. It is moving on and on, but we cannot say where it is going. And it is going on in spite of thinking Germans and not because of them. I thank God that we in this country do not have to submit to the regimentation that holds 600,000 Germans in the grip of tyranny," Doctor Bigge concluded.

RYLAND SPEAKS AT CHURCH GATHERING

SEEING SPORT STUFF
By JOE QUINN
KERNEL SPORTS EDITOR

Any of you who were uncertain as to what month this is can now rest assured that it's November. Coach Chet Wynne knows it and so does the football squad. After being favored by fine weather all fall the Wildcats really ran into a spell of misfortune this week.

Monday afternoon the squad was sent through a light workout. Tuesday afternoon found the field thoroughly rain-soaked and again only a short workout was held. And Wednesday afternoon, Coach Wynne was forced to keep the boys inside for the most part because of the blanket of slush and snow on the field. After staging dummy scrimmages, with the freshmen executing Manhattan formations, the varsity worked in the snow for a few minutes.

The last home practice of the week was held early yesterday afternoon just before the Wildcats embarked at Union Station for Gotham. Thus a whole week was spent at practice without a scrimmage.

JASPER HAVE DROPPED TWO DECISIONS

In meeting Chick Meehan's Men of Manhattan, the 'Cats will be stacking up against a good opponent. True, the Meehanites have lost a couple of games this year, but so has Kentucky and we still regard the 'Cats as a tough club, capable of giving most any foe a real battle.

The Jaspers, as the Manhattanites are fondly called, dropped a decision to Holy Cross, up at Boston, on a muddy gridiron. The Crusaders finally sloshed their way to a 13 to 7 victory.

Gus Dorais and his University of Detroit club descended on New York and handed the Jaspers their most decisive defeat of the season two weeks ago when they passed the Manhattanites to death, to win 20 to 0.

PASSES Baffle New York Club

In games to date, with the exception of the Holy Cross melee, the Gotham team has been baffled by aerial attacks. It appears that a good passing combination suits the New Yorkers' defense and given any opportunity Kentucky should be able to capitalize on its pitching and catching department.

Bert Johnson and Tommy Coleman have both given some fancy exhibitions on the throwing end but Bob Davis seems to be the only consistent receiver. Of the ends, Lawrence Garland is probably the best catcher, at least on the records.

However, it is quite possible that conditions will be distinctly unfavorable for an aerial game. A soggy field, producing a wet, slippery ball to handle, would ruin the chance for use of the overhead attack.

WILDCATS HAVE BACKFIELD EDGE

In comparing running attacks, the Wildcats are probably superior to Manhattan, with such an array as Bert Johnson, Bob and Dameron Davis, Tommy Coleman and others to depend upon.

In Vic Fusia the Jaspers have one of the outstanding ball-carriers of the Metropolitan district and Dick Tuckey, a 200-pound fullback, has earned himself a fine reputation as a line-smasher. The New Yorker line has been highly praised by scouts and others who have seen it in action. It stopped the running offensive of Detroit and held its own with Holy Cross even in defeat.

A whole lot, then, will depend on playing conditions. If the 'Cats can trot out onto a dry field against Manhattan, they stand an excellent chance of trotting off again, victors in their metropolitan debut. In the mud, anything can happen. And probably will.

After taking a rest cure for a week, after our first somewhat unfortunate venture this season, into the realm of wholesale prognosticating, we're back for another whirl on the Saturday grid merry-go-round. We called 9 winners, and had four losers and two ties out of fifteen times at bat in our venture two weeks ago. Maybe you can convince your friends of your ability by merely picking them the other way—after we jot them down. Let's just take the tough ones, and here goes.

Alabama-Tulane—Which is the really tough one to start off on. After watching the Tide rolling along out here last week, they'll have to get the nod over Tulane.

Colgate-Holy Cross—Last year the Crusaders beat Colgate by a field goal. This year they'll win by more.

Fordham-Purdue—You know all about Fordham's mighty line. It should be able to tie up Cecil Isbell and the Boiler-makers.

Michigan-Pennsylvania—The only reason we choose Penn is because the battle is in Philly.

Michigan State-Temple—The Spartans were a leading contender until they met Marquette. Temple is coming along and should add another black mark to the State record.

Stanford-Washington—A lot of people are looking for Stanford to upset the Huskies, but not this reporter.

Texas-Texas Christian—In a section where an aerial game is emphasized greatly, the Christians, with Sammy Baugh "slingsin", are outstanding. We'll pick Sammy and the Christians.

Indiana-Syracuse—This is the first halfway breather we've had and Indiana looks pretty good.

Florida-Georgia—That Florida team is improving every week and they didn't look so bad here. We'll tame 'em.

KENTUCKY-MANHATTAN. We've been picking so many wrong ones lately that we really should say Manhattan and figure that would be certain to bring the Wildcats home the winner. However, we think the 'Cats have an excellent chance of winning this one.

Ten games will give us plenty of opportunity for error and in case they're all wrong, the number won't sound so large.

Where Wildcats Stood Four Years Ago

By BOB RANKIN
Just four years ago at the time of the presidential election Kentucky's football team had about the reputation that it has today, easily to a greater extent, through the scheduling of more inter-sectional games. Four years ago many now forgotten facts were of local interest.

Kentucky in 1932 had beaten V. M. I., Sewanee, Georgia Tech, Washington and Lee, and lost to V. P. I. This year they have beaten Maryville, St. Xavier, V. M. I. and Washington and Lee, and lost to both Georgia Tech and Alabama. In 1932 Kentucky had a much easier schedule as the big teams that year were having bad seasons, while this year nearly every team we meet is of unusual caliber.

Ralph Kercheval and "Pug" Bach were the Wildcats' backfield ace with Joe Rupert staring in the line at end. Kercheval and Bach were second and third highest scorers in the state. Today we have three scoring aces that figure not only in state scoring but in national honors as well.
Auburn was leading the Southern conference in '32 with five straight victories—incidentally they were being coached by Chet Wynne. Pitt and Southern California were the national favorites and later they clashed in the Rose Bowl classic, with S. Cal whipping Pitt 35-0 for their fourth Rose Bowl victory.
When the 1932 season ended, Joe Rupert and Kercheval were given honor mention on the "All American" team. While this year we might possibly get one place on the first all-American eleven as well as acquiring quite a few honorable mention positions.

Last week in the Yale-Navy game, Larry Kelly of Yale rushed a blocked punt and in his excitement kicked the ball 25 yards down the field where he recovered it. Yale then carried the ball over the goal line, consequently winning the game. If the referee had ruled the ball dead, as he should have, according to the other officials and coaches' conception of the rule, the Navy would have easily won the game, as they completely outplayed the Ells.

YOUR KERNEL COMES TO YOU ONLY AFTER PLENTY OF WORK

By BILLY HOPEWELL

When you open your post office box every Tuesday and Friday morning for your Kernel, do you stop to think how it got there and when it was printed in order that you might have it to read during your first hour class?

The majority of the university students do not have even the slightest idea about the amount of work required on each issue of the paper in either the editorial, business, or mechanical departments.

The editor-in-chief and the managing editor are the most important personalities in the editorial department. Under their work the different departmental editors and reporters. Each editor covers his particular division in order to get the news and turn the copy over to the mechanical department in time for the paper which must be ready at a specified time.

Besides the reading matter, a paper must also carry sufficient advertising to finance the enterprise. Advertising salesmen solicit the advertising copy and provide it to the O. K., after they have been set by the mechanical department.

In the press room of the Kernel, there are three linotypes where type from 5 1/2 to 30 point is set while a larger type face must be set by hand. The reading matter of the Kernel is set in the editorial department. It is taken by the linotype operators who set it and then it is put in trays known as galley. It is in the galley that an editorial staff member who returns it to the linotype operators to be corrected.

Galley of type, which contains about 180 lines in 8 point, there is usually from 4 to 10 lines reset because of errors.

After the ads have been set and the proofs are back on them, they are put in a steel frame which is known as a chase. Then the columns rules are cut and fitted in between each individual column.

The linotype operators do not set the heads to the articles at the same time they set the straight matter, but put what is called a guide line on them to tag the story. Later, after the articles are finished, the heads are set and placed at the beginning of the various stories. If the head to the article reads "Kentuckian Pictures Are Being Taken," the guide line will be "Kentuckian Pictures." This makes it simple for the man to run the heads in over the correct articles without getting them mixed up because he has various articles and heads which correspond to the guide lines.

When the heads have been run in over the stories and the type corrected, the next step is to place the type in the chase around the advertisements. The managing editor makes out a dummy lay out of the front page and places the stories in the particular columns he wants them in and then the make-up man places the type in the same corresponding column.

One of the things an outsider wonders about, is how each story fits in its particular place. Many times it does fit and many times it does not fit and must be spaced out and made to fit. First the main stories are run in at the top of the columns and then the less important and shorter ones are fitted where ever they will go. Sometimes they lack an inch or more of filling the column and in that case there must be thin spaces put between several lines to take up the rest of the space. The proper place to put these spaces is in the lead which is then known as a leaded lead and is easier to read because the lines are just a little further apart.

Each column must be tight and fit perfectly before it is ready to be put on the press and printed. The type is locked in the chases by wedge-shaped locks called quoins and then put on the press and a proof taken. This proof is read by a member of the editorial staff and checked carefully for errors.

It requires a full day's work for five men in the mechanical department to get the type set up for the Kernel. At approximately 9 o'clock each Monday and Thursday evening the last two pages are ready to print. These are the front and back pages and the second and third pages are printed in the late afternoon. It takes the pressman approximately two hours to print each side. Corrections must be made and cuts built up to print perfectly before the press is ready to turn.

The last press run is finished about mid-night each Monday and Thursday and between 3 and 6 o'clock each Tuesday and Friday mornings the Kernels are folded on a folder. They are folded by 7:30 a. m. and the post office clerk picks them up around 7 a. m. and they are in the different boxes by approximately 7:30 a. m.

There are nine persons working in the mechanical department on the Kernel each issue. Seven of these are university students. The editorial and business staff is composed of approximately 35 persons and all of these are students. The entire work done in the press room is by student labor with the exception of three men, the foreman, pressman, and a combination floor and machine man.

The next time you reach your post office box for the Kernel, think of the amount of work spent in the effort to give you something to read before you toss it toward the waste basket.

The University of Arkansas has set some kind of football record as they have thrown a grand total of 105 passes in their first three games.

Headline Ideas Are Difficult For Us, Joanna

By JOANNA SAYLOR

It's no snap to germinate an idea for a feature article. You may go to class satisfied that your plan when developed will crash the Kernel, but by the time the prof has dissected it, you have an embarrassing feeling that your little brain-child has run smack into a volcano. You are advised to stroll across the campus and to observe everything closely in an effort to stimulate thinking.

Kelly the Kop informs you kindly that ambitious young feature writers have written so much about the botanical gardens that there is nothing left to write. None of his preferred ideas appeal to you, so you walk on discouraged. You encounter a lot of interesting-looking trees, but then who care whether they are maple or sycamore, or whether they are ten years old or a hundred? And if you write about the squirrels-everybody will think you are nutty.

Eventually you head toward town with the positive knowledge that everything on the campus has already been featured. After a good movie and a coke, you take a long, absorbing tour of the town, and return at the end of the afternoon with a few scattered plans, including the courthouse clock, money-spending ideas of students, etc. Your pride is a little lowered when your roommate shrieks annoyingly: "Well, what the heck? When are you going to start developing ideas?"

Ahhhhhh-There it is! Fate itself has thrown a perfect plan into your medulla oblongata: "The Germination of Ideas."

Today you might hear, "He's a greasy grind who bones instead of dirty-noising" or "There's the bag we took over the coals at the bull session."

It is only logical that the alert mind wish to use some original expression different from the standardized way that has been used year in and year out. The same thing is true of slang. When the majority of people have heard and used a slang expression, it becomes stale. If a new expression is discovered to replace the worn out phrase, people immediately accept and use it. Even though "Oh yeah!" filled a definite gap in the English language, it has become stale. As soon as an equivalent is discovered, "Oh yeah!" will be forgotten for something else.

Youth is most apt to be the first to adopt new expressions. College naturally becomes a breeding place for slang.

There is more leniency nowadays for use of slang in letters and speeches. Even though the college student years ago used slang on the campus, when he wrote a letter, it was flowery and rigid to rule.

If there were more slang now than then, it would mean that our language is not adequate as it is. Since we learn from able authorities that there is little difference, everything is "hunky-dory."

PURE . . . and of finer texture than most anything that touches your lips . . .

We all agree on this . . . cigarette paper is important. For Chesterfield we use the best paper that we can buy. It is called Champagne Cigarette Paper. It is made from the soft, silky fibre of the flax plant. It is washed over and over in clear, sparkling water.

A lot of the pleasure you get in smoking Chesterfields is due to our using the right kind of cigarette paper. Chesterfield paper is pure, and it burns without taste or odor.

Chesterfield
They're Milder and They Satisfy

Remember this . . . two things make the smoking quality of a cigarette—the tobaccos and the paper. The Champagne cigarette paper on Chesterfields is tested over and over for purity, for the right burning quality. Another reason why Chesterfield wins.

Kentucky had their best football year, as far as victories are concerned, in 1908 when they won nine games with only one defeat.

Jay Berwanger, All-American back at Chicago last year, wanted $20,000 or nothing for playing professional football for two years—he got nothing.

The Yale football team has not had a real mascot since Handsome Dan, the Bulldog, died in 1933.

Probably the largest amount of money made by a professional football player in one game is the $18,000 by Red Grange in Philadelphia.

Louisiana State University, football champions in the Southeastern Conference last year, eat corn sugar to pep them up.

In 1924 Huges ran 101 yards for Kentucky against Alabama to score a touchdown. He misinterpreted a pass to score the marker.

Northwestern, by defeating Minnesota 6-0, scooped the longest winning streak in college football at 21 straight victories and became the first team to beat the Gophers since Michigan won 6-0 in 1932.

Michigan from 1901-05 won 55 games and lost 1 under the coaching of Fielding H. Yost. They scored 2821 points in these seasons to their opponents' 40.

Harold "Red" Grange garnered 3,337 yards in three years of play at Illinois for an average gain of 9 yards per minute.

John Lesch, by scoring 26 touchdowns in 1920 for Virginia Military Institute, holds the record for touchdowns made in one season.

Albany College holds the record for successive losses—26 games.

Hobart and Knox previous held the record at 27.

Sam York, Centenary College, kicked 172 successive field goals in November 1935.

Willie Heston, playing for Michigan from 1901-05 scored over 110 touchdowns.
