

Humphries, Foster, Kercheval, and Barney Are Class Presidents

1,673 VOTES CAST BY STUDENT BODY DURING ELECTION

Returns Compiled Show Most Intense Interest in Years

U. K. MEN'S COUNCIL DIRECTS TABULATION

More Than 75 Per Cent of Juniors and Seniors Participate

Election returns compiled late last night showed the most intense interest shown by undergraduates in recent years. Sixteen hundred and 73 votes were cast during balloting, which was conducted throughout Thursday by members of the Men's Student Council in the former reading room of the university.

Edwin Humphries, Georgetown, member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity and senior in the College of Agriculture, was elected to the presidency of the sophomore class, and James Barney, Ashland, a pledge to Alpha Tau Omega, and a freshman in the College of Education, to the presidency of the freshman class.

Other officers for the various classes were also chosen by students of the university yesterday. In the junior and senior classes, an exceedingly high percentage of the students voted in the election Thursday. Three hundred and thirty-five seniors cast votes in the balloting while 463 juniors participated.

William Kelly was next highest in the senior presidency election, and Katherine Smith trailed Virginia Young for the vice-presidency. Gray was runner-up in the election of the junior president, and Lewis was runner-up for the vice-presidency, and Montgomery followed Skinner for the secretary-treasurer.

Under the direction of the Student Council the ballots were counted following the close of voting yesterday afternoon. Due to the fact that all the elections were held on the same night and that no identification other than checking with compiled lists of the various classes was provided, an unusually large number of undergraduates participated in the balloting. It was estimated that over 75 per cent of the members of the junior and senior classes voted.

The election was considered one of the most fair and clean which ever has been held at the university. Members of the Student Council expressed themselves as believing that nothing that happened during voting, and C. R. Melcher, dean of men, said, "I believe that it was a fair election and was as clean as any I have seen yet. There could not have been any irregularity which could have affected the result."

In addition to the members of the council who were conducting the balloting, an unusually large number of the members of the Kernel were present at all times during the election.

Immediately preceding the counting of the votes a committee supporting the independent candidates petitioned Dean Melcher and Pres. Frank L. McVey for a representative to be present during the counting. This request was granted.

The unusual interest which developed in the election yesterday has been attributed to the competition between fraternity coalitions and the independent faction on the campus.

Candidates for the various class offices, the number of votes they received and the total votes cast in each class follow:

Hallowe'en Pranksters Do Honor to Their Ancestors

By MARY ALICE SALYERS University students seek to reverse the shades of their ancestors by mirth-provoking escapades and pranks on Hallowe'en.

The Druids observed All Hallowe' Eve with all the zest which was shown, even, says an ancient custom, to bobbing for apples, and attempting to eat an apple hanging on a string.

Perhaps the oldest of customs however, are those inspired by that equally ancient instinct known as woman's curiosity. From time immemorial maidens have fastened in their inmost hearts (they didn't wear their hearts on their sleeves in those days) a desire to look into the future and see the face of him whom they were to have and to lose.

If the young lady, it seems, before retiring will hang in front of the fire an undergarment with the sleeve dampened (that would have to be modeled—undergarments were made nowdays) and then, pretending to sleep, lie watching in her bed, she will see during the night appearing in her husband-to-be come in and turn the garment so that it will dry first before the fire. If she does not see the one whose "love is not adhesive," she means that she has allowed herself to be deceived for a moment, and missed the apparition.

Two out appetees stuck on the eyelids make wonderfully efficacious prophets. As the student on her eyes, the maiden names them secretly for two lovers—the one which drops from the eye first indicates the one whose "love is not adhesive."

"The advantage of this spell," hints the narrator, "is that a body may help the Fates along, if they seem undecided, by winking."

coconuts from trees for the benefit of his family. He continued by stating that as early as 400 B. C. the Egyptians noted agricultural engineering tactics in the problem of irrigation. The first appearance of work of this type in America, he stated, was carried on by the Mormons in Utah, and as an example of development, he mentioned the fact that today many thousands of acres of swamp lands have been made suitable for cultivation. The speaker also told of the vast sorts of agricultural engineering through and of education. He also traced the prodigious development of farm structures, an outstanding project of agricultural engineering, from the earliest pioneer homes to the modern well-planned buildings.

Mr. McCroary, speaking on "The Contributions of Agricultural Engineering to Rural Life," said that today the farmer stands on a higher plane than ever before, in spite of many unfavorable conditions. "Through the aid of agricultural engineering both the farmer and his wife now have more advantages," he said. "The farmer does not now have to rely on his manhood to provide him with the three necessities of life, but by the aid of machinery he is now able to turn his occupation, formerly regarded by many as a simple mode of living, into a paying business. We shall see the time when he will feel that money spent in engineering will be well invested," continued the speaker.

He further stated that work against soil erosion and toward irrigation were done through engineering. He also mentioned the importance of electricity in the home, a useful form of power to the farmer, and the project of well-planned buildings, as a step toward development. He stated that the most spectacular contribution by engineering to agriculture is the giving of machinery to farms. Mechanical power reduces time and trouble in harvesting of crops and today it ranks in form of tractors equal to that furnished by the horse or mule. Lastly, Mr. McCroary expressed the fact that the field in agricultural engineering had hardly begun but signs of greater development are manifest.

Following the dedicatory addresses, there was the general inspection of farm machinery, old and modern, presented at the exercises. The machinery consisted of crude implements, such as the first reaper and a very old plow, and a group of modern corn planters, plows, binders, manure spreaders, cultivators, silo fillers, tobacco transplanters, and mowers.

W. A. A. TO HOLD TRIBAL NIGHT

Annual Indian Initiation Ceremonies Will Be Conducted for New Members of Six Tribes

The new members of the tribes, which are sponsored by the association for purposes of athletic competition, will be initiated at tribal night with Indian ceremonies, to carry the pattern after which the tribal organization was planned three years ago. The tribal leaders and old members of the tribes will have charge of the initiation, which will culminate in a social hour.

The new members, who were distributed by Miss Rebecca Averill, director of women's athletics, Laura K. Johnston, graduate instructor in the department of physical education and the W. A. A. administrative council, were chosen with regard to keeping the tribes equal in strength and membership. The initiates are:

RELATIONS CLASS TO MEET

Prof. Paul H. Clyde of the department of history will speak at a meeting of the international relations class at 7:30 o'clock Monday night in room 203 of the administration building. His subject will be, "The Manchurian Question."

FORMAL OPENING EXERCISES HELD

Prof. J. B. Davidson and S. H. McCroary, Deliver Principal Addresses at Exercises

F. L. MEVEY PRESIDES

"I therefore dedicate this building to teaching, to the study of rural problems, to a more effective use of machines in the work of agriculture, and to the guidance of students and citizens to the best methods of living in rural communities, with the hope that their best efforts may be carried forward," were the words of Pres. Frank L. Mevey, at the dedication exercises for the new agricultural engineering building at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, on the Experiment station farm. Approximately 400 persons were present for the occasion.

The principal speakers were Prof. J. B. Davidson, head of the agricultural engineering department of the College of Agriculture at Iowa State College, and S. H. McCroary, chief of the bureau of Agricultural Engineering, in the United States department of agriculture. Invocation and benediction were pronounced by the Rev. A. H. Pitzer, pastor of the First Presbyterian church.

Professor Davidson, gave as the subject of his address, "Development of Agricultural Engineering." He traced agricultural engineering from its most probable beginning to its present importance as an aid to the farmer. He gave a definition of engineering, which he stated was closely related to agriculture, the art of organizing and directing men, and the utilizing of forces of nature to the benefit of mankind. He further gave as contributions of engineering to industry that it lessens the number of successive operations to complete one job, reduces waste, and multiplies output of human effort by the use of power. Thus he stated the primary importance of engineering to agriculture.

The speaker gave the monkey as the most probable first agricultural engineer in the world, due to his invention of a club to knock

Ambitious Program of Exhibitions Undertaken by Department of Art

By BURNAM PEARLMAN

Undertaking an ambitious program for the year, the department of art has arranged for exhibitions of current works from leading schools, artists and collections over America. To meet the requirements of the exhibitions by students members of the art department staff have signified their willingness to help by acting as guides when requested.

The opening exhibition is scheduled for the showing of paintings from October 12 to 24, and will consist of printed silks from the textiles collection of Miss Louisa Michel, of the Art Institute of Chicago.

November 2 to 14 will be given to the showing of paintings from the school of John Herron Art Institute, Indianapolis.

During the two weeks of November 15 to 28 American cotton textiles will be shown. They will be taken from the international exhibition of metal work and cotton textiles, assembled by the American Federation of Arts. (These textiles have already been on museum circuit, having been featured at the Metropolitan Museum, New York.)

Drawings and paintings by students of the department of art will be on display for the week of December 2 to 9.

Further exhibits are planned by the department of art for the dates still unfiled.

English artists represented. Prominent among the French artists will be Odilon Redon, Raoul Dufy, Pablo Picasso and Henri de Warouquier Benoit, the Russian, will contribute a striking canvas.

Modern textiles, including the now famous series designed for the W. and J. Sloane company by Ruth Reeves will be shown from January 1 to 23. This group comes through the Art Center, of New York.

March 29 April 11 will be devoted to the showing of pencil drawings of architectural subjects, by Kenneth Conant, professor at Harvard University, and now director of excavations and restorations on the site of the famous Cluny monastery.

From April 11 to 30, or the alternative period of May 2 to 28, the exhibition will be of water color paintings in the modern home; these are said to be even better than the work shown in the water color exhibition last year. Among the leading American paintings whose work will be shown are Clifford Beal, Charles Demuth, Ernest Frene, Rockwell Kent, and Maurice Prendergast, one of the most delightful painters of recent years. The American Federation of Art will sponsor this exhibition.

Further exhibits are planned by the department of art for the dates still unfiled.

"Give me LUCKY Strike Every Time"

Looking Over the Magazines

By NICHOLAS WINN WILLIAMS
Thomas Alva Edison, 1847-1931

The New York Times Magazine for this week has in its cover a full page picture of Thomas Alva Edison. There is something touching about this photograph, something sympathetic about the look in the eyes of the man there photographed. The man's determination and keenness in the expression of the very features of his face. Turning the magazine over to the second page one finds a streamer at the top, calling Mr. Edison "The Titan of the New Age of Invention." Here is the man, says Waldemar Kaempfert writing the article on Edison, who "symbolizes electricity—thoughts and words, wafled over continents, energy freed from the engine and belt and shot hither and yon by cables and wires in high silent, smokeless motors turning wheels in factories and hauling goods and people on rails. The achievements of Thomas Edison are put forth very carefully by Kaempfert, although not monotonously. Edison's foresight, synthetic foods, inventing a machine "to facilitate the counting of votes in legislatures," even though this did help to do away with filibustering much to the chagrin of the legislators; inventing the phonograph and the incandescent electric lamp. The TIMES emphasizes that Light was Edison's great gift to mankind. "Now thousands of stations send energy to millions of homes and factories to a world pushing buttons and pulling levers as it sucks dirt out of the carpets electrically, toasts its bread and percolates its coffee at the head of the parade, lit itself electrically eighty stories in the air."

Eugene O'Neill—Two Conflicting Views

It is the usual thing to remark that Eugene O'Neill has placed an American stage where formerly there was none. It is quite common to assert that Mr. O'Neill has given a dignity to American drama. In the Theatre Arts Monthly, the November issue, O'Neill enthusiasts, as well as those who are not, may find two views of the man. To Virgil Geddes writing in a destructive article and in an ultimate evaluation in which aesthetic pleasure must not be an important part, he is often not an artist at all. Geddes feels that O'Neill is not a true pioneer, that he "exploits more old means than he suggests new ones." This critic calls what he thinks a spade just that—O'Neill finds Mr. O'Neill assuming rarely the more sensitive duties which should command a high-minded playwright.

Superstitions Are in Prime of Life On University of Kentucky Campus

Superstitions have not all been banished from the realm of the more highly educated groups, ran-dom querying on the university campus reveals.

Jim Snijpers is obdurate in his re-fusing to light a third cigarette on one match. It bores him, he de-clares.

Hazel Baucom asseverates that on three distinct occasions she was in automobile wrecks, subsequent to the crossing of her road by black cats.

Bud Cavana, on the other hand, considers black cats omens of good fortune, and perks up considerably every time one of the beasts crosses his path. He also attaches a good meaning to the number 11, when-ever that number turns up in his presence.

Frances McCandless has a good luck penny which drives off evil spirits and other detestable agents. When Frank "Hoss" Seale does his football jersey, he ritually sees to it that the trademark tag there-of is placed at the back of his neck. The psychic effects would be so startling that they could not have a moment's peace otherwise, he says.

Francis Kreuter aligns himself with Will Rogers and is at his best when masticating a certain kind of chew-ing gum.

George Yates is superstitious in an anti-way. He deliberately courts disaster by going out of his way to walk under ladders, and he has kittens across his path, and wakes up at 3 o'clock in the morning to look at the moon over his left or right shoulder, according to which one he thinks is the wrong one. This dates from the time when he and a friend were strolling to-gether. He walked under a ladder; his friend walked under it. George got all right, but the friend slipped on a banana peel and broke his hip.

Ed Johnson used to carry a rabbit foot, but threw it away as inefficacious. He now avers that everything brings good luck.

Noel Engel in playing baseball always swings three bats before stepping up to the plate, and he tosses aside are crossed he must needs uncross them before batting; else they prey on his mind to the point of paralysis.

Charles Worthington has only one hoodoo. When he sees a cross-eyed woman with red hair he pities the gods by spitting in his hat. This

Engineers Become Animal Lovers And Immortalize Animals in Iron

By G. M. SPENCER

By gosh, (mustn't say the naughty word), gentlemen, this is treason! As we said before, this is treason. For over in the Henry W. Wendt shop a small group of those stu-dents fondly labeled engineers has forsaken its chosen profession in favor of a much different one.

And now, dear readers, for the sake of those who haven't been fol-lowing the antics of our fun-loving little engineers, let's go back to the first part of our story. No, Gettrude, the engineers aren't little, we put that in for effect. Several weeks ago our own Doctor Finkhuuser took a little trip. And on this trip he happened, quite by accident, to pick up several cute little animals. Understand, they were nice, tame, domesticated things which captured the playing heart of our unsuspect-ing Doctor Finkhuuser.

Are you following dear readers? We doubt if you are but we're just writing for the fun of it anyway. Well, to make a long story longer, good Doctor packed the little beasts up in his old kit pack and brought them back to Lexington with him. All the whole, the little wild fowls were growing upon our soft-hearted Doctor Finkhuuser and by the time he had reached his destination, the beasts had com-pletely ensnared his heart.

The cruel truth finally broke up-on our Doctor. What could he do when the little things died and left him alone in this hard world? What a question. We repeat, sir, what a question! Granted that it's a question, the enamored gentle-man was hit by an idea. After the shock of such a phenomenon had lost its effect, he went straight to the engineers and pleaded for help. Finally the truth dawned upon them. They would make some exact replicas of the dear little animals.

And that, fond readers, is ex-actly what they did. And now they are saying that the winsome little figures they have wrought are the hearts of the cold-hearted engineers. Such is life! In other words, the hum of the dynamo and the whirrs of giant wheels had lost its appeal for the engineers. Instead, the afore-mentioned beasts are taking up the hearts of the engineers mentioned supra.

That little one is the whole story in a couple of nut-shells.

While carrying this burden of drought relief, the Red Cross con-tinued to maintain such normal services as the country required of both national and local organiza-tions. In the normal program of the Red Cross work, there are many points at which it has developed a mutually valuable association with the educational world and those in students and faculty.

Through its Junior Red Cross or-ganization, numbering more than 7,000 members of lower school grades, it works in harmony with teachers and pupils. Certain of its instruction courses are standard and given credit in a number of educational institutions, both inter-mediate and university rank; in other cases these phases of Red Cross activity are made a part of the program more informally.

Then there is the international side of the Red Cross movement which must, both at present and in the future, hold interest for all Americans. At the close of the World War, in the course of peace-time adjustment, there was created the League of Red Cross Societies, through American leadership, and a sponsorship which has continued in the post-war years. Through the League there has developed a growing international relationship and given credit in a number of

ROAMIN' THE RIALTO

A vote of thanks to the Woman's club of the university for bringing us such an admirable presentation of the Shakespearean drama, "Twelfth Night" and "Hamlet." Very little imagination was needed, especially in the afternoon perfor-mance, to see to it that the play-ers made a presentation which delighted the audiences.

Here's a bombshell for the English department: Mae West, who has probably had more shows closed by the law than any other leading actress-producer, is rewriting "Macbeth" in modern language as her picture vehicle. Her picture, "Constant Sinners," brought Mae all kinds of trouble, including financial.

The Ben All opens Sunday with a picture which should sell well worth your time, "Palmy Days." Eddie Cantor's latest opus, is a musical production which is said to be packed with Cantor laughs, which we always expect of that master comedian. Persons who saw "Whoops" will never think of miss-ing another picnic such as that. In this United Artists picture the star rushes uproariously into the most humorous situation to another with the usual Cantor expressions and songs. Charlotte Greenwood pro-vides the femme interest and the dialogue was written by Eddie Cantor, Morris Ryskind, and David Freedman.

Illness in Film Centers: "Emma," Marie Dressler's next picture, which was postponed on account of that star's illness, will again go into production upon the return of Mis-Dressler from Europe where she spent her vacation.

Joan Bennett has been in the Lebanon hospital for two months with an injured hip. She is now at home but still wearing a cast and will have to wait a month before starting to walk.

"Sob Sister," opening at the Ken-tucky Saturday, is a newspaper story bringing out the contempt that reporters on daily sheets have for the methods of the tabloid newspapers. James Dunn, the hero of "Bad Girl," has the lead in this attraction and portrays the part of a young re-porter on the Times. The young re-porter's sob sister who invariably sec-onds in this attraction, is played by Linda Watkins, who makes her debut in this Fox picture. Red Cross Drive to be Launched Armistice Day

The American Red Cross news service has prepared the following story concerning its annual cam-paign which will be launched on Armistice day, November 11. Ar-ticles are sent to all college publica-tions throughout the country in or-der that students may know some-thing of the work which the organi-zation is doing. The story follows: The annual enrollment of mem-bers which the American Red Cross will launch on Armistice Day, No- vember 11, this year, signifies the fiftieth anniversary of the found-ing of the organization.

Anniversaries, particularly fiftieth anniversaries, whether of indi-viduals or organizations, offer two temptations. One is to look back and the second is to look forward. The Red Cross, being at the half-way mark, so to speak, found that could produce those able to do both.

The views of Dr. Livingston Far-land, president of Cornell, are dis-tinctly in point here, because, not only has he looked forward, but he has borne in mind how closely the future of all things now with us is allied with the forward-looking generation now in the country's ed-ucational institutions. He says: "I have to do, year in and year out, with American youth, and I hear a great many aspersions cast, particularly by the older generation. Take my word for it, the present generation of youth is infinitely better than your and my genera-tion. It is the best we have know-ing of in this world, and I were bre- without protest on our part; and now there is a tendency to see clearly and, if we can inspire that group with this spirit which has made the Red Cross what it is, there is no doubt as to the future.

"I do not look for any great, new, dramatic development in the program of the Red Cross. I don't think it needs it. The superb read-iness which has developed during these last ten years in the face of an eminent catastrophe, the readiness to act, and not only the readiness to act but the ability to act effec-tively—no one can doubt that in the face of national peril, should it arise, the Red Cross would be again the expression of a patriotic spirit which was the finest thing that was aroused by the trial through which

Due to the ceaseless efforts of the Institute of International Education there is now a migration of students to American colleges.

Not few European students are coming here, therefore, to study student organization, club-houses, social unions, and various forms of self-help.

Coquettish Spider Co-ed Typefies Female Foibles

BY LAWRENCE HERRON
Preening their feathers of complacency, ruffled by respective ventures into novel lives, this year's freshmen and last year's graduates of the University of Kentucky agree on two matters—the frivolity of women and the fickleness of the world. Nevertheless, there is one brown-haired co-ed at the university who, while contributing to the former, paradoxically enough, refutes the latter.

Like other co-eds, these of the spider colony have all the faded feminine characteristics. With all the dignity of her two-inch body and the fervor of her southern soul, Miss California demands the latest clothing styles, the freedom of priming when she pleases, and that omnipresent wall of the college "date"—food.

Intramural Debates Postponed by Coach
The meeting of the university debaters which was postponed from Tuesday evening was held last night. Discussion of the subject Resolved That the Several States Should Adopt Compulsory Unemployment Insurance, was continued. There were to have been two intramural debates, but due to the fact that several of the group desired to attend important meetings, it was necessary to have the debates postponed until next week.

Miss Birdie California, resident student of the department of entomology and botany at the experiment station, although exhibiting many of the frailties so disheartening to those of the opposite sex, will be graduated this year and, according to Miss Mary Legrand Dickie, assistant in the department, is planning to remain at the station. The catch? Birdie (probably Mrs.) is a cuddlesome tarantula. (South American varieties of the classification avicularia californica—a treacherous little bundle of feminine whimsy and devilry—Birdie, whose delightful call derived its name from the unique practice of devouring unwary or helpless birds, began her residence at the experiment station November 8, 1927, a gift from Bradstreet's grocery.

'CATS TO BE HOMECOMING FOE OF TIDE

CAPACITY CROWD IS EXPECTED FOR ANNUAL BATTLE

Kentucky Has Been Homecoming Guest on Three Occasions

CRIMSON TIDE IMPROVES

By E. R. RICHARDSON
(Editor, Crimson-White)

University, Ala. (Special to the Kernel)—After two weeks of arduous preparation, the citizens of Tuscaloosa and the members of the Alabama student body are eagerly awaiting the dawn of the morning when the twelfth Homecoming program of the University will be ushered in with a bang. Hundreds of alumni, visitors and Kentuckians have already arrived on the scene and it is predicted that a record crowd will tax the capacity of Denny Stadium when the Crimson Tide kicks off to the Kentucky Wildcats in the feature event of the week-end.

The meeting between these rival teams will mark the eleventh encounter in Alabama athletics, and it will be the third time that a Kentucky eleven has faced the Tide as a part of the Capstone's Homecoming celebration. This equals the record previously shared alone by Louisiana State as the only team in the country to be accorded the privilege of playing in the Tide back-yard on more than two of these occasions.

The line-up that will be sent against the charges of Coach Harry Gamage will boast of five or six sophomore gridlers, two seniors, and four juniors. During the Sewanee tussle last Saturday, this group showed a decided improvement over the squad that was snapped up at Knoxville two weeks ago. Since that engagement, Coach Thomas has worked the boys hard and has created a new backfield combination in Moseley, Holley, Walker, and Johnny Cain. This quartet appears to work more smoothly than the former varsity reworkings, but there are many fans in Alabama who believe that the second string backfield, composed of Bellini, Long, Causey, and Champelle, is rather superior at times to the above mentioned group.

The Tide emerged from the scrap with Sewanee minus the right arm of injuries, but Godfree, who was laid up in the Tennessee contest, is still using the cane in getting about; while Whitworth will probably not start the encounter due to injuries.

Holley has provided much of the thrills in the games so far this season with his running; and Cain mentioned on meet, all Southern eleven's last fall, has been the kicking sensation of the year with his long, well-placed boots.

INTRAMURAL SPORTS

Haggard and Luening, who compose the Kappa Alpha golf two-ball foursome, were returned the winners in the Fall Intramural golf program by virtue of their victory over Schuler and Davis, members of the Phi Delta Theta two-ball foursome team. The match was played over the Piedmont Golf course. Haggard and Luening won the match two up, over the 18 holes. The winners amassed a total of 41 points for their house, while the losers gained a total of 22 points.

Volley Ball
C. W. Hackensmith, director of Intramurals, is very disappointed with the response of the Independents to volleyball. There are not enough Independents entered in this sport in comparison to the number of Independents on the campus. At the present there are only five Independent teams entered in this sport as compared to the 18 fraternities represented. Of course the fraternities are organized but there is no reason why the Independents cannot get together and help make the fall program of intramural sports a success.

Five Independents have entered teams so far. They are: the Grand Slams, the Wrecking Crew, Engineers, Kinhead Hall, and Bradley Hall. Entries in the volley will close October 30th, and play in the sport will begin November 9th. All games are to be played in the Gym Annex, and both courts will be used. There will be three divisions in volleyball: the Fraternities will be the first division; the Independents will be the second; and the Grand Slams series of games will be played between the fraternities, and then the winner of the fraternity championship will play the Independent champion for the championship of the university.

Freshmen Will Meet Sewanee Here Saturday

The Kitten football team will engage the University of the South freshman grid squad on Stoll field Saturday afternoon. The battle will start at 1 o'clock.

This game will be the piece de resistance for resistance for the football fans of Lexington as the Wildcats will be in Tuscaloosa that day battling the Crimson Tide.

The freshmen are somewhat the worse for wear due to the rough handling they have received at the hands of the varsity this week. The frosh squad has decreased until there are barely two full teams of the green clad yearlings left for Coaches Miller and Fribble to choose a starting lineup from. The backfield will be at full strength with the return to the fold of "Jack the ripper" Jean, the Owensboro battering ram, who is one of the biggest threats the Greensies can offer. Miller, Sparks, Saunders, and Barney are in good shape once again and the backs look like they will do a big business against the purple freshies. The line is somewhat damaged by the assaults received from the hands of Wright, Davidson and company, and a somewhat patched up forewell will greet the invaders.

Little is known of the strength of the Sewanee first year men but a hard battle is promised by the freshmen mentors who say that the frosh crew of the Tennessee school is the best ever to come from that school.

University High Has Open Date This Week

The University High school Purples have an open date Friday, Oct. 30. The Purple squad has been working out almost every day on the strip of grass directly in front of the training school and are in good shape to combat Anchorage on Cassidy field Friday, November 6, at 3 o'clock. Coach "Petie" Kemper is much encouraged over the showing of his charges in the three games they have played to date, and is confident that his boys will give the "Anchors" a good game when the two teams tie up.

FLORIDA
Gainesville, Fla., Oct. 28—Coach Charlie Bachman and his Florida Gators went through one of the most strenuous workouts of the season today in preparation for the homecoming game with Georgia here Saturday. The Florida line will be there to a man Saturday, but the squad is still sorely handicapped by lack of offensive material in the backfield.

DUKE
Durham, N. C., Oct. 28—A thirty-minute drill on signals was Duke's practice today and after a short workout tomorrow the team will leave for Knoxville to meet Tennessee Saturday. Lowell Mason, Duke's field general, returned to practice in uniform today but did not take part in the running. It is doubtful if he will play Saturday.

Deacle, substitute fullback for Washington and Jefferson, ran ninety-seven yards for a touchdown against Western Maryland, and on two occasions punted more than 40 yards.

Seen From The Press Box

By VERNON D. ROOKS

The crises has arrived and we will soon know whether the University of Kentucky has a football team or just another attempt at one. We refer to the Alabama-Wildcat game, which will be contested on the stamping grounds of Bama's Red Elephants, down in Tuscaloosa.

Kentucky may enter the game a slight favorite, due to the Tide's recent defeat at the hands of Tennessee's mighty Volunteers. This does not mean that the Cats should win. Alabama will, in all probability, play its best game of the season against us. Year after year we have been forced to grovel in the grime of the earth, and grin and bear it, while Alabama proceeds to administer its annual drubbing of the Kentuckians and not always has the Capstone institution been the favorite. Something like eight years have transpired since we tasted the glory of victory over the Tide. Do you suppose we could do something about it this year? Well, now let's see.

At the beginning of the season Kentucky was touted as a team that could not hope to have a prayer in the realms of football glory. Yet we discover that a complete submerging of Washington and Lee's fondest hopes brightened the outlook a bit. Then came the Maryland game. Far be it from us to explain just how that came about in such a manner. The Wildcats pitched a tent, camped, and did everything but cook a meal on and around the vicinity of Maryland's 20-yard line and still could get no better than a 6-6 tie. Folks, in our opinion, Kentucky has one of the best ball clubs around this country. They have a stalwart forward wall capable of repulsing the best. They have one of the best all-around collections of backs in the South. They have expert tutelage in the art of the game. It seems that according to our statements they must have everything. Well, no, not everything, but certainly enough to beat the rest of the teams remaining on the schedule.

Kentucky will be fighting down there Saturday, and if we do as much supporting as those 'Cats do fighting we might receive a victory. The spirit is wonderful. But the 'Cats also will be fighting tradition and fate—that has beaten many teams—you say Alabama will win? —Yes, but I'll be ... if we see how they are going to do it!

Damage Needed Material; Ross Offered His Services to School

By J. DELMAR ADAMS

One cloudy day in September a tall boy entered Coach Harry Gamge's office and handed him a written piece of paper. The boy would not speak or hear, but I read you needed men for your football squad so I thought I would come. Not that you can use for a tackling dummy or anything. If it will help the team and the school.

This boy is James Ross, a 24 year old lad from Ashland who is beloved by the members of the football team for his many fine qualities and his indomitable spirit. His helpful, trying attitude serves as an inspiring tonic to the big blue footballers. Willing to give three hours of his time each day to a cause, he knows full well that will not aid him very much in any way. He is willing to sacrifice all for his love of his alma mater.

When Ross was interviewed by the writer he seemed amazed that anyone should wish to question him concerning himself or that any one should be interested in him or in his activities. Ross has a very high regard for the Wildcat coaches, both personally and as coaches. He said he thought they were some of the best coaches in football.

popped the questions so fast that the young man could hardly keep up with them. In answer to our query as to whether he thought if the team had no members of the team he replied, "They have the finest spirit I have seen for a long time." He said he thought the members of the team and thinks they are the finest lot of ball players that ever were.

Although not a player, Ross is a good football player, but he is handicapped by his deafness so that he can not play as the other men do. He is a keen judge of the other players and appreciates every good tackle and takes to heart every bad play made by the Big Wildcat team. Ross played in the Washington and Lee game and showed up well, not missing a play and getting the signals by reading lips in the huddle.

One of the brightest students in the College of Engineering, Ross has received high grades all through his career in the university and was also an honor student in Randolph-Macon Academy before entering the university. Besides the long hours of study that his stiff engineering course requires, he finds time to serve his university in the way he thinks will help it most.

We May Be Wrong

The Dopester picks them the way he thinks they will finish. The Wildcats will win, maybe. The rest are conjectural but should run as figures them.

By Totsy Rose

Tennessee, Tulane and Georgia continue to lead the pack in the mad scramble for the Southern conference football crown. This week Georgia meets Florida; Tennessee battles Duke and Tulane has a practice session with Mississippi A. & M.

The outstanding game in the conference will be the battle between Georgia and Florida. The Bulldogs disappointed their followers last week with a very dismal showing against Vanderbilt. This week Georgia will meet a Florida eleven inspired by a brilliant victory over the highly touted Auburn team. Coach Mehre believes Georgia stars have had too much football already and in practice this week he will give his light workers a rest. It will be a real fight for victory unless the Bulldogs snap out of their previous indifferent mood. The Gators have a team that is anything but a set-up. We believe Georgia will flash one of their very best performances to down Florida.

Tennessee is another favorite that cost its supporters plenty last week with a poor brand of football against North Carolina. The Volunteer team this season is made up of inexperienced players therefore, it is only natural for them to have a let down after their great showing against the Crimson Tide. Tomorrow, Tennessee will have a very strong defensive team to battle as Wallace Wade's Duke Blue Devils have only one touchdown marked against them this year. However, the Volunteers should be able to score enough points to down the Blue Devils who are planning to play a purely defensive game.

Tulane has another one of its many set-ups to battle. This week it is Mississippi Aggies. Coach Bierman will probably use his second team to down the unfortunate Aggies.

Football Team Will Not Play Post Season Game for Unemployed

The university football team will not play a post-season game for charity according to a decision reached last night by members of the council on athletics. However, all the proceeds that the school will receive from the game with Duke, November 7, will be turned over to the Lexington Community Chest Fund, it was announced.

Based on a paid attendance of 10,000, it was estimated that some $8,000 would be raised which, when turned over to the Chest Fund, would materially increase the resources of the organization.

However, in order to reach this figure, it will be necessary for citizens of the central part of the state as well as those of Lexington to respond wholeheartedly to the appeal made by the President of the United States for city relief funds.

The full statement of the council is:

"The council on athletics of the University of Kentucky at a session held last night unanimously decided to give its proceeds of the game with Duke University November 7 to the unemployed fund.

"The council is in entire accord with the President's request to aid the unemployed and the game with Duke at Lexington gives the citizens of the state the opportunity to contribute to this fund.

"The council is opposed to any extension of the football season beyond the present season which ends December 5 in a game with Florida. This mid-season game with Duke University meets every condition of weather, place and interest. It is the people's chance in central Kentucky to respond to the President's call for funds."

(Signed) Dr. Frank L. McVey, Dr. W. D. Pankhouser, S. A. Boles, Com. of the council."

BASKETBALL MEN COMPLETE WEEKS DRILL SESSIONS

By JOHN ST. JOHN

The first kinks and cramps in the muscles of the aspiring basketball players have been worked out during their first week of strenuous practice. Under the watchful eyes of Coach Adolph Rupp, these players have been practicing every day during the last week.

With the squad at present being too large to handle, a cut will be made the first of next week, limiting the squad to 20. Coach Rupp feels that the aspirants have had sufficient time to show their prowess and will cut the squad without fear of losing valuable men.

Getting into condition was the purpose of this first week of drill although Thursday the first set of plays was given those trying out.

With the football season, five more members will be cut from the squad to make room for nine varsity football players who will join the squad. This squad of 24 will be carried throughout the season.

According to Coach Rupp, prospects this season are particularly bright and although no letter men have returned, there are 11 very promising players. Five of this number are sophomores: Blair, De Moisey, Hughes, Judd and Nelson. The others who ought to develop into strength for the team are Little, Kleser, Bell, Sale, George and Settle.

Frank Earl Seale, junior, center, was born at Rose Hill, Virginia, February 25, 1911. He attended Big Stone Gap High school and played center and guard four years on the Stone Gap High school team.

He came to the university in 1929 and played tackle on Coach Birkett Pribble's Big Green crew of that year. Frank made his letter last year, playing on the varsity with the Purples for four years, playing at end the entire time.

"urf" came to school last year and played end on the freshman team. He is still playing end, but now on the varsity squad. He is taking a pre-medical course and majoring in chemistry. After graduation he will go to a medical school and when he leaves it will become a doctor.

"Big" Seale is majoring in 220 pounds and stands 5 feet, 11 inches.

James Wellman Ross, junior, line-man, was born in Ashland, March 28, 1906. He attended Randolph-Macon Academy, at Bedford, Virginia, and played three years at tackle and guard.

O. B. Murphy, Jr., sophomore end, was born in Lexington, Kentucky,

December 17, 1912. Murphy attended University High school near the campus of the university in Lexington. O. B. played football with the Purples for four years, playing at end the entire time.

Facts... FACE-UP
Let's talk Straight from the Shoulder
WHAT you want in a cigarette is taste. You want mildness... smoothness... and satisfying pleasure when you smoke.
All right then... get this straight.
CHESTERFIELD pays top prices... yes, and a premium for the ripest, mellows, sweetest-tasting leaf that grows.
The curing and conditioning is done by specialists... men carefully trained in handling these fine tobaccos.
IN BLENDING, also, Chesterfields are different... Instead of merely mixing the tobaccos together... we cross-blend them. It's like making a new and better-tasting kind of tobacco. That's how we get that Chesterfield flavor. Milder... and a more pleasing aroma.
Cigarette paper? Only the purest that's made is good enough for Chesterfield.
PICK UP a package. Note its clean appearance... free from heavy inks. It's moisture-proof, too.
And three big factories at Richmond, Durham and San Francisco—operating under the strictest sanitary standards—rush them fresh to you.
Good... they've got to be good. Because they're made that way. And most important of all... you can taste this goodness in the cigarette. You can tell it in the smoke.
Light up, Mister! Try Chesterfield.
Let the cigarette do its own talking. You'll get the whole thrilling story, in just two words... "They Satisfy!"
"Yes Sir—Mild yet they Satisfy"
