James K. Patterson

My dear Sir

On my return home yesterday I mailed you some briefs which may interest you as the questions discussed are out of the usual line and are of more than local importance.

The case of Banks vs Manchester was decided against me without any very satisfactory reasons being given. It is reported in 128 W.D. Repats page 244. The decision was based upon the ground that the question was one of public policy and there has always been a judicial consensus from the time of the decision in the case of Wheaton vs Peters that no copy right could be the
