LSU shatters UK's Final Four dreams 59-57

Tigers' magic stuns Wildcats in region final

By WILLIE HIATT
Sports Editor

ATLANTA — It may have nothing to do with magic, which is what LSU coach Dale Brown said has driven his team of late, but the fourth time was certainly a charm.

After losing to UK in three previous games this season, Louisiana State made every big play to break the Wildcats' spell and win 59-57 in the finals of the Southeast Region in Atlanta Saturday afternoon.

Magic or not, the Tigers' victory earned them a ticket to the Final Four in Dallas, where they will meet the Louisville Cardinals, winners in the West Region, next Saturday afternoon.

A UK victory would have set up Dream Game VI between the Cardinals and the Wildcats in a semi-final game.

"If you've ever played organized athletics," Brown said, "you know how hard it is to beat a team four times in a season, especially two games in a row with a team from your own league."

LSU's win halted a remarkable season by the Wildcats, who at 32-4 on the season seemed to be driven by magic of their own. UK captured the regular-season and tournament titles by somehow finding ways to win.

"After you lose when you think you have a shot at the national title, it's hard to express your feelings," UK coach Eddie Sutton said. "It's just a feeling of sadness."

Even when there were just three seconds left in UK's season, the Wildcats still hoped they could pull off a win, as they have done time after time this season.

With UK down 59-57, LSU's John Williams missed the front end of a bonus, which would have sealed the win.

Neither Kentucky coach Eddie Sutton nor assistant coach James Dickey could point to any one reason why the Wildcats' magic ran out Saturday in the 59-57 loss to LSU Saturday in the finals of the Southeast Region in Atlanta. UK ended its season of 32-4.

Williams, who finished the game with 16 points. The game was tied at 51 and finally at 53 when Blackmon hit his fourth 20-footer of the second half with 2:51 left.

"I told the guys if you can get the game to the last five minutes we can win the game," Brown said. "There was a gleam in their eyes. You could just feel it."

Three seconds left, you never stop believing.

From the opening tip to Blackmon's shot at the buzzer, the game was nothing short of an emotional roller coaster.

UK simply ran out of luck. "You don't stop believing," said UK guard Roger Harden, who had drawn fire this season for boasting that the Wildcats would win the NCAA Tournament. "Even with three seconds left, you never stop believing."

After sophomore guard Ed Davender hit a shot in the lane over Williams, the Wildcats went up 47-43 with 8:34 left. However, LSU tied the score with two quick buckets by

Loss takes on new meaning for Harden

ATLANTA — Roger Harden, like so many times before, wanted to take that final shot that could have propelled Kentucky into overtime against LSU Saturday.

He wanted either Kenny Walker or Winston Bennett, the two Wildcats under the basket on John Williams' free-throw shot, to throw him the outlet pass.

He wanted the player who ended up with the ball, James Blackmon, to swish that 45-foot desperation shot at the buzzer.

Most of all, Roger Harden wanted to go out a champion.

Instead, UK won't have the opportunity to win the national championship. It won't be going to Dallas with the other Final Four teams — Louisville, Kansas and Duke. It lost to LSU 59-57 in the finals of the NCAA Tournament's Southeast Region in the Omni.

"Every night before you go to bed, you dream of being the national champions," said Harden, his voice quivering just minutes after the upset. "That's what everybody dreams about when you're a little kid."

"Everything has a purpose in life, and this just wasn't meant to be." But don't think for a single minute that this season is ruined.

Consider what Kentucky can brag about: posting a sparkling 32-4 record, cruising through the Southeastern Conference regular season schedule with only one loss in 18 games, winning the SEC postseason tournament and being one of the final eight teams in the NCAA tourney.

"After you lose when you think you're going all the way, it's hard to

Meszaros works with committee

Home Ec dean advises on food

By DAVID NAVLOR
Staff Writer

The dean of the College of Home Economics will help shape the future of the nation's food and agriculture education with membership in a U.S. Department of Agriculture committee.

Peggy S. Meszaros was recently appointed to a three-year term with the National Education Committee, which will advise education departments in home economics, forestry, veterinary medicine and agriculture.

"We'll be looking at issues and focusing on needs in those areas," she said.

"At this time, I'm not quite sure just exactly what specific issues we'll be tackling," Meszaros said. "We'll have to meet together before I find out complete information."

According to the committee's published guidelines, its main purpose is to "make recommendations to the joint council on matters pertaining to priorities and policies related to higher education in the food and agricultural areas."

The committee also will facilitate communication between government, state institutions and private firms and will serve as a national center for making curriculum recommendations.

Meszaros said the committee will meet two to three times per year in Washington, D.C. The first meeting will be in October.

Meszaros said she is pleased with the appointment because she will be representing her profession on a key committee and will have the opportunity to use her knowledge in an important, dynamic area.

Protesters rally against Pakistani leader

Anti-government, anti-U.S. slogans part of opposition party demonstrations

By BARRY RENFREW
Associated Press

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan — People by the tens of thousands shouted anti-government and anti-U.S. slogans yesterday and opposition leaders said that President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq's pro-American government was in its last days.

The Movement for the Restoration of Democracy, an alliance of 11 opposition parties, held one of its biggest rallies since martial law was lifted Dec. 30.

About 60,000 people marched through this city of about 1 million and listened to anti-government speeches. The opposition staged dozens of smaller demonstrations across the nation to commemorate Pakistan Day, celebrated as independence day here.

"Did we create Pakistan so the army could rule? Did we create Pakistan so the people could be whipped? Did we create Pakistan so the people could be oppressed," one speaker asked the huge crowd that waved the red, black and green opposition flags.

Speaker after speaker asserted that Zia's military government will fall soon for lack of support, and said this entire nation of 88 million people hungers for the return of democracy.

The United States was repeatedly criticized for supporting Zia, the army chief of staff who seized power in a bloodless coup in 1977.

"If we want democracy in the country we must rid Pakistan of American influence, we must struggle against the Americans," said Afzal Zabda, a leader of the Peasants and Workers Party.

"American imperialism should stop interfering in the internal affairs of Pakistan," he said.

The crowd chanted "Zia is a dog" and "Down with the Americans!" as speakers called for abolishing the government, the end of military influence in politics and immediate free elections.

Hundreds of riot police armed with rifles, bamboo clubs and shields were stationed around the city.

Zaheda charged that Zia's government wanted Pakistanis to fight the communist regime in neighboring Afghanistan to serve U.S. interests.

"In Afghanistan they have destroyed capitalism and oppression, so the generals want us to fight against Afghanistan. But we do not accept this," he said.

The Pakistani and American governments support and aid Islamic anti-Marxist guerrillas fighting the Afghan communist regime. The United States has become a close ally of Pakistan since Soviet military forces intervened in Afghanistan in 1979, and is now its main source of economic and military aid.

Zia ended martial law Dec. 30, but remains as president and army chief of staff. The government is run by his civilian appointee, Prime Minister Mohammad Khan Junejo.

Senate debate over contra aid begins tomorrow

By LAWRENCE L. KNUXTON
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The running congressional battle over aiding Nicaragua's Contra rebels shifts to the Republican-controlled Senate this week where leaders of both parties are searching for bipartisan accommodation.

But senators who contend President Reagan has been too quick to abandon diplomacy in his effort to curb Nicaragua's left-wing Sandinista regime say that so far he has offered only a badly flawed "fig-leaf compromise."

They predict that unless the administration commits itself to a serious effort to achieve a negotiated solution in Central America — before arming the Contra rebels — the Senate fight over the $100 million aid package will be as fierce as that in the House, where the Reagan plan was rejected 220-210.

The Senate will begin debating the issue tomorrow and is expected to vote by Thursday.

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., and Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, are preparing to insert into the legislation promises made verbally by Reagan last week that if the aid is approved he will give the Contras only "defensive" arms for the first 90 days while pushing negotiations.

Lugar said that the plan would allow extension of the 90-day period under some circumstances, and would include assurances that human rights abuses by the Contras would be curbed. And he said "there might even be economic aid to Nicaragua."

Six journalists to be inducted into Hall of Fame

By SEAN ANDERSON
Staff Writer

Five new plaques will soon hang in the Kentucky Journalism Hall of Fame honoring six noteworthy Kentucky journalists.

"These are outstanding journalists and we felt they belonged in the Hall of Fame," said Edmund Lambeth, director of the School of Journalism and a member of the selection committee.

The awards will be presented April 17 as part of the ninth annual Joe Cresson Lecture, named after the late Kentucky journalist and columnist for The Courier-Journal. The lecture will be in the Rectal Hall and also will include presentation of scholarships offered by the journalism school.

Eugene Patterson will be this year's guest lecturer. He is the Pulitzer Prize-winning chairman and chief executive officer of the St. Petersburg Times and president of the Congressional Quarterly.

This year's inductees include: David Whitaker, head of the journalism department at Western Kentucky University from its beginning in 1977 until 1984. He is currently a professor in the department. A former sports writer for The Courier-Journal, Whitaker is credited with establishing Western's journalism department and with guiding the student newspaper, the College Heights Herald, to three national and two regional Pacemaker Awards. He is a former president of the Kentucky Council for Education in Journalism.

O. Leonard Press, executive director of the Kentucky Authority for Educational Television since 1983. He was head of the Department of Radio, Television, Films and director of broadcasting services for UK from 1958-63. Press is a former chairman of the National Association of Educational Broadcasters and the Southern Educational Communications Association. He is now a board member of the Agency for Instructional Telecommunications.

Tom and Pat Gish, owners of The Mountain Eagle in Whitesburg, Ky. Pat Gish is a former reporter for The Lexington Leader and Tom Gish was the Frankfort bureau chief for United Press International. For his crusades against corruption in public officials and the strip-mining industry, the Gishes' paper has attracted international attention and received an award from UK and recognition from the National Press Club.

When the offices were destroyed by fire in 1974, the paper continued from the Gish home. Lambeth said they are the first husband and wife journalism team to be honored in the Hall of Fame.

Creed Black, chairman and publisher of the Lexington Herald-Leader since 1977. He began his journalism career as a reporter at age 17. Since then he has served in editorial positions on several papers, including managing editor and executive editor of the Chicago Daily News and vice president and editor of The Philadelphia Inquirer. Black was an assistant secretary of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare under President Richard Nixon. He also served as an adviser and speech writer to four Kentucky governors.

The Hall of Fame was established in 1981 by the UK Journalism Alumni Association. Honorees may be Kentucky natives or journalists who have spent a good portion of their careers in the state. Nominations are made by Kentucky journalists.

shared in the Pulitzer Prize won by that paper in 1967 for its successful fight for stronger strip-mining controls. He was awarded the Governor's Medallion for public service in conservation, the National Headliner Award, the Meeman Award and the Freedom Foundation Award. In 1985, Pearce was named Outstanding Kentucky Journalist by the Society of Professional Journalists-Delta Chi. He has published numerous magazine articles and short stories, a novel, a volume of history and several teleplays. He has also served as an adviser and speech writer to four Kentucky governors.

The Hall of Fame was established in 1981 by the UK Journalism Alumni Association. Honorees may be Kentucky natives or journalists who have spent a good portion of their careers in the state. Nominations are made by Kentucky journalists.

Preacherman Smock gets rock 'n' roll advice

Rolling Stone, eh, Jed? Impressive.

I must admit, I had you pegged for another one of those dyed-in-the-wool Southern Baptist eccentrics gone astray. But I had you all wrong. I mean, that six-page expose, color photos and all, about you and the little Mrs. in Rolling Stone (March 27, "College is Hell") ... that was something.

I can see where you're going with this thing now. Ten years as a humble campus evangelist, letting groups like Van Halen and Led Zepplin come and go, and then bang! — you come straight through the back door of rock 'n' roll and into the limelight. Very conceptual.

You, Jed Smock, are an innovator, a vanguard, a trendsetter. I can see it now, everybody from Bennington to Cal-Berkeley will be wearing those stretch-tight suspenders and pleated gray slacks. It will be a movement of Biblical proportions. You'll be a cult hero, Jed!

I must admit though, Jed, I have a few reservations about how this is all going to come off. I like your idea about only hitting warm climates, and I think you are probably right in spending most of your time on the West Coast. However, Jed, you can't afford to forget about the little people of the East.

I fully understand that it's hard to leave an $875-a-month suite in Long Beach, and I apologize that the UK student body wasn't inventive enough to follow the lead of the West Coast students who yelled out during one of your provocative messages, "Brother Jed gives good head" while proceeding to moon you. But still, give us time. After all, this is the Bible Belt.

Permit me, if you will, Jed, to make a few suggestions about just how to get this rock 'n' roll career off and running. After all, the advice of an insightful critic who understands society's everchanging mores could be invaluable to your cause.

First off, that name you and your disciples were penned with in Rolling Stone, Jed Smock and the Destroyers, simply will not do. Besides the fact that it is hardly original, it sounds just a bit too ambiguous. And I know, Jed, how you hate to infringe on the "gray" areas of the ministry. And with the way music is going now, it might do you to stick close to your roots, find something that captures the true essence of life down home in Indiana.

I suggest something to this effect: Midwest Jed and the Terre Haute Hacks. And if you're dead set about sticking with a West Coast theme, how about this: Chastity Belt (featuring Jed Smock).

This brings me to my next suggestion: an album. The way I see it, you need to start with an EP, just to get some lip service going. You probably need to keep the music folksy, preferably in the grass-roots genre. I mean, you don't want to sound too rock 'n' roll. After all, that would be contrary to what you preach, and I know how you hate to contradict yourself.

I figure the album should be kept to about five songs and preferably should include a couple of Dylan covers. (Both of you seem to have about the same consistency concerning your religious convictions.)

After the first record, make sure you have enough material to follow it up with a solid LP. Of course, the first one will have gotten critical acclaim because of its avant-garde stylistics. Because of this, you can cater your second one to a major record label. It will be too off-beat for Columbia to touch, but you might try Slash Records or I.R.S. These labels usually don't mind taking chances with cult acts.

The "fornication" dialogue in Rolling Stone seemed like it would make for pretty good lyrics so you might want to look into that. I'm sure your other parables could be turned into admirable ballads as well.

Granted, your literary devices are considerably more crude than those of Christ. I do recall the New Testament ever addressing "e-jaculation!" with the vigor that you do, but I'm sure your intentions are well meaning. Back them with some good guitar riffs and nobody will know the difference. You might also want to think about some poignant titles that apply to your cause. These seem like a good start to me: "Lost in the Translation" and "Rehashing the Original Sin." I'm sure you can come up with some just as appropriate.

From what I understand, you have already mastered the complexities of the tour. After all, you play more shows per year than the Grateful Dead and you even preached at the University of Kansas during the intermission of a punk-rock concert. Those, Jed, are impressive credentials.

One caution, though, Jed. Granted, it was wise of you to wait in your article until the jump page to come down on homosexuality. But still, Jed, don't you think you're being just a bit harsh? I mean, death, Jed? You said they are "in-capable of love ... THEY SHOULD BE EXECUTED." That is not going to go over well in the rock 'n' roll community. Like the church, even rock music occasionally operates on the turn-the-other cheek principle.

So there you have it. These are a few of the suggestions that occurred to me while contemplating the fate of the college student of the '80s. In hindsight, my only regret about your spot in Rolling Stone was that the Trojan "7 reasons why 7 condoms are used every second in the U.S." ad couldn't have been juxtaposed on one of the pages with your article. That paradox may go along with what you've been saying about the role of religion for some time now. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

Cats' season-ender not as memorable as UK season itself

Thanks to the Bayou Bengals of Louisiana State University, neither our Kentucky Wildcats nor the UK fans will be in Dallas next weekend for the NCAA Final Four.

But while we speculate about what went wrong, we should remember that no one outside this state expected the Cats to come within three points of heading west. After all, preseason predictions didn't even put the Cats atop the Southeastern Conference.

Saturday's 59-57 loss at the hands of the coach and team we all love to hate was a bitter pill to swallow, but as the saying goes, the Cats had everything to lose while the Tigers had everything to gain. Beating a team four times in one season is extremely difficult, not to mention beating two teams such as Alabama and LSU, which UK would have had to do to make the trip to Dallas.

Despite the look on senior All-American Kenny Walker's face moments after the game ended, this season was far from a failure. Actually the Cats' season will be remembered a lot longer than the score of that last game.

Under rookie Wildcat coach Eddie Sutton, fun and enjoyment were returned to Kentucky basketball. Walker and his teammates had a new look in their eyes — one of a desire to win rather than a need to win.

Perhaps the most evident result of this successful year was the turnaround of senior Roger Harden and junior James Blackmon. Their game-winning jump shots were only a few examples of their renewed self-confidence, not to mention their confidence in The Program.

Not since 1978 has a Wildcat team won more than 30 games. Closing with a record of 32-4, winning the SEC and the conference tournament and finishing in the final eight of the NCAA are nice presents for a new coach on the block.

As we say goodbye to Walker, who finished as the school's second all-time leading scorer, Harden, who set a UK season record for assists, and Leroy Byrd, we remember the 1985-86 season as one that took the Wildcats further than anyone expected and highlighted basketball as it should be — fun for the players as well as the fans.

LETTERS

Right-wing paranoia

Vaughn Murphy's letter of March 12 is full of typical right-wing paranoia: children counting rifles and grenades, notorious Soviets, masses being starved into submission, "consolidation of totalitarian power"; all the heavy scare words substantiated by two partial, out-of-context quotes. He rambles on for 14 columns in order to conclude that we must "force the Nicaraguan despots into a compromise settlement."

Does force really work? Do we as a country have the right to force our opinions on someone else? If so, maybe the nearly 80 percent of Americans who disagree with you, Mr. Murphy, should hire someone to murder your mother, rape your girlfriend and blow up your car to force you to agree with us.

Russ McFarland,
Lexington resident

Fight KU

Kentucky Utilities has requested a zone change from R-4 (high density residential) to B-2A (downtown business frame) for the properties at 226, 228 and 230 E. High St. and 209-211 and 217 Stone Ave. KU has an option to buy these buildings and would raise them to build a 100-space surface parking lot.

The area in question is directly across from the YMCA on High Street and is home to many students and UK employees. Destruction of these buildings would have a devastating effect on this residential neighborhood, causing a flood of similar requests by other property owners in the area.

We all know how critical low-to-moderate-income housing is to the University community. As this particular area is one of the most popular due to its location and beauty, I encourage all members of the UK faculty and student body to join the fight to preserve this neighborhood.

Lexington's downtown and University residential areas are a precious resource and should not become parking lots for downtown businesses.

Please call and/or write to each council member in opposition to this proposed zone change. Call KU and voice your opposition. Public opinion can and does make a difference, so please demonstrate yours by letters to the editor (the Kentucky Kernel, the Chey Chase Chronicle and the Lexington Herald-Leader).

A final note: The YMCA has stated that it favors this zone change. Please call the YMCA and ask them to withdraw their support. You and I can make a difference if we work together. Contact the High Street Coalition, c/o the Bluegrass Trust for Historical Preservation if you would like to join the fight.

Widener's view: New Reagan policy criticizes rightist regimes

Just what power runs our government?

Where's Lord Al Haig when Americans really need to know who's in charge?

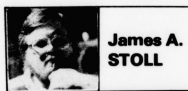

Recently the world was witness to People Power in the Philippines. In Russia, the world can catch occasional peeks at Party Power. And, of course, the world can tune in Libya anytime if they want to see an episode or two of Pro-Terrorist Power.

But what power runs America? Theoretically, there is this concept called "checks and balances" that makes sure no one area of our government — the executive, legislative or judicial branch — has too much say over how the country's run. In theory, this is a wonderful concept.

In reality, however, politics does not cater to concepts unless they are backed up by special interest groups and/or political action committees.

For example, there has been much debate over the years (since the late 1700s, in fact) that has analyzed the merits of giving the Supreme Court as much power as it controls.

After all, if Congress spends months debating and eventually deciding the validity of a law, wouldn't it seem logical to take the word of those 535 folks instead of relying on nine members of the Supreme Court to throw the legislation out?

Maybe. But if the Supreme Court, nine political appointees, is a dangerous force in American government, what then do we do with this president's ours?

Why is President Reagan able to ram aid to the Nicaraguan contras down our Congress' throats?

Oh, sure, there are probably a few anti-Americans out there who believe that the $100 million voted down last week is now safe from the hands of those 20,000 southern mercenaries. Not so.

Political observers and members of Congress alike are now forecasting a compromise package of contra aid that is virtually assured of passing. Those brave members of the House of Representatives who predicted the margin of defeat for the $100 million package are already seen as falling in line with the Reagan administration for the next vote.

All posturing aside, they intend to get on with their careers.

Whether the contras deserve our help is really another matter entirely. My personal opinion is that regardless of who in Congress or elsewhere is lying — both sides of the issue have accused the other of outright falsehoods — a mere $100 million is not going to win that war.

This means that once we provide the bucks, we will be in the nasty position of having to keep supporting the contras to the bitter end. Otherwise, the first war will have been blown for nothing.

In short, then, I say give them

$200 million or leave them to fight their own war.

Supporting a rebellion or two does not bother me — imperialism is not an evil in itself. And, in my opinion, far worse things are done with my tax dollars that are not even debated. Remember Nixon and Christmas in Cambodia?

It's this business of President Reagan dictating policy to Congress that worries me. His not-so-subtle threat of having to send American troops in if the situation worsens is bad enough, but he has carefully laid the blame for those American deaths at the doorsteps of House Democrats for voting down the $100 million in aid.

Reagan has decided that the contras will have their aid one way or another, and — as editorial cartoons have pointed out — "no man, no war, no law will stop him." I guess this includes "no politicians."

And Democrats are politicians, after all. I suppose that the bottom line is that America runs not by Pro-Terrorist, Party or even People Power.

Regrettably, Political Power is all that's left.

U.S. in dark about Nicaragua

Students' visit offers firsthand experience of contra terror

I want to commend the Kentucky Kernel editorial staff for its recent statements opposing contra aid. While President Reagan stands in Washington praising the contras, they continue terrorizing the civilian population in Nicaragua. President Reagan may be confused as to who the contras are; the Nicaraguan people are not.

By the time this letter is printed, I, along with two other UK students, Kimberly Burris and Flo Estes, will have witnessed firsthand the results of the tragic U.S. policy in Nicaragua. We will be in the little town of Somotillo near the border of Honduras. Just a little more than three weeks ago, contras, Reagan's "freedom fighters," attacked a bus carrying civilians. Contras placed two mines in the road and detonated them when the bus drove over them.

The driver, a Swiss agronomist, and two women were killed immediately. Two others died when the contras fired automatic weapons at the survivors. Included in the wounded were a one-month-old baby and a 45-year-old man.

This account is but one of hundreds attributable to the contras. They rarely engage the Sandinista military. Through terror and intimidation, they hope to regain power. Because they do not have the support of the Nicaraguan people, they are seeking support from the U.S. government.

So far, that support has included a manual printed by the CIA, so-called "humanitarian aid" and the networking of U.S. National Guard troops and regular Army personnel operating in Honduras and Costa Rica.

The White House claims that there is a "disinformation plan" in effect directed by the Sandinistas. The truth is, Reagan has launched one of his own.

The White House has stated that if no support is sent to the contras, U.S. troops will have to be used in that region. The truth is, U.S. troops have been in Central America for quite some time now. Honduras looks like an armed camp. At one time, nearly 10,000 soldiers participated in "war games" in Honduras. The National Guard from several states, including members of the Kentucky National Guard, have been to Honduras and have participated in building roads and airfields.

In 1984, two National Guardsmen from Pennsylvania were killed while on maneuvers in Honduras. And in a story carried by the Knight-Ridder News Service, the 101st Airborne from Fort Campbell, Ky., flew missions into Nicaragua from Honduras. That unit, nicknamed "Night stalkers," accounted for more than half the Army casualties for that year.

The White House claims that there is a "disinformation plan" in effect directed by the Sandinistas. . . .

The truth is, the United States is involved up to its olive-drab neck in Central America.

The truth is, the United States is involved up to its olive-drab neck in Central America.

And it's because the truth is not getting to the American people that we are going to see for ourselves the effects of U.S. foreign policy in that part of the world.

We will present our findings and show slides from our trip at noon Wednesday in 205 Student Center.

You can have a voice on this important issue. Call or write your Congressman now. Urge them to vote on contra aid as it passes through Congress.

Psychologist shoots down sugar theory

A UK psychologist says the widely held belief that sugar is to blame for hyperactive behavior in children may be wrong.

Dr. Richard Milich recently conducted a study on the effect of sugar on hyperactive boys and found no evidence to support the widely held contention that sugar aggravates hyperactivity.

Also known as the "attention-deficit disorder," hyperactivity is a common condition among pre-adolescent children, especially boys, said Milich.

Duke, Kansas join U of L, LSU in Dallas

Top-ranked Duke routed Navy 71-50 and second-ranked Kansas fought off North Carolina State 75-67 yesterday to earn Final Four berths against each other next Saturday in the NCAA basketball championships.

Duke, which hadn't played a ranked team or one with a dominating big man in three previous tournament games, had no trouble with 6-foot-11 David Robinson and the rest of the Midshipmen in the East Regional championship at East Rutherford, N.J.

Robinson scored 23 points and had 10 rebounds for the 17th-ranked Middles, but Johnny Dawkins had 28 points and seven rebounds and Mark Alarie added 18 points for the Blue Devils. Duke raised its record to 36-2, stretched its winning streak to 20 games and left Navy's final record at 30-5.

PITTSBURGH — A 43-year-old factory foreman suffered cardiac arrest three times just before surgeons implanted a Jarvik 7 artificial heart as an emergency lifesaver, hospital officials said yesterday.

Gary Blake of East Liverpool, Ohio, was in critical but stable condition in the intensive care unit of Presbyterian-University Hospital, hospital spokesman Ann Metzger said. She said that was the usual condition for a new recipient of an artificial heart.

"Death was imminent" before Blake received the mechanical pump in a five-hour operation that ended just before midnight Saturday, said another spokesman, Tom Chakurda.

Snowstorm probable cause for accidents

TOKYO — A spring snowstorm was blamed for accidents, including a train crash, that killed two people yesterday and injured 253, authorities said.

One man was killed when a walking collapsed under the weight of accumulated snow, and a firefighter was electrocuted by a fallen power line, police said.

Tokyo Electric Power Co. spokesman Chiyuki Okazawa said six electric poles toppled in Kanagawa prefecture (state) west of Tokyo, leaving 318,000 homes without power.

No one was killed but 170 people were hurt in the train crash, railway spokesman Tsuneo Kobayashi reported. He said a commuter train moving at 15 mph ran into the rear of a stopped train in the Tokyo suburb of Tanashi. Kobayashi said 13 people were hospitalized.

Half-time - UK, 34; LSU, 33. Shooting percentages - UK, 46.2; LSU, 45.3. Turnovers - UK, 12; LSU, 9. Attendance - 16,453.

The Wildcats, as well as Kenny Walker's goggles, were knocked off by LSU Saturday in the finals of the Southeast Regional in Atlanta. The Tigers beat the Cats 59-57.

a real good game," said Winston Bennett, who finished with eight points and 12 rebounds. "We went out hard, but we didn't do the things necessary to win."

After a timeout with 44 seconds left, the Tigers, ahead 57-55, went to a spread offense. Redden then hit a wide-open Blanton under the basket for a layup with 15 seconds left.

Harden scored in the lane with five seconds left to pull UK to two at 59-57, setting up Williams' missed free throw and Blackmon's desperation shot.

"I don't think the players or the coaching staff ever thought about losing," Bennett said. "We've been playing with so much confidence, I thought we would find a way to win."

"We accomplished a lot this year," Blackmon said. "We can be proud of our record."

In the game's frantic opening minutes, Walker scored nine of the Wildcats' first 11 points as UK, oozing with emotion, took an 11-4 lead.

The Tigers then scored on an alley-oop to Williams and Redden scored three straight baskets to tie the score at 14 with 12:37 left in the first half. LSU never seemed to relinquish the momentum.

The teams swapped baskets the rest of the half, and UK took a 33-32 lead into intermission.

Walker, who along with Bennett made the all-tournament team, win over Georgia Tech Thursday scored 16 points in the first half, but express your emotions," said UK coach Eddie Sutton. "It's a feeling of sadness. But a month from now, our players will look back and realize they had a great year."

"We lost to a good ballclub," said Walker, who was voted to the all-tournament team after scoring 94 points in four games. "We can't let one game ruin a great season. You can't fault our effort. We can look in the mirror and have nothing to be ashamed of."

With the year's final three seconds left, UK was down 59-57, shy of Dallas by three points.

Harden pleaded with Walker and Bennett to give him another chance to pull off a miracle. Like the miracles he performed in Tuscaloosa, in Baton Rouge, in Rupp Arena. Like the miracle of his senior year when he made the all-UK Invitational Tournament team, the all-SEC Tournament team and the all-conference third team.

"When we broke huddle, I asked them to please throw me the ball," Harden said. "I wanted to take the shot. I told Kenny and Winston to just throw me the ball."

Of all the Wildcats, the coaching staff and managers, Harden certainly took the loss the hardest. In the squad's locker room, the one the Atlanta Hawks use when they're in town, he was still in his uniform 45 minutes afterward, the last one to change into street clothes.

He talked of his dreams.

"We failed to win the national championship. We fell short of our goal. We didn't obtain it. But Kentucky is still the No. 1 basketball program in the country, and it's an honor to represent it."

WE'LL PAY YOU TO GET INTO SHAPE THIS SUMMER.

If you have at least two years of college left, you can spend six weeks at our Army ROTC Basic Camp this summer and earn approximately $600.

And if you qualify, you can enter the ROTC 2-Year Program this fall and receive up to $1,000 a year.

But the big payoff happens on graduation day. That's when you receive an officer's commission.

So get your body in shape (not to mention your bank account).

Hurry. The time is short. There are only seven Basic Camp spaces still available for qualified students.

Stop by Barker Hall on the UK campus or call 257-2875 for more information.
