How About It?

Candidates for one party in the recent Student Government Association election carried as their slogan "Revitalize SGA." That party didn't win. But the party which did win that election took notice of the other party's slogans. And SGA is in the process of being revitalized.

The president, in searching through the files for information on a certain bill, found bill upon bill that had been passed, filed, and forgotten. Most of these bills are good bills—they were passed because they would benefit the campus. They still will benefit the campus. Therefore, they should be enforced. And the Student Government Association has decided to see to it that they are enforced.

Those which have no usefulness clutter the files of the Assembly. They should be repealed. Present plans include their repeal.

For at least two years—since the squabble about bringing the eternal big name band to the campus during wartime—SGA has been in the proverbial state of animated suspension. It has been a legitimate organization, but its members have done nothing to further the purpose of that organization.

How many members of the Student Government Association ever have read the constitution of the association from beginning to end? How many have read the by-laws? How many have even so much as read Robert's Rules of Order, which according to the constitution governs proceedings at all meetings of the assembly? How can representatives expect to do anything constructive when they don't even know what is within their power?

How many students know that any new organization wishing to come on campus must have the permission of the assembly? How many organizations know about this procedure? Copies of all bills passed by the Assembly, all bills vetoed by the president of the University and all other SGA business proceedings are on file in the SGA room. Any student may see them. Certainly the representatives of the student body owe it to the students who elected them to be acquainted with all these things. But the students owe it to themselves, to fellow students, and to future students to become acquainted with these things themselves. Then criticism of SGA could be constructive rather than the old "what's-the-matter-with-SGA-why-don't-they-do-something" variety. Then the representative wouldn't be a bunch of sleepy-laggards who would mumble in their beads, if they had them. You, representatives would be wide awake and ready to work for the betterment of the campus.

The Student Government Association is endowed by its constitution with the right to act as the responsible authority in relations among students and among student organizations, to act jointly with the University staff in matters affecting common interests, and to advise, to request, and to recommend action with respect to matters reserved to the University staff. Obviously it has the makings of a powerful organization and a powerful influence upon campus life. Obviously it is neither one of these. WHY?

The Assembly will place suggestion boxes in campus buildings next week. THESE BOXES ARE PUT THERE FOR THE PURPOSE OF RECEIVING YOUR SUGGESTIONS, OPINIONS, AND COMPLAINTS. A planning committee from the Assembly will carry on SGA work throughout the summer quarter. This committee will take up all suggestions from the boxes and will place them on the agenda of the assembly for early action in the fall quarter.

SGA has the leadership necessary for a good organization. What it needs is your support, which you can give only with full knowledge of the facts. Then if anything goes wrong, the blame will rightfully go to the Assembly. The Assembly will have the responsibility for revitalizing SGA.

How about it, SGA Assembly? How about it, members of the Student Government Association?

The Varsity Show

By HUGH COLLETT

WE TOOK time off from our studies—we know that none of our readers did—to see a certain motion picture that was showing in a theater we shall leave unnamed. For our readers that couldn't tear themselves away from their studies, we should like to give a vivid review of said movie.

As the picture opens, we see the typical stagecoach coming down the typical western road. Naturally, the stagecoach leads up to a typical western town, and the first face we see is that of the typical Keystone cop—in a sheriff's clothing. He finds that an old buddy of his—a bandit by profession—has arrived on said stagecoach. This beginning has the makings of a wonderful plot, but we find out about a reel and a half later that this picture doesn't need a plot.

But to get on with the story, we are told that said bandit—"Doc"—that is—has had his horse stolen. In an effort to find said horse, the eye of the camera introduces us to a little bandit—just out of diapers—by the name of Billy. My, but he looks young! Young or not, he represents the male love interest in a definitely one-sided love affair—on-sided as far as we're concerned, anyway.

Night falls with the usual bang, and we find Junior in a barn, getting ready to bed for the night. And then the music breaks out in all his fury, and after we drop from the ceiling, we find that two eyes are staring from behind an old, run-down wheel. Ah, for the life of a wheel!

But, from behind the wheel, a gun barrel with something on the trigger end of it is pointed at our young hero. After a few shots and a few maneuvers on the part of Sweet William, the power behind said gun and Billy get into a little tussle, which ends in a dark corner of the barn. After another wild fit from the orchestra and another earthward drop to our seat, we discover that the eyes were a portion of a face attached to the body of one Jane Russell. "Nuff said! Although the next scene is dimly lighted, we look into the shadows and find that the two of 'em are—cutting for the deal. Or did they play chess? It was so dark, we but, on with the story.

Incidentally, all the time our game-lovers were busy playing monopoly, Victor Young and his boys were beating out a little ditty by Tschalkowsky. Frankly, it became a bit boring after the first seventeen times. But so did other things. Again we're depressing. The scene shifts. And so do we—that lady in front of us has on the damndest hat!

Pat, the Keystone cop, asks that Doc and "The Kid" high-tail it out of town. When Billy questions the authority of said dopey sheriff, he gets a little wound as a souvenir, and finally takes the hint and decides to leave with Hollywood's impression of a badman—Walter Houston. Willy falls off his horse as he crosses a creek, and, having passed his life-saving course, the horse fishes him out. Willy's dragged out of streams time and time again—always getting himself into hot water!

It seems that Billy's little bridge partner of the barn is Doc's girl friend, and so, Doc takes our hero to her home. This situation offers an opportunity of two alternatives: (1) the beginning of a plot, or (2) a display. Result: no plot!

After Doc "makes a run for it," Rio—the girl we would most like to see in "The Outlaw"—makes various unsuccessful attempts on Billy's life, but when he is evidently dying from chills, Rio gets a warm spot in her heart for him, and, as the fiddies screech on, she transplants said warm spot in a way that is most effective.

At this point, or somewhere during the fifth reel, Rio states that she is married to Billy, but that he doesn't know it. This situation offers an opportunity of two alternatives: (1) Upon first taste, the boys realize that it isn't water in the canteens, and so, Junior rushes back to Rio's shack to remind her. That he does! After a few brief words, they discover that there's nothing better to do than to play a few hands of honeymoon bridge. In case you are interested, Billy made his bid.

As we knew would happen sooner or later, Pat catches both Doc and Billy the Jerk and is in the act of taking them to some fort for confinement when a cigar store tribe (Indians, that is!) comes swooping down out of the hills. Billy's ingenuity and the skill of the technical director of the film get them out of the mess by dragging some cacti (that's plural for cactus) across the sands. That made the damndest cloud of dust you ever saw—it would even put the dust bowl to shame! Our interest in the film is aroused again by the return of Miss Russell.

During the fracas, Pat, in a moment of fading mentality, returns the outlaw's guns. Now anything can happen—and it does. Doc shoots little nicks out of Billy's ears. Tschalkowsky is in all his glory, Billy winks at Rio, who, in turn, drops a plate. Doc beats Pat to the draw, but Pat kills Doc, a very fitting coo-coo clock strikes eight, and Billy gets cold feet. (But this time, he isn't in water!)

And then, for the first time throughout the show, the sheriff gets a bit of sense. The audience, for the first time, is partly reminded that

Keep The Bells!

Limited space prevents an editorial on the proposed bells for Memorial hall until the first issue of the summer quarter, but The Kernel is in favor of this step. Such a step would do much to combat the cry of "no tradition" at the University. A good athletes department isn't all that a school needs for school spirit. It's traditions that unify the campus.

Golfers Play Miami U Today

Coch Frank Alkin's linksmen last week were their next to last match of the 1946 golf season with a decisive 19-8 victory over Xavier university on the Ashland golf course. This was the fourth win for the Kentuckians compared to two losses and one tie match.

This afternoon, the Wildcats will meet the Miami team at Cincinnati, Kentucky has won all three scheduled matches over Miami and, if the Wildcats are able to show top form, the match today will be a repeat performance.

Baseball Team Loses Three Games In Row; Ends Season Tomorrow At Ohio University

By James S. Baskett

A vast baseball program is being planned by Athletic Director Bernie Shively and Coach Frank Moseley for the team next season. Already preparation are being made for a six-day trip to the South where the 'Cats will play Southeastern Conference teams. Another trip is planned with the Eastern colleges furnishing the opposition.

The current baseball season will close tomorrow when the 'Cats oppose Ohio University at Athens, Ohio. The 'Cats left yesterday for Athens to play the final series of the year. They are scheduled to play one game today.

A squad of seventeen men accompanied Coach Frank Moseley on the trip. They were: Bill Gardner, Charley Rose, Joe Triplett, Darrell Loran, Gary Buttermann, Ed Allin, "Wah-Wah" Jones, Jack Garrett, Ralph Beard, "Humze" Yessin, Johnny Crosswhite, Vernon Jones, Richard Hall, Jim Powell, Bill Chambers, Jack Wellons, and Jimmy Baskett, manager.

The team is scheduled to return Saturday night. The probable starting pitchers for Kentucky in the two-game series are Jim Powell and Vernon Jones.

Ohio University registered its sixth triumph in ten games Friday at Still field as the Bobcats outclassed the 'Cats to win 9-2. "Chuck" Bunnell, ace Bobcat twirler, limited the opposition to seven hits and furnished eleven to hang up his sixth victory of the season.

Kentucky's starting pitcher, Vernon Jones, issued six free tickets before being relieved by Bill Chambers early in the second inning. These walks set up five of the Bobcat runs and provided the winning margin. Chambers hurried credible ball throughout the remainder of the game.

Kentucky scored the only two runs in the opening frame on hits by Ralph Beard, Bill Gardner and Johnny Crosswhite together with walks to Charley Rose and "Humze" Yessin.

Gary Buttermann, Wildcat catcher, replaced Ed Allin behind the plate in the sixth inning and smashed two doubles in the late innings; however, the 'Cats were unable to tally. Bill Gardner, 'Cat center-fielder, collected three hits for five trips to the plate.

Time Out! Kernel Sports

By O. C. Halvay Jr.

Since everyone else is doing it, we are dedicating this week's column to the graduating seniors, those who are leaving us to take their place in the business world. Our parting thought to them:

When you get established, don't forget your old alma mater. She'll still need your help and most of all your constant support. Take up for her whenever necessary. Be proud that you are a graduate of the old school. And above all don't forget our program to rejuvenate athletics.

TENNIS INFO

The Bellevue all-stars will be down tomorrow afternoon to play the Wildcats on the Downing courts. Their No. 1 and No. 2 men, although only 15-year-old lads, each recently added another star to their tennis crowns.

Tony Trabert, who ranks No. 3 in the boys' national rating, won the Ohio State High School's singles championship last Saturday. At the same time Bud Igel, No. 2 man on the Bellevue squad, teamed up with a partner and won the Ohio State High School doubles.

All indications are that Roger Kleime, former UK star, and now player-coach of the Bellevue team, will bring at least seven men along with himself to play in the exhibition. It is slated to start at 2 o'clock, and the admission is free.

average an earlier defeat by Eastern College's Maroons, losing 2-1. The Maroons showed across a run in the ninth inning to cap the victory. Until the ninth inning the game had been a 1-1 hurling duel between Bill Chambers of Eastern and Bill Chambers of Kentucky.

In the ninth the Maroons bunched a base on balls, an error, and a single by pinch-hitter Priddleton to gain the victory. The 'Cats refused to give up and in the last of the ninth nearly scored. Yessin, the first man up, walked, and "Wah" Jones sacrificed him to second. Buttermann, who is leading the 'Cats in hitting, came through with a single to center with Yessin holding third. Chambers was then called out on strikes and Beard grounded out to the third baseman, Cinnamon.

Bill Chambers hurled very good ball for the 'Cats, however, two walks, one in the first and the other in the ninth, provided the winning margin.

Gentlemen, this is no bureau-craw

No, no. This thing of beauty is no joy when hidden in a drawer.

This Arrow Tie must be worn. It must drape the full length of its handsome grace down your shirt-front. It must breathe its spectrums into every fold of your suit.

As with all Arrow Ties, it glides into a perfect knot with a minimum of manipulation.

Practically eternal.

See it at your Arrow dealer's.

Winners of the first round softball playoffs were: Phi Tau's, 2-1 over Kappa Sig; Sig Eps over AGR, 9-1; Phi Sigs over KA, 15-6, and Delta over Pi Kaps, 11-9. Second round winners: Sig Eps defeated Sad Sacks, 9-7; SAE over Phi Sigs, 2-1; SX defeated the Deltas 16-4; Phi Tau's and ATO tied 4-4 in a 16-inning game which was called off because of rain. Phi Tau's in their second game with ATO defeated them 7-0. SAE defeated Sig Eps in the semi-finals 13-2. Phi Tau's play Sigma Chi today and the winner plays SAE for the crown.

COLONEL Of The Week

KILMER COMBS

This week's Colonel of the Week is Kilmer Combs, a senior in law school from Prestonsburg.

Kilmer is a member of Phi Delta Phi and on the staff of the Kentucky Law Journal. He is past president of Sigma Chi fraternity and a former member of Keys and Lamp and Cross.

He is also listed in Who's Who in American colleges and universities.

For these achievements the Cedar Village invites Kilmer to enjoy any two of its delicious meals.
