"THE CONSPIRACY AGAINST BUCKNER."

The above
An article of several columns in length is now being circulated throughout the State. Its origination and circulation on the eve of the County Conventions was intended to prevent and paralyze the effect of any reply. It has probably done its work, and so far as I am interested would be treated with contempt and silence, but as a matter of justice to so many gentlemen indirectly connected in the article with myself, I feel it my duty to say as to any connection of mine with this alleged conspiracy, it is false from beginning to end, and there is not an item of truth in it.

As to the connection of Gov. McCreary, Senator Harris, Judge Hines, Senator Berry, Judge Hargis, and other gentlemen with such a combination it is simply absurd, and instead of my having been visited by Judge Hargis on such a mission—while it is true our personal relations are kind—yet, we have neither met nor held any communication of any kind for near ten years.

The charge or intimation in that article that I have ever made any confession of such a conspiracy or any combination against Buckner, or one of any kind, is simply a "Campaign Lie" and no man in this State will maintain it.

G. A. C. HOLT.

Dear Sir:

We have just issued a revised edition of Andrews's Manual of the Constitution of the U. S. a copy of which we take pleasure in sending you by to-day's mail. Please accept it with our compliments and best wishes. In the revision of this popular work the author has taken opportunity to re-write some portions of the book and to make such alterations and additions as have been suggested by the progress of legislation and the experience of the past fourteen years. The whole work has been re-set and re-printed from new type and we have endeavored to make it as attractive as possible in typography, paper, binding, &c. The great importance of this branch of study to the youth of America is admitted and the interest in it is rapidly growing. We submit this volume in the hope that it may commend itself as well adapted to the use of schools and the general reader. We should be much gratified to hear your opinion of the work after you have looked over it.

Yours truly,

Van Antwerp, Bragg & Co.

PERSONAL LETTERS TO THE COMMITTEE NAMED BELOW IMPERATIVELY REQUIRED, ^{AND} INSTANTLY.
The United States Postal Improvement Association

PRESIDENT, WM. PENN NIXON, Publisher Inter-Ocean, Chicago, Ill.
Secretary, HERBERT MYRICK, of Springfield, Mass., Agricultural Editor of Farm and Home and of The New England Homestead.
Treasurer, JAMES VICK, Esq., of Rochester, N. Y., Chairman of the American Seed Trade Association.

MEMBERSHIP FEE, $5.00.

OBJECTS:—1. To secure reduced postage on seeds, plants, bulbs, and cions. 2. The re-issue of fractional currency, for use in the mails. 3. Abolition of postal notes. 4. Issue of money orders for $5.00 or less, for a fee of three cents.

DEAR SIR:

The question of a re-issue of fractional currency for use in the mails came before the committee on banks and currency of the House of Representatives at Washington on Tuesday, January 24. Hon. William Whiting of Massachusetts and Hon. George W. Dargan of South Carolina presented imperative reasons in its favor, and most of the other members of the committee came to agree with them. Later, these gentlemen with Hon. L. F. McKinney of New Hampshire, were appointed a sub-committee on fractional currency. The details are not yet decided, but the committee will probably report a bill (that will be known as the Whiting bill).

The evident interest and demand for a return to this convenient form of currency is almost certain to be favorably acted upon, if it will emphasize itself upon this committee. It is therefore requested that you write immediately a personal letter to Mr. Whiting or Mr. Dargan, or other members of the committee, all of whom may be addressed simply at Washington, D. C. Make the point in demanding fractional currency that it is needed for a thousand and one daily uses. Quote the fact that postal notes or money orders are issued only at 14 per cent. of the post-offices of the country, and only at important centres, so that the great bulk of the people (who most need a handy way of remitting fractional parts of a dollar in the mails) have no means of doing so except by sending postage stamps. Stamps were not made for this purpose, and are not negotiable, while fractional silver is too unsafe to send in the mails. Also note that the experience of Canada has shown that the circulation of fractional paper currency has not driven out subsidiary silver coin, but fractional currency has merely supplemented silver, and the circulation of silver has increased in Canada while fractional currency has circulated.

Notice on the back hereof what is said about the probability of securing reduced postage on seeds, etc. By personal letters and petitions, as well as by the resolutions of your organization, all sent direct to your Congressman or members of the postal committee, try to have this thing put through.

Yours, very truly,

HERBERT MYRICK, Secretary.

LOWER POSTAGE—FRACTIONAL CURRENCY.

Editorial in the New England Homestead, Jan. 28, 1888.

Reduced postage on seeds, plants, bulbs and cions is attracting much attention in Congress. Some efforts are being made to have the postage on all fourth-class matter reduced from 16 to 8c per lb. Bills have already been introduced covering both these points. Money orders for $5 or less for a fee of three cents in place of the present unsafe postal note, is another reform that is quite favorably received. Many petitions in behalf of these objects are arriving daily, and those in reference to reduced postage on seeds, etc., have been referred to a sub-committee of which Hon George A. Anderson of Illinois is a particularly interested member. The chairman of the postal committee is Hon James H. Blount of Georgia, and Hon Charles H. Allen of the Lowell (Mass.) district is an influential member also. It is imperative that all interested in these reforms write immediately not only to their own member of Congress, but more especially to Mr Anderson and the other members of the committee as above, and bring every possible argument to bear upon them in favor of these objects. It is practically true that if the sub-committee consider the matter favorably, a unanimous report can be obtained from the entire committee. With such a report, it will be no great task to secure the early enactment of the measure. If farmers, dealers and others interested will take hold in earnest at this juncture, the chances of success will be greatly increased. In this connection we would refer again to the United States postal improvement association, which has been organized to promote these and other postal reforms. One of its objects, the correction of existing regulations about permissible printing on wrappers, has already been favorably acted upon by Congress and approved by the President. The president of the association, William Penn Nixon of the Chicago Inter-Ocean, or the secretary, Herbert Myrick of Springfield, Mass., will send free upon application full particulars as to how any interested parties can greatly promote the work.

Fractional currency is bound to come. The petitions in behalf of a reissue of this most convenient form of money for sending small sums by mail, have been pouring into Congress from all parts of the country. There is an almost unanimous sentiment in favor of it. Canada's experience to the effect that the use of fractional currency increases rather than diminishes the circulation of fractional silver coin, has removed all opposition from those who thought fractional currency might prove a substitute for silver rather than a supplement. Hon William Whiting of Holyoke, Mass., a leading member of the committee on banking and currency, is preparing a bill to authorize the issue of fractional currency for the convenience of persons sending small amounts by mail. Whether this currency shall be issued as silver certificates or in some other form is not yet settled. This latter point is comparatively immaterial to the public. The Whiting bill will doubtless cover the whole case thoroughly, as Mr Whiting never does anything by halves. If he succeeds in granting this great boon to the public, William Whiting will be blessed the country over. Everyone interested in the matter should write to him or to the chairman of the currency committee, Hon Beriah Wilkins, both at Washington, in favor of a reissue of fractional currency.

CIRCULAR.

WASHINGTON, D. C.,

January 27, 1888.

The Committee on Appropriations of the U. S. Senate, yesterday morning ordered to be reported favorably, the bill making appropriations for Agricultural Experiment Stations, with an amendment, removing the restriction of payments to moneys "proceeding from the sales of public lands," and substituting "out of any money in the Treasury of the United States, not otherwise appropriated."

The bill was at once reported and unanimous consent asked for its immediate consideration. Senator Salisbury of Delaware, objected, and the bill had to be laid aside, under the rules. The Senate yesterday adjourned to Monday, so the matter is carried over till next week.

There is no reasonable doubt of the ultimate passage of the bill, but if the Senate adopts the amendment, concurrence on the part of the House will be necessary, and further delay will result.

Later circulars of information may be expected.

Respectfully,

HENRY E. ALVORD,

*Chairman Executive Committee,

ANNOUNCEMENTS:

Revised and Improved Edition of Andrews's Manual of the Constitution.

A Manual of the Constitution of the United States, for the instruction of American Youth in the Duties, Obligations and Rights of Citizenship. By I. W. ANDREWS, LL. D., Marietta College. New Edition, Revised to date by the Author, thoroughly adapted to grammar, high school and college grades; re-set entire and printed from new type. 12mo., 408 pp. By mail, $1.17. Introduction price, $1.00; exchange price, 60c.

The nature and necessity of civil government are clearly presented, together with the peculiar character of that of our own Republic, arising from the division of powers between the Nation and the States.

The Constitution is carefully explained clause by clause, and attention is called to all the important legislation in which its principles have been embodied, as well as to the judicial decisions by which the instrument has been interpreted. This full illustration of the Constitution by the laws enacted under it forms an important and, to a large extent, a peculiar feature of the work.

Thus, to Congress is granted the power to coin money. Under this clause a brief but clear account of the first Coinage Act in 1792, the changes in the gold coins by the Act of 1834, the change of alloy in 1837, the provision for subsidiary silver coins by the Act of 1853, the formal demonetization of silver and the various features of the Coinage Act of 1873, and the restoration to full legal tender of the silver dollar by the Act of 1878. The legislation as to Legal Tender Notes, the National Bank Note Currency, and the Gold and Silver Certificates is also fully stated. It is believed that no important fact touching the monetary legislation of the country has been omitted. The same method has been pursued as to the other subjects of the Constitution.

In this revised edition all important items of recent legislation have been added, thus bringing the legislative history down to the close of the year 1887.

Marginal headings have been introduced for convenience of reference and review. To adapt the work to classes which have not time enough for the whole, a portion has been printed in smaller type.

The part devoted to the Government by States has been considerably increased. Taking the present Constitution of Ohio as an example; the practical operation of such government, as well as that of counties and towns, have been fully presented.

The purpose has been to give to the student and to the general reader such knowledge of our Government, both in its theory and its practical workings, as every intelligent citizen would desire to possess. It is believed that, in regard to a large part of the governmental questions that have been discussed in the public press within the last few years, this work furnishes the materials for a satisfactory solution.

McGuffey's Natural History Readers.

These books approach the field of natural history by simple description and anecdote. They are designed to awaken interest in reading by addressing the universal love of living creatures, and thus to cultivate the habit of observation by pointing out likenesses and differences in the forms and adaptations of animals.

Beginning with dogs and ending with apes. The more familiar dog, cat, horse, pig, cow and sheep are made to supply natural links of association with the less familiar wolf, tiger, wild ass, elephant, hippopotamus, antelope, deer, etc., etc. The illustrations, designed especially for this work, include portraits of many famous animals.

2. (For Fourth Reader Grade.) Living Creatures of Water, Land and Air. 208 pp., cloth. Introductory and sample copy, price 50c. (Nearly ready.)

WASHINGTON, D. C.

February 14, 1888.

The undersigned, appointed a Committee on behalf of the BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF CIVICS, at its annual meeting held at Washington, February 14, 1888, to express the sentiments of the Board, in view of the very satisfactory work accomplished under the direction of its executive officers during the past year, respectfully state, that in their judgment the Institute is worthy of the continued and cordial support of its members and of all who desire to promote that education in Civics which shall elevate the standard of citizenship and promote the ends of good government.

In view of the fact that the further prosecution of the important work of this Institution, with even larger results, depends upon the financial as well as moral support necessary to this end, they respectfully urge upon all members the prompt payment of their membership dues, and would suggest to those whose circumstances permit, that they may greatly aid in this patriotic work by becoming Life Members (upon payment of fifty dollars), or by the bestowal of gifts to be applied to such purposes as the donors may designate.

As no salaries are paid to officers, all funds received are applied to specific work, such as the issue of the Institute's publications, the conduct of correspondence, and the promotion of its plans in other ways.

Application for Life Membership, or correspondence with reference to gifts, may be addressed to Hon. W. E. SHELDON, Secretary of the Board of Trustees, No. 3 Somerset Street, Boston, Mass.

Remittances, which should be made payable to the order of General HENRY B. CARRINGTON, Treasurer, may be sent to the Treasurer's office, No. 22 Bromfield Street, Boston; to the Secretary of the Board of Trustees, as above, or to HENRY RANDALL WAITE, President of the Institute, 120 Broadway, New York City.

What Leading Papers Say

OF WEBSTER.

From New York Times. Each successive reprint finds the work of our great lexicographer still unrivaled among English dictionaries. In each republication we likewise find a mirror of the scientific progress of the age, a sleepless vigilance which nothing escapes, to catch every new shade of verbal significance, and to retain for our unapproached standard of language that freshness which preserves it from becoming old.

From New York Herald. Webster's Dictionary is a national institution, and as such has the pas over all rivals.

From New York Tribune. The Webster of to-day... has come to be recognized as the most useful existing "word book" of the English language all over the world.

From New York World. The wisdom of the maxim in this particular, "Get the best," is obvious. That Webster fulfills this condition, as between the two English lexicons most prominently before the American public, is almost universally conceded.

From Boston Post. Most complete and comprehensive work of its kind.

From The Interior, Chicago. If anything is needed to make this not only more perfect than any other lexicon ever published, but absolutely a perfect work, we can not imagine wherein the defect can be found.

From Chicago Tribune. Webster's is the standard generally throughout the country in orthography.

From Boston Advertiser. Sufficient for all the purposes for which a dictionary is commonly consulted, and is an authority equal to any in every department of word knowledge.

Opinions from England and the Colonies.

The London Times. "The best and most useful Dictionary of the English language ever published."

London Quarterly Review. "On the whole, Webster's Dictionary is the best practical English Dictionary extant."

Pres't G. M. Grant, Queen's University, Kingston, Can., says: After trying others for years, I came to the conclusion that Webster's was the best, and have used none other for a long time.

Calcutta (India) Englishman. "The new and greatly enlarged edition of Webster's English Dictionary, is the most perfect work of its kind yet published."

B. B. Moreton, Minister for Public Instruction, Brisbane, Australia, says: Webster's Dictionary is believed to be a work of recognized authority wherever the English language is spoken.

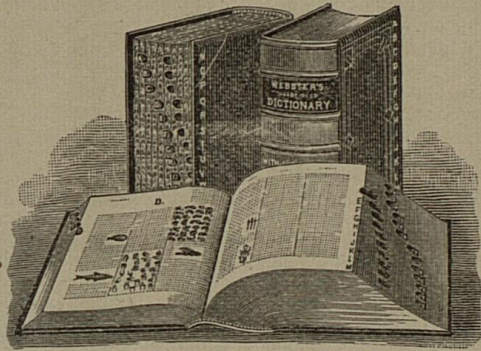

Robert Stout, Minister of Education, New Zealand, says: I think very highly of Webster's Unabridged, which is a very valuable book for reference, and is already extensively appreciated in this colony.

Pres't John Forest, Dalhousie University, Halifax, Nova Scotia, says: I think that for general use, Webster has no superior.

Specimen Testimonials.

- George Bancroft, the Historian, says: Webster's is superior to all others as a household dictionary.
- John G. Whittier says: I have learned to trust implicitly its authority.
- W. D. Howells says: I have long preferred the Websterian orthography.
- Ralph Waldo Emerson says: I have learned the superiority of Webster's Dictionary.
- J. L. M. Curry, Agent Peabody Ed'l Fund, says: It is the ultimate arbiter for the determination of the etymology and meaning of English words.
- U. S. Grant says: Your last edition is the best English Dictionary ever published.
- Ezra Abbott, Prof. at Harvard, says: In etymology, definitions, illustrations and synonyms, Webster is far superior to any other English Dictionary.
- Austin Phelps, Prof. at Andover, says: It is unequaled by any other Dictionary in the language.
- Bishop Spaulding, Author Catholic Readers, says: My preference is altogether for Webster.
- James G. Blaine says: Webster has been my companion and my reliance for more than twenty-five years.
- Wm. F. Warren, Pres't Boston University, says: It will long continue to hold its primacy, if in the future it shall be as continuously revised and as judiciously improved as it has been in the past.
- Julius H. Seeley, Pres't Amherst College, says: I have long preferred Webster to any other Dictionary of the English language.
- Wm. T. Harris, LL. D., says: Webster is the highest authority in matters of orthography and pronunciation.
- J. W. Dickinson, Sec'y Mass. State Board of Ed'n, says: Authority in respect to the etymology, orthography and use of words, is found in the concurrent opinion of those best able to judge of these things. It seems to me that Webster's Unabridged faithfully represents this opinion.
- T. B. Stockwell, State Com'r of Common Schools, R. I., says: My preference is for Webster.
- N. A. Luce, State Supt. Common Schools, Maine, says: Every school in the state should be furnished with Webster's Unabridged.
- Justus Dartt, State Supt. Ed'n, Vt., says: It would be very desirable to have every school in the state supplied with Webster's Unabridged.
- Chas. D. Hine, Sec'y State Board of Ed'n, Conn., says: I hope it will be so widely distributed in the State of Conn. that every scholar in our public schools can have constant access to it.

Standard Authority in the Government Printing Office.

GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE, WASHINGTON, April 23, 1873.
Webster's Dictionary is the Standard Authority for printing in this office, and has been for the last four years.—A. M. Clapp, Congressional Printer.

GOV'T PRINTING OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20, 1882.
I shall continue Webster's Dictionary as the Standard in spelling, pronunciation, and definition, in the Government Printing Office.—S. P. Rounds, Public Printer.

GOV'T PRINTING OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 21, 1886.
Webster will continue to be the Standard in the use of the English language in this office.—T. E. Benedict, Public Printer.

WASHINGTON, D. C., February 23, 1880.

When I accepted the position of Editor in the United States Patent Office, I again had to come to a determination, so that the "Official Gazette" of the office and its printed Specifications should not only agree with each other, but should follow the best authority. The question involved points of interest for the Bureau, the Department of the Interior, and the Government Printing Office. My choice of "Webster" was sustained. At a rough estimate I should say that the publications of the Patent Office involve the setting of at least 40,000 pages of type yearly, and as the matter goes to every library and manufacturing establishment, and to every corner of the land, it becomes an important agent in securing conformity of spelling in our country.—Edward H. Knight (Author of Knight's Mechanical Dictionary).

Webster's Unabridged is supplied by the Government to every pupil at West Point Military Academy.

The Standard in Courts of Justice.

WASHINGTON, D. C., January, 1882.

Webster's Unabridged is recognized as standard authority in the Court over which I preside, and its usefulness increases as the successive editions appear.—Hon. Morrison R. Waite, Chief Justice of the U. S.

STAUNTON, VA., October 8, 1886.

We have examined the latest edition of Webster's Unabridged, and unhesitatingly pronounce it, in our opinion, the best in the English language. We not only recognize it as standard authority, but deem it invaluable.—Signed by all the Judges of the Supreme Court of Virginia.

ALBANY, N. Y., December, 1883.

Such uniformity in authority and definition as it is possible to attain is extremely desirable, and the result can hardly be reached in a better way than by conceding to Webster's Dictionary the rank and authority of a standard.—Signed by all the Judges of the Court of Appeals of New York.

Expressions similar to the above have been received from the Supreme Courts of many of the other States, including Nebraska, Minnesota, North Carolina, Georgia, Indiana, Missouri, Ohio, Pennsylvania, &c., &c.

Webster's Unabridged is recommended by the State Superintendents of Schools in 36 States, and by the leading College Presidents of the United States and Canada.
