

Corollary C

Corollary C

Traditional economies tend to be distinctly different from one region to another, yet state and federal political policy may not differentiate across regional boundaries (with regard to tobacco allotment policy, for example).

SS41